NOTE.

In this edition of the Bengal Tenancy Act have been incorporated the provisions of Act I, B. C., of 1907. This Act received the assent of the Governor-General in Council on the 11th May, 1907. It was published in the Calcutta Gazette and came into force on the 22nd May, 1907.

Act I, B. C., of 1907 applies only to the province of Bengal (see note, p. 4). It is not in force in Eastern Bengal and Assam (see note p. 7). The modifications introduced into the Act by Act I, B. C., of 1907 are extensive. They have been indicated in the text by means of heavy brackets. Light brackets show the changes made by Act III, B. C., of 1898, and other amending Acts.

The Government rules and the rules of the Registration department under the Act were under revision when this work was passing through the press. The references to these rules made in the notes to the sections must be understood as referring to the old rules before they were amended. The new rules, have, however, been reproduced in the Appendices.

A new feature in this edition is the Introduction, which gives a history of the rent law of Bengal and of this Act and contains a brief analysis of the law relating to the record-of-rights.

October, 1907.

INTRODUCTION.

I.—HISTORY OF THE BENGAL TENANCY ACT.

THE Bengal Tenancy Act, though not professing to be an exhaustive code of the law of landlord and tenant, is nevertheless a complete and self-contained enactment, so far as the most important agrarian relations are concerned. Since it was passed in 1885, it has undergone various important amendments. But the principles on which the Act is founded have remained unaltered. The object of the amendments made has throughout been to give fuller effect to those principles. It is unfortunate, though perhaps inevitable, that the discussions of recent years have dealt mainly with the working of the Act in details, and this has tended to obscure its main principles. In these circumstances, it has been thought that some account of the history of the Act and a brief explanation of its principles might be useful to the great body of officials and non-officials, who are concerned in its working.

Perhaps the best account of the aims and objects of the framers of the Bengal Tenancy Act is to be found in the speech of the Viceroy, when the Bill was first introduced in Council in 1883.

Lord Ripon said,—“ We have endeavoured to make a settlement, which, while it will not deprive the landlords of any of their accumulated advantages, will restore to the raiyats something of the position which they occupied at the time of the Permanent settlement, and which we believe to be urgently needed, in the words of that settlement, for the protection and welfare of the taluqdars, raiyats, and other cultivators of the soil, whose interests we then undertook to guard, and have to our shame too long neglected.”⁽¹⁾.

(1) Selections from papers relating to the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, pages 140-141.

Again, his successor Lord Dufferin in 1885, in putting the motion that the Bill should be passed, said he believed that "it is a translation and reproduction in the language of the present day of the spirit and essence of Lord Cornwallis's settlement, that it is in harmony with his intentions, that it carries out his ideas, that it is calculated to ensure the results he aimed at, and that it is conceived in the same beneficent and generous spirit, which actuated the original framers of the Regulations of 1793." Lord Cornwallis desired to relieve the zamindars from the worry and ruin occasioned by the capricious and frequent enhancements exacted from them by former Governments, and it is evident from his language that he expected they would show the same consideration to their raiyats.⁽¹⁾ It is in fact one of the most remarkable features of the discussions on the Bill which subsequently became the Bengal Tenancy Act, that the Permanent Settlement Regulations were treated as the final test by which all proposals were to be tried. And it is therefore clear that for the comprehension of the principles of the Tenancy Act, some knowledge of the Permanent Settlement is necessary.

When the East India Company in 1765 obtained the Diwani of Bengal, Behar and Orissa, the revenue administration previous to the Permanent Settlement. The assessment was that originally made under the guidance of Todar Mal, Akbar's Finance Minister in 1582, and subsequently modified by revisions carried out between 1685 and 1750. In theory, the assessment was based on a measurement of the cultivated area, the fixing of the Government demand at one-third of the gross produce, (except for certain crops and classes of soil, for which special rates and allowances were fixed), and the commutation of the Government share of the produce to cash at rates based on average prices for a period of years.⁽²⁾ But in practice, especially in Bengal and other outlying parts of the Moghal Empire, large areas were as a rule let out in farm to amils or Revenue Collectors, who were apparently left to make their own arrangements regarding assessment and collections. This, it may be remarked in passing, accounts for the absence in Bengal of that village revenue agency which is found in most of the other provinces of India, and the lack of which has for the last century and a half, so seriously hampered the efforts of Government to regulate agrarian relations in Bengal. The want of such an agency and the absence of all trustworthy information as to the agricultural capabilities of the country was early felt by the East India Company. In 1769, or four years after the acquisition of the Dewani, supervisors were appointed to superintend the collection of the revenue, and were directed to obtain a history of the tracts under their charge with regard to their "condition, revenue, abwab, capabilities of the soil &c." On the basis of their enquiries, a quinquennial settlement was concluded for a large part of the Province in 1772, and this was continued with certain variations till 1790.

In 1786, Lord Cornwallis arrived in India with instructions from Parliament and the Court of Directors to establish "permanent rules for the settlement and collection of revenue." His first step was to issue a set of interrogatories to "the most experienced of the Civil servants," who were required to report

- (1) the amount of assessment proposed for each estate,
- (2) the persons with whom settlement should be made,
- (3) the measures necessary to prevent the raiyats being oppressed and to secure the landlords in the realisation of their just demands.

On the basis of the information compiled under the first two heads a decennial settlement was made in 1790. This was made permanent in 1793. It is unnecessary to enter here into the controversy as to whether the information available in 1793 was sufficient to justify the making of a permanent settlement, or whether the settlement was made with the right persons. It is sufficient for present purposes to note that the enquiries made preliminary to the Permanent Settlement, regarding the measures necessary to prevent the raiyats being oppressed and to secure the landlords in the realisation of their just demands, did not supply enough materials for positive legislation. But by section 7 of the Permanent Settlement Regulation I of 1793, the Zamindars were required "to conduct themselves with good faith and moderation towards the dependent talukdars and raiyats." In section 8 of the same Regulation, it was declared as follows;—"It being the duty of the ruling power to protect all classes of people, and more particularly those who from their situation are most helpless, the Governor-General in Council will, whenever he may deem it proper, enact such Regulations as he may think necessary for the protection and welfare of the dependent talukdars and raiyats and other cultivators of the soil." And finally by section 67 of Regulation VIII of 1793, it was enacted that proprietors should be bound by the restrictions in their kabuliyats, the ninth clause of which was that, "implicit obedience be shown to all regulations which have been or may be prescribed by Government concerning the rents of the raiyats and the collections from under-tenants and agents of every description as well as from all other persons whatever." It is on these declarations made in connection with the Permanent Settlement of the Land Revenue, that all subsequent agrarian legislation in Bengal has been based. And it may further be remarked that all the important legislative measures, from Act X of 1859 down to the last Amendment Act of 1907, have dealt with the two objects which were mentioned in Lord Cornwallis's instructions of 1786, viz., the protection of the raiyats and the security of the landlords in the realisation of their just demands.

At the time of the Permanent Settlement, the means by which it was hoped to effect this two-fold object was the exchange between the zamindars and their tenants of pattas and kabuliyats showing the rents legally payable and excluding abwab and other impositions. The right of the raiyats to receive pattas was declared by section 59 of the Regulation VIII of 1793. By sections 54 and 55 of the same Regulation it was directed that all existing abwab should be consolidated with the asal rent and the imposition of any new abwab was prohibited. By section 62, the zamindars were bound to appoint patwaris whose duties were to maintain the rent accounts of the raiyats. But the hope that, by this means, a continuous record of the rights and obligations of landlord and tenant would be maintained was doomed to early disappointment. In 1812, the Collector of Tirhut reported that there was scarcely one instance in Bihar of a patta being taken or a kabuliyat executed. He added however that this was "more the fault of the raiyat than of the malik, the raiyat being averse to bind himself to pay any considerable fixed rent."⁽¹⁾ Complaints of the realisation of abwab in addition to the rent were numerous.

Meanwhile Government had not neglected the other obligation which it had undertaken of securing the landlords in the realisation of their dues. Recovery of rent. Regulation VII of 1799, (the notorious Haftam), gave the landlords practically unrestricted power to distrain the crops, cattle and other personal property of the raiyats, and in certain cases to arrest their persons for arrears of rent, without reference to any Court. Regulation V of 1812, (the Panjam), abolished the power of arrest, but the right of distraint remained. These measures were justified at the time by the alleged necessity of securing the collection of the Land Revenue. It was argued that as Government had the right to sell up the estates of the zamindars for failure to pay the land revenue, it was necessary to give the zamindars corresponding powers as regards their raiyats, in the event of the failure of the latter to pay their rents. On this point, Sir William Hunter in his Introduction to the Bengal Mss Records writes as follows:—

“The laws of 1799 and 1812 are so painfully associated in subsequent history with harshness to the cultivators, that it is necessary to emphasise the forgotten fact that they were at the time considered indispensable for the preservation of the landholders. I therefore quote a remarkable statement by a Bengal administrator, whose authority on such questions is beyond dispute. ‘It may not be generally known,’ wrote the late Mr. Buckland, ‘that the Regulation of 1799 was enacted in order to save the perpetual settlement, the existence of which was then imperilled by the excessive independence which the raiyats (cultivators) enjoyed. For although it is now the custom to say that the rights of the raiyats were not properly protected in the perpetual settlement, it turned out at the time that they could take such good care of their rights that the zamindars could not collect their rents from them until the Government came to the rescue of the zamindar, and made the raiyats liable to arrest for default of payment of rent.’”

It may be noted, however, that distrain was unknown in India until it was introduced in connection with the Permanent Settlement Legislation. It was described by the Rent Law Commission of 1880 as a mere “offset of English law”⁽¹⁾.

But it soon came to be realised that the raiyats and their rent could not be treated as on the same footing as the zamindars and their revenue. Government had fixed the revenue demand in perpetuity, and the accounts of the payments of the revenue were accurately kept in the Collectors’ offices. Neither of these safeguards existed in the case of the rents of the raiyats. The refusal of landlords and raiyats to exchange pattas and kabuliyats frustrated the hope that these would serve to fix the rental demand. Nor did the appointment of patwaris secure the desired result of maintaining accurate accounts of the payments of rent made by the raiyats. Where patwaris were appointed, they were simply the servants of the zamindar and no reliance was placed on their accounts and papers.

(1) Rent Law Commissioner's Report, para 4.

The next step taken was an attempt to create a village agency, which should be independent of both Attempts to form a village agency. zamindar and raiyat and which should maintain records showing the rights and obligations of landlords and tenants. By Regulation II of 1816, Kanungos were appointed for each pargana, their duties being to supervise the work of the patwaris and to "authenticate" the execution of pattas and kabuliyats. By Regulation XII of 1817, the patwari was made a Government servant. His appointment and dismissal vested in the Collector, though he continued to be paid by the zamindar. But the Kanungo proved useless. It was reported that his supervision of the patwaris was ineffectual and his power to authenticate pattas and kabuliyats useless, as no such documents were ever presented for authentication.⁽¹⁾ The Kanungo was accordingly abolished in 1827, after an existence of little more than ten years. Nor was the rehabilitation of the patwari attended with much greater success. It was reported that the control exercised by the Collector over his appointment and dismissal did not tend to make him independent of the zamindar from whom he received his wages.⁽²⁾ Over the greater part of the Province, therefore, the appointment of patwaris gradually ceased, and the Regulation of 1817 became a dead letter, though in some parts of Bihar the statutory patwari is found at the present day.

The failure of all the attempts made to control agrarian relations led the Court of Directors in 1824 Record of rights proposed. to sanction a proposal to make a survey and record-of-rights of the permanently settled districts of Bengal, as being the only means of defining and maintaining the rights of the raiyats.⁽¹⁾ More than sixty years, however, were to elapse before this vast undertaking was begun. But for temporarily settled areas, Regulation VII of 1822 provided that all future settlements of the land revenue should be preceded by a record of "the rights and obligations of various classes and persons possessing an interest in the land or in the rent or produce thereof." And this course was followed in the resumption to revenue of lands held revenue free on invalid titles. These proceedings were carried out mainly between 1830 and 1850, and in many districts covered considerable areas. The records prepared showed the following particulars :—

(1) Specification of boundaries of the area under settlement with full details about minhai lands not liable to assessment.

(2) Details regarding extent of cultivation, classification of lands, outturn of crops, and gross produce.

(3) Rate of rent for each class of land and the gross produce for it, with specification of abwab realized along with rents.

(4) Information regarding the lands held under produce rents (batai or bhaoli), their extent and nature of tenure.

(5) Determination of the status of the tenants, of their privileges, and liabilities.

(6) Information regarding village officials.⁽²⁾

The work done in connection with these resumption proceedings between 1830 and 1850 supplied Government for the

the first time with a really detailed account of the rights and obligations of different classes of landlords and tenants. The first fruits were seen in Act XII of 1841, which protected from ejection on the sale of an estate for arrears of revenue, all khudkasht and kadimi raiyats having rights of occupancy at fixed rents or at rents assessable according to fixed rules under the regulations in force. This was an important recognition of the need for protection of the occupancy rights of the raiyats, and of the classes who were entitled to enjoy such rights. But no legal definition of occupancy rights and occupancy raiyats was forthcoming until the passing of Act X of 1859, which has been described as the first effective step taken by the Legislature to discharge the duties undertaken at the Permanent Settlement.⁽¹⁾

Act X of 1859 is entitled an Act to amend the law relating to the recovery of rent, and this was Act X of 1859. originally its main object. It introduced for the first time definite provisions regarding suits for arrears of rent and the execution of decrees for arrears of rent. The Collector's Court was declared to be the tribunal for such cases. But during the passage of the Bill through Council, important additions were made, with the result that the Act as passed contained a more or less exact definition of the different classes of raiyats and of the rights which it was thought expedient to confer on them. Raiyats were divided into three classes :

(1) Those who had held at rates of rent which had not been changed since the Permanent Settlement were declared entitled to held for ever at these rates. If the rate of rent had not been changed for twenty years, it was to be presumed that it had not been changed since the Permanent Settlement.

(2) Every raiyat who had cultivated or held land for 12 years was declared to have a right of occupancy in that land, so long as he paid the rent payable on account of the same. But this rule did not apply to proprietor's private land let out on lease for a term of years or year by year, and the accrual of occupancy rights in any land could also be barred by a written contract.

(3) Other raiyats, not having rights of occupancy, were declared entitled to pattas only at such rates as might be agreed upon between them and their landlords.

The Act contained further important provisions for the Occupancy protection of occupancy raiyats. Their rents right. could only be enhanced on certain specified grounds; they could only be ejected by a judicial decree or order, and their crops could only be distrained for the arrears of one year. But the most debated point, on which controversy was to rage for over a quarter of a century, was whether the Act conferred rights of occupancy on the right class. One school of opinion argued that the immemorial custom of the country gave rights of occupancy to all resident raiyats of the village, who had in the earlier laws and regulations been vaguely styled khudkasht or kadimi. It was urged that to make the accrual of occupancy rights dependent on twelve years cultivation of a particular piece of land, and to allow such accrual to be barred by a written contract, was a serious infringement of the customary rights of the resident raiyats of the country. The representatives of the opposite school argued that the effect of the 12 years' rule was to confer rights of occupancy on a large class, who were previously mere tenants at will. Eventually the controversy was set at rest for the time being by a decision of the High Court, that Act X of 1859 was not an exhaustive statement of the rights of tenants and that claims to occupancy rights founded on their accrual by custom might be maintained.⁽¹⁾

(1) Selections, page 44.

Meanwhile another controversy had broken out regarding the working of the enhancement sections of the Act. In 1862, Sir Barnes Peacock, the Chief Justice of Bengal, laid down the doctrine that rent in Bengal was "economic rent" as defined by Malthus, viz, "that portion of the value of the whole produce, which remains to the owner of the land after all the outgoings belonging to its cultivation, of whatever kind, have been paid, including the profits of the capital employed, estimated, according to the usual and ordinary rate of agricultural capital at the time being." Sir Barnes Peacock further denied that an occupancy raiyat had any right to have his rent fixed at a lower rate than that which a tenant, not having a right of occupancy, would give for the land.

This decision was strongly assailed as subversive of the customary rights of the raiyats of Bengal and contrary to all the undertakings given by the authors of the Permanent Settlement. In 1865, the matter came before a Full Bench of the High Court in what is known as the "Great Rent Case".⁽¹⁾ The result was that the Full Bench by a majority repudiated the doctrine of "economic rent" and the theory that rent ought to be fixed by competition, as inapplicable to the customs and conditions of the country. They held that a raiyat was bound to pay a fair and equitable rent, which should be "that portion of the gross produce, calculated in money, to which the zamindar is entitled under the custom of the country"; and that in order to ascertain this share, regard should be had to pargana rates, rates paid for similar lands in adjacent places, and rates fixed by the law and usage of the country.⁽²⁾ Since this decision, the claim that rents in Bengal are pure economic rents to be fixed by competition has never been accepted in responsible quarters.

Act VIII of 1869 transferred the trial of suits regarding rent from Collectors to the Civil Courts, but was expressly confined to an amendment of the existing law in respect of procedure and jurisdiction, although the discussions on the Bill brought out numerous admissions as to the necessity which existed for revising the substantive law of 1859 in regard to the accrual of occupancy rights and the enhancement of rents⁽¹⁾. In 1868 Lord Lawrence, as Governor-General, recorded a minute relating to the depressed state of the peasantry in Bihar, in which he said that he believed that "it would be necessary for the Government sooner or later to interfere and pass a law which should thoroughly protect the raiyat and make him what he is now only in name, a free man, a cultivator with the right to cultivate the land he holds, provided he pays a fair rent for it."⁽²⁾ In Eastern Bengal, widespread agrarian discontent culminated in 1873 in serious disturbances in the Pabna district, where the cultivators banded themselves together to resist short measurements, illegal cesses and the forced delivery of agreements to pay enhanced rents. In consequence of these disturbances, the Agrarian Disputes Act, passed in 1876, provided for the transfer in special localities and for a limited period, of the entire jurisdiction in respect of enhancement and arrears of rent from the Civil Courts to the Revenue authorities. This was followed in 1877 by the introduction of a Bill to provide for the more speedy realisation of undisputed arrears of rent. But the Select Committee on this Bill recommended that it should be withdrawn and that the whole subject of the revision of the Rent Law of the Province should be once for all fairly faced. Another Committee which had been appointed, after the famine of 1874-75, to consider the condition of the agricultural classes in Bihar, made a similar recommendation. Accordingly in 1879, a strong Rent Commission was appointed with instructions to prepare a digest of the existing statute and case law relating to landlord and tenant and to draw up a consolidating Bill.⁽¹⁾

This Bill formed the basis of the discussions which resulted in the passing of Act VIII of 1885. It is unnecessary to describe the details of these discussions. It is sufficient to note here that the Act had as its main objects (1) to give reasonable security to the tenant in the occupation of his land and (2) to give reasonable facilities to the landlord for the settlement and recovery of his rent. The new Act completely recast the provisions of the former Act of 1859 regarding the accrual of occupancy rights and the trial of suits for the enhancement and recovery of arrears of rent; it defined with greater particularity the different classes of tenants and their various rights and obligations; it contained provisions limiting the right of contract between landlord and tenant, and prohibiting tenants in certain cases from contracting themselves out of the rights conferred upon them by the law; and finally it provided for the survey and preparation of a record-of-rights in land, a measure which, as has been shown, had been decided on sixty years previously, but had never actually been taken in hand, otherwise than in connection with a settlement of the Land Revenue.

The preparation of the record-of-rights has been the main feature of agrarian administration during the 22 years which have elapsed since the Bengal Tenancy Act became law. During that period, records-of-rights have been prepared for the whole of Orissa, for four districts in the Patna division, and for the greater part of the Bhagalpur division, and it is understood that it is proposed to continue the operations until the whole of that part of the Province, in which the Bengal Tenancy Act is in force, has been completely surveyed. It is on the experience of agrarian relations which these exhaustive operations have supplied, that the majority of the more important amendments made in the Act since 1885 have been based.

The first amendment of the Act was made by Act VIII of 1886. This merely made some slight alterations in the sections dealing with the transfer of permanent tenures. It was followed by Act I of 1894, which made some changes in the procedure for the preparation of a record-of-rights under Chapter X. But the first important amendment of the Act was that made by Act III, B. C., of 1898, which completely recast Chapter X, dividing it into two separate portions, the first dealing with the preparation of a record-of-rights with a view to a settlement of the land revenue, and providing for a settlement of fair and equitable rents for tenants of every class as an integral part of the operations; and the second dealing with the preparation of a record-of-rights in areas where the land revenue is not being settled, the Settlement Officer being given power to settle fair and equitable rents only where application is made for such settlement by the landlord or tenant, and in other cases being confined to a record of the rent payable at the time the record-of-rights is being prepared. Act III, B. C., of 1898 also made some important alterations in the provisions relating to enhancement and reduction of rent, the object, as stated in the statement of Objects and Reasons, being "to make the provisions of the law workable and to give effect to the intention of its authors, regarding certain points on which owing to want of sufficient clearness in the wording of the law or to the interpretations put on it by the Civil Courts, it has been found in practice to be inoperative."

Act I, B. C., of 1903 mainly dealt with the provisions relating to the transfer of permanent tenures. Act I B. C. of 1907. It was followed by Act I, B. C., of 1907, which is probably the most important agrarian measure, which has been passed since 1885. For, though the Amendment Act of 1898 introduced considerable changes, it dealt with only one aspect of the case, the preparation of a record-of-rights and the settlement of fair and equitable rents ; while there are few important provisions of the Tenancy Act which are not affected by the Act of 1907. Its objects, as given in the Statement of Objects and Reasons were,—

(1) While, on the one hand, giving landlords greater facilities for the collection of their rents yet, on the other, to discourage their evading the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, with regard to the enhancement of rent by entering into unfair, inequitable and collusive compromises with their tenants ;

(2) to give greater authority to the record-of-rights when such record has been duly prepared and published ;

(3) to give power to Government to distinguish between good and bad landlords, and to take steps in the case of the latter for the reduction of rents, when they appear to have been so unduly enhanced as to be oppressive to the cultivators of the soil, and

(4) to revise the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, to the extent of removing such defects in it as the working of the Act during the past twenty years has brought to light, and such ambiguities and anomalies as have given rise to conflict of opinion and judicial decision.

A considerable part of the provisions of the Amendment Act of 1907 was due to the recognition of the fact that the preparation of the record of rights had considerably modified agrarian conditions. In the first place, experience had shown that the mere preparation of the record-of-rights was not in itself sufficient to prevent evasions of the law. The great majority of rent suits are decided ex-parte. In such cases, it was found that the record-of-rights was not referred to by the Courts, because it was not produced by either of the parties. The Amendment Act therefore provides for the production of the entry regarding rent in the record-of-rights in all rent suits. Again, the former law, regarding the force to be attached to the entries in the record-of-rights, was somewhat vague and indefinite. The Amendment Act provides that every entry in a record-of-rights shall be presumed to be correct until it is proved by evidence to be incorrect, and requires a Court passing a decree at variance with entries in the record-of-rights, to record its reasons for so doing.

But while the Act thus gave greater definiteness and force to the record-of-rights in matters relating to land, it has also recognised that the preparation of a record-of-rights may in certain circumstances justify a more summary procedure for the recovery of rents, and it accordingly provides for the use, under certain restrictions of such a procedure in areas in which a record-of-rights has been prepared and is maintained. Any landlord in such an area may apply to the Local Government for the application of the procedure, prescribed by the Public Demands Recovery Act I, B. C., of 1895, to the recovery of the arrears of rent due to him. If the application is allowed, and as to this the Local Government has absolute discretion, the landlord may make a requisition to a Certificate Officer specially appointed by the Local Government, for the recovery of arrears of rent due from any tenant. The Certificate Officer may then issue a certificate, which will have the force and effect of a decree of a Civil Court. The tenant, against whom the certificate is issued, may file an objection, and that objection will be heard and considered by the Certificate Officer. The Certificate Officer's decision is subject to appeal to the Collector of the district and to revision by the Commissioner and the Board of Revenue. A suit may also be instituted in the Civil Court on certain grounds to have the certificate set aside. Subject to the orders which may be passed on objection or on reference to the Civil Court, the certificate is final, and may be executed in the manner provided in Chapter XIV of the Act for the execution of decrees for arrears of rent. The main differences between the certificate procedure and the ordinary procedure for the recovery of arrears of rent are that, under the certificate procedure, the landlord obtains his decree at once instead of after the hearing, and the execution of the decree is carried out by a Revenue Officer, instead of by the Civil Court.

Another important amendment made by Act I, B. C., of 1907 is the recognition, under certain conditions, of a suit for arrears of rent, brought by one of several co-sharer landlords, as a rent suit, resulting in a decree having the force of a rent decree. The previous law, under which a decree obtained by a single co-sharer was a mere money decree, was harassing not only to the landlords, but also to the tenants, by exposing them to a number of successive suits brought by different landlords for their share of the arrears.

The Amendment Act also deals with the question of compromises and agreements between landlord and tenant filed before Revenue and Civil Courts. The principle adopted is that no Court shall give effect to an agreement or compromise the terms of which, if they were embodied in a contract, could not be enforced under the Act.

Many important changes have also been made in Chapter X which deals with the preparation of the record-of-rights. It has been thought that the brief analysis of the provisions of the Act relating to the record-of-rights which follows will be useful to that large body of the public who are concerned in its preparation.

II. ANALYSIS OF THE LAW RELATING TO THE RECORD OF RIGHTS.

A survey and the preparation of a record-of-rights may be ordered by the Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council, for any local area, estate, tenure or part thereof; and without such sanction, when not less than half the landlords or a quarter of the tenants in the local area, estate or tenure apply for a record-of-rights, or where its preparation is necessary to settle or avert disputes between landlords and tenants; or where the local area, estate or tenure belongs to, or is managed by the Government or Court of Wards; or a Manager appointed by the District Judge; or where a record-of-rights is required as a basis for settling the Land Revenue.

The particulars which are usually entered in the record-of-rights are the following :—

- (a) the name of each tenant or occupant ;
- (b) the class to which each tenant belongs, that is to say, whether he is a tenure-holder, raiyat holding at fixed rates, settled raiyat, occupancy-raiyat, non-occupancy raiyat or under-raiyat, and, if he is a tenure-holder, whether he is a permanent tenure-holder or not, and whether his rent is liable to enhancement during the continuance of his tenure ;
- (c) the situation and quantity and one or more of the boundaries of the land held by each tenant or occupier ;
- (d) the name of each tenant's landlord ;
- (dd) the name of each proprietor in the local area or estate ;
- (e) the rent payable at the time the record-of-rights is being prepared ;
- (f) the mode in which that rent has been fixed whether by contract, by order of a Court, or otherwise ;

(g) if the rent is a gradually increasing rent, the time at which, and the steps by which, it increases ;

(gg) the rights and obligations of each tenant and landlord in respect of—

(i) the use by tenants of water for agricultural purposes, whether obtained from a river, jhil, tank or well or any other source of supply, and

(ii) the repair and maintenance of appliances for securing a supply of water for the cultivation of the land held by each tenant, whether or not such appliances be situated within the boundaries of such land ;

(h) the special conditions and incidents, if any, of the tenancy ;

(i) any right of way or other easement attaching to the land for which a record of rights is being prepared ;

(j) if the land is claimed to be held rent free, whether or not rent is actually paid, and, if not paid, whether or not the occupant is entitled to hold the land without payment of rent, and, if so entitled, under what authority.

A record of irrigation rights may also be prepared with-Section 102 A. out a general record of agricultural rights, if this is necessary to avert disputes.

The Act does not lay down any procedure for the pre-Procedure. · · · · · paration of a record-of-rights. This is pre-Chapter VI of scribed by rules framed by Government under the Govern- the Act. Each village is first surveyed on the ment Rules. scale of 16 inches to the mile, every field being shown on the map. A larger scale is sometimes adopted when the fields are very small. A list of the fields is then drawn up, showing the name of the occupant of each. All the fields held by the same occupant under the same title are then brought together on one sheet called a khatian. The contents of each khatian are then read out by a Revenue officer to the landlord and tenant concerned. Disputes, if any, are decided, the status of the occupant ascertained, and the rent payable by him, if any, recorded. The rent to be recorded must be Section 109 C. the rent legally payable, but if the landlord and tenant agree as to the rent which shall be recorded as payable, the Revenue officer may settle such rent as a fair and equitable rent, if he is satisfied that it is so, even though the terms of the agreement are such that, if embodied in a contract, they could not be enforced under the Act. A record of the landlord's interests, known as the khwat, is similarly prepared in the same way. The khwat and the khatians together constitute the draft record. This is published by Section 103 A. being read out in the village concerned in presence of the landlords and tenants. Objections are received within a certain period, usually a month from the date of publication. These are considered and decided by a Revenue officer, and the record is then corrected in accordance with the orders passed by him.

Up to this stage, the procedure is the same for all records-of-rights. But the procedure for subsequent stages varies, according as the record-of-rights is or is not to be followed by a settlement of the Land Revenue. If a Settlement of the Land Revenue is to be made, the Revenue officer, after deciding the objections raised to the draft record, is required to settle fair and equitable rents for tenants of every class. He must do the same, where the estate or tenure for which the record is being prepared belongs to the Government, unless it appears to the Local Government expedient that rents should not be settled for tenants of every class in the particular estate or tenure. In settling rents in a Government estate or tenure or for the purpose of assessing the Government Revenue, the Revenue officer may frame a Table of Rates, showing the rates fairly and equitably payable for each class of land in the local area under settlement. This Table of Rates is published and objections considered. It is then applied to the lands com-

He may accept an agreement by the landlord and tenant as to the amount of rent payable, provided he is satisfied that such rent is fair and equitable. Or he may himself calculate a fair and equitable rent, having regard to the rules laid down in the Act as to the grounds on which rents may be enhanced, increased or reduced by the of Rates or a Settlement Rent Roll, to such superior Revenue authority as the Local Government may prescribe ; and the Board of Revenue may of its own motion or on application, at any time within two years from the date of certificate of final publication, direct the revision of any record-of-rights, after giving notice to the parties concerned.

Reference to Any party aggrieved by an entry of a rent settled in a Settlement Rent Roll may within six months from the date of the certificate of final publication, or from the date of the disposal of any appeal presented to the Revenue authorities, file a suit in the Civil Court on the following grounds and on no others, viz.,

- (a) that the land is not liable to the payment of rent ;
- (b) that the land, although entered in the record-of-rights as being held rent free, is liable to the payment of rent ;
- (c) that the relation of landlord and tenant does not exist ;

(d) that land has been wrongly recorded as part of a particular estate or tenancy, or wrongly omitted from the lands of an estate or tenancy ;

(e) that the tenant belongs to a class different from that to which he is shown in the record-of-rights as belonging ;

(f) that the Revenue Officer has not postponed the operation of the settled rent under the provisions of section 110, clause (a), or has wrongly fixed the date from which it is to take effect under the clause ;

(g) that the special conditions and incidents of the tenancy or any right of way or other easement attaching to the land which is the subject of the tenancy have not, or has not, been recorded or have or has been wrongly recorded.

The Court after decision of the suit is empowered to make any alteration considered necessary in the entry of the fair rent settled. But, subject to an order of the Civil Court passed on these specified grounds, the rents settled by the Revenue authorities are final.

Settlement of rents where the Land Revenue is not being settled.

Section 105.

Where, however, a settlement of Land Revenue is not being or is not about to be made, the record of rights is finally published immediately after the decision of the objections raised on its publication in draft. Rents can then only be settled on the application of the landlord or of the tenant, and such application must be made within two months from the date of the certificate of final publication. In settling rents, the Revenue Officer is required to presume, until the contrary is proved, that the existing rent is fair and equitable, and to have regard to the rules laid down in the Act for the guidance of the Civil Courts in increasing or reducing rents. His decision settling rents has the force and effect of a decree of a Civil Court and is final, subject to an appeal to a Special Judge appointed by the Local Government for the purpose of hearing such appeals.

Decision of incidental matters arising in the course of the settlement of fair rents.

Section 107.

If in the course of settling rents certain issues arise, the Revenue Officer is empowered to try and decide such issues and to settle a rent in accordance with his decision, which has the force and effect of a decree of a Civil Court between the parties and is final subject to appeal to the Special Judge. Such issues are

(a) whether the land is, or is not, liable to the payment of rent ;

(b) whether the land, although entered in the record of rights as being held rent-free, is liable to the payment of rent ;

(c) whether the relation of landlord and tenant exists :

(d) whether the land has been wrongly recorded as part of a particular estate or tenancy, or wrongly omitted from the lands of an estate or tenancy ;

(e) whether the tenant belongs to a class different from that to which he is shown in the record of rights as belonging ;

(f) whether the special conditions and incidents of the tenancy or any right of way or other easement attaching to the land have not, or has not been recorded or have, or has, been wrongly recorded.

If any dispute arises regarding any entry in or omission from a record-of-rights, a suit may be instituted within three months of the date of the certificate of final publication, before a Revenue Officer. The Revenue officer's decision has the force and effect of a decree of a Civil Court between the parties, and is final, subject to appeal to the Special Judge and to a second appeal to the High Court from the Special Judge's decision.

A Revenue officer, specially empowered by the Local Government, may, on application, or of his own motion, revise any order settling a rent under section 105, or deciding an issue under section 105 A or a dispute under section 106, within twelve months from the passing of any such order. And a Revenue Officer, specially empowered, may, within twelve months from the date of the certificate of final publication, correct any entry in a record-of-rights which, he is satisfied, has been made owing to a bona fide mistake. All such orders of Revenue officers are final, subject to appeal to the Special Judge. A second appeal from the Special Judge's order lies to the High Court, except when the decision merely settles a rent, when there is no second appeal.

The Act contains elaborate provisions in order to prevent the clashing of jurisdiction between Revenue officers trying issues arising under Section 105A, Revenue officers trying disputes under section 106, and the ordinary Civil Courts. When an order has been passed directing the preparation of a record-of-rights, no Civil Court is allowed to entertain any suit or application for the alteration of any rent, or the determination of the status of any tenant, until after the final publication of the record-of-rights when a settlement of land revenue is being or is about to be made ; or until three months after the final publication of the record-of-rights, when no settlement of land revenue is being made. Where a settlement of the land revenue is not being made,

Section 111B. no suit can be filed in the Civil Court within three months from the date of the certificate final publication for the decision of any of the following issues, viz.,

- (a) whether the land is or is not liable to the payment of rent ;
- (b) whether the relation of landlord and tenant exists ;
- (c) whether the land is part of a particular estate or tenancy ; or
- (d) whether there is any special condition or incident of the tenancy, or whether any right of way or other easement attaches to the land.

But if a suit regarding any of such issues has been filed in a Civil Court before final publication, no such suit can be filed under section 106. And if such a suit has been filed in the Civil Court before final publication, and the issue arises in the course of settling fair rents under section 105, the proceedings for the settlement of a fair rent must be stayed pending the decision of such issue by the Civil Court. Similarly, no Revenue officer can try under section 105 A any issue which has previously been raised under section 106. He must stay the proceedings for settlement of fair rents, until the dispute under section 106 has been decided. But if the issue has been raised first under section 105A in the course of rent settlement proceedings, no suit under section Section 109. 106 can be filed regarding it. Finally, no Civil Court is allowed to entertain any application or suit regarding the settlement of a fair rent or the decision of an issue or dispute, which is, or has been, the subject of an application or suit before a Revenue officer. Practically, therefore, the parties are left free to choose their own venue. They may wait until the Revenue Officer's jurisdiction ceases, and * then raise their claims before the Civil Courts in the ordinary course. Or they may, in certain cases under section III B, by raising their claims before the Civil Court prior to final publication, oust the jurisdiction of the Revenue officer after final publication. But if one party has, in due course, raised an issue, either before the Revenue officer or the Civil Court, neither he nor the other party can raise the same issue in another Court.

The Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council, may empower a Revenue officer to settle rents in a specified area, if it is satisfied that such a course is necessary in the interests of public order or the local welfare, or that any landlord is demanding rents which have been illegally enhanced above those entered as payable in a record-of-rights. In such a case, the Revenue officer may, if specially empowered, reduce rents, if in his opinion, the maintenance of existing rents would be unfair or inequitable. In settling rents under this special provision, the procedure for the preparation of a Settlement Rent Roll, prescribed in the case of a settlement of rents made in order to form the basis of an assessment of land revenue, is adopted. But the settlement record prepared requires the confirmation of the Governor-General in Council, before it takes effect.

Where rents have been settled by a Revenue officer, they cannot be enhanced for fifteen years in the case of a tenure or a holding of a raiyat or under-raiyat with occupancy rights, and for five years in the case of the holding of a non-occupancy raiyat or the holding of an under-raiyat not having occupancy rights; except on the ground of a landlord's improvement or a subsequent alteration of the area of the tenure or holding. And such settled rents cannot be reduced within the same periods, except on the ground of an alteration of area, or a permanent deterioration of the soil of the holding not due to the raiyat's fault. In this connection, it is important to notice the distinction between a "settled" rent and a record of the rent payable. Where a record-of-rights is prepared otherwise than in connection with a settlement of the land revenue, rents are only settled on the application of the landlord or tenant. Where no such application is made, the record merely shows the rent payable at the time the record was prepared. The restrictions on enhancement described above apply only to settled rents. The rent recorded as payable is liable to enhancement by contract or by suit, in accordance with the provisions of the Act relating to the particular class of tenants concerned in each case.

Where a survey and the preparation of a record-of-rights are undertaken in connection with a settlement of the land revenue, the whole cost of the operations is borne by Government. But in other cases, the cost or part of it may be recovered from the landlords or tenants of the area, in such proportions as Government may determine. Such cost includes the estimated amount of the expenses likely to be incurred for the maintenance, repair or restoration of boundary marks for a period not exceeding fifteen years, and also the cost of preparing copies of survey maps and of the record-of-rights for distribution to the landlords and tenants concerned.

Every entry in a record-of-rights is evidence of the matter referred to in such entry and is presumed to be correct until it is proved by evidence to be incorrect. In all areas for which a record-of-rights has been prepared and finally published, the Civil Court is required in all suits between landlord and tenant as such to have regard to entries in the record-of-rights relating to the subject matter in dispute, which may be produced before it, unless such entries are proved by evidence to be incorrect. And when a Civil Court passes a decree at variance with such entries, it is required to record its reasons for so doing. And finally in areas for which a record-of-rights has been prepared, the plaint in all suits for recovery of arrears of rent, must contain a list of the survey plots comprised in the tenancy and a statement of the rental of the tenancy according to the record-of-rights. If the Court, for reasons to be recorded in writing, exempts the plaintiff from furnishing such a statement, it must call upon the Collector to supply a certified copy of or extract from the record-of-rights relating to the tenancy. The law thus ensures the record-of-rights being brought before the Court in all rent suits, whether it is produced by the parties or not.

THE BENGAL TENANCY ACT.

ACT NO. VIII OF 1885.

PASSED BY THE GOVERNOR-GENERAL OF INDIA IN COUNCIL.

(Received the assent of the Governor-General on the 14th March, 1885.)

AN Act to amend and consolidate certain enactments relating to the Law of Landlord and Tenant within the territories under the administration of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal.

Whereas it is expedient to amend and consolidate certain enactments relating to the Law of Landlord and Tenant within the territories under the administration of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

CHAPTER I.

PRELIMINARY.

Short title. 1. (1) This Act may be called the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885.

(2) It shall come into force on such date (hereinafter called the commencement of this Act) as the Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council, may, by notification in the local official Gazette, appoint in this behalf.

(3) It shall extend by its own operation to all the territories for the time being under the administration of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, except the town of Calcutta, [any area constituted a Municipality under the provisions of the Bengal Municipal Act, 1884, or part thereof, and specified in a notification in this behalf by the Local Government], the Division of Orissa, and the Scheduled Districts specified in the third Part of the First Schedule of the Scheduled Districts Act, 1874; and the Local Government may, with the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council, by notification in the local official Gazette, extend the whole or any portion of this Act to the Division of Orissa or any part thereof.

[Explanation.—The words “the town of Calcutta” mean, subject to the exclusion or inclusion of any local area by notification under section 637 of the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1899, the area described in Schedule I to that Act.]

Sub-section (1) has been extended to Chota Nagpur, except the district of Manbhum (Not., Feby. 9th, 1903). The words within heavy brackets in sub-section (3) and the Explanation have been added by s. 3, Act I, B. C., of 1907.

Time of commencement of Act—The Act came into force on the 1st November, 1885 (see notification of the 4th September, 1885, published in the Calcutta Gazette of the 9th September, 1885). By Act XX of 1885, the operation of sections 61 to 64, both inclusive, and of Chapter XII of the Act, except such of their provisions as confer power to make rules, was postponed to the 1st February, 1886. The provisions of sections 61 to 64 relate to deposit of rent, and those of Chapter XII, to distraint. Act XX of 1885 has been repealed by the Repealing and Amending Act, 1891 (Act XII of 1891.)

Amendments of Act.—The Act has been amended by Act VIII of 1886⁽¹⁾ which slightly modified sections 12 and 13 of the Act, by Act V, B. C., of 1894,⁽²⁾ which made certain changes in Chapter X of the Act, by the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Act III, B. C., of 1898,⁽³⁾ which repealed Act V, B. C., of 1894 and completely remodelled Chapter X, as well as altered the provisions of sections 30, 31, 39, 52, and 119 of the Act, and by the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Act, 1907, I, B. C., of 1907, which introduced very extensive changes into the Act⁽⁴⁾ The provisions of these amending Acts are noticed in the notes to the sections affected by them.

Bent law of Calcutta.—In the town of Calcutta, the relations of landlord and tenant are governed by the Indian Contract Act (IX of 1872), so far as they are applicable. If they are not applicable, then, by section 17 of 21 Geo. III, c. 70, "all matters of contract and dealing between party and party shall be determined in the case of Mahomedans, by the laws and usages of Mahomedans, and in the case of Gentus, (Hindus) by the laws and usages of Gentus; and where only one of the parties shall be a Mahomedan or Gentu, by the laws and usages of the defendant." If the provisions of the Contract Act are inapplicable and the parties are English, then, the common law of England will be the law to be applied (Madhub Chandra Paramanik v. Raj Kumar Das, 14 B. L. R., 76; 22 W. R., 370; Rasik Lal Madak v. Loknath Karmokar, 5 Calc., 688; 5 C. L. R., 492; Jagat Mohini Dasi v. Dwarkanath Basak, 8 Calc., 582). The explanation to section (1) has been added by Act I, B. C., of 1907 in consequence of the ruling (Biraj Mohini Dasi v. Gopeshwar Mallik, 27 Calc., 202), in which it was held that occupancy rights may accrue in those areas which have been included within the town of Calcutta, subsequent to the passing of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885. It was considered undesirable that the Act should have any application to the town of Calcutta, as it is now constituted, or as it may hereafter be constituted under any future extension or modification of its boundaries. Existing rights and obligations are saved by sub-section (2) added to section 19 by Act I, B. C., of 1907.

Any area constituted a Municipality.—The words "any area constituted a Municipality under the provisions of the Bengal Municipal Act, 1884, or part thereof, and specified in a notification in this behalf by the Local Government" were inserted by Act I, B. C., of 1907. In the report of the Select Committee on the Bill it was said "the provisions of the Act are intended to apply to agricultural areas, and are

(1) Received the assent of the Governor-General on the 3th March, 1886.

(2) Received the assent of the Governor-General on the 22nd August, 1894.

(3) Received the assent of the Governor-General on the 8th May, 1898, and came into force on the 2nd November, 1898, the date of its first publication in the Calcutta Gazette.

(4) Received the assent of the Governor-General and came into force on the 15th May, 1907.

unsuitable to such Municipalities or portions thereof as are mainly urban in character. We think that the Government should have power to withdraw from the operation of the Act such municipal urban areas by notification, when it is satisfied by inquiry that such withdrawal is expedient. We consider that the operation of the Act should not be withdrawn from any area until a record of the rights existing under the Act in such area has been made." Existing rights and obligations are saved by additions made to section 19. These alterations only affect districts in the province of Bengal to which this Act applies. *

Rent law of Bengal.—The districts which under the Government of India notifications Nos. 2832 and 2833 of the 1st September, 1905, (see Gazette of India, September 2nd 1905, Pt. I, p. 636) have since the 16th October, 1905, constituted the province of Bengal are Burdwan, Birbhum, Bankura, Midnapore, Hooghly, Howrah, 24 Parganas, Nadia, Murshidabad, Jessore, Khulna, Patna, Gaya, Shahabad, Saran, Champaran, Mozaffarpur, Darbhanga, Monghyr, Bhagulpur, Purnea, Darjiling, Sonthal Parganas, Cuttack, Balasore, Angul and Khondmals, Puri, Sambalpur, Hazaribagh, Ranchi, Palamau, Manbhum, and Singhbhum. The Bengal Tenancy Act is in force in all these districts, except as explained below. No part of the Act is in force in Darjiling, Manbhum, Sambalpur and Angul. Certain portions of the Act have been extended to Cuttack, Puri and Balasore and other portions to Ranchi, Palamau and Hazaribagh. Section 56, section 58, sub-sections (1) and (3) and section 84 only are in force in the Sonthal Parganas.

Rent law of Orissa.—The division of Orissa now consists of the districts of Cuttack, Puri, Balasore, Angul and Sambalpur. Angul is a scheduled district. In Cuttack, Puri, and Balasore, Act X of 1859 and its amending Acts, VI, B. C., of 1862, and IV, B. C., of 1867 are still current (see Sadanand Mahanti v. Nauratan Mahanti, 16 W. R., 289; 8 B. L. R., 280). But by notification, dated the 10th September, 1891, published in the Calcutta Gazette of the 16th September, 1891, Part I, page 839, the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal with the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council extended the following portions of the Bengal Tenancy Act to Orissa:—Chapter X and sections 3 to 5, 19 to 26, 41 to 49, 53 to 75, and 191. Similarly, by a notification No. 2448, L. R., dated the 27th June, 1892, published in the Calcutta Gazette of the 29th June, 1892, Part I, page 673, the following sections of the Act were extended to Orissa:—sections 27—38 and 80. Again, by a notification No. 115, L. R., dated the 5th January, 1893, published in the Calcutta Gazette of the 11th January, 1893, Part I, page 20, sections 189 and 190 were extended to Orissa. By notification, No. 99, L. R., dated the 7th January, 1896, published in the Calcutta Gazette of the 8th January, 1896, Part I, page 28, the provisions of section 39 were extended to Orissa. By notification No. 971, T. R., dated 17th October, 1896, published in the Calcutta Gazette of the 21st October, 1896, Part I, page 1081, sections 7, 40, 52 and 192 were introduced into Orissa. By notification No. 292, L. R., dated the 18th January, 1893, published in the Calcutta Gazette of the 25th January, 1893, Part I, page 59, the rules framed and validated under sections 189 and 190 of the Tenancy Act were declared to be in force in Orissa, so far as they relate to the sections of the Bengal Tenancy Act which have been, or may be, extended to, that division. (By notification No. 957, T. R., dated 5th November, 1898, published in the Calcutta Gazette of Nov. 9th, 1898, Part I, page 1156A, the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Act, III, B. C., of 1898 were extended to the division of Orissa. By notification No. 620, L. R., dated the 27th January, 1906, published in the Calcutta Gazette of the 7th February, 1906, Part I, p. 176, sections 93 to 103 of this Act were extended to the districts of Cuttack, Puri and Balasore in the Orissa division. By notification No. 1816 T. R., dated the 21st August, 1906, published in the Calcutta Gazette, dated 29th August, 1906, Part I, p. 1658, the provisions of Chapter XI, and by notification No. 20, L. R., dated the 3rd January, 1907, published in the Calcutta Gazette of the 9th January, 1907, Part I, p. 54, the provisions of Chapter XIV of the Act were extended to the districts of Cuttack, Puri and Balasore in the Orissa Division.

Under the provisions of section 2, clause (2), of this Act, so much of Act X and of its amending Acts VI, B. C., of 1862, and IV, B. C., of 1867, as is inconsistent with the sections of the Bengal Tenancy Act that have been extended to Orissa, stands repealed. The other portions of Act X., etc., which are not inconsistent with these sections continue in force.

The laws in force in the mahal of Angul which is a scheduled district, are detailed in the schedule to Regulation Angul. No. I of 1894, the Angul District Regulation, published in the Govt. of India Gazette, of the 13th January, 1894, Part I, p. 17. Neither Act X of 1859, nor any rent Act is mentioned in the schedule to this Regulation, and as by section 3, sub-sec. (2), an enactment not comprised in the schedule shall not be deemed to be in force in Angul unless previously or subsequently expressly extended thereto, and as neither Act X of 1859 nor Act VIII of 1885 has been extended to Angul, it follows that there is no rent law in Angul. It is understood that in Angul Government demands and rents are realized according to the procedure prescribed in Chapter V of the Angul District Regulation.

(1) See also Board's Survey and Settlement Manual 1901, Part III, Chap 2, rule 7 (iv), p. 71.

The mahal of Banki was formerly a scheduled district, but since the 1st April, 1882, it has under the provisions of Act XXV of 1881 been incorporated with the district of Cuttack.

The district of Sambalpur formerly belonged to the Central Provinces.

Sambalpur. Since the 16th October, 1905, with the exception of the Chanderpur-Padampur Zamindari and the Phuljhar Zamindari, it has been transferred to Bengal. The rent law in force there is the Central Provinces Tenancy Act, II of 1898.

Darjiling. Act X of 1859 prevails in the district of Darjiling. (See note to Bengal Code, 3rd edition, Vol. II, p. 182). There is no local extent clause in the Act, but Darjiling was part of Bengal when Act X of 1859 was passed, having been ceded by the Raja of Sikhim to the British Government in 1835, and as the Act was applicable to the whole of Bengal, (Sadanand Mahanti v. Nauratan Mahanti, 16 W. R., 290 ; 8 B. L. R., 280) it was regarded as extending to Darjiling, and has consequently always been administered there.

Acts VI of 1862 and IV of 1867, B. C., also prevail in Darjiling (see notes, pp. 183, 236, Vol. II, Bengal Code, 3rd edition).

Sonthal Parganas. In the Sonthal Parganas, the Sonthal Parganas Settlement Regulation, III of 1872, as amended by Reg. III of 1886, and the Sonthal Parganas Rent Regulation, II of 1886, are in force. In this district there are a few unsettled areas in the Telliaghiree pargana, which have been exempted from settlement by Government notification of the 9th December, 1879, published in the Calcutta Gazette of the 10th December, 1879, Part I, p. 1221. There is no rent law in force in these areas, or in certain dearah lands in this district. The relations of landlord and tenant in these tracts are accordingly regulated by contract and custom. By a Government notification, No. 771 L. R., dated 20th February, 1897, published in the Calcutta Gazette of February 24th, 1897, Part I, p. 281, the provisions of sec. 84 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, and by another notification No. 1338, L. R., dated 1st March, 1904, published in the Calcutta Gazette of the 2nd March 1904, Part I, p. 347 section 56 and clauses (1) and (3) of section 58 were extended to the Sonthal Parganas from the dates of the notifications.

Chota Nagpur. The provisions of the Chota Nagpur Tenures Act (II of 1869, B. C.) prevail in the districts of the Chota Nagpur Division. The rent law of Hazaribagh, Ranchi, Palamau and Singhbhum is to be found in Act I of 1879, B. C., (the Chota Nagpur Landlord and Tenant Procedure Act) and Act IV, B. C., of 1897, (the Chota Nagpur Commutation Act) as amended by Act V, B. C., of 1903 ; but in Manbhum and the Tributary Mahals Acts X of 1859, VI, B. C. of 1862, and IV, B. C., 1867, are in force.

Under section 5, Act XIV of 1874 (the Scheduled Districts Act,) the Bengal Tenancy Act may be extended by the Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor-General, to any of the scheduled districts or to any part of a scheduled district. And under section 5A, the enactment, or part thereof, so extended may be included or modified, as the Local Government thinks fit. In accordance with these powers, the Local Government has issued the notification No. 721 L. R. dated the 9th February, 1903 (see Calcutta Gazette, 1903, Pt. I. p. 172) extending certain sections of this Act to the districts of Hazaribagh, Ranchi, Palamau and Singhbhum, subject to the restrictions and modifications therein specified. The sections so extended and the restrictions they are subject to are noted in this book under each section of the Act, and the Act as applicable to the Chota Nagpur division, except Manbhum, is printed in extenso in Appendix V. *

Rent Law of Eastern Bengal and Assam. The province of Eastern Bengal and Assam was constituted by Government of India Notification No. 2832 of the 1st September, 1905, (see Gazette of India, September 2nd, 1905. Part I, p. 536) with effect from the 16th October, 1905. It comprises the districts of Backergunge, Chittagong, Dacca, Dinajpur, Faridpur, Mymensingh, Noakhali, Pabna, Bogra, Rajshahi, Rangpur, Jalpaiguri, Malda, Tipperah, Sylhet, Cachar and the districts of the Assam Valley, vis : Goalpara, Kamrup, Darrang, Nowgong, Sibsagar and Lakhimpur. In all these districts, except Jalpaiguri, the Hill Tracts of Chittagong (which two latter districts are scheduled districts) Sylhet, Cachar and the districts of the Assam Valley, this Act as amended by the amending Acts, except Act I, B. C., of 1907, is in force.

In that part of the district of Jalpaiguri which was formerly a portion of the district of Rungpore, vis., thanas Jalpaiguri, Titaliya, Rajgunj and Boda, lying to the west of the Teesta river, and thana Patgram, which is to the east of the Teesta, Act X of 1859 with its above mentioned amending Acts has always prevailed. But in that portion of the district of Jalpaiguri which was ceded by the Bhutan Government to the British Government in 1866, and which is commonly known as the Western Duars, Act XVI of 1869, (The Bhutan Duars Act was in force up to the 16th October, 1895. This Act excluded the ordinary Civil Courts from the cognizance of suits relating to immoveable property, revenue and rent. In the schedule to this Act there were certain rules for the assessment of the Bhutan Duars with Government revenue and for the preparation of the record-of-rights to form the basis of such assessment. But in this schedule there were no rules laid down for the guidance of the officers engaged in the administration of this tract of country in suits relating to immoveable property or rent. There was, therefore, while this Act was in force, no definite rent law for that portion of the Jalpaiguri district known as the Western Duars. Act XVI of 1869 was, however, repealed by Act VII, B. C., of 1895, which came into force on the 16th October, 1895, on which date it was published in the Calcutta Gazette, Part III, p. 62, and on the 25th October, 1895, by a notification published in the Calcutta Gazette of the 13th November, 1895, Part I A., p. 139, the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal with the previous sanction of the Governor-General in exercise of the power conferred upon him by section 5, of the Scheduled Districts Act, extended Act X of 1859, as well as Act VI, B. C., of 1862, to that portion of the Jalpaiguri District known as the Western Duars. Act IV, B. C., of 1867 was, however, not similarly extended. It is an unimportant Act. The only section, of which the force is not spent, is section 5, which gives the Lieutenant-Governor power to appoint revenue officers to exercise the powers of the Collector of a district for the purpose of enabling them to hear appeals under Act X of 1859 and Act VI, B. C., of 1862.

Subsequently, the local Government issued the two following notifications :—

"No. 963 T. R.—5th November, 1898.—In exercise of the powers conferred by sections 5 and 5A of the Scheduled Districts Act, XIV of 1874, and with the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal is pleased to extend the Bengal Tenancy Act, VIII of 1885, to the whole of the Jalpaiguri district, except the Western Duars, with effect from the 1st of January, 1899, subject to the following restrictions and modifications, namely :—

(I) Sub-sections (2) and (3) of section 1 of the said Act shall be omitted ; and

(II) The words 'in the territories to which the Act extends by its own operation' in sub-section (1) and the whole of sub-section (2) of section 2 of the said Act shall be omitted."

"No. 964 T. R.—5th November, 1898.—In exercise of the powers conferred by the Scheduled Districts Act, XIV of 1874, section 5 and section 5A (inserted by the Repealing and Amending Act, 1891), and with the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council, the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal is pleased to extend the Bengal Tenancy Act, VIII of 1885, to the portion of the Jalpaiguri district, known as the Western Duars, with effect from the 1st January, 1899, subject to the following restrictions and modifications, namely :—

I.—Sub-sections (2) and (3) of section 1 of the said Bengal Tenancy Act shall be omitted.

II.—The words ‘in the territories to which this Act extends by its own operation’ in sub-section (1) and the whole of sub-section (2), of section 2 of the said Act shall be omitted.

III.—Nothing in the said Bengal Tenancy Act, other than the provisions of sub-section (1) of section (2), as modified by clause II of this notification, shall apply to any lands heretofore or hereafter granted or leased by Government to any person or company under an instrument in writing for the cultivation of tea or for the reclamation of land under the Amble Waste Land Rules.

IV.—Where there is anything in the said Bengal Tenancy Act which is inconsistent with any rights or obligations of a jotedar, chukanidar, dar-chukanidar, adhiar or other tenant of agricultural land as defined in settlement proceedings heretofore approved by Government, or with the terms of a lease heretofore granted by Government to a jotedar, chukanidar, dar-chukanidar, adhiar, or other tenant of agricultural land, such rights, obligations, or terms shall be enforceable notwithstanding anything contained in the said Act.”

These notifications have the effect of extending the Bengal Tenancy Act, subject to certain modifications, to the whole of the Jalpaiguri district, which is now part of the province of East Bengal and Assam.

It has been held that the repeal of Act XVI of 1896 (The Bhutan Duars Act) has had the effect of making the provisions of the Civil Procedure Code as applicable to the Western Duars as it is to other parts of the district (Braja Kanta Das v. Tufsun Das, 4 C. W. N., 287).

The application of this Act in the Chittagong Hill Tracts is barred by Reg. I of 1900. There is no special rent law in force in these deregulationised tracts, but by s. 18^b of the Regulation the Local Government is empowered to make rules to provide for the collection of rents and to prohibit, restrict or regulate the migration of cultivating raiyats in these tracts. For rules made under this section, see the Calcutta Gazette, 2nd May, 1900, Part I, p. 429 : also the Bengal Local Statutory Rules and Orders, 1903, vol. II, pp. 92-100.

In the district of Sylhet, the provisions of Act VIII, B. C., of 1869 are in force, having been extended to it by Government notification of the 24th February, 1870, published in the Calcutta Gazette of the 2nd March, 1870, Part I, p. 361. They continued in force in Sylhet on its incorporation with the Chief Commissionership of Assam under Government notification of the 22nd August, 1878, published in the Government of India Gazette of the 24th August, 1878, Part I, p. 533, and still prevail there. Act VIII, B. C., of 1869, was extended by the Chief Commissioner of Assam to the district of Goalpara. Goalpara by Notification No. 2050J., dated the 9th May, 1892, and published in the Government of India Gazette of the 9th May, 1892, Part I p. 356. In the other Assam Valley districts, vis., Kamrup, Darrang, Nowgong, Sibsagar and Lakhimpur, and in Cachar and the Hill districts, the Rent Law is in an uncertain and unsettled state. (See Gait's Assam Land Revenue Manual, pp. 1v and 20). In the case of Prasidha Narain Koer v. Man Koch (9 Calc., 330) it was decided that Act X of 1859 is not in force in the Assam Valley districts.

2. (1) The enactments specified in Schedule I hereto annexed are repealed in the territories to which this Act extends by its own operation.

Repeal. (2) When this Act is extended to the Division of Orissa or any part thereof, such of those enactments as are in force in that Division or part, or, where a portion only of this Act is so extended, so much of them as is inconsistent with that portion, shall be repealed in that Division or part.

(3) Any enactment or document referring to any enactment hereby repealed shall be construed to refer to this Act or to the corresponding portion thereof.

(4) The repeal of any enactment by this Act shall not revive any right, privilege, matter or thing not in force or existing at the commencement of this Act.

Sub-section (1). Enactments repealed.—The enactments specified in schedule I as repealed are Regulations VIII of 1793 (sections 51—55, 64 and 65), XII of 1805 (section 7), V of 1812 (sections 2, 3, 4, 26 and 27), XVIII of 1812 (the preamble and sections 2 and 3) and XI of 1825 (the words “nor if annexed to a subordinate tenure” to the end in clause 1 of section 4), Act X of 1859, and Acts VI, B. C., of 1862, IV, B. C., of 1867, VIII, B.C., of 1869 and VIII, B.C., of 1879. Sections 14 and 45 of the Act are repealed by s. 2, Act I, B.C., of 1907, in the province of Bengal. The provisions of Regulation VII of 1822 are in no way repealed by this Act.

Sub-section (2). Orissa.—For a complete list of the portions of this Act which prevail in Orissa, see note to section 1, clause (3) pp. 4 and

5. The extension of every section in force in Orissa is also mentioned in a note to the section extended to it.

Sub-section (4). Effect of repeal of enactments.—The provisions of this clause are in accordance with the rule laid down in section 7 (1) of the General Clauses Act (X of 1897), wherein it is provided that “for the purpose of reviving, either wholly or partially, any enactment wholly or partially repealed, it shall be necessary expressly to state such purpose,” and with the rule of English law which has prevailed since 1850, when it was enacted by section 5, 13 and 14 Vict., c. 21, that “where any Act repealing in whole or in part any former Act is itself repealed, such last repeal shall not revive the Act or provisions before repealed, unless words be added reviving such Act or provisions.” (See Wilberforce on “Statute Law,” p. 310, and Maxwell on the “Interpretation of Statutes,” 3rd edition, p. 585).

Proceedings commenced under any former Act.—By section 6, Act I of 1868 (the General Clauses Act), now repealed by the General Clauses Act, X of 1897, it was provided that “the repeal of any Statute, Act or Regulation shall not affect anything done, or any offence committed, or any fine or penalty incurred or any proceedings commenced before the Repealing Act shall have come into operation.” The effect of this section, and especially the meaning of the word “proceedings” in it, have been the subject of discussion in many cases. These cases were all reviewed in the Full Bench case of Deb Narain Datta v. Narendra Krishna (16 Calc., 267). In this case a decree for arrears of rent had been passed under Bengal Act VIII of 1869. Subsequently, after the Bengal Tenancy Act had come into operation, the decree-holder applied for execution, and the tenure, in respect of which the decree for arrears of rent had been made, was attached. The tenure was put up for sale, and a claim was then preferred by a third person, who objected to the execution proceeding. The Munsif rejected the claim without enquiring into it on the ground that under the provisions of section 170 of the Bengal Tenancy Act no such claim could be preferred. An application was then made to a Division Bench of the High Court to set aside the Munsif’s order. The Division Bench doubted its correctness and referred the following two questions for the decision of a Full Bench—viz., “1. Whether in the present case, the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act were applicable to proceedings in execution? 2. Whether the term ‘proceedings’ in s. 6 of Act I of 1868, does or does not include proceedings in execution after decree?” The Full Bench answered the first of these questions in the affirmative, the second, in the negative and discharged the rule. The judgment in this case was delivered by Wilson, J., who pointed out that the cases in which Courts in this country have had to consider the effect of legislative change in the law upon proceedings instituted before the change was made, fall under one or other of three classes. "The first class consists of those in which the Courts have had to construe enactments which have altered the law, not by the mere repeal of earlier enactments, so as to bring the case under s. 6 of the General Clauses Act, but by new affirmative provisions, and in which the new enactments contain in themselves no special rule for their own interpretation. In such cases the Courts have applied the settled rule of construction ordinarily acted upon in the absence of any statutory rule inconsistent with it; and that rule is that retrospective effect is not given to an enactment so as to affect substantive rights, but that provisions affecting mere procedure are applied to pending proceedings. The second class of cases comprises those in which the enactment to be construed provides its own rule of construction by expressly or impliedly declaring that it is or is not to have retrospective operation, or the extent to which it is to affect pending proceedings. The third class of cases consists of those in which the law is changed by a mere repeal of a previously existing law, and the repealing enactment contains no special rule for its own interpretation. Such cases are governed by s. 6 of the General Clauses Act." Wilson, J., then proceeded to consider the cases in which the meaning of the word "proceedings" in section 6 of Act I of 1868, has been discussed and decided, and pointed out that they might be arranged in three groups. The first group consists of cases relating to appeals, in all of which, it was said, "there is a completely uniform course of decision to the effect that an appeal is a part of the same proceedings, within the meaning of s. 6 of the General Clauses Act, as the things appealed against, and that, therefore, if the thing appealed against is a decree in a suit, the appeal is a part of the same proceeding as the earlier steps in the suit." The second group consists of cases relating to proceedings in execution of decrees. Although proceedings in execution are strictly speaking proceedings in the suit, yet, according to Wilson, J., these cases are authorities "for holding that an application for execution initiates proceedings separate from those which resulted in the decree." The third group consists of cases decided with respect to the Civil Procedure Code, and all but one are said to have been based on the terms of the Code itself and not merely on those of the General Clauses Act.

In Makeswar Prasad Narain Singh v. Sheobaran Mahto, (14 Calc., 621), the plaintiff sued to eject a tenant who had executed a solehnamah agreeing to hold the land in suit for a specified time at a specified rent and providing that the landlord was to be at liberty to enter on the lands on the expiry of the period. The suit was instituted on the 6th October, 1885, i.e., before the commencement of the Tenancy Act. It was found that at the date of the solehnamah, the tenant had acquired a right of occupancy with respect to some of the lands in suit, and it was held that the tenant was not entitled to the benefit of section 178, (1) (b); because at the time the suit was brought there was nothing to prevent his contracting himself out of his rights. This decision in this case, which is of date prior to that of the Full Bench just cited, seems hardly in accordance with the principles laid down in it; for, from sub-section (1) of section 178, it would seem as if clause (b) affects a matter of substantive right and is intended to have retrospective effect.

In another case, Uma Sundari Dasi v. Brajanath Bhattacharyya, (16 Calc., 347,) in which a decree for rent had been passed under Act VIII, B. C., of 1869, but execution was not applied for until after the commencement of the operation of the Bengal Tenancy Act, it was held that execution must proceed under the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act, the ratio decidendi being that the right to execute the decree in the mode applied for, viz., by sale of the tenure under sections 59, 60 and 61 of Act VIII, B. C., of 1869, if it existed, was a private right or a mere right of procedure, and that, therefore, the execution proceedings must be governed by Act VIII of 1885. The decision in this case, though not based on the provisions of section 6, Act I of 1868, is quite in accordance with the principles laid down in the Full Bench case above referred to.

There are a few other cases, relating to this subject, which it seems desirable to notice. In both Lal Mohan Mukhurji v. Jogendra Chandra Rai, (14 Calc., 636,) and Uzir Ali v. Ram Kamal Shaha (15 Calc., 383,) the effect of the provisions of section 174 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, under which a judgment-debtor, where a tenure or holding has been sold for an arrear of rent, can on certain conditions have the sale set aside, was considered. In the former case not only had the decree been passed, but execution had been applied for before the Bengal Tenancy Act came into force, though the sale was actually held after the operation of the Act had commenced. In the latter case, execution had been applied for after the Bengal Tenancy Act had come into operation. In both cases, it was held that the judgment-debtor could not take advantage of the provisions of section 174 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, as they confer on judgment-debtors a new right, and, therefore, cannot have retrospective effect. In a third case, Girish Chandra Basu v. Apurba Krishna Das, (21 Calc., 940,) the question was as to whether the provisions of section 310 A, added to the Civil Procedure Code by Act V of 1894, applied to a sale held after the date on which the Act came into operation, when execution had been applied for and the sale proclamation had been issued before that date. The majority of the Bench which decided the case held, following the two above cited cases relating to section 174 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, that they were not applicable, as the provisions of section 310 A, like those of section 174 of Act VIII of 1885, conferred a new right, and did not relate merely to procedure. These three decisions were, however, all reconsidered in the Full Bench case of Jagudanand Singh v. Amrita Lal Sarkar, (22 Calc., 767,) in which it was held that they had all been wrongly decided, inasmuch as neither section 174 of the Bengal Tenancy Act nor section 310 A of the Civil Procedure Code confers any new right on judgment-debtors. But the Bench expressly refrained from deciding whether the order in the case of Lal Mohan Mukhurji v. Jogendra Chandra Rai, (14 Calc., 636,) was or was not right with reference to the provisions of section 6 of Act I of 1868, as the question did not arise in the case of Jagudanand Singh v. Amrita Lal Sarkar. This case, it may be mentioned, was one under section 310 A., and, as it was pointed out, was consequently not affected by the provisions of section 6 of the General Clauses Act, as the change in the law considered in that case had been brought about, not by the repeal of any Act, but by the addition to the existing Code of Civil Procedure of a new section. But it would seem that under the rule laid down in Deb Narain Datta v. Narendra Krishna to the effect that an application for execution initiates a new set of proceedings, the decision in the case of Lal Mohan Mukhurji v. Jogendra Chandra Rai was right under section 6 of the General Clauses Act. Section 6 of Act X of 1897, which has now taken the place of section 6 of Act I of 1868, lays down that "where this Act, or any Act or Regulation made after the commencement of this Act, repeals any enactment hitherto made, or hereafter to be made, then, unless a different intention appears, the repeal shall not.....(e) affect any investigation, legal proceeding or remedy in respect of any such right, privilege, &c, as aforesaid" (i. e., acquired or accrued under any enactment so repealed), "and any such investigation, legal proceeding or remedy may be instituted, continued or enforced, as if the repealing Act or Regulation had not been passed." This section, though somewhat differently worded from section 6 of Act I of 1868, does not appear to make any change in the law as to the effect of the repeal of an enactment upon pending proceedings. The propositions laid down by Wilson, J., on the point in Deb Narain Datta v. Narendra Krishna would, therefore, seem to hold equally good under the present, as under the former, General Clauses Act.

Definitions.

3. In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context :—

(1) "Estate" means land included under one entry in any of the general registers of revenue-paying lands and revenue-free lands, prepared and maintained under the law for the time being in force by the Collector of a district, and includes Government khas mahals and revenue-free lands not entered in any register.

The whole of this section has been extended to Orissa, (Not., Sept. 10th, 1891). All the definitions contained in sub-section (1) and the seventeen succeeding sub-sections consequently apply there. This sub-section has also been extended to the Chota Nagpur Division, except the district of Manbhum, but for "Collector," "Deputy Commissioner," must be read. (Not., Feb. 9th. 1903).

Definitions of "Estate."—Other definitions of "estate" are to be found in sec. 1, Act VII, B. C., of 1868 (an Act to amend the law for the recovery of arrears of land-revenue) and in section 3 (2) of Act VII, B. C., of 1876, (the Land Registration Act, 1876). According to the former Act, "estate" means any land or share in land subject to the payment to Government of an annual sum in respect of which the name of a proprietor is entered on the register known as the general register of all revenue-paying estates, or in respect of which a separate account may, in pursuance of section 10 or section 11 of Act XI of 1859, have been opened. According to the Land Registration Act, 1876, as amended by Act II, B. C., of 1906, 'estate' includes (a) any land subject to the payment of land-revenue, either immediately or prospectively, for the discharge of which a separate engagement has been entered into with Government : (b) any land which is entered on the revenue-roll as separately assessed with land revenue (whether the amount of such assessment be payable immediately or prospectively) although no engagement has been entered into with Government for the amount of revenue so separately assessed upon it as a whole ; (c) any land being the property of Government of which the Board shall have directed the separate entry on the general register hereinafter mentioned, or on any other register prescribed for the purpose by rule made under this Act.⁵ The definition of "estate" given in section 3 (1) of this Act differs from those cited above, inasmuch as it includes revenue free lands, which are not "estates" according to either Act VII, B. C., of 1868 or Act VII, B. C., of 1876. In the latter Act revenue-free lands come under the head of "Revenue-free property," which according to section 3, sub-sec. (10), "means any land not subject to the payment of land revenue which is included under one entry in any part of the general register of revenue-free lands." "Estate" in this Act also includes unregistered lakheraj lands and Government khas mahals. When an estate is recorded under a distinct number on the tauzih or revenue roll of the Collectorate with a separate revenue assessed upon it, the mere fact of its comprising undivided shares in certain villages does not prevent its being an entire estate (Preonath Mitra v. Kiran Chandra Rai, 27 Calc., 290; Kamal Kumari Chaudhurani v. Kiran Chandra Rai, 2 C. W. N., 229).

Estates in Bengal.—A revenue-paying estate in Bengal is generally known as a zamindari and may be either permanently or temporarily settled. Many so called "tenures" may come within the definition of "estate" given in this Act, e. g., aima (from the plural of imam) or altamgha (from al, red, and tamgha, a stamp) grants, jagirs, (from ja, a place, and gir, taking or occupying,) madadmash grants (from madad, assistance, and mash, livelihood), mukaddami interests (from mukaddam, the headman of a village) and taluks (from aluk, to suspend from.) But they may be "tenures." Taluks are of two kinds, huzuri (i. e., paying to the huzur or head-quarter treasury) or kharija (i. e., separated) taluks, and shikmi (from shikm, the belly), mazkuri (or "specified," because they were specified in the zamindar's engagements,) or shamili (from shamil, extending to) taluks. The huzuri or kharija taluks only are estates. Taluks of the latter class are tenures. Some ghatwali tenures on which revenue is payable directly to Government are also "estates."

Noabad taluks in Chittagong are not estates.—In years past there was much contention as to whether the Noabad taluks of the Chittagong district came within the definition of "estate" or not. This controversy was set at rest, so far as the executive are concerned, by the orders of the Government of India conveyed in its letter, No. 1792, 173 of the 24th July, 1893, to the address of the Secretary to the Government of Bengal, in which it was directed that the Noabad taluks in Chittagong were to be treated as "tenures" and not as "estates" within the meaning of Act VIII of 1885. According to these instructions, then, the Noabad talukdars are "tenure-holders," and the khas mahals to which they are subordinate are "estates," of which the Government is "proprietor." In the leading case of Prasanna Kumar Rai v. Secretary of State, (26 Calc., 792; 3 C. W. N., 695,) it was not contended that the Noabad taluk in question was anything but a tenure.

(2) "Proprietor" means a person owning, whether in trust or for his own benefit, an estate or a part of an estate.

Extended to the Chota Nagpur Division, except the district of Manbhum (Not., February 9th, 1903).

Effect of acquisition by Government of interest of proprietor.—When the paramount title of the State carrying with it the right to receive revenue and the proprietary right to receive rent unite in Government, the proprietary interest becomes merged in the paramount title; and rent, in such cases, becomes revenue. (Board's Survey and Settlement Manual, 1901, Part III, Chap. 1, rule 3, p. 68: see also section 101 (2) Expln. 1.)

(3) "Tenant" means a person who holds land under another person, and is, or but for a special contract would be, liable to pay rent for that land to that person.

Extended to the Chota Nagpur Division, except the district of Manbhum (Not., February 9th, 1903).

"Land" not defined.—There is no definition of the term "land" in this Act. The Rent Commission in their Bill (sec. 3) proposed to define land as follows: "Land includes woods and water thereupon; when applied to land cultivated or held by a raiyat, it means land used or intended to be used for agricultural or horticultural purposes, or the like. In Chap. XVIII" (a chapter relating to procedure in suits for recovery of arrears of rent and certain other suits), "it means (a) tenures, under-tenures, and holdings; (b) land used or let to be used for agriculture, horticulture, pasture, or other similar purpose, or for dwelling-houses, manufactories, or other similar buildings: and (c) rights of pasturage, forest rights, fisheries, and the like. Explanation—Bastu or homestead land is land used for agricultural purposes when it is occupied by a raiyat, and together with the land cultivated by such raiyat forms a single holding." This suggestion, which would have obviated all ambiguity, was not adopted, and there is no definition of the term in this or any other legislative enactment, by means of which its meaning in this sub-section can be determined. In the course of the debates in Council on the provisions of the Bill, the Maharaja of Darbhanga proposed that the provisions of the Act should be restricted to "land which is the subject of agricultural or horticultural cultivation, or is used for purposes incidental thereto." But his proposed amendment to this effect was not accepted. The Hon'ble Mr. Reynolds in his remarks on the Maharaja of Darbhanga's amendment observed that, if it were carried, "it would have the effect of excluding from the operation of the Bill not merely all waste lands but all the lands not actually under cultivation at the time the question might be raised. It would leave it open to a landlord to contend that a raiyat's right of occupancy did not extend to those lands of his holding which were not actually under cultivation at the time. It is in my opinion better for the Council to leave the question to be decided by the Courts" (1). The Hon'ble Sir Steuart Bayley said: "The Hon'ble Mr. Reynolds has pointed out that his amendment will have the effect of limiting the raiyat's right of occupancy, as he would thereby lose the right as to all waste lands and lands not used for agricultural and horticultural purposes. I may point out also that the effect would be to remove from the scope of the Bill, which deals with tenures generally, all such parts of a tenure, as may be used momentarily for other purposes than agriculture or horticulture. It is much safer to trust to the Courts to apply the law to these cases" (2). It is, therefore, evident that the omission of any definition of "land" in this Act is intentional. The question of determining to what classes of land the Act should be applicable was felt to be a difficult one, and so it was left to the Courts to overcome the difficulties involved in its solution.

The subject of homestead land is, however, dealt with in section 182 of this Act, which provides that this Act applies to homestead land when held by a raiyat, and that even when homestead land is held by a raiyat otherwise than as part of his holding as a raiyat, the provisions of this Act are still applicable, unless there be a custom or usage to the contrary. But the Act does not expressly apply to homestead land not held by a raiyat; so the position of non-cultivating residents of a village is left uncertain, and it would seem that their relations with their landlords in respect of their homestead lands must be determined by the provisions of the Indian Contract Act (IX of 1872).

Application of the old rent law to non-agricultural land.—

On this subject the Rent Law Commission in their report (Vol. I, p. 9, para. 11) say: "Certain portions of Acts X of 1859, and VIII, B. C., of 1869, have been construed to apply only to land used for agricultural or horticultural purposes, or the like. Whether the remaining portions are limited in their application is a broad question which has never been settled. While some have contended that the provisions of these Acts as to the recovery of arrears of rent apply to the rent of any land, irrespective of the purpose for which it is used, it has never been doubted that the rents of tenures and under-tenures are recoverable under these Acts, and these commonly include much more than land used for agricultural or horticultural purposes."

(2) Selections from papers relating to the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, p. 482.

Mr. Field in his Rent Law Digest (see p. 3, note) observes : " It has been repeatedly decided, and is now settled law, that the grounds-of-enhancement and right-of-occupancy provisions contained in the present law have no application to land not used for agricultural or horticultural purposes. Though the broader point seems never to have been settled, it is understood that the general provisions of Acts X of 1859 and VIII (B.C.) of 1869 were intended to apply only (so far as concerns the actual occupant) to land used or originally let for these particular purposes. See in favour of this view 3 Agra Rep., 52 ; 8 W. R., 250 ; 9 B. L. R., 105 note, 108 note, 109 note, 120 ; 23 W. R., 61. It has, however, been contended by some authorities that the provisions of these Acts as to the recovery of arrears of rents apply to the rent of any land, irrespective of the purpose for which it is used.—See 9 B. L. R., 111, 116 note, 124 ; 1 Ind. Jur. N. S., 428 ; W. R., Sp. No., Jan.—July, 1864, p. 78 (land used for a hat). It has been held in several cases that Act X applies where rent is sought to be recovered merely for the land upon which houses stand—see Board's rulings 47 : 8 W. R., 90 ; 2 W. R., Act X, 9 : but otherwise, where the claim includes the rent of the house as well as of the land, more especially if the former item be the more important—see Board's rulings, 47 ; 9 B. L. R., 109 note ; 116 note : Marsh., 401."

In the following cases it was held that the grounds-of-enhancement provisions of the old rent Acts were inapplicable to land not used for agricultural or horticultural purposes ; Sarnomayi v. Blumhardt, 9 W. R., 552 ; Kali Mohan Chaturji v. Kali Krishna Rai, 11 W. R., 183 ; 2 B. L. R., App., 39 ; Khairudin Ahmad v. Abdul Baki, 11 W. R., 410 ; 9 B. L. R., 103 note ; Church v. Ram Tanu Shaha, 11 W. R., 547 ; 9 B. L. R., 105, note ; Naimudin Joardar v. Scott Moncrieff, 3 B. L. R., 183 ; Durga Sundari Dasi v. Umdatunnissa, 17 W. R., 151 ; Jai Kishor Chaudhrai v. Nabi Baksh, 17 W. R., 178 ; Madan Mohan Biswas v. Stalkart, 17 W. R., 441 ; 9 B. L. R., 97 ; Durga Sundari Dasi v. Umdatunnissa, 18 W. R., 235 ; 9 B. L. R., 101 ; and Purno Chandra Rai v. Sadas Ali, 2 C. L. R., 31 ; while in Mohar Ali Khan v. Ram Ratan Sen, 21 W. R., 400 it was said that the words " cultivated or held " in s. 6, Act VIII (B. C.) of 1869 have the effect of excluding lands occupied exclusively by buildings from the right of occupancy there declared. See also Adaito Charan De v. Peter Das, (17 W. R., 383). The leading cases as to the applicability of the former Rent Acts to agricultural or horticultural land only are Khalat Chandra Ghosh v. Minto (1 Ind. Jur., N. S., 426) and Kali Krishna Biswas v. Janki, (8 W. R., 250). In the former of these cases, Phear, J., observed that " the subject of tenure throughout Act X of 1859, which is designated as land, is merely that which the ordinary ryots or occupants of the soil possess and hold under their zamindar, viz., the surface of the earth in a condition such that, by the aid of natural agencies, it can be made use of for the purpose of vegetable or animal reproduction." In the latter case, the same learned Judge said :—" In my judgment the occupation intended to be protected by that section (sec. 6, Act X of 1859,) is occupation of land considered as the subject of agricultural or horticultural cultivation and used for purposes incidental thereto, such as for the site of the homestead, the ryot or malli's dwelling house and so on. I do not think that it includes occupation, the main object of which is the dwelling house itself, and where the cultivation of the soil, if any there be, is entirely subordinate to that." Besides the cases cited by Mr. Field, the following support this view: Bipra Das De v. Wollen, 1 W. R., 223; Mahtab Chand v. Makund Ballabh Basu, 9 B. L. R., App. 13; Piari v. Nakur Karmakar, 19 W. R., 308; and Gokhul Chand Chaturji v. Mosahru Kandhu, 21 W. R., 5, which are authorities for the proposition that the rent law has no application to land leased and used for building purposes. This was pointed out by Phear, J., in Khalat Chandra Ghosh v. Minto, in which he remarked : " I believe it has been held constantly that land covered entirely with houses and buildings not devoted to agricultural objects does not come within the application of the Act." In Furlong v. Johuri Lal, (Hay's Reports, 1862, 453), it was held that the rent law did not apply to land leased for the erection of salt golahs for the use of which the lessee levied a cess upon the persons using them. In Garland v. Rai Mohan Hazrah, (1 W. R., 15,) it was determined that Act X of 1859 did not apply to a suit to recover rent due under a lease of tolls arising from a canal or river navigation, and in Harish Chandra Kund v. Gopal Barui, (3 W. R., Act X, 158,) it was similarly decided that a suit did not lie under the Act for rent due for the right to come upon land and vend pan there on hat days. In Shalgram v. Kabiran, (3 B. L. R., A. C., 61; 11 W. R., 400,) it was held that a suit for arrears of rent payable for certain land for a right to levy a tax upon persons employed in cutting stone on the land was not cognizable by a Revenue Court. It was pointed out in this case that the rent was indivisible, and that it could not be said how much was reserved on the land, and how much on the right to quarry, and that the small quantity of land leased was not taken for agricultural purposes but for purposes subsidiary and necessary to the main purpose of the lease, namely, quarrying the stone, the land being required for the erection of the huts of the stone-cutters. In Hari Mohan Sarkar v. Scott Moncrieff, (9 B. L. R., App., 14,) it was decided that a suit for the rent of land, where the rent came from arhats, ghats, and basars situated upon it, as well as from the land, would not lie in the Revenue Court; while in

Savi v. Ishar Chandra Mandal, (20 W. R., 146,) it was held that a suit for rent derivable by a lessor from tolls collected by the lessee from persons resorting to a hat was not cognizable under Act VIII (B. C.) of 1869. The ruling in this case is inconsistent with that in the earlier case of Gaitri v. Thakur Das, (W. R., Sp. No., Act X., 78), previously cited at p. 19, and also with the later case of Bangshodhar Biswas v. Madhu Mahaldar, (21 W. R., 383.) In Jadu Nath Ghosh v. Schoene Kilburn & Co., (9 Calc., 671.) in which certain land had been let under a dar-maurasi mukarari lease, it was said that, the lease not being one of agricultural land, the provisions of the rent Act had no application. The case of Watson & Co. v. Govind Chandra Mazumdar. (W. R., Sp. No., Act X, 46,) was one of the chief authorities for the more extended application which was sometimes endeavoured to be given to the former rent law. In this case it was said : "The provisions of the Act generally contemplate tenants who cultivate land or gather its natural or artificial products ; but the class of cases which by the 4th clause of section 23 (of Act X of 1859) is made cognizable by a Collector of land revenue is described in terms wide enough to extend his jurisdiction in suits of rent to cases of tenancies which are not strictly agricultural tenancies. He has jurisdiction in all suits for arrears of rent due on account of land, either kherajee or lakheraj, or on account of rights of pasturage, forest rights, fisheries, or the like. For whatever purposes the surface of the land may be used, if the subject of the lease is land, and is due on account of the land, a suit for arrears must be brought in the Collector's Court." See also Nasur Ali v. Sadat Ali, (W. R., Sp. No., 1864, Act X, 102.) The late Mr. Justice Dwarkanath Mitter strenuously maintained this view in the cases of In re Bramamayi, 9 B. L. R., 109 ; Durga Sundari Dasi v. Umdatunnissa, 17 W. R., 151 ; 9 B. L. R., 101 ; and Brayanath Kundu v. Lowther, 9 B. L. R., 121 ; 17 W. R., 183 ; but he was overruled in the Letters Patent Appeal in Durga Sundari Dasi v. Umdatunnissa, (18 W. R., 235 ; 9 B. L. R., 119.)

In Chandessari v. Ghinuk Pandey, (24 W. R., 152,) the rule was laid down that when the principal subject of the entire occupation was bastu (homestead) land, the residue, if any, of the holding being merely subordinate, the rent law was not applicable ; but when the principal subject of the entire occupation was agricultural land, the building or buildings being mere accessories thereto, the rent law was applicable. The same principle underlies the decisions in Tarini Prasad Ghosh v. Bengal Indigo Co., (2 W. R., Act X, 9,) and Matangini Dasi v. Haradhan Das, (5 W. R., Act X, 60). In the former case it was ruled that a suit for the rent of land let for the purposes of a factory, including the dwelling-house of the proprietor of the factory, would lie in the Revenue Court, as the rent issued out of, and was reserved in respect of the land alone, and that the case was distinguishable from that of Aditya Chandra Pal v. Kamala Kant Pal, Marsh, 401, in which it was held that a suit for arrears of rent due on account of an indigo factory would not lie under Act X of 1859, as in that case the rent was reserved not for the land alone, but for the factory and the business and profits of the contracts connected therewith. In Matangini Dasi v. Haradhan Das, it was said that a suit under Act X of 1859 lay, as the land was the substantial thing let out, and the existence of a hut upon the land as an appendage was a mere matter of accident. A suit does not lie under Act X of 1859 for arrears of rent of land leased for mining purposes and for purposes of building, making roads, and so forth (Rooke v. Bengal Coal Co., 28 Calc., 485; 5 C. W. N., 840), or for arrears of rent of a tank not part of an agricultural building, but used for rearing and preserving fish (Mahananda Chakravarti v. Mangala Keotani, 31 Calc., 937).

Application of the present Act to non-agricultural land.—

So far there have been only two cases under the present Act in which it has been endeavoured to make it applicable to non-agricultural land, and the attempts were not successful. The first case was that of the Raniganj Coal Association v. Jadu Nath Ghosh, (19 Calc., 489,) which was a suit for arrears of rent due under a dar-maurasi mukarari lease, in fact the same lease as sued on in the case of Jadu Nath Ghosh v. Schoene, Kilburn & Co., (9 Calc., 671.) It was observed with regard to this lease that it had not been granted for agricultural or horticultural purposes, but for building purposes and for the establishment of a coal depôt, and therefore, that the land comprised in the lease did not come within the purview of the Tenancy Act. In the second case, Umrao Bibi v. Mahomed Rojabi, (27 Calc., 205), the subject of dispute was some plots of land within the limits of the Dacca Municipality, one of which was used as a san sonda or place where grass for thatching was grown, and others were cultivated with kitchen vegetables. It was held that, as the land was not let for agricultural or horticultural purposes, the Bengal Tenancy Act did not apply. But see Hassan Ali v. Govind Lal Basak, 9 C. W. N., 141. It has been held that if land outside the town of Calcutta is used for agricultural or horticultural purposes, the Act will apply, even if it be within its municipal boundaries, as defined by Bengal Act II of 1888, (Biraj Mohini Dasi v. Gopeswar Mullik, 27 Calc. 202); but this ruling has been set aside by the Explanation added to sec. 1 (3) by Act I, B. C., of 1907,

* Waste land.—Unsettled and unoccupied waste land, not being the property of any private owner, must be held to belong to the State (Prasanno Kumar Rai v. Secretary of State, 26 Calc., 803; 3 C. W. N., 725).

How a tenancy is constituted.—According to Mr. Field in his "Rent Law Digest," art 4, p. 5, the relation of landlord and tenant arises: "(1) where it has been created by a contract valid according to the law in force at the time of executing such contract: (2) where it is reasonably implied from the acts of the parties: and (3) where it has been created or continued by operation of law." The most common instance of an implied contract of tenancy in Bengal is when a cultivator occupies the land of a landlord without his express consent or that of his agents and is allowed to remain in occupation of the land. Strictly speaking, such person is in the position of a trespasser, but if he is allowed to remain and cultivate the land, a contract of tenancy may be implied. If rent is accepted from him, or if he is sued for rent, a tenancy is clearly established. (Mahomed Armal v. Chandi Lal, 7 W. R., 250; Gadudhar Banurji v. Khetra Mohan, 7 W. R., 460; Chaitan Singh v. Sadhari Monim, 5 C. L. J., 62). (1) In Nityanand Ghosh v. Krishna Kishor, (W. R., Sp. No., Act X, 82,) it has been said: "We think that, though by the law of landlord and tenant, as applied in England, a person who takes and cultivates the land of another (there being no express permission to cultivate on the side of the landlord, nor any express condition to pay rent on the part of the cultivator) would not be allowed to be regarded as a tenant, but treated as a mere trespasser, the peculiar circumstances of this country preclude the applicability of the technical doctrine of the English law of landlord and tenant to such a case. Here it is a very usual thing for a man to squat on a piece of land, or to take into cultivation an unoccupied or waste piece of land. Tenancy in a great many districts in Bengal commences in this way, and where it does so commence, it is presumed that the cultivator cultivates by the permission of the landlord, and is under obligation to his landlord to pay him a fair rent, when the latter may choose to demand it. Thus, the established usage of the country regards these parties as landlord and tenant, and unless the landlord chooses thus to treat him, the cultivator is not regarded, as he would be by the law as administered in England, as a trespasser, but as a tenant, and he would be so, although he may never have expressly acknowledged the landlord's right or entered into any express contract with him for the payment of rent. If he chooses to cultivate the samindar's lands and the samindar lets him, there is an implied contract between them, creating a relationship of landlord and tenant." In another case it has been said that parties in possession make themselves tenants by use and occupation of the land (Lalan Mani v. Sonamani Debi, 22 W. R., 334 ; see also Lakhi Kant Das Chaudhuri v. Samirudin Lashkar, 21 W. R., 208 ; 13 B. L. R., 243) ; and in Sarnomoyi v. Dinonath Gir, 9 Calc., 908,) it was held on the authority of these two cases that, though the defendants were trespassers, as the plaintiff was willing to waive the trespass, a decree might be given for use and occupation. In the case of Azim v. Ram Lall Shaha, (25 Calc., 324) these cases were commented on and followed, and it was observed that the principle of law enunciated in them has now been embodied in section 157 of the present Act. Ubbandi tenancies, (for an account of which see note to sec. 180) are instances of tenancies arising by implied contract. But a mere demand for rent is not sufficient to create the relation of landlord and tenant. It is at most the offer of a tenancy (Deo Nandan Prasad v. Meghu Mahton, 11 C. W. N., 225 ; 34 Calc., 57). And where the plaintiff and the defendants, being some of the co-owners of a zamindari, purchased certain holdings under the zamindar and were in occupation of separate portions of them, it was held that the defendants, in the absence of any agreement between themselves and the plaintiff to pay him rent, were not the plaintiff's tenants in respect of the lands actually occupied by them, or liable to pay him rent (Girindra Chandra Pal v. Srinath Pal, 32 Calc., 567 ; 3 C. L. J., 141.)

(1) But the payment and acceptance must be in good faith (see rulings cited at p. 24).

In many cases it has been held that it is not necessary that the landlord inducting the tenant into the land should have a good title to it, and notwithstanding his ejectment from it the tenancy continues ; the tenant becomes by implication the tenant of the new landlord. (Ghulam Panja v. Harish Chandra Ghosh, 17 W. R., 552 ; Amir Hossain v. Sheo Sahai, 19 W. R., 338 ; Zulfun v. Radhika Prasanno Chandra, 3 Calc., 560 ; 1 C. L. R., 388 ; Mahima Chandra Shaha v. Hazari Paramanik, 17 Calc., 45 ; Binad Lal Prakash v. Kalu Paramanik, 20 Calc., 708.) But this rule apparently applies only in the case of raiyats and not in that of tenure-holders or when the provisions of sec. 107 of the Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882) are applicable, (Sheo Charan Lal v. Prabhu Dayal, 1 C. W. N., 142). This rule does not apply to chaukidari chakran land, which has been resumed and made over to the zamindar (Janabali v. Rakibuddin Mallik, 9 C. W. N., 571 ; 1 C. L. J., 303) ; and only when the tenant has entered upon the land and held under a de facto proprietor, who is not the real owner, in good faith (Piari Mohan Mandal v. Radhika Mohan Hazra, 8 C. W. N., 315 ; 5 C. L. J., 9 ; Narain Upendra Bhattacharya v. Pratab Chandra Pradhan, 8 C. W. N., 320).

Tenancies are created by operation of law when in resumption proceedings a decree for resumption is given (Haro Prasad Chaudhuri v.

Shama Prasad Rai Chaudhuri, 6 W. R., Act X, 107, and see contra, Bir Chandra Munikya v. Raj Mohan Goswami, 16 Calc., 449, and when a Civil Court passes a decree declaring the right of a samindar to assess rent on land (Saudamini Devi v. Sarup Chandra Rai, 8 B. L. R., App. 82; 17 W. R., 363; Shama Sundari Devi v. Sital Khan, 8 B. L. R., App. 85; 15 W. R., 474; Madhusudan Sagori v. Nipal Khan, 8 B. L. R., App. 87; 15 W. R., 440; Rohini Nundan Gosain v. Ratneswar Kundu, 8 B. L. R., App. 89; 15 W. R., 345), or to obtain rent from the defendants, (Nobo Krishna Mukhurji v. Kalachand Mukhurji, 15 W. R., 438; Rango Lal Mandal v. Abdul Ghafur, 3 C. L. R., 119; 4 Calc., 314). In the case of Piari Mohan Mukhurji v. Kamaris Chandra Sarkar, (19 Calc., 790), it has been held that the heirs of an occupancy-raiyat dying intestate are liable to pay rent, whether they occupy the land or not, until they surrender the holding in the manner prescribed by section 86 of the Tenancy Act. This would therefore seem to be another instance of a tenancy being created between parties by operation of the law,—in this instance, by the law of inheritance.

Payment of rent not necessary to establish or maintain a tenancy.—It is the liability to pay rent which establishes the relation of landlord and tenant. The actual payment of rent is not necessary to constitute or maintain that relation, and mere non-payment does not determine it. (Trailokhya Turini Dasi v. Mohima Chandra Matak, 7 W. R., 400; Rango Lal Mandal v. Abdul Ghafur, 4 Calc., 314; 3 C. L. R., 119; Poresk Narain Rai v. Kashi Chandra Tafukdar, 4 Calc., 661; Masyatulla v. Nurzahan, 9 Calc., 808; 12 C. L. R., 389; Tiruchurna Perumal v. Sanguvien, 3 Mad., 118; Premasukh Das v. Bhupia, 2 All., 517; Dadoba v. Krishna, 7 Bom., 34; Rambhat v. Bababhat, 18 Bom., 250; Muzhar Rai v. Ramgat Singh, 18 All., 290). So, the mere discontinuance of payment of rent does not constitute dispossession within the meaning of sec. 9 of the Specific Relief Act, (Tarini Mohan Mazumdar v. Ganga Prasad Chakravarti, 14 Calc., 649). But non-payment of rent with abandonment of the subject of the tenancy, or the passing of a decree for ejectment against the tenant, does put an end to the relation of landlord and tenant. See note to sec. 87.

(4) "Landlord" means a person immediately under whom a tenant holds, and includes the Government.

Extended to the Chota Nagpur Division, except the district of Manbhum (Not., February 9th, 1903).

Any person to whom rent is payable is a "landlord" in relation to the person who pays rent to him, though he may himself be a tenant in relation to some third person. The term "landlord," therefore, presents no difficulty. But great contention has been raised as to the meaning of the expression "joint landlords" used in sec. 188. Do these words apply to co-sharers who are in separate collection of rent from the tenant, or are they only applicable to co-sharers who are in joint collection of the rent? The subject is discussed in the notes to sec. 188.

(5) "Rent" means whatever is lawfully payable or deliverable in money or kind by a tenant to his landlord on account of the use or occupation of the land held by the tenant :

In sections 53 to 68, both inclusive, sections 72 to 75, both inclusive, Chapter XII, [Chapter XIV] and Schedule III of this Act, "rent" includes also money recoverable under any enactment for the time being in force as if it was rent.

The word and figures "Chapter XIV" in brackets have been inserted in the sub-section by s. 3, Act I, B. C., of 1907, (which applies only to the province of Bengal), for the purpose of enabling a tenure or holding to pass at a sale held in execution of a decree for cesses and money legally recoverable as if it was rent.

Rent.—To constitute rent the payment must be (1) either money or produce ; (2) lawful ; (3) on account of the use or occupation of land held by tenant ; and (4) payable to the landlord.

A number of mangoes to be delivered yearly is, therefore, clearly rent (Nabo Tarini Dasi v. Gray, 11 W. R., 7), and a suit for the landlord's share of the produce, or its money value, is a suit for rent : (Bhubo Sundari v. Jynal Abdin, 8 W. R., 393 ; Lachman Prasad v. Hulash Mahtun, 11 W. R., 151 ; 2 B.L.R. App., 17 ; Jamna Das v. Gausi Miah, 21 W. R., 124 ; Mallik Amanat Ali v. Aklu Pasi, 25 W. R., 140 ; Tazudin Khan v. Ram Prosad Bhagat, 1 All., 217 ; Shoma Mehta v. Rajani Biswas, 1 C. W. N., 55). Services rendered for the use and occupation of land are not rent according to the definition in this clause, though a service tenure-holder comes within the definition of "tenant" in sub-sec. (3). The incidents of service tenures are expressly excluded from the operation of this Act (sec. 181).

Abwabs, or impositions on tenants over and above the actual rent, are not rent, and cannot be recovered as such, for they are not lawfully payable (see sec. 74).

Collections of portions of the proceeds of sales from persons exposing their goods for sale in a hat and due under a farming lease are rent, because they are payable for the use of the land (Bangshodhar Biswas v. Madho Mahaldar, 21 W. R., 383; cf. Gaitri Debi v. Thakur Das, W. R., Sp. No., Act X, 78, and contra, Savi v. Ishar Chandra Mandal, 20 W. R., 146). For the same reason, a sum payable annually by a mortgagee in possession under a zar-i-peshgi lease executed by him in favour of the mortgagor is rent (Bissorup Datta v. Binod Ram Sen, W. R., Sp. No., Act X, 93). But damages for the destruction of trees (Nabo Tarini Dasi v. Gray, 11 W. R., 7) and goats, straw and other articles due under a separate agreement unconnected with the question of rent (Bhubo Sundari v. Jynal Abdin, 8 W. R., 393) are not rent, because not due for the use and occupation of land. So, also, money payable by a lessee in consideration of a lease granted, whether called nazar or salami, (Dinonath Mukhurji v. Debnath Mallik, 13 W. R., 307). Damages for the use and occupation of land are not rent, (Bhuban Mohan Basu v. Chandra Nath Banurji, 17 W. R. 69; Kishen Gopal Mawar v. Barnes, 2 Cal., 374; Kali Krishna Tagore v. Izzatunissa, 1 C. W. N., lxxviii), because not payable by a tenant. Similarly, when on the sale of zamindari, the conditions of sale stipulated for the payment of a small pittance, styled dastur, by the purchaser as subsistence of the former proprietor, this was held not to be rent, because the relation of landlord and tenant did not exist between the parties (Ram Charan Banurji v. Torita Churan Pal, 18 W. R., 343.)

Finally, a payment to be rent must be payable to the landlord. Accordingly, in Ratnessar Biswas v. Harish Chandra Basu, (11 Cal., 221), it was decided that a sum of money payable by a tenant, not to his immediate landlord but to a third person, was not rent. But in Mahabat Ali v. Mahomed Faizullah, (2 C. W. N., 455), it was subsequently ruled that a sum payable by a patnidar on behalf of the zamindar to the Collector as cesses, and another payable to a third person as expenses for the maintenance of a masjid, were sums payable for the use and occupation of land, and were, therefore, rent.

The conflict of decision between these two cases was ultimately settled by a Full Bench in Basanta Kumari Debia v. Asutosh Chakravarti, (27 Cal., 67; 4 C. W. N., 3) in which it was decided that a suit by a landlord against a tenant for a certain sum of money payable by him out of the rent to a third person under assignment is one for rent and not for damages. In this case the assignee was not a party to the assignment and had not accepted it, which was regarded as showing that "in the contemplation of the parties the money did not cease to be a part of the rent or recoverable as such."

So, where a lease had been executed by the plaintiffs in favour of the defendant at a fixed annual rent, and the defendant under instruction from the plaintiffs paid from time to time Government revenue, cesses, expenses of litigation, &c, on their behalf and used to set off those sums against the rent due to them under the lease, it was held that on the expiry of the lease, the plaintiffs could not sue the defendant for an account, but only for rent, if any was still due (Bhekdhari Lal v. Badshingh Dudharia, 27 Calc., 663.) Again, a lease provided that a certain sum was payable by the tenant direct to the landlord as malikana, and certain other sums were payable by the tenant for Government revenue and other demands, which the landlord was himself bound to pay; held, that the latter sums were payable for the use and occupation of the land held by the tenant and might have been made payable to the landlord direct, although for convenience it was arranged that the tenant should pay them for the landlord and came within the definition of rent (Jnamada Sundari v. Atul Chandra Chakravartti, 32 Calc., 972). A took a lease of certain mauzas from B in dar-patni and se-patni and covenanted to pay annually Rs. 3,191 to the superior landlords of B direct and Rs. 1,800 to B. A was to take receipts from the superior landlords, make them over to B and take receipts from the latter. The whole amount of Rs. 4,991 was described in the lease as annual rent fixed and in certain eventualities arising out of non-payment by A to the superior landlords, B was authorized to realise the amount from A by bringing a suit for arrears of rent. Held, upon a construction of the lease, that a suit brought by B for realisation from A of the amount which the latter failed to pay to the superior landlords under the terms of the lease, was, for the purpose of limitation, one not for rent, but for damages for breach of covenant. (Hemendra Nath Mukhurji v. Kumar Nath Rai, 9 C. W. N. 96; 32 Calc., 169). Where by a patni lease the annual jama of the tenure was fixed at Rs. 6000 and besides this rent, the patnidar undertook to deposit into the Collectorate the Government revenue fixed for the share of the estate granted in patni, and payable by the lessor, kist by kist, failing which the patni lease was to be cancelled, and the landlord was to take khas possession; held, by their lordships of the Privy Council that the payments by the patnidar of the Government revenue, though no doubt part of the consideration to be rendered by the lessee for the enjoyment of the tenure, was not money payable to the landlord, and was therefore not rent, or recoverable as such under the provisions of the Patni Regulation (Jotindro Mohan Tagore v. Jarao Kumari, 33 Calc., 140; 3 C. L. J., 7; 10 C. W. N., 201.)

was still a suit for rent, and was, therefore, excluded from the jurisdiction of the Small Cause Court. In this case it was said that "the money was due as rent at the time of the assignment, and the assignment did not deprive it of that character, so far at all events as the tenant was concerned." The correctness of this decision was afterwards doubted, but the question was set at rest by a Full Bench, by which it was decided that a suit brought by an assignee of arrears of rent after they fell due for the recovery of the amount due is a suit for rent, and, therefore, excepted from the cognizance of the Court of Small Causes (Srish Chandra Basu v. Nachim Kazi, 27 Calc., 827 ; 4 C. W. N., 357.) From this decision, however, Banerjee, J., dissented, holding that where the landlord's interest in the land is not assigned along with the arrears of rent after they fell due, a suit by the assignee for the recovery of the same is a suit for ordinary debt. The Full Bench decision was followed in Mohendra Nath Kalamori v. Kailash Chandra Dogra, (4 C. W. N., 605), in which a second appeal in a suit brought by an assignee of arrears of rent was allowed, being held not to be barred under the provisions of s. 586, C. P. C., but at the same time, as the plaintiff was not the landlord, and the defendant not his tenant, as defined in this Act, it was decided that the period of limitation applicable to the suit was not that laid down in art 2, schedule III of this Act, but three years only under art. 110, schedule II of the Limitation Act.

Money recoverable as rent.—The following moneys are recoverable as if they were rent, under enactments for the time being in force ; viz., (1) sums payable to zamindars and tenure-holders under the Bengal Survey Act (Act V, B. C., of 1875, sec. 38) ; (2) sums payable to Government or to any person who has entered into an agreement to collect water-rates for Government (Act III, B. C., of 1876, sec. 83) ; (3) sums payable to holders of estates or tenures under the provisions of the Cess Act (IX, B. C., of 1880, sec. 47) ; (4) sums payable to holders of estates or tenures in respect of land held rent-free (sec. 64 A of the same Act) ; (5) drainage charges payable by the tenant to the landlord under the Bengal Drainage Act (VI, B. C., of 1880, sec. 44 ; Man Mohini Dasi v. Priya Nath Besali, 8 C. W. N., 640 ; Nafar Chandra v. Jyoti Kumar Mukhurji, 11 C. W. N., 57) ; (6) interest on arrears of rent or other demands recoverable as rent, payable to managers of Courts of Wards Estates (Act III, B. C., of 1881, sec. 10) ; (7) sums payable to zamindars or tenure-holders under the Bengal Embankment Act (II, B. C., of 1882, sec. 74), which are recoverable as provided for the recovery of arrears of rent of patni tenures in Reg. VIII of 1819 ; and (8) sums payable to holders of estates or tenures by under-tenure holders or cultivating *raiya*s under ss. 23 and 24 of the Bengal Sanitary Drainage Act, VIII, B. C., of 1895.

Cesses.—Cesses, though recoverable as rent under the provisions of the Cess Act, are yet not rent, as they are not payable for the use and occupation of land, but under a liability incidental to the use and occupation of land. Under the terms of the second paragraph of this clause they are only included under the term "rent" in sections 53 to 68, both inclusive, sections 72 to 75, both inclusive, Chap. XII (relating to distraint) Chapter XIV (relating to sales for arrears under decree, and this in Bengal only,) and Schedule III (relating to limitation) of this Act. It has, however, been held that cesses are included within the term "rent" for the purposes of sec. 153 of the Act; so that no second appeal lies, where the amount sued for does not exceed one hundred rupees, unless the case comes within the terms of the proviso to that section (Mahesh Chandra Chaturji v. Uma Tara Debi, 16 Calc., 638; Rajani Kant Nag v. Jogeshwar Singh, 20 Calc., 254). In the latter of these cases it was said that the provisions of the 2nd paragraph of clause (5), section 3, are "enabling provisions, passed to extend the meaning of rent, and in no way interfere with the law refusing a right of appeal in suits below a hundred rupees in value." The decisions in these two above cited cases would seem to be hardly in accordance with the strict terms of this clause.

In Kishori Mohan Rai v. Sarodamoni Dasi, (1 C. W. N., 30) it has been laid down that the provisions of sec. 174 of this Act, which allow of a sale of a tenure or holding being set aside on application within thirty days of the sale, are applicable to a sale in execution of a decree for arrears of road cess due on account of lakhiraj land, but the decision in this case proceeds on the terms of 64A of the Road Cess Act, which enacts that arrears of road cess may be recovered by any process by which the amount might be recovered, if it were due on account of rent of a transferable tenure. Cesses, it has been held, are only personal debts and cannot properly be recovered under the Public Demands Recovery Act, 1880, (1) from the property on which it is assessed, when such property belongs to a third person, who has not been recorded as proprietor under Act VII, B. C., of 1876 (Shekaat Hosain v. Sashi Kar, 19 Calc., 783). But under sec. 65, arrears of rent are a first charge on the tenure or holding on account of which they may become due, and "rent" in sec. 65 includes cesses; so that the tenure or holding on which they have been assessed may be sold in execution of a decree for arrears of cesses, provided the suit in which the decree has been obtained has been brought against the proper person. At a sale of a tenure held in execution of a decree the whole tenure will pass and the purchaser will acquire it free from any incumbrance, not being a registered and notified incumbrance under sec. 161 of the Act (Nobin Chand Laskar v. Bansi Nath Paramanik, 21 Calc., 722). In a recent case, Ahsanulla v. Manjura Banu, (30 Calc., 778), in which Nobin Chand Laskar v. Bansi Nath Paramanik was not referred to; it has been held that the amount of cesses payable to a Collector under the Cess Act is not a charge on the estate in respect of which they are due. But this was not the case under the old law, or at a sale held in execution of a decree for arrears of cesses obtained under Act X of 1859. At such a sale, only the right, title and interest of the particular individual against whom the decree has been obtained will pass (Mahanand Chakravartti v. Beni Madhab Chaturji, 24 Calc., 27; Uma Charan Bag v. Asadunnissa, 12 Calc., 430). When property is sold in enforcement of a certificate under Act VII, B. C., of 1880, filed by the Collector to recover an amount due to the Government for an advance made under the Agriculturists' Loans Act, nothing but the judgment-debtor's right, title and interest in the property at the date of service of the notice under s. 10 can pass to the purchaser (Lachmi Narain Singh v. Nani Kishor Lal, 29 Calc., 537).

Patwaries' dues.—Patwaries' dues are of course not rent, and, therefore, cannot be recovered under the provisions of this Act, but they are recoverable by the same processes as arrears of public revenue under sec. 36 of Reg. XII of 1817.

Dak Cess.—Dak cess is also not rent, and as there is no provision in any enactment that it is recoverable as if it were rent, it cannot be recovered under the provisions of this Act. Under sec. 12 of the Zamindari Dak Act, VIII, B. C., of 1862, contracts or engagements for the payment of dak cess may be made by any samindar with any person holding under him (see Saroda Sundari Debya v. Uma Charan Sarkar, 3 W. R., S. C. Ref., 17; Bissonath Sarkar v. Sarnamayi, 4 W. R., 6; Rakhal Das Mukhurji v. Sarnamayi, 6 W. R., 100); but this would not appear to make dak cess rent, or recoverable as such. In Walson v. Srikrishna Bhumik (21 Calc., 132), however, it has been held that where dak cess is claimed under the contract by which rent is payable, it must be regarded as rent, because it is claimed practically as part of the rent. This was followed in Bijai Chand Mahtab v. Byghmodas Dutt, (1 C. L. J., 101 n.). In a patni kabulyat executed in 1855, the patnidar agreed to pay the salary and expenses of the amlak of dak chowki houses, and to appoint them and superintend their work under the system of samindari dak then in force; held, that this stipulation imposed on the patnidar the liability of paying dak charges recoverable from the samindar, and, although the system had since been changed, the liability of paying such charges must be taken to exist. (Jillar Rahman v. Bijai Chand Mahtab, 28 Calc., 293). See note to s. 74. Act VIII, B. C., of 1862 (the Zamindari Dak Act) has now been repealed by Act IV of 1907 (the Repealing and Amending (Rates and Cesses) Act, 1907).

Chaukidari Tax.—Chaukidari tax, too, would not seem to come within the definition of rent, but in Ahsanullah v. Tirtha Bashini (22 Calc., 680), which was a suit for arrears of chaukidari tax, payable by a patnidar under the patni settlement, it was held that the amount for which he was thus liable was rent. It was said that the consideration of the payment was the occupation of the land, or the holding of the patni tenure, and the payment was to be made periodically to the samindar by the patnidar, and was lawfully payable; it came within the definition of rent. But see note to s. 74.

Interest.—Interest is not rent within the meaning of the term as defined in this Act (Kailash Chandra De v. Turak Nath Mandal, 25 Calc., 571 n). See also Rai Charan Ghosh v. Kumad Mohan Datta (25 Calc., 571; 2 C. W. N., 297), and Bhagabati Debya v. Basanta Kumari, 11 C. W. N., 110; 5 C. L. J., 69. But in s. 169 (c) the word "rent" includes interest (per Ghose J., in Bijai Chand v. S. C. Mukhurji, 5 C. L. J., 27), and in sec. 161, as amended by sec. 51, Act I, B. C., of 1907, which prevails in Bengal only, the terms "arrears" and "arrear of rent," for the purposes of Chapter XIV of the Act, include interest decreed under sec. 67, or damages awarded in lieu of interest under sec. 68 (1).

Rent is moveable property; the right to collect it may be sold.—It has been held in Mohesh Chandra Chaturji v. Guru Prasad Rai, (13 W. R., 401) that for the purposes of Acts VIII and X of 1859, rent comes within the terms "property," and "moveable property," and that, therefore, in execution of a decree for arrears of rent the judgment-debtor's right to recover rent from an under-tenant may be sold. Whether this can be done under the present law has not yet been determined, but there would seem to be no reason why it should not be done. The right to collect back rents is frequently transferred privately, and there would seem to be no legal obstacle to its being transferred in invitum. "Debts" are expressly mentioned in sec. 266 of the Code of Civil Procedure as being liable to attachment and sale in execution of a decree. But a decree for money cannot be sold under the provisions of sec. 273, C. P. C., and under sec. 148 (h) of this Act the assignee of a decree for arrears of rent cannot apply for execution of it, unless the landlord's interest in the land has become and is vested in him. We are, therefore, confronted with this anomaly that the right to collect rent may apparently be transferred privately and sold in execution of a decree, but the same right in its more perfect form of a decree cannot be sold under section 273 of the Civil Procedure Code, and can only be enforced by an assignee, if he further acquires his transferor's interest in the land. A suit by an assignee for rent, the right to collect which has been transferred to him, would be a suit for a debt and not one for rent; because the amount would not be payable to the landlord for the land (Bhagwan Sahai v. Sangessar Chaudhri, 19 W. R., 431; see contra, Samasunduri Dasi v. Brindaban Chandra Mazumdar, Marsh., 199; Lal Mohan Singh v. Trailakhyonath Ghosh, 14 W. R., 456; Hridai Muni Barmani v. Sibbold, 15 W. R., 344).

(6) "Pay," "payable" and "payment," used with reference to rent, include "deliver," "deliverable" and "delivery."

(7) "Tenure" means the interest of a tenure-holder or an under-tenure-holder.

Extended to the Chota-Nagpur Division, except the district of Manbhum (Not., Feb. 9th 1903). But for "or an under-tenure-holder" read "and includes an under-tenure."

In this Act the word "tenure" is almost invariably used in its strict sense of the interest of a "tenure-holder," but in rulings under the old Acts, and often even now it is loosely used as synonymous with "tenancy." This is of course incorrect in cases to which this Act is applicable. "Tenure-holder" is defined in section 5, sub-sec. (1).

(8) "Permanent tenure" means a tenure which is heritable and which is not held for a limited time.

The subject of permanent tenures is discussed in the notes to Chap. III.

(9) "Holding" means a parcel or parcels of land held by a raiyat and forming the subject of a separate tenancy.

Holding.—According to this definition the land held by an under-raiyat would not seem to be a holding, as in sec. 4 under-raiyats are classified separately from raiyats; but no doubt it must be a holding, an under-raiyat being neither a proprietor nor a tenure-holder. This is further apparent from the terms of sec. 113, as amended by the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Act, III, B.C., of 1898, in which "the holding of an under-raiyat" is referred to.

An undivided share in a parcel or parcels of land cannot be a holding.—The definition of "holding" in this sub-section "evi-Chand Mahtab, 28 Calc., 293). See note to s. 74. Act VIII, B. C., of 1862 (the Zamindari Dak Act) has now been repealed by Act IV of 1907 (the Repealing and Amending (Rates and Cesses) Act, 1907).

Chaukidari Tax.—Chaukidari tax, too, would not seem to come within the definition of rent, but in *Ahsanullah v. But see note to s. 74.

Interest.—Interest is not rent within the meaning of the term as defined in this Act (Kailash Chandra De v. Tarak Nath Mandal, 25 Calc., 571 n). See also Rai Charan Ghosh v. Kumad Mohan Datta (25 Calc., 571; 2 C. W. N., 297), and Bhagabati Dehya v. Basanta Kumari, 11 C. W. N., 110; 5 C. L. J., 69. But in s. 169 (c) the word “rent” includes interest (per Ghose J., in Bijui Chand v. S. C. Mukhurji, 5 C. L. J., 27), and in sec. 161, as amended by sec. 51, Act I, B. (6) "Pay," "payable" and "payment," used with reference to rent, include "deliver," "deliverable" and "delivery."

(7) "Tenure" means the interest of a tenure-holder or an under-tenure-holder.

Extended to the Chota-Nagpur Division, except the district of Manbhum (Not., Feb. 9th 1903). But for "or an under-tenure-holder" read "and includes an under-tenure."

In this Act the word "tenure" is almost invariably used in its strict sense of the interest of a "tenure-holder," but in rulings under the old Acts, and often even now it is loosely used as synonymous with "tenancy." This is of course incorrect in cases to which this Act is applicable. "Tenure-holder" is defined in section 5, sub-sec. (1).

(8) "Permanent tenure" means a tenure which is heritable and which is not held for a limited time.

The subject of permanent tenures is discussed in the notes to Chap. III.

(9) "Holding" means a parcel or parcels of land held by a raiyat and forming the subject of a separate tenancy.

Holding.—According to this definition the land held by an under-raiyat would not seem to be a holding, as in sec. 4 under-raiyats are classified separately from raiyats; but no doubt it must be a holding, an under-raiyat being neither a proprietor nor a tenure-holder. This is further apparent from the terms of sec. 113, as amended by the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Act, III, B.C., of 1898, in which "the holding of an under-raiyat" is referred to.

An undivided share in a parcel or parcels of land cannot be a holding.—The definition of "holding" in this sub-section "evidently applies only to an entire parcel or entire parcels, and is not intended to include an undivided share in a parcel or parcels, and the reason seems to be obvious. A raiyati holding, which from the very definition of "raiayat" in section 5, sub-section 2, means land occupied by a raiyat for the purpose of cultivation, can be ordinarily held only in its entirety; and cultivation of an undivided fractional share of a parcel of land will ordinarily be meaningless. A tenure, on the other hand, which is the interest of a tenure-holder," who is defined in section 5, sub-section (1), as a person who has acquired a right to hold land for the purpose of collecting rents or bringing it under cultivation by establishing tenants on it, may relate only to an undivided fractional share in land without leading to any practical difficulty. And it is for this reason that, while "tenure" is defined as the interest of a tenure-holder or an under-tenure-holder, "holding" is defined, not as the interest of a raiyat, but as a parcel or parcels of land held by a raiyat and forming the subject of a separate tenancy. If the definition of "holding" were to include an undivided fractional share in a parcel or parcels of land, the definition would be incompatible with the provisions of sections 121 and 122 of the Act, which relate to the distraint of crops or other products of holdings." (per Banerjee, J., in Hari Charan Basu v. Ranjit Singh, 1 C. W. N., 521; 25 Calc., 917). See also Baidya Nath De v. Ilim, (25 Calc., 917; 2 C. W. N., 44). An undivided share does not fall within the definition of 'holding' given in Bengal Tenancy Act, and sec. 30 of the Act does not apply to the enhancement of rent of such a share (Haribol Brahma v. Tasimuddin Mundal, 2 C. W. N., 680), and the purchaser of an undivided share of raiyati holding cannot acquire any right to annul incumbrances under s. 167 (Ahadullah v. Gagan Mollah, 2 C. L. J., 10; 6 C. W. N., lxxxiv). Under Act VIII, B.C., of 1869 a right of occupancy could be acquired within the meaning of the proviso to sec. 37 of the Revenue Sale Law in a share of undivided property (Baidya Nath Mandal v. Sudharam Misri, 8 C. W. N., 751). See also Uma Charan Baruah v. Mani Ram Baruah, (8 C. W. N., 192). The partition of an estate under Act VIII, B.C., of 1876, by which a holding, formerly appertaining to the joint estate is apportioned between the co-sharers of the estate, has the effect of dividing the holding into two or more holdings (Pratap Chandra Das v. Kamala Kanta Shaha, 10 C. W. N., 818).

(10) "Village" means an area included in a village map of the revenue-survey within the same exterior boundary, or, where no such maps have been prepared, such area as any officer appointed by the Local Government in this behalf may determine after local inquiry held on such notice as the Local Government consider sufficient for giving information to all persons interested.

See rule 4 (e) and (f), Chap VI of the Government Rules, made under this Act, App I.

The term "village," as defined in this clause, is not confined to non-urban areas (Hassan Ali v. Govind Lal Basak, 9 C. W. N., 141.)

In the province of Bengal, the following clause has been substituted for the above by Act I, B. C., of 1907.

[(10) 'village' means the area defined, surveyed and recorded as a distinct and separate village in—
(a) the general land-revenue survey which has been made of the Province of Bengal, or
(b) any survey made by the Government which may be adopted by notification in the Calcutta Gazette, as defining villages for the purposes of this clause in any specified area; and, where a survey has not been made by, or under the authority of, the Government, such area as the Collector may, with the sanction of the Board of Revenue, by general or special order, declare to constitute a village.]

In the Select Committee's report on the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Bill, 1906, the following reasons for the substitution are given.

"It has been brought to our notice that some practical inconvenience has been caused by the present definition of "village" in sub-section (10) of section 3 of the Act as the area included in a village map of the revenue-survey. In the Cadastral Surveys which are now being made in parts of the province in connection with the preparation of a record-of-rights, it is found in many cases, however, that, owing to the clearance of jungle and other causes, the existing boundary of a village does not agree with that ascertained in the revenue-survey, and rule 4 (c) of the Rules made by the Bengal Government prescribes that, in such cases, the existing boundary ascertained by the Revenue-officer is to be followed for the purpose of map and record. We propose to bring the law into conformity with this rule, for, we consider it advisable that where a Cadastral Survey has been made on a larger scale and with greater care and accuracy than the Revenue Survey, Government should have power to declare that the maps of the Cadastral Survey should supersede those of the Revenue Survey for the purposes of the Tenancy Act. We propose, therefore, that in the Tenancy Act, the definition of "village," which was adopted in the Land Registration (Amendment) Act of 1900, should be inserted. We consider, however, that the Revenue Survey map should be preserved as far as possible as the unit of survey and record in the course of the Cadastral Survey, and that no change should be made except with the sanction of the Board of Revenue. We have provided for this by the new clause 27 A, which we propose to insert in the Bill."

The new section 115A referred to is inserted after sec. 115 of the Act.

(11) "Agricultural year" means, where the Bengali year prevails, the year commencing on the first day of Baisakh, where the Fasli or Amli year prevails, the year commencing on the first day of Asin, and, where any other year prevails for agricultural purposes, that year. •

Agricultural years.—The Bengali year prevails generally throughout Bengal, and is current in those districts in which other years are not prevalent. The 1st November, 1885, the date of commencement of this Act, was the 17th Kartik, 1292, according to the Bengali year.

The Fasli or "harvest year" prevails in the districts of the Patna division (viz., Champaran, Saran, Muzaffarpur, Darbhanga, Patna, Gaya, and Shahabad), in the districts of Bhagalpur and Monghyr of the Bhagalpur division, in parganas Dharampur, Harawat, Chhai and Dhaphar in the west of the Purneah district, in the Godda sub-division, Tuppa Hardwai of the Dumka sub-division and Taluk Taor of the Deogarh sub-division, all in the district of the Sonthal Parganas, in the Palamau district, in the Kharakdiha sub-division of the Hazaribagh district, in pargana Barabhum in the Manbhum district, and in parts even of Singhbhum of the Chota Nagpur division. The 1st November, 1885, was the 9th Kartik, 1293, according to the Fasli year.

The Amli (revenue or Wilayati year prevails in Orissa, in the Tamluk and Contai sub-divisions of the Midnapore district, also in the sadar sub-division of the same district, except in thanahs Binpur, Garhbeta and parts of Debra and Keshpur, and in those parts of the Singhbhum district where the Fasli year is not used. That it is in force in parts of the Chota Nagpur division is apparent from secs. 31 and 44, Act I, B. C. of 1879. It commences on a varying date each year. The 1st November, 1885, was the 18th Kartik, 1293, of the Amli or Wilayati year.

The Maghi (i. e. the full-moon of Magh) year prevails in Chittagong. The 1st November, 1885, was the 17th Kartik, 1247, according to the Maghi year.

The Mulki year prevails in those parts of the district of Purneah, i. e., Parganas Haveli, Surjapur, Powakhali, &c., where the Fasli and Bengali years are not in force. The Fasli year prevails in Parganas Dharampur, Harawat, Chhai and Dhaphar, and the Bengali year in the southern and south-eastern parts of the district, viz., Parganas Kakjole, Badour, &c. The Mulki year is a year in advance of the Bengali year.

In the Ranchi district and the adjoining parts of the Hazaribagh district, the Sambat year is in force. The Sambat year can be readily ascertained by adding 57 to the year of the Christian era.

(12) "Permanent Settlement" means the Permanent Settlement of Bengal, Behar and Orissa, made in the year 1793.

Permanent Settlement.—This clause was framed with the intention of making it clear that the Permanent Settlement referred to in the Act "is in all cases the Permanent Settlement of Bengal, Behar and Orissa, made in 1793, and not, as regards any district or area subsequently settled, the Permanent Settlement of such district or area." (Rent Commission Report, vol. I. p. 14, para 23). This was the rule laid down in Paran Bibi v. Sidi Nazir Ali, (W. R., Sp. No., Act X, 71). See also Nagendra Lal Chaudhuri v. Nazir Ali, (10 C. W. N., 503). The date of the Permanent Settlement has been held to be the 22nd March, 1793 (Dhanput Singh v. Guman Singh, W. R., Sp. No., Act X, 61; Rajessari Debi v. Shibnath Chaturji, 4 W. R., Act X, 42). Certain portions of Reg. III of 1828 show that the Sundaibans up to that date continued the property of the State. (Tumasha v. Asutosh Dhar, 4 C. W. N., 513).

(13) "Succession" includes both intestate and testamentary succession.

(14) "Signed" includes "marked" when the person making the mark is unable to write his name; it also includes "stamped" with the name of the person referred to.

(15) "Prescribed" means prescribed from time to time by the Local Government by notification in the official Gazette.

Extended to the Chota Nagpur Division, except the district of Manbhum (Not., February 9th, 1903.)

(16) "Collector" means the Collector of a district or any other officer appointed by the Local Government to discharge any of the functions of a Collector under this Act.

Notifications under this sub-section.—By a notification, dated 21st April, 1886, published in the Calcutta Gazette of the 28th idem, Part I, p. 466, all officers in charge of sub-divisions were invested with the powers of a Collector for the purpose of discharging the functions referred to in sections 69 to 71 (relating to produce rents) of the Act. By a notification, dated 28th May, 1886, published in the Calcutta Gazette of 2nd June, 1886, Part I, page 652, the Deputy Collector of Howrah, and by a notification, dated the 4th May, 1893, published in the Calcutta Gazette of the 5th idem, Part I, p. 274, the Senior Deputy Collector attached to the sadar station of Gaya, were invested with powers of a Collector for the purpose of discharging the functions referred to in these sections. By a notification, dated the 7th October, 1886, published in the Calcutta Gazette of the 13th idem, Part I, p. 1902, all officers in charge of sub-divisions were invested with the powers of a Collector for the purpose of discharging the functions referred to in sections 12, 13 and 15 of the Act.

The appointment of an officer to perform the functions of a Collector under particular sections does not make him a Collector "for all purposes of the Act." (Mohabat Singh v. Umahil Fatima, 28 Calc., 69).

(17) "Revenue-officer" in any provision of this Act, includes any officer whom the Local Government may appoint by name or by virtue of his office to discharge any of the functions of a Revenue-officer under that provision.

Extended to the Chota Nagpur Division, except the district of Manbhum (Not., February 9th, 1903.)

"Under sec. 3 (17) of the Tenancy Act, officers cannot be vested with the general powers of a Revenue Officer, but with certain functions only as specified in certain provisions of the Act."⁽¹⁾

Notifications under this sub-section.—By a notification, dated the 11th February, 1890, published in the Calcutta Gazette of the 12th idem, Part I, p. 121, all Deputy Collectors in the Lower Provinces of Bengal have been authorized to discharge the functions of Revenue Officers under Chap. X and have been vested with powers of a Settlement Officer under rule 1, Chap. VI of the rules framed by Government under this Act. By notification No. 1628 L. R., dated the 17th March, 1905, all Deputy Commissioners and all Deputy Collectors now serving, or who may hereafter serve, in the districts of Hazaribagh, Ranchi, Singhbhum and Palamau, are authorized to discharge all the functions of a Revenue Officer under Chapter II of the Chota Nagpur Commutation Act, IV (B. C.) of 1897, as amended by Act V (B. C.) of 1903.

(1) Board's Survey and Settlement Manual, 1901, Part I, Ch. 2, rule 8, p. 3.

*They are also vested with all the powers of a Revenue officer under Rule 3 of the Government Rules under section 13 of the Commutation Act.

(18) "Registered" means registered under any Act for the time being in force for the registration of documents.

Documents executed by landlords or tenants will be found to come within one or other of the following classes :—(1) deeds of sale, mortgage or gift of the interest of the landlord or tenant ; (2) leases ; (3) contracts of enhancement ; and (4) documents creating incumbrances on tenures and holdings.

Registration of deeds of sale, mortgage or gift.—Deeds of sale or mortgage of rights in or of tangible immoveable property of the value of Rs. 100 and upwards, and deeds of gift of immoveable property of any value must be registered (sec. 17, Act III of 1877, secs. 54, 59 and 123 of Act IV of 1882). Formerly, the registration of deeds of sale or mortgage of such property of less than Rs. 100 in value was optional (sec. 18, Act III of 1877) ; but since the passing of Act IV of 1882, sales of such property can only be made by registered instrument, or, in the case of immoveable property not coming within the provisions of sections 12 and 18 of this Act (i. e., in the case of immoveable property other than permanent tenures and raiyati holdings at fixed rates), by delivery of the property (Narain Chandra Chakravartti v. Dataram Rai, 8 Calc., 597 ; 10 C. L. R., 241 ; Makhan Lal Pal v. Banko Bihari Ghosh, 19 Calc., 623), and registration of a deed of sale constitutes a sufficient delivery of the deed to pass the interest in land referred to therein (Ponnaya Goundan v. Muttu Goundan, 17 Mad., 146). A mortgage of immoveable property of less than Rs. 100 in value, not coming within the provisions of sections 12 and 18 of this Act, may be effected either by unregistered deed signed by the mortgagor and attested by two witnesses, or, except in the case of a simple mortgage, by delivery of the property (sec. 59, Act IV of 1882). Delivery of possession of property of less than Rs. 100 in value in pursuance of a contract of sale or mortgage, which does not come within the provisions of sections 12 and 18 of this Act, gives (except in the case of a simple mortgage, in which there can be no transfer of possession) a good title and will not be affected by a subsequent registered deed in favour of another ; while delivery of possession of property of above that value will be of no avail as against a subsequent registered deed, notwithstanding the provisions of sec. 48 of the Registration Act, which prescribe that all duly registered non-testamentary documents relating to moveable or immoveable property "shall take effect against any oral agreement or declaration unless where the agreement or declaration has been accompanied or followed by delivery of possession." But it has been held that where a person purchases with actual notice of a prior oral agreement to sell to another person, he will not be allowed to retain the property, and a suit for specific performance may be successfully maintained by such other person against him and the vendor (Waman Ram Chandra v. Dhondiba Krishnaji, 4 Bom., 126 ; Nemai Charan Dhabal v. Kokil Bag, 6 Calc., 534 ; 7 C. L. R., 487 ; Chandra Nath Rai v. Bhairab Chandra Sarma, 10 Calc., 250 ; Chandra Kant Rai v. Krishna Sundar Rai, 10 Calc., 710 ; Kannan v. Krishnan, 13 Mad., 324) The provisions of section 48 of the Registration Act are still applicable in the case of sales and mortgages of property of less than Rs. 100 in value to which the terms of sections 12 and 18 of this Act will not apply, and of leases for terms not exceeding one year, or exempted by Government from registration under sec. 17 of the Registration Act.

The provisions of sections 12 and 18 of this Act must be read as supplemental to those of the Registration and Transfer of Property Acts, and they make the registration of deeds of transfer by sale, gift or mortgage of permanent tenures and raiyati holdings at fixed rates compulsory ; so that oral agreements or declarations, or unregistered deeds relating to such transfers of such properties, can be of no avail, even if accompanied by possession (Dharmodas Das v. Nistarini Dasi, 14 Calc., 446). Deeds of sale or of gift of ordinary raiyati holdings of any value must also be registered under sections 54 and 123 of the Transfer of Property Act. Deeds of mortgage of such holdings must be registered, if the amount secured exceeds one hundred rupees (Nabira Rai v. Achampat Rai, 3 All., 422). If the amount secured is less than one hundred rupees, the deed, if there be one, must be signed by the mortgagor and attested by at least two witnesses.

Leases.—There is no definition of "lease" in this Act. In sec. 3, Act III of 1877, the term "lease" is said to "include a counterpart kabuliyat, an undertaking to cultivate or occupy and an agreement to lease." In sec. 3, cl. 12, Act I of 1879, it is defined as meaning "a lease of immoveable "property" and as including also "(a) a patta

(b) a kabuliyat or other undertaking in writing, not being a counterpart of a lease, to cultivate, occupy or pay or deliver rent for immoveable property, (c) any instrument by which tolls of any description are let, and (d) any writing on an application for a lease intended to signify that the application is granted." In section 105 of the Transfer of Property Act (IV of 1882) a lease of immoveable property is said to be a "transfer of the right to enjoy such property, made for a certain time, express or implied, or in perpetuity, in consideration of a price paid or promised, or of money, a share of crops, service or any other thing of value, to be rendered periodically or on specified occasions to the transferor by the transferee who accepts the transfer on such terms." It is, therefore, not a mere contract but a conveyance and affects a transfer of property (Raghunathdas Gopaldas v. Morarji Jutha, 16 Bom., 568). Mr. Field in his Digest, p. 3, suggests the following definition:—"Lease means a contract creating or continuing the relation of landlord and tenant and executed by the landlord in favour of the tenant." "Pattah," he defines, "as a written lease granted to a ryot." A lease granted to a tenant need not in all cases be in writing. Parol leases are in most cases quite valid. In this Act the word "lease" is apparently used sometimes in that of a parol contract of letting.

Cultivators' Leases exempted from stamp duty.—Article 13, Schedule II, of the Stamp Act exempts from duty (1) a "lease executed in the case of a cultivator without the payment or delivery of any fine or premium, when a definite term is expressed and such term does not exceed one year, or when the annual rent reserved does not exceed one hundred rupees (see In re Bhuvan Badhar, 6 Bom., 691); and (2) the counterpart of any lease granted to a cultivator," and art. 16 of the same schedule exempts from duty the surrender of a lease, when such lease is exempted from duty. The Allahabad High Court has said that by the term "cultivator" in this article only those persons are connoted who actually cultivate the soil themselves or who cultivate it by members of their household, or by their servants, or by hired labour, and with their own or hired stock. The class of husbandmen or actual agriculturists is meant; not farmers, middlemen, or lessees, even though cultivation may be carried on to some extent by such persons in the area covered by their lease" (5 All., 360; Stamp Ref.).

The Board of Revenue has held (Secy's No. 1393 B of 9th October, 1896, to the address of the Legal Remembrancer and the latter's No. 1366 of the 2nd November, 1896, in reply) that having regard to the definition of lease in the Stamp Act and the use of the word "executed" in art. 13 of Schedule II, a lease must for the purposes of the Stamp Act be drawn up in writing, and therefore, a document executed by a raiyat surrendering a verbal lease, evidenced only by the entry of his name in the landlord's register, must be stamped as a "release under art. 54, Schedule I, and is not exempt from duty as a surrender of a lease under art. 16, Schedule II. See also Bhairab Chandra Das v. Kali Chandra Chakravarti, (16 W. R., 56) ; Safdar Ali Khan v. Lachman Das, (2 All., 554) ; Gurdial v. Jauhari Mal, (7 All., 820).

Registration of leases.—Section 17, cl. (d), of Act III of 1877 makes compulsory the registration of leases of immoveable property from year to year or for any term exceeding one year or reserving a yearly rent. The Local Government may, however, exempt from the operation of this clause leases executed in a district or part of a district the terms granted by which do not exceed five years and the annual rents reserved by which do not exceed fifty rupees. Section 18, cl. (c), of the Act makes optional the registration of leases of immoveable property for any term not exceeding one year and leases exempted under section 17. These provisions are repeated in section 107 of the Transfer of Property Act, which prescribes that "a lease of immoveable property from year to year, or for any term exceeding one year, or reserving a yearly rent, can be made only by registered instrument" ; while "all other leases of immoveable property may be made either by an instrument or by oral agreement." Section 106 of the same Act further provides that "in the absence of a contract or a local law or usage to the contrary, a lease of immoveable property for agricultural or manufacturing purposes shall be deemed to be a lease from year to year, terminable on the part of either lessor or lessee, by six months' notice expiring with the end of a year of the tenancy." But by section 117 of the Act the provisions of Chap. V, in which both sections 106 and 107 occur, do not apply to leases for agricultural purposes, unless extended to them, by the Local Government, which has not yet been done ; so the above cited provisions of the Transfer of Property Act have as yet no practical importance, so far at least as agricultural leases are concerned.

Leases held to require registration.—When the term of a pattah is expressed by the words san basan, a year-by-year tenancy is meant, that is, a tenancy which is certain for the period of one year and will continue beyond that period until it is properly put an end to by either party, and such a pattah must be registered (Ram Kumar Mandal v. Brajahari Mirdha, 2 B. L. R., A. C., 75 ; 10 W. R., 410). A lease for more than a year is none the less a lease, because a condition is attached to the consideration and because its term may be lessened on the payment of a sum of money by the lessor : it must, therefore, be registered and cannot be used in evidence, if not registered (Baksh Ali v. Nabotara, 13 W. R., 468). The same rule applies in the case of a kabuliata for one year, but containing a provision extending its term to more than one year (Krishna Kali v. Agemona Bewa, 15 W. R., 170). A lease for one year but which is to remain in force till another pattah is granted, must be registered (Venkatachellam Chetti v. Audiam, 3 Mad., 358). A daul durkhast, or proposal for a lease of seven years, on which the word "granted" has been written by the landlord as a sign of his acceptance of the proposal, requires registration (Safdar Reza v. Amzad Ali, 7 Calc., 703; 10 C. L. R., 121). But see Dwarka Nath Saha v. Ledu Sikdar, (33 Calc., 502). A zar-i-peshgi lease granted for one year, but with a stipulation that unless the loan were repaid within that time, it should continue in force, is a lease of which the registration is compulsory (Bhobani Mahto v. Shibnath Paru, 13 Calc., 113). An agreement for a lease for four years needs registration, if the parties intend to create a present demise, though the agreement may contemplate the subsequent execution of a formal document (Parmanandus Jivandas v. Dharsey Virji, 10 Bom., 101). A lease of immoveable property for the life of the lessee is a lease for a term exceeding one year and therefore requires registration (Parshotam Vishnu v. Nana Prayag, 18 Bom., 109).

Leases held not to require registration.—A lease for one year certain containing an expression on the tenant's part to hold the land longer at the same rent, if the landlord should desire it, is a lease for a term not exceeding one year and does not require to be registered (Apu Budgavda v. Narhari Annaji, 3 Bom., 21. See also Jagjivan Das Javherdus v. Narayan, 8 Bom., 493; Jagdesb Chandra Biswas v. Abidullah Mandal, 14 W. R., 68; Sautho Prasad Das v. Parasu Pradhan, 26 W. R., 98; Khayali v. Hazain Bakhsh, 8 All., 198; and Boyd v. Krieg, 17 Calc., 548). Where a lease contained provisions for an "annual rent" and for payment "of rent in advance each year," but also contained a clause whereby the tenancy was absolutely determinable at any moment at the option of the lessor, it was held that such a deed was not compulsorily registrable (Ratnasabhapathi v. Venkatachalam 14 Mad., 271). Mere preliminaries to a lease, such as a daul darkhast or proposal for a lease, unaccepted by the landlord, do not require registration (Chuni Mandar v. Chandi Lal Das, 14 W. R., 178; Mihirunissa v. Abdul Ghani, 17 W. R., 509; Lachmessar Singh v. Dukha, 7 Calc., 708; 10 C. L. R., 127; Lal Jha v. Negru, 7 Calc., 717). Such preliminaries to a lease as a daul, or an amaldari, also need not be registered (Golak Kishor Acharji v. Nand Mohan De, 12 W. R., 394). An amaldastak, bestowed merely to give possession pending the execution of a formal instrument does not require to be registered (Banwari Lal v. Sangam Lal, 7 W. R., 280). Neither does an amalnama not creating an interest beyond a year (Radhika Prasad Chandra v. Ram Sundar Rai, 1 B. L. R., A. C., 7 ; Abdul Vidona Jones v. Harone Esmile, 7 B. L. R., App., 21). An agreement for a lease does not require registration (Bhairab Nath Kheltri v. Kishori Mohan Shaha, 3 B. L. R., App., 1). Where by an ekrarnama tenants conjointly promised that they would sign, and have registered, kabulyats for rents at rates mentioned, it was held that the document did not come under cl. (b) of sec. 17 of the Registration Act, III of 1877, but come under cl. (h) as a document merely creating a right to obtain another document, which would, when executed, create or declare an interest (Pratap Chandra Ghosh v. Mohendra Nath Parkhait, 17 Calc., 291 ; L. R., 16 I. A., 233). A daul fhrisht, containing a list of the holdings and rates of rent of the raiyats with their signatures and specifying seven years as the period for which these holdings were to continue need not be registered (Kartik Nath Pandey v. Khakan Singh, 1 C. L. R., 328 ; Ganga Prasad v. Gagan Singh, 3 Calc., 322 ; Narain Kumari v. Ram Krishna Das, 5 Calc., 864). A document which is not really a lease but a usufructuary mortgage, the consideration of which is less than Rs. 100, is not inadmissible for want of registration (Ishun Chandra v. Sujan Bibi, 7 B. L. R. 14 ; Ram Dulari Kocr v. Thakur Rai, 4 Calc., 61). A document providing for the payment of a portion of a salami on the day when possession was to be given and for the payment of the remainder by instalments is not a lease or an agreement to lease, and is admissible in evidence without registration (Kedar Nath Mitra v. Surendro Deb Rui, 9 Calc., 865). An agreement varying the terms of a lease need not be reduced to writing or registered (Satyesh Chandra Sarkar v. Dhanpal Singh, 24 Calc., 20). Leases creating mere tenancies-at-will do not require registration (Khuda Buksh v. Sheodin, 8 All., 405 ; Jivraj Gopal v. Atmaram Dayaram, 14 Bom., 319). A document given by the owner of land to his tenant varying the terms of tenancy with reference to the amount of rent to be paid is not an instrument relating to an interest in immoveable property and does not require registration (Obai Goundan v. Ramalinga Ayyar, 22 Mad., 217).

Registration of under-raiyats' leases.—Besides being subject to the above mentioned provisions, under-raiyats' leases must also be registered, if the rents reserved in them exceed by 25 per cent. the rents payable by their raiyat landlords [sec. 48 (a)] ; and their raiyat landlords cannot recover rents exceeding their own by more than 50 per cent. In case of non-registration, the raiyat landlords cannot recover from the under-raiyats rents exceeding by 25 p. c. the rents payable by them [sec. 48 (b)]. Further, an under-raiyat's lease is only valid against the raiyat's landlord if registered, [sec. 85 (i)] ; and no such lease shall be admitted to registration, if it purports to create a term exceeding nine years [sec. 85 (2)]. In the case of sub-leases executed before the commencement of the Tenancy Act, they are only valid for nine years after the commencement of the Act [sec. 85 (3)].

Registration of contracts of enhancement.—Contracts for the enhancement of occupancy or non-occupancy raiyats' rent must be registered [secs. 29 (a) and 43], subject, however, to proviso (1) to s. 29, and to the proviso to s. 43, regarding three years' continuous payment. There is no such provision with regard to the enhancement of the rents of tenure-holders, raiyats holding at fixed rates, or under-raiyats, except that in the case of under-raiyats, when the rents payable by them exceed the rents payable by their raiyat landlords by more than 25 per cent., the contract must be registered, and even then they cannot exceed their raiyat landlords' rents by more than 50 per cent.

Registration of documents creating incumbrances on tenures or holdings.—Section 161 enacts (1) that the term "incumbrance" used with reference to a tenancy, means any lien, sub-tenancy, easement or other right or interest created by the tenant on his tenure or holding or in limitation of his own interest therein, and not being a "protected interest," as defined in sec. 160; and (2) that the term "registered and notified incumbrance," used with reference to a tenure or holding sold or liable to sale in execution of a decree for an arrear of rent due in respect thereof, means an incumbrance created by a registered instrument of which a copy has, not less than three months before the accrual of the arrear, been served on the landlord in the manner provided in the Act. In the case of the sale of a tenure or holding at fixed rates, it is first put up to sale subject to registered and notified incumbrances (sec. 164), and it is only in the case of the sale proceeds being insufficient to liquidate the amount of the decree with costs, that the tenure or holding at fixed rates can be sold with power to annul all incumbrances (sec. 165). Occupancy holdings are ordinarily sold with power to annul all incumbrances (sec. 166); but the Local Government has power to direct by notification in the official Gazette that occupancy holdings or any specified class of occupancy holdings in any local area, put up for sale in execution of decrees for rent due on them, shall be sold subject to registered and notified incumbrances (sec. 168). So far the Local Government has not issued any such notification.

Effect of non-registration of documents required to be registered.—Section 49 of the Registration Act enacts that no document required by section 17 to be registered shall affect any immoveable property comprised therein, or be received as evidence of any transaction affecting such property unless it has been duly registered, and under sec. 91 of the Evidence Act secondary evidence of the contents of such a document is inadmissible (Man Mohini Dasi v. Bishen Mayi Dasi, 7 W. R., 112; Omar v. Abdul Ghafur, 9 W. R., 425; Rahmatullah v. Sariatullah, 10 W. R., F. B., 51; 1 B. L. R., F. B., 58; Ram Kumar Mandal v. Brajahari Mirdha, 10 W. R., 410; 2 B. L. R., A. C., 75; Kabulan v. Shamsheer Ali, 11 W. R., 16; Kala Chand Mundal v. Gopal Chandra Bhattacharji, 12 W. R., 163; Dinonath Mukhurji v. Debnath Mallik, 5 B. L. R., App., 1; 13 W. R., 307; Futeh Chand Sahu v. Lilambar Singh Das, 9 B. L. R., 433; 14 Moo. I. A., 129; 16 W. R., P. C., 26; Crowdie v. Kular Chaudhri, 21 W. R., 307; Shiba Sundari Debya v. Saudamini Debya, 25 W. R., 78; Ram Chandra Halder v. Gobinda Chandra Sen, 1 C. L. R., 542; Hurjiwan Virji v. Jamsetji Nowroji, 9 Bom., 63; Nangali v. Raman, 7 Mad., 226; Sambayya v. Gangayya, 13 Mad., 308; Parashram v. Ganpat, 21 Bom., 533).

A lease which is by law required to be registered cannot, if unregistered, be received in evidence, even of the tenant's personal liability thereunder (Martin v. Sheo Ram Lal, 4 All., 232). But when the right of the landlord is admitted, and the rate of the rent is not disputed and the only question is as to payment, a suit for arrears of rent should not be dismissed for want of registration of the defendant's kabuliat (Reza Ali v. Bhikan Khan, 7 W. R., 334; Dinonath Mukhurji v. Debnath Mullik, 14 W. R., 429). If a contract of letting is for want of registration ineffectual, the landlord is not debarred from giving other evidence of a tenancy and requiring the Court to adjudicate on his right to eject (Venkatagiri zamindar v. Raghava, 9 Mad., 142). A tenant can prove his tenancy without proving his lease, if he has one, which is inadmissible for want of registration (Surath Narain Lal v. Catherine Sophia, 1 C. W. N., 248; Sitanath Pal v. Kartik Garui, 4 C. W. N., lxii; Fazil v. Rezamuddin, 6 C. W. N., 916; see also Kedarnath Joardar v. Sharafunnissa, 24 W. R., 425). An unregistered document, if followed up by delivery of possession, may be used as evidence of that possession (Gopi Chand v. Liakat Hossein, 25 W. R., 211). In a suit for a breach of a covenant to register contained in an unregistered mortgage deed, the defendant cannot plead the non-registration of the instrument for the purpose of protecting himself. Such a deed is admissible in evidence for a collateral purpose without being registered (Sham Narain Lal v. Khimajit Matoe, 4 B. L. R., F. B., 1; 12 W. R., F. B., 11; Manmothonath De v. Srinath Ghosh, 20 W. R., 107; Nagappa v. Devu, 14 Mad., 55; Raja of Venkatagiri v. Narayana Reddi, 17 Mad., 456; Magniram v. Gurmukh Rai, 26 Calc., 334). An unregistered document requiring registration as affecting an interest in land is admissible in evidence for any purpose for which registration is collateral Lachmipat Singh Dugar v. Khairat Ali, 4 B. L. R., F. B., 18 ; 12 W. R., F. B., 11 ; Shib Prasad Das v. Annapurna, 12 W. R., 435 ; 3 B. L. R., A. C., 451 ; Alfatunnissa v. Hussain Khan, 9 Calc., 520 ; 12 C. L. R., 209 ; Khushalo v. Bihari Lal, 3 All., 523 ; Subramaniam v. Perumal Reddi, 18 Mad., 454 ; Antaji v. Dattaji, 19 Bom., 36 ; Vani v. Bani, 20 Bom., 553). But this is only when the transaction is divisible, as when upon a loan of money it is agreed (1) that the loan shall be secured by a bond containing a covenant for repayment of the sum advanced : and also (2) that certain designated property shall be hypothecated as collateral security for the repayment of the loan (Krishna Lal Ghosh v. Bonomali Rai, 5 Calc., 611 ; 5 C. L. R., 43 ; Bengal Banking Corporation v. Mackertich, 10 Calc., 315 ; Sheo Dial v. Prag Dat Misr, 3 All., 229 ; Gaur Charan Sarma v. Jinnat Ali, 11 C. L. R., 166 ; Lachman Singh v. Kesri, 4 All., 3), and when the transaction is indivisible, the unregistered document is inadmissible in evidence (Matangini Dasi v. Ramnarain Sadkhan, 4 Calc., 83 ; 2 C. L. R., 428 ; Raju Balu v. Krishnarav Ram Chandra, 2 Bom., 273 ; Venkatrayudu v. Papi, 8 Mad., 182 ; Gurunath Shrinivas Desai v. Chenbasappu, 18 Bom., 745). In two cases it has been held that when the plea as to the inadmissibility of evidence for want of registration has not been taken in the Court below, it cannot be allowed in second appeal (Girish Chandra Rai Chaudhri v. Amina Khatun, 3 B. L. R., App., 125 ; Currie v. Chatty, 11 W. R., 520). But these two rulings are of date prior to the passing of sec. 49 of the Registration Act, and would not appear to be now good law. In another case it has been held that a Court is bound in regular appeal to entertain an objection that a document is invalid for want of registration, even though no objection may have been raised to its admissibility in the Court below (Basawa v. Kalkapa, 2 Bom., 489).

Conflict between registered and unregistered deeds:— Section 50 of the Registration Act provides that documents of certain specified kinds, if registered, shall take effect as regards the immoveable property to which they relate against every unregistered document relating to the same property, and not being a decree or order, whether such unregistered document be of the same nature as the registered document or not. The provisions of this section are of much less importance than they were before the passing of the Transfer of Property Act, sec. 54 of which Act "virtually abolishes optional registration" (per Garth, C. J., in Narain Chakravartti v. Dataram Rai, 8 Calc., 597 ; 10 C. L. R., 241). The only deeds affecting the interests of landlords or tenants in regard to which there can now be a conflict between registered and unregistered deeds are leases of immoveable property for a term not exceeding one year, leases specially exempted by Government under sec. 17 of the Registration Act, and mortgages of immoveable property of less than Rs. 100 in value. Registered deeds of these classes must prevail over unregistered deeds, whether accompanied by possession or not, except when the lessee or mortgagee under the subsequent deed has taken with notice of the prior deed, in which case the prior deed will prevail (Abul Hussain v. Raghu Nath Sahu, 13 Calc., 70. See also Fazladin Khan v. Fakir Mahomed Khan, 5 Calc., 337 ; 4 C. L. R., 257 ; Narain Chakravartti v. Dataram Rai, 8 Calc., 597 ; 10 C. L. R., 241 ; Bimaraz v. Papaya, 3 Mad., 46 ; Kondayya v. Guruvappa, 5 Mad., 139 ; Muthanna v. Alibeg, 6 Mad., 174 ; Kadar v. Ismail, 9 Mad., 119 ; Krishnamma v. Suranna, 16 Mad., 148 ; Shivram v. Genu, 6 Bom., 515 ; Huthising Sobhai v. Kuvarji Javher, 10 Bom., 105 ; Trikam Madhav Shet v. Harjivan Shet, 18 Bom., 332 ; Diwan Singh v. Jadho Singh, 19 All., 145). In one case, following Wyatt v. Barwell, (19 Ves., 432), it has been said that it is only when notice of a prior conveyance of which registration is not compulsory is so clearly proved as to make it fraudulent in the purchaser to take and register a conveyance in prejudice to the known title of another that the registered deed will be suffered to be affected (Bhalu Rai v. Jakhur Rai, 11 Calc., 667. See also Narasimulu v. Somunna, 8 Mad., 167). In another case it has been ruled that although the mere fact of possession having been taken by a purchaser under an unregistered conveyance is insufficient of itself to establish a good title to a property as against a subsequent registered purchaser, and is not conclusive evidence of notice as against him, yet in the majority of cases such possession is very cogent evidence of notice (Nani Bibi v. Hafizulla, 10 Calc., 1073. See also Dino Nath Ghosh v. Aulakmani Debi, 7 Calc., 753 ; 10 C. L. R., 129 ; Lakshman Das v. Dasrat, 6 Bom., 168 ; Dandayu v. Chembasapa, 9 Bom., 427 ; Moreshtar Balkrishna v. Dattu, 12 Bom., 569 ; Ram Autar v. Dhanauri, 8 All., 540 .

CHAPTER II.

CLASSES OF TENANTS.

Classes of tenants.

4. There shall be, for the purposes of this Act, the following classes of tenants, (namely) :—

- (1) tenure-holders, including under-tenure-holders,
 - (2) raiyats, and
 - (3) under-raiyats, that is to say, tenants holding, whether immediately or mediately, under raiyats ;
- and the following classes of raiyats, (namely) :—

- (a) rai-yats holding at fixed rates, which expression means raiyats holding either at a rent fixed in perpetuity or at a rate of rent fixed in perpetuity,
- (b) occupancy-raiyats, that is to say, raiyats having a right of occupancy in the land held by them, and
- (c) non-occupancy-raiyats, that is to say, raiyats not having such a right of occupancy.

Extended to Orissa (Not., Sept., 10th, 1891).

In addition to the classes of raiyats mentioned in sub-section (3), there is also another class viz., settled raiyats, i. e., raiyats who have for a period of twelve years held as raiyats lands situate in any village (vide sec. 20 and note thereto).

5. (1) "Tenure-holder" means primarily a person who has acquired from a proprietor or from another tenure-holder a right to hold land for the purpose of collecting rents or bringing it under cultivation by establishing

Meaning of "tenure-holder" and
"rai-yat."

tenants on it, and includes also the successors in interest of persons who have acquired such a right.

(2) "Raiyat" means primarily a person who has acquired a right to hold land for the purpose of cultivating it by himself, or by members of his family, or by hired servants, or with the aid of partners, and includes also the successors in interest of persons who have acquired such a right.

Explanation.—Where a tenant of land has the right to bring it under cultivation, he shall be deemed to have acquired a right to hold it for the purpose of cultivation, notwithstanding that he uses it for the purpose of gathering the produce of it or of grazing cattle on it.

(3) A person shall not be deemed to be a raiyat unless he holds land either immediately under a proprietor or immediately under a tenure-holder.

(4) In determining whether a tenant is a tenure-holder or a raiyat, the Court shall have regard to—

(a) local custom ; and

(b) the purpose for which the right of tenancy was originally acquired.

(5) Where the area held by a tenant exceeds one hundred standard bighas, the tenant shall be presumed to be a tenure-holder until the contrary is shewn.

Extended to Orissa (Not., September 10th, 1891). Sub-section (1) has been extended to the Chota Nagpur division, except the district of Manbhum (Not., Feb. 9th, 1903).

Meaning of "tenure holder" and "raiya."—The Select Committee in their report on the Bengal Tenancy Bill, 1883, explained that in this section they had "endeavoured to describe, rather than to define, each class," as in their opinion "any attempt to frame a rigid definition of either class would tend to create rather than to remove difficulties." (Selections from papers relating to the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, p. 231). The description given is, however, in accord with the rulings of the High Court on the subject under the former rent law. See Dhanpat Singh v. Guman Singh, W. R., Sp. No., 1864, Act X, 61; Gopi Mohan Rai v. Shib Chandra Sen, 1 W. R., 68; Ram Mangal Ghosh v. Lakhi Narain Saha, 1 W. R., 71; Karu Lal Thakur v. Lachmipat Dugar, 7 W. R., 15; Uma Charan Datta v. Uma Tara Debi, 8 W. R., 181; Kali Charan Singh v. Amiruddin, 9 W. R., 579; and Durga Prasanno Ghosh v. Kali Das Datta, 9 C. L. R., 449. In the last mentioned case it was pointed out by Field J., that "the only test of a raiyati interest which can be applied in the present state of the law is to see in what condition the land was when the tenancy was created. If raiyats were already in possession of the land, and the interest created was a right, not to the actual physical possession of the land, but to collect the rents from those raiyats, that is not a raiyati interest. If, on the other hand, the land was jungle or uncultivated or unoccupied, and the tenant was let into physical possession of the land, that would be a raiyati interest; and the nature of this interest so created would not, according to a number of decisions of this Court, be altered by the subsequent fact of the tenant sub-letting to under-tenants."

The mere fact that a person has acquired from a proprietor or from another tenure-holder a right to hold land for the purpose of collecting rent is not sufficient to prove that he is a tenure-holder within the meaning of the Bengal Tenancy Act. It must be proved that the land was let for agricultural or horticultural purposes (Umrao v. Mahomed Rojabi, 27 Calc., 205; 4 C. W. N., 76). The description of a property as a "jote" does not necessarily show that it is not a tenure, and that it is simply a cultivating "jote" or holding (Nawab Ali v. Hemanto Kumari, 8 C. W. N., 117. A tenancy which was originally created for the purpose of cultivation and not collection of rent was held partly nij-jote and partly let out to tenants; held, that this did not change the original character of the grant which was raiyati, even in respect of the portion let out (Baidya Nath Mandal v. Sudharam Misri, 8 C. W. N., 751.) A tenant holding land and paying as rent therefor a sum of money exceeding one hundred rupees per annum is, for the purposes of assessment under the Cess Act, a tenure-holder and not a cultivating-raiyat (Caspersz v. Kumar Singh, 5 C. W. N., 535). A zari-peshgi lease is not a mere contract for the cultivation of the land at a rent, but is a security to the tenant for his money advanced (Bengal Indigo Co. v. Raghubar Das, 24 Calc., 272; L. R., 23 I. A., 158; 1 C. W. N., 83). It is only in cases of mere contracts for the cultivation of land let that the deed, which might be called a zari-peshgi, would create a raiyati interest (Ram Khelawan Rai v. Samant Rai, 2 C. W. N., 758). But a raiyat by taking a sar-i-peshgi lease of land of which he was previously or was then put in possession as a raiyat does not lose his raiyati status or divest himself of his right to acquire an occupancy right in land (Ramdhari Singh v. Muckenzie, 10 C. W. N., 351). A person may have originally acquired a large tract of land ostensibly with the object of cultivating it himself, or by his servants or members of his family, but may convert himself, so far, as third persons are concerned, into a rent receiver, and give those persons the right of remaining on the land as occupancy raiyats (Mohesh Jha v. Manbharan Mia, 5 C. L. J., 522).

Farmers of Government estates when tenure-holders :—

"The farmer of an estate, which is the property of Government is a tenure-holder under the Bengal Tenancy Act, the payment which he makes being rent, as defined in section 3 (5), and not revenue. His lease cannot therefore be cancelled. It can only be determined by his ejectment decreed in a regular suit, and a condition in his lease permitting cancelment without a suit could not be enforced [sections 66, 89, and 178 (1) (c)]. The farmer of an estate belonging to a recusant proprietor, on the other hand, takes the place of the proprietor in entering into an engagement with the Government, and thus pays land revenue instead of rent. He is not therefore a tenure-holder and his lease may be put an end to by cancelment on default, if it contains a stipulation to that effect (Bd. of Revenue's C. O., No. 9 of Sept., 1893).⁽¹⁾

Sub-section (4), clause (b). Purpose for which tenancy was acquired.—The definition of "raiyat" given in this section is not exhaustive, and there is nothing in it to exclude a person who has taken land for horticultural purposes (Hari Ram v. Narsingh Lal, 21 Calc., 129). A raiyat does not become a middleman simply because, instead of cultivating the land, he erects shops on it and takes profits from the shop-keepers (Khajurunnessa v. Ahmed Reza, 11 W. R., 88). Where land has with the consent of the landlord ceased to be agricultural and the tenant has since built a homestead or used part of it for tanks or gardens, the nature of the tenure (i. e., tenancy) is not thereby changed (Prasanno Kumar Chaturji v. Jagannath Basakh, 10 C. L. R., 25). But the lessees of land leased for building purposes and for the establishment of a coal depot are neither tenure-holders, raiyats, nor under-raiyats, and lands demised for such purposes do not come within the purview of this Act (Raniganj Coal Association v. Jadunath Ghosh, 19 Calc., 489).

Rights as a raiyat can be acquired under a trespasser.—

Rights as a raiyat can be acquired, though the raiyat has been let into the land by a person who is found to have no title, and, therefore, to be a trespasser. It is immaterial whether the raiyat was let into the land before or after the passing of this Act (Mohima Chandra Saha v. Hazari Paramanik, 17 Calc., 45; Binad Lal Prakash v. Kalu Paraminik, 20 Calc., 708). But the tenant must have entered on the land under the de facto proprietor, who is not the real owner, in good faith (Piari Mohan Mandal v. Radhika Mohan Hasra, 8 C. W. N., 315; Upendra Chandra Bhattacharya v. Pratab Chandra Pradhan, 8 C. W. N., 320). See note to sec. 3 (3), p. 24.

(1) See also Board of Revenue's Survey and Settlement Manual, App. O., cliz.

Sub-section (5). Area of tenancy.—The owners of an indigo factory who have held land considerably in excess of the limit prescribed in sub-section (5) of this section, under successive leases for more than twelve years, are not raiyats, either "occupancy" or "non-occupancy," within the meaning of the Act (Bengal Indigo Company v. Raghubar Das, 24 Calc., 772; L. R., 23 I. A., 158; 1 C. W. N., 83). The presumption arising under sub-section (5) is a rebuttable one and may be rebutted by the terms of the document creating the lease (Surendra Nath Sen v. Baroda Kanta Sircar, 10 C. W. N., clxiv). But is not sufficiently rebutted by the fact that the kabulyat executed by the tenant is on a printed form intended for cultivators or that in a receipt for rent given by the landlord to the tenant, the latter is described as a raiyat (Gokul Mandar v. Padmanand Singh, 29 Calc., 707; 6 C. W. N., 825).

CHAPTER III.

TENURE-HODLERS.

Enhancement of rent

Enhancement of rent. Tenure held since Permanent Settlement liable to enhancement only in certain cases.

6. Where a tenure has been held from the time of the Permanent Settlement, its rent shall not be liable to enhancement except on proof—

- (a) that the landlord under whom it is held is entitled to enhance the rent thereof either by local custom or by the conditions under which the tenure is held, or
- (b) that the tenure-holder, by receiving reductions of his rent, otherwise than on account of a diminution of the area of the tenure, has subjected himself to the payment of the increase demanded, and that the lands are capable of affording it.

Tenure-holders' rents may also be increased on the ground of increase in area—This section is founded on the provisions of cl. 1, sec. 51 of Reg. VIII of 1793, which is repealed by this Act (see Sch. I). It must be read along with sec. 52 of this Act, which lays down that every tenant shall be liable to pay additional rent for all land proved by measurement to be in excess of the area for which rent has previously been paid by him, and shall be entitled to a reduction of rent in respect of any deficiency proved by measurement to exist in the area of his tenure or holding as compared with the area for which rent has been previously paid by him; so that the tenure-holders to whom this section applies, viz., tenure-holders holding from the time of the Permanent Settlement, but not at a fixed rent, or fixed rate of rent, are liable to have their rents increased on the ground of an increase of area, as well as on the grounds mentioned in this section. Tenure-holders and raiyats holding at fixed rents or fixed rates of rent from the time of the Permanent Settlement are liable to have their rents increased only on the ground of an alteration in the area of their tenures or holdings (section 50).

No notices of enhancement required.—The section does not require the issue of notices of enhancement, as the former law did. This is the result of the recommendation of the Rent Commission, who said : "It will be important to mention that we have dispensed with the notice of enhancement which is required by the present law and which was also required by the old Regulations in force before 1859. Such a large percentage of enhancement cases have failed, because it was not found that the notice had been served, or because the notice was defective in form, that it has appeared to be highly expedient to do away with a detail, the practical result of which has been to delay and impede a decision of the real question at issue between the parties. We have accordingly made the institution of the enhancement suit to be notice to the tenant." (Rent Commission Report, vol. I, p. 34, para 63).

Clause (b). Reductions of rent entitling landlord to enhance.—The third ground of enhancement mentioned in section 51 of Reg. VIII of 1793 was that the talukdar, by receiving abatements from his jama, had subjected himself to the payment of the increase demanded. It was held that a plaintiff was not entitled to enhancement under this clause, merely because the rent had become less by degrees (Nabo Krishna Mazumdar v. Tara Mani, 12 W. R., 320), and that it was necessary for the zamindar expressly to state when and for what reason the talukdar had received an abatement of his jama, and had thereby subjected himself to the payment of the increase demanded (Nabo Krishna Basu v. Mazamudin Ahmad, 19 W. R., 338).

Proof of existence of tenure at time of Permanent Settlement.—In a suit for arrears of rent at an enhanced rate, even if the defendants can show that they are dependent talukdars, sec. 51 of Reg. VIII of 1793 will not apply to them, unless they can distinctly prove that their tenure existed and was capable of being registered at the date of the decennial settlement (Ishan Chandra Banurji v. Harish Chandra Saha, 24 W. R., 146). But it is not necessary to show that it was "registered" at the time of the decennial settlement : it is sufficient to show that the tenure existed and was capable of being registered at that time (Bama Sundari Dasi v. Radhika Chaudhrain, 13 W. R., P. C., 11 ; 4 B. L. R., P. C., 8 ; 13 Moo. I. A., 248 ; Nil Mani Singh v. Ram Chakravartti, 21 W. R., 439). The fact of the mention of a tenure in a jamabandi paper prepared seven years before the decennial settlement is presumptive evidence of its existence twelve years before the decennial settlement (Romesh Chandra Datta v. Madhu Sudhan Chakravartti, 5 W. R., 252). On the other hand, the fact that a taluk is not mentioned in the decennial or quinquennial settlement as such, and that the lands are included in the decennial settlement as part of the samindari does not afford any strong evidence against the existence of the taluk, for, being only a shikmi taluk, paying rent to the samindar, the talukdars were not required to mention it, nor was it necessary for the samindar to do so (Wise v. Bhubanmayi Debi, 10 Moo I. A., 174 ; 3 W. R., P. C., 5).

A decree of the Sudder Dewani Adalat in 1805 declared that a taluk was fit to be separated from the samindari, of which it had originally been part, according to the provisions of section 5, Regulation VIII of 1793. The decree directed that until separation rent should be paid by the talukdar to the samindar according to the jama already assessed upon the taluk, this revenue to be, on the separation being effected, deducted from that assessed upon the samindari. Proceedings with a view to separation then continued, but litigation and delays ensued with the result that no separation had been effected when suits were instituted in 1882 and 1885, in which the holders of shares into which the samindari had been partitioned claimed to enhance the rent on the taluk. It was held that the decree of 1805, acted upon for many years, was conclusive that the taluk was not dependent on the samindari, but was an independent one within section 5, Regulation VIII of 1793 and that, therefore, the samindars had no right of enhancement (Hemanta Kumari Debi v. Jagadendra Nath Rai, 22 Calc., 214 ; L. R., 21 I. A., 131).

Burden of proof.—A dependent talukdar has to establish his title by the strictest proof against one coming in by purchase at a sale for arrears of revenue (Gopal Lal Thakur v. Tilak Chandra Rai, 3 W. R., P. C., 1 ; 10 Moo. I. A., 183). Proof of existence of the tenure from the time of the decennial settlement is sufficient to bar a suit for enhancement, when the plaintiff is not an auction-purchaser : when the plaintiff is an auction-purchaser, he must show when he purchased, before he can insist upon direct proof of the existence of the tenure twelve years before the decennial settlement (Romesh Chandra Datta v. Madhu Sudan Chakravartti, 5 W. R., 252). In a suit for enhanced rent of a taluk, the existence of which as an ancient taluk is undoubted, and in which the only question is whether the rent is fixed or variable, the onus is first on the defendant to prove that he has held at a uniform rent for 20 years, and (if the defendant prove so much), then, on the plaintiff to prove that the rent has varied since the Permanent Settlement (Rashmoni Debya v. Haranath Rai, 1. W. R., 280). When a tenure-holder has proved that his tenure is a dependent taluk within the meaning of the 51st section of Reg. VIII of 1793, the burden is cast upon the plaintiff samindar to show that the rent is variable (Bama Sundari Dasi v. Radhika Chaudhrai, 13 Moo. I. A., 248; 4 B. L. R., P. C., 8; 13 W. R., P. C., 11). In a suit for enhancement of rent in respect of land which the defendant claims to hold as a dependent taluk, the onus is upon the samindar to show that the land was included in the samindari at the time of the Permanent Settlement (Ahsanullah v. Bassarat Ali Chaudhri, 10 Calc., 920. A defendant having admitted that he is a tenant, the onus is open to him to show that his tenancy is such as he sets up, namely, a permanent tenancy at a rate which cannot be enhanced (Khetra Krishna Mitra v. Dinendro Narain Rai, 3 C. W. N., 202).

Tenures not held from the time of the Permanent Settlement.—The Act is silent as to the grounds on which the rent of tenures not held from the time of the Permanent Settlement and not held at a fixed rent or rate of rent can be enhanced. There would seem to be no legal restrictions on the enhancement of the rent of such tenures, except such as are imposed by the terms and conditions of the deeds under which the tenures are held. (See Bama Sundari Dasi v. Radhika Chaudhrai, 1 W. R., 339; Kalidhan Banurji v. Romesh Chandra Datta, 3 W. R., 172; Bharat Chandra Aich v. Gaur Mani Dasi, 11 W. R., 31; Kasimudin Khondkar v. Nadi Ali Tarafdar, 11 W. R., 164; Satyanand Ghosal v. Haro Kishor Datta, 15 W. R., 474).

A fractional co-sharer cannot enhance.—This section is subject to the provisions of sec. 188 of this Act, which provide that joint landlords in doing anything which the landlord is under the Act required or authorized to do must act collectively or by a common agent. Compare Syamu Charan Mandal v. Saim Mollah, (1 C. W. N., 415).

7. (1) Where the rent of a tenure-holder is liable to enhancement, it may, subject to any contract between the parties, be enhanced up to the limit of the customary rate payable by persons holding similar tenures in the vicinity.

Limits of enhancement of rent of tenures.

(2) Where no such customary rate exists, it may, subject as aforesaid, be enhanced up to such limit as the Court thinks fair and equitable.

(3) In determining what is fair and equitable, the Court shall not leave to the tenure-holder as profit less than ten per centum of the balance which remains after deducting from the gross rents payable to him the expenses of collecting them, and shall have regard to—

(a) the circumstances under which the tenure was created, for instance, whether the land comprised in the tenure, or a great portion of it, was first brought under cultivation by the agency or at the expense of the tenure-holder or his predecessors in interest, whether any fine or premium was paid on the creation of the tenure, and whether the tenure was originally created at a specially low rent for the purpose of reclamation ; and

(b) the improvements, if any, made by the tenure-holder or his predecessors in interest.

(4) If the tenure-holder himself occupies any portion of the land included in the area of his tenure, or has made a grant of any portion of the land either rent-free or at a beneficial rent, a fair and equitable rent shall be calculated for that portion and included in the gross rents aforesaid.

Extended to Orissa (Not., Oct. 17th, 1896).

Onus of proof.—In a suit for enhancement of rent of a tenure under sec. 7, it is for the plaintiff to start his case by proving that the existing rate was below the customary rate payable by persons holding similar tenures in the vicinity, or that it was not fair and equitable, before the onus can be shifted to the defendant, to prove that the existing rent was fair and equitable (Hem Chandra Chaudhuri v. Kali Prosanna Bhaduri, 26 Calc., 832 ; 8 C. W. N., 1).

Limits of enhancement of rent of tenures.—The expression “customary rate” is substituted in this section for that of “pargana rate,” to be met with in the decisions under the Regulations, and which appears to be founded on the provisions of cl. 2., sec. 60 of Reg. VIII of 1793 and of sec. 5, Reg. XLIV of 1793. The Rent Commission proposed that the tenure-holders' profits should in no case exceed thirty per cent, but that the enhanced rent should not be more than double the previous rent. These proposals were not accepted by the Legislature, and under the provisions of this section a tenure-holder is now entitled to a profit of at least 10 p. c., after deducting the expenses of collection, but he may get as much more as the Court thinks fair and equitable. As pointed out by the Rent Commission, the rule that a profit of 10 p. c. should be left to the tenure-holder is founded on the provisions of section 8 of Reg. V of 1812. "This section was repealed by Act X of 1859, but by some oversight no provision was substituted by this Act, though the principle as being fair and equitable in itself and usual by reason of the provisions of the Regulation was on occasions acted upon by the Courts after that Act was passed." (Rent Commission Report, Vol. I, p 27, para. 51) In Ram Kumar Singh v. Watson & Co., 9 C. W. N., 334, it was held on a construction of the kabulyat executed by the defendants that their liability to pay an enhanced rent was not restricted by its terms. The rent assessed by the lower Court in this case amounted to 70 per cent. on the net assets after deducting collection charges, and, therefore, 30 per cent. was left as the tenure-holder's net profits: but the rent was trebled. It was held that the rent thus settled was larger than what was fair and equitable.

8. The Court may, if it thinks that an immediate increase of rent would produce hardship, ^{Power to order gradual enhancement.} direct that the enhancement shall be gradual; that is to say, that the rent shall increase yearly by degrees, for any number of years not exceeding five, until the limit of the enhancement allowed has been reached.

A similar provision is made in sec. 36 with regard to the enhancement of occupancy raiyats' rents.

9. When the rent of a tenure-holder has been enhanced by the Court or by contract, it ^{Rent once enhanced may not be altered for fifteen years.} shall not be again enhanced by the Court during the fifteen years next following the date on which it has been so enhanced.

Compare ss. 29 (c) and 37 (1) relating to enhancement of occupancy raiyats' rents.

Other incidents of tenures.

10. A holder of a permanent tenure shall not be ejected by his landlord except on the ground that he has broken a condition on breach of which he is, under the terms of a contract between him and his landlord, liable to be ejected :

Other incidents of tenures.
Permanent tenure-holder not liable to ejection.

Provided that where the contract is made after the commencement of this Act, the condition is consistent with the provisions of this Act.

Permanent tenures how created.—Tenures become permanent (1) by express provision of law, as in the case patni and other similar taluks ; (2) by contract ; and (3) by custom or the course of dealing therewith (Field's Rent Law Digest, p. 25, art. 18).

Tenures permanent by contract.—A grant containing the words "from generation to generation" clearly creates an absolute and hereditary mukarari grant (Himmat v. Sonit Koer, 15 W. R., 549 ; 1 Calc., 391). The term "patni taluk" prima facie imports a hereditary tenure (Tarini Chagan Ganguli v. Watson & Co., 3 B. L. R., A. C., 437 ; 12 W. R., 413). The word "taluk" by itself in the absence of evidence to the contrary implies a permanent interest (Krishna Chandra Gupta v. Safdar Ali, 22 W. R., 326). A mukarari istimrari tenure is a permanent tenure (Manoranjan Singh v. Lilanand Singh, 3 W. R., 84 ; Lakho Koer v. Hari Krishna Rai, 3 B. L. R., A. C., 226 ; 12 W. R., 3). The use of the word "istimrari" by itself shows an intention that a lease shall be perpetual and implies its hereditary character (Kuranakar Mahanti v. Niladhro Chaudhuri, 5 B. L. R., 652 ; 14 W. R., 107). The word mukarari in a sanad does not necessarily imply perpetuity (Government of Bengal v. Jafir Hussain Khan, 5 Moo. I. A., 467 ; Parneswar Pratab Singh v. Padmanand Singh, 15 Calc., 342) ; but it may do so (Bilas Mani Dasi v. Sheo Prasad Singh, 8 Calc., 664 ; 11 C. L. R., 215 ; L. R., 9 I. A., 33) ; and in order to decide whether a mukarari lease is hereditary or not, the Court must consider the other terms of the instrument under which it was granted, the circumstances under which it was made, and the intention of the parties (Sheo Prasad Singh v. Kali Das Singh, 5 Calc., 543). It may, however, be doubted whether the words "mukarari istimrari" mean permanent during the life of the person to whom the tenure is granted or permanent as regards hereditary descent (Lilanand Singh v. Manoranjan Singh, 13 B. L. R., 124). The words "istimrari mukarari" in a pattah granting land do not of themselves denote that the estate granted is an estate of inheritance (Tulsi Prasad Singh v. Ram Narain Singh, 12 Calc., 117; L. R. 12 I. A., 205), or a perpetual hereditary estate (Beni Prasad Koeri v. Dudh Nath Rai, 4 C. W. N., 274; 27 Calc., 156; L. R., 26 I. A., 216.) The words do not per se convey an estate of inheritance, but such an estate can be created without the addition of any other words, the circumstances under which the lease was granted and the subsequent conduct of the parties being capable of showing the intention with sufficient certainty to enable the Court to hold that the grant was perpetual. (Narsingh Dyal Sahu v. Ram Narain Singh, 30 Calc., 883) See also Agin Bind Upadhyay v. Mohan Bikram Saha, (30 Calc., 20; 7 C. W. N., 314). The words "tikka mohto" are not tantamount to maurasi or istimrari and do not confer a permanent or hereditary lease at a fixed rate (Nafar Chandra Shaha v. Jai Singh Bharati, 3 W. R., Act X, 144). If a grant be made to a man for an indefinite period, it enures generally speaking for his life-time and passes no interest to his heirs, unless there are some words showing an intention to grant a hereditary interest. That rule of construction does not apply, if the term for which the grant is made is fixed or can be definitely ascertained (Lekhraj Rai v. Kanhya Singh, 3 Calc., 210; L. R., 4 I. A., 223.) A grant of a village for maintenance is prima facie resumable on the death of the grantee (Beni Prasad Koeri v. Dudh Nath Rai, 4 C. W. N., 274; 27 Calc., 156; L. R., 26 I. A., 216; Rameshar Baksh Singh v. Arjun Singh, L. R., 28 I. A., 1.)

Tenures permanent by custom or course of dealing.—The howlas and nim-howlas of Bikaner and the jotes of Rangpur are (by custom) hereditary tenures (Haro Mohan Mukhurji v. Lalan Mani Dasi, 1 W. R., 5; Jagat Chandra Rai v. Ram Narain Bhattacharji, 1 W. R. 126). So are the surbarakari tenures of Cuttack (Sadanand Mahanti v. Nauratan Mahanti, 16 W. R., 289; 8 B. L. R., 280.)

In order to determine whether a pattah granted by a samindar conveys an estate for life only, or an estate of inheritance, it is necessary to arrive, as well as can be done, at the real intention of the parties, to be collected chiefly no doubt from the terms of the instrument itself, but to a certain extent also from the circumstances existing at the time of its execution, and, further, from the conduct of the parties since its execution (Watson & Co. v. Mahesh Narain Rai, 24 W. R., 176.) It may be shown by evidence as to the nature of the enjoyment what a grant in its origin really was. This is in fact only an application of the more general maxim, optimus interpret rerum usus. Accordingly, the frequent transfer of an interest in a tank without any change in the terms of the holding or in the amount of rent paid, extending over more than 60 years, was held to prove that the interest was a permanent and transferable one (Nidhi Krishna Basu v. Nistarini Das, 21 W. R., 386). See also Hari Das v. Upendra Narain Shaha, (10 C. W. N., cxxviii.) Evidence of possession at a fixed and invariable rent anterior to the decennial settlement and that for upwards of a century the taluk has been treated as hereditary and as such has descended from father to son and been the subject of purchase is sufficient to justify the inference that it is of a permanent nature (Gopal Lal Thakur v. Tilak Chandra Rai, 10 Moo. I. A., 191; 3 W. R., P. C., 1.) If a pattah does not contain the term mukarari, or equivalent terms of limitation, as "from generation to generation," it is not prima facie to be assumed to grant a mukarari istimrari or perpetual tenure, but evidence of long uninterrupted enjoyment at a fixed unvarying rent will supply the want of words of limitation in such pattah (Dhanpat Singh v. Guman Singh, 11 Moo. I. A., 433, see p. 466). The absence of words of limitation in a pattah which creates an istimrari tenure may be supplied by evidence (1) of long and uninterrupted enjoyment at a fixed rent; and (2) of the descent of the tenure from father to son, whence its hereditary character may legally be presumed (Sattosaran Ghosal v. Mahesh Chandra Mitra, 12 Moo. I. A., 263; 2 B. L. R., P. C., 23; 11 W. R., P. C., 10.) See also Din Dyal Singh v. Hira Singh, (2 N. W. P., H. C. Rep., 338). The omission of words of inheritance in a sanad is not sufficient proof per se that such grant was not hereditary, when evidence of long uninterrupted usage shows that the lands have descended from father to son for more than a hundred years (Kuldip Narain Singh v. The Government, 14 Moo. I. A., 247; 11 B. L. R., 71.) The absence of the words "maurasi mokerari" do not necessarily indicate that it was not the lessor's intention to grant a permanent lease (Promoda Nath Rai v. Srigobind Chaudhuri, 32 Calc., 648.) When a pattah is void as against a person and not voidable only, the mere receipt of rent by him, though of the same amount as that fixed by the patta, would not have the effect of confirming the pattah in its entirety (Beni Prasad Koeri v. Dudh Nath Rai, 4 C. W. N., 274; 27 Calc., 156; L. R., 26 I. A., 216.)

These cases seem to establish that to justify a Court in presuming in the absence of direct evidence of a tenure being of a permanent nature, that it is of such a character, there must be evidence (1) of long uninterrupted enjoyment, (2) of fixity of rent, and (3) of the lands having descended from father to son, or having been transferred by purchase. In some cases it has been expressly laid down that mere long possession by itself is not sufficient to justify a Court in making such a presumption. Thus, in Sheo Dyal Puri v. Mahabir Prasad (10 W. R., 477 ; 2 B. L. R., App., 8), it was said that possession by a tenant does not in itself lead to any inference as to his character. The fact of his having occupied the land and paid rent for twelve or even twenty years is equally consistent with his being a tenant-at-will, farmer, or a mukararidar. A Court is not bound, as a matter of law, to presume that a tenure is a permanent one merely from the fact of long possession of the land (Nobin Chandra Datta v. Madan Mohan Pal, 7 Calc., 697. See also Bai Ganga v. Dullabh Parag, (5 Bom. H. C. Rep., 179) ; and Endur Lala v. Lala Hari, (7 Bom. H. C. Rep., A. C., 111). When there is no evidence of a grant of perpetuity, time and undisturbed enjoyment cannot ripen the holding into a species of ownership, and when the origin of the tenancy is shewn at a rent twice increased, and paid down to the commencement of the suit, length of enjoyment coupled with the payment of rent can give no greater force to the tenant's right than it originally possessed. A holding for a long period of years and a payment of rent to the zamindar merely establish a tenancy from year to year (Vasudev Patrudu v. Sanyasirao Peddabaliyara Simhulu, 3 Mad. H. C. Rep., 1 ; Rohan Singh v. Surat Singh, 11 Calc., 337). Long and continued possession at a low and unvaried rent is not sufficient to suggest the inference that an agreement had been made between the parties that the tenant should hold a permanent tenure (Secretary of State v. Lachmessar Singh, 16 Calc., 223 ; L. R., 16 I. A. 6). A tenure in perpetuity cannot be established merely by evidence of long possession at an invariable rent, unless it appears that such tenancy may be so acquired by local usage (Narayanbhat v. Davlatu, 15 Bom., 647 ; Babaji v. Narayan, 3 Bom., 340). On the other hand, continuous payment of rent for a hundred years has been held to give rise to a presumption that the tenant held under a maurasi title (Brajo Nath Kundu v. Lakhi Narayan Addi, 7 B. L. R., 211), and possession for nearly a hundred years at presumably a fixed rent, to justify the conclusion that the tenant had a permanent and transferable interest in his tenure (Dunne v. Nabo Krishna Mukhurji, 17 Calc., 144). In Watson & Co., v. Radha Nath Singh, (1 C. L. J., 572), which was a suit for enhancement of the rent of a tenure, it was proved that (1) the tenancy was created for purposes of reclamation, but when it originated could not be determined ; (2) the tenancy was not limited in duration and had descended from father to son, and from son to grandson ; (3) that the rent had never been altered ; (4) excess lands reclaimed from time to time had been included in the tenancy, and rent had been assessed thereon, but at each settlement the rent assessed at the previous settlement had been left untouched ; (5) that the rent was progressive, the full amount being reached in the fourth year and the parties agreeing that the lessee should thenceforth continue to pay the full amount; and (6) the lessee was entitled to hold excess lands at a rate fixed in the contract. Held, that from these circumstances the inference might legitimately be drawn that the tenure was permanent, the rent had been fixed in perpetuity, and was not liable to be enhanced. A farmer may acquire by prescription the right of a permanent tenant by setting up such higher right adversely to the zamindar, without acquiring any permanent rights to the sub-soil (Bagdu Manjhi v. Durga Prasad Singh, 9 C. W. N., 292). See note to section 182—"Ejectment of tenant from homestead land."

Onus of proof.—When a tenant has admitted that he is a tenant, the onus is upon him to show that his tenancy is such as he sets up, namely, a permanent tenancy at a rate which cannot be enhanced (Khetra Krishna Mitra v. Dinendra Narain Rai, 3 C. W. N., 202). In a suit for ejectment by a purchaser at a revenue sale, the defendants claimed to hold the land as a subordinate taluk, which had been in existence and in the possession of themselves and their predecessors since the time of the permanent settlement. It was found as a fact that the tenure was in existence in 1798-99. Held, that, although in the first instance the burden of proof was on the defendants, yet it had been discharged by the proof of the defendant's long possession and of the fact that the taluk was in existence one hundred years ago (Nityanand Rai v. Banshi Chandra Bhuiyan, 3 C. W. N., 341). When a defendant alleges that he holds a permanent tenure, the burden of proving that fact lies on him, and it is not for the plaintiff to show that he is not a tenure-holder but only a raiyat (Nilmani Maitra v. Mathura Nath Joardar, 4 C. W. N., clxx; 5 C. L. J., 413). If a person sets up as against Government a permanent talukdari right, it is incumbent on him to make out that case (Prasanna Kumar Rai v. Secretary of State, 26 Calc., 792; 3 C. W. N., 695).

Ejectment of permanent and temporary tenure-holders.—

In addition to the provisions of this section, which limit the grounds on which a permanent tenure-holder can be ejected, sec. 65 provides that no permanent tenure-holder can be ejected for arrears of rent. Section 89 lays down that no tenant can be ejected except in execution of a decree. Section 155 grants every tenant liable to ejectment relief against it by requiring the landlord before bringing a suit to eject him to give the tenant notice of the misuse of the land or breach of contract complained of and an opportunity of remedying or paying compensation for the same. Under sec. 178, sub-sec. (1), cl. (c), no contract made before or after the passing of this Act shall entitle a landlord to eject his tenant otherwise than in accordance with its provisions. A tenant holding under a lease of a permanent character has no power to make excavations of such a character as to cause substantial damage to the property demised, although by the terms of the lease he has power to make excavations. (Girish Chandra Chando v. Sirish Chandra Das, 9 C. W. N., 255).

When a landlord grants a permanent and heritable tenure in land, he has no estate left in him, unless he reserves to himself a right of re-entry or reversion, and even when the lease contains a clause restraining the lessee from alienation, the landlord cannot eject the tenant on a breach of this clause, unless the lease contains a clause giving him a right of re-entry, or provides that the lease shall be void in case of such breach (Nil Madhab Shikdar v. Narattam Shikdar, 17 Calc., 826; Narayan Dassappa v. Ali Saiba, 18 Bom., 603; Madar Sahab v. Sanna-bawa, 21 Bom., 195). A stipulation in a patni lease that by reason of non-payment of rent by the patnidar he would forfeit his tenancy, is not valid (Mahabat Ali v. Mahomed Faizullah, 2 C. W. N., 455). But see note to s. 179.

Limitation.—The period of limitation, within which a suit for the ejectment of a tenure-holder on account of a breach of a condition of his contract for which he is liable to be ejected may be brought, is one year from the date of the breach (art. 1, Sched. III of this Act.)

11. Every permanent tenure shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, be capable of being transferred and bequeathed in the same manner and to the same extent as other immoveable property.

Transfer and transmission of permanent tenure.

Transferability of permanent tenures.—Among the provisions of this Act to which those of this section are subject is no doubt sec. 181, which provides that the incidents of ghatwali and other service tenures shall remain unaffected by it, and expressly prescribes that nothing in this Act shall confer a right to transfer or bequeath a service tenure, which could not before its passing be transferred or bequeathed. "Custom, usage and customary right" are also under sec. 183 unaffected by anything in the Act. Tenures, therefore, which before the passing of the Act were by custom non-transferable; as, for instance, surbarakari tenures in Orissa, which, though hereditary, are not transferable without the consent of the samindar, will continue to be so (see Durjodhan Das v. Chuya Dai, 1 W. R., 322; Kashi Nath Pani v. Lakhman Prasad).

Patnaik, 19 W. R., 99; Dashorathi Mahapatra v. Rama Krishna Jana, 9 Calc., 526; Bhuban Pari v. Shama Nand De, 11 Calc., 699; and contra, Sudanando Mahanti v. Nauratun Mahanti, 8 B. L. R., 280; 16 W. R., 290)

Permanent tenures are under this section clearly transferable. A provision in a lease of a permanent tenure for forfeiture or re-entry in case of an assignment in violation of its terms would, therefore, be of no effect. In any case, such a provision would not have the effect of invalidating a sale in execution; for, it is clear law in India, as in England, that a general restriction on assignment does not apply to an assignment by operation of law taking effect in invitum, as a sale under an execution (Golak Nath Rai v. Mathura Nath Rai, 20 Calc., 273).

Onus of proof of transferability.—As regards tenures which are not permanent, there is a ruling in the case of Daya Chand Saha v. Anand Chundra Sen (14 Calc., 382), in which it has been said that there is no presumption that any tenure held is not a transferable tenure, and a landlord who sues for khas possession on the ground that a tenure sold was not transferable must establish his case as an ordinary plaintiff. The subject matter of this suit appears, however, not to have been a “tenure” in the strict sense of the term, but a “holding,” and the rule laid down in this case was subsequently dissented from in respect to a raiyat’s holding in the case of Kripumayi Debi v. Durga Govind Sarkar (15 Calc., 89). See note to sec. 26.

Sub-letting of permanent tenures.—Section 179 prescribes that nothing in this Act shall be deemed to prevent a holder of a permanent tenure in a permanently settled area from granting a permanent mukarari lease on any terms agreed on between him and his tenant.

12. (1) A transfer of a permanent tenure by sale, gift or mortgage (other than a transfer by sale in execution of a decree or by summary sale under any law relating to patni or other tenures) can be made only by a registered instrument.

Voluntary transfer of permanent tenure.

(2) A registering officer shall not register any instrument purporting or operating to transfer by sale, gift or [usufructuary] mortgage a permanent tenure unless there is paid to him, in addition to any fees payable under the Act for the time being in force for the registration of documents, a process-fee of the prescribed amount and a fee (hereinafter called "the landlord's fee") of the following amount, namely :—

- (a) when rent is payable in respect of the tenure, a fee of two per centum on the annual rent of the tenure : provided that, no such fee shall be less than one rupee or more than one hundred rupees ; and
- (b) when rent is not payable in respect of the tenure, a fee of two rupees.

[together with the costs necessary for the transmission of the landlord's fee to the landlord.]

(3) When the registration of any such instrument is complete, the registering officer shall send to the Collector the landlord's fee, [the costs necessary for the transmission of the same] and a notice of the transfer and registration in the prescribed form, and the Collector shall cause the fee to be paid [transmitted] to, and the notice to be served on, the landlord [named in the notice] in the prescribed manner.

The word "usufructuary" before "mortgage" in sub-section (2) has been inserted by Act VIII of 1886. The words in heavy brackets have been added to and inserted in this section and the word "transmitted" has been substituted for "paid" by s. 5, Act I, B. C., of 1907. The reasons for these changes and the corresponding changes in secs. 13 and 15 are explained in the report of the Select Committee on the Bill of 1906 as follows :

"It is essential that the landlord should receive notice of transfers under sections 12, 13, and 15 at the earliest possible opportunity. The present practice is that the landlord's fee is deposited with the Collector, by whom a notice is served on the landlord to come and claim the fee. This practice is not altogether in accordance with the terms of the law, which lays down that the Collector must cause the amount to be paid to the landlord. There is at present no provision for the costs of transmitting the fee. Time will, we think, be saved if the amount necessary for the transmission of the landlord's fee is paid by the transferee in the first instance, and sent with the fee to the Collector, who can thereupon send the fee by money order, or in such way as the Government by rule directs, to the landlord. We would protect the Collector from being held liable for paying the fee to the wrong person, by authorising him in all cases to pay it to the landlord named in the notice."

An addition has also been made to sec. 189, by s. 59, Act I, B. C. of 1907, empowering the Local Government to make rules to prescribe the manner in which landlords' fees shall be transmitted to the landlord.

Mortgage of permanent tenure.—The provisions of sec. 59 of the Transfer of Property Act must be read subject to the provisions of this section and a mortgage of a permanent tenure can only be effected by a registered instrument (Sashi Bhushan Basu v. Sahadeb Shaha, 3 C. W. N., 499).

Transfer of permanent tenure when complete.—The transfer of a permanent tenure is complete as soon as the deed of transfer is registered under the provisions of this section (Krishna Ballabh Ghosh v. Krishna Lal Singh, 16 Calc., 642). Although it certainly was the case before the Tenancy Act was passed that the Courts always held that the landlord is entitled to look to his recorded tenant for all rent until he receives due notice of the transfer, the present law, as explained by the decision in Krishna Ballabh Ghosh v. Krishna Lal Singh, appears to have altered that state of things; for that decision lays down that the transferor is no longer liable for any rent accruing after his transfer is duly registered (Chintamani Datta v. Rash Bihari Mandal, 19 Calc., 17). But when the parties have contracted that no transfer shall be valid, unless the transferee shall furnish security to the satisfaction of the landlord, and a transfer has been made, but no security, as stipulated for, has been furnished, then the landlord will not be bound to recognize the transferee, and the transferor is still liable for the rent (Dinubandhu Rai v. W. C. Bomerjee, 19 Calc., 774). And when a transfer of a tenure is only colourable and benami, such a transfer cannot discharge a transferor from liability to pay rent, even if the tenure was transferable and the transfer was made by a registered kobala (Jai Govind Laha v. Manmotha Nath Banurji, 33 Calc., 580).

Sub-divisional Officers.—By a notification, dated the 7th October, 1886, published in the Calcutta Gazette of the 13th idem, Part I, p. 1192, all officers in charge of sub-divisions were vested with powers of a Collector for the purpose of discharging the functions referred to in secs. 12, 13, and 15 of the Act.

Mode of service of notice of transfer and succession.—The mode of service of notices of transfer and succession under ss. 12, 13, 15, and 18 is prescribed in rule 1, Chapter V of the Government Rules under the Tenancy Act. (See Appendix I).

Rules of the Registration department.—The rules of the Registration department for the registration of documents under this section, as revised by Govt. Not. No. 949P., dated March 21st, 1898, will be found in Appendix IV.

Act I, B. C., of 1903.—The collection of the landlord's fee by the Registering officer is under the terms of the section imperative. In certain instances owing to a misconception, the landlords' fees were not collected. Hence, Act I, B. C., of 1903 was passed to validate such transfers. The portion of the Act intended to effect this object will be found printed after sec. 18 at pp 78—80. A decree made before the passing of Bengal Act I of 1903, but pending in appeal at the commencement of that Act is governed by sec. 1 of that Act as not being final (Piari Mohan Pal v. Arshid Ali, 8 C. W. N., 239.)

13. (1) When a permanent tenure is sold in execution of a decree other than a decree for arrears of rent due in respect thereof, [or when a mortgage of a permanent tenure, other than a usufructuary mortgage thereof, is foreclosed,] the Court shall, before confirming the sale under section 312 of the Code of Civil Procedure,* [or making a decree or order absolute for the foreclosure,] require the purchaser [or mortgagee] to pay into Court the landlord's fee prescribed by the last foregoing section, [together with the costs necessary for its transmission to the landlord], and such further fee for service of notice of the sale [or final foreclosure] on the landlord as may be prescribed.

(2) When the sale has been confirmed, [or the decree or order absolute for the foreclosure has been made,] the Court shall send to the Collector the landlord's fee, [the costs necessary for the transmission of the same] and a notice of the sale [or final foreclosure] in the prescribed form, and the Collector shall cause the fee to be paid [transmitted] to, and the notice to be served on, the landlord [named in the notice] in the prescribed manner.

The words in light brackets in this section have been inserted by Act VIII of 1886. The words in heavy brackets have been inserted and added by Act I, B. C., of 1907. The word "transmitted" is to be substituted for "paid" in sub-section (2) where Act I, B. C., is in force, i. e. in the province of Bengal.

Effect of non-payment of landlord's fee.—Before the passing of Act I, B. C., of 1903, printed at pp. 78—80, it was held that when a permanent tenure is sold in execution of a decree other than a decree for arrears of rent due in respect thereof and the landlord's fee prescribed by section 12 is not paid before the confirmation of the sale, the sale is invalid (Babar Ali v. Krishna Manini Dasi, 26 Calc., 603 ; 3 C. W. N., 531). One of the principal objects of Act I of B. C., of 1903 was to supersede this ruling.

In another case, also decided before the passing of Act I, B. C., of 1903, in which the landlord's fee had not been paid, and the sale had been confirmed, and in which the decree-holder who had purchased the property subsequently applied to be allowed to pay in the landlord's fee and to have a fresh certificate of sale given to him, and this application was acceded to it, it was held on appeal to the High Court, that the order of the Court below was correct (Mohesh Chandra Das v. Hari Mohan Chakravartti, 7 C. W. N., 388). In Mohim Chandra Bhattacharji v. Ram Lochan De, (7 C. W. N., 591), it was pointed out that it was only the landlord who could object on the ground of the non-payment of the fee, and that its non-payment could not affect the judgment-debtor's position, who had no right to raise such an objection. It was also held that the question was one under s. 244, C. P. C., so an appeal lay against an order passed on such a question.

Transfer of patni and dar-patni taluks.—Patni taluks are not affected by the provisions of the section, being specially saved from its operation by section 195, clause (e), of this Act. A samindar or other superior of a patni taluk is therefore entitled to refuse to recognize the transfer of a patni taluk until the rules laid down in ss. 5 and 6 of Reg. VIII of 1819 have been complied with (Gyanada Kantho Rai v. Bramomoyi Dasi, 17 Calc., 162.) But the purchase of a share of a patni without the landlord's consent is not void (Aosab Ali v. Bissessari Dasya, 1 C. L. J., 18 n.). The patni right over a specific area lying within a patni taluk is transferable (Madhab Ram v. Doyal Chand Ghosh, 25 Calc., 445 ; 2 C. W. N., 108.) But the provisions of section 13 of the Tenancy Act apply to the sales of dar-patni taluks in execution of decrees, as the provisions of section 195, clause (c), apply only to enactments relating to patnis properly and strictly so called, and must be treated as excluding those which relate to tenures, which though resembling patnis, as dar-patnis, &c., are not strictly patnis, not possessing all the qualities of them (Mahomed Abbas Mandal v. Brajo Sundari Debia, 18 Calc., 360.) A suit to compel the registration of the names of sepatnidars in the sherista of their landlords the darpatnidars, is not maintainable either under ss. 5 and 6 of the Reg. VIII of 1819 or under the Bengal Tenancy Act (Moti Lal Singh v. Omar Ali, 2 C. W. N., clxxxi.) A patni interest created after the passing of the Transfer of Property Act is determined on the purchase of the same by the zamindar, even at a sale held in execution of a decree (Promotho Nath Mitra v. Kali Prasanna Chaudhuri, 28 Calc., 744.)

When the sale of a patni under Reg. VIII of 1819 is subsequently set aside, the zamindar is entitled to rent from the patnidar for the period intervening between the sale and its reversal. If the patnidar has been dispossessed by the auction-purchaser during the period, he will be entitled to mesne profits from the latter (Amrita Sikhar Banurji v. Bijai Chand Mahtab, 4 C. L. J., 547).

Limitation.—There is no limitation for an application to deposit the landlord's fee and for the confirmation of the sale and the granting of the sale certificate (Krishna Chandra Datta v. Anukul Chandra Chakravarti, 6 C. W. N., 190).

14. When a permanent tenure is transferred by sale in execution of a decree for arrears of rent due in respect thereof, the Court shall send to the Collector a notice of the sale in the prescribed form.

Transfer of permanent tenure by sale in execution of decree for rent.

Section 14 has been repealed by Act I, B. C., of 1907, where that Act is in force. The object of the framers of the Bengal Tenancy Act, in inserting section 14, was to facilitate the registration of tenures by the Collector. Since all idea of such registration has been abandoned, the retention of the section is unnecessary.

15. When a succession to a permanent tenure takes place, the person succeeding shall give notice of the succession to the Collector in the prescribed form, and shall pay to the Collector the prescribed fee for the service of the notice on the landlord and the landlord's fee prescribed by section 12, [together with the costs necessary for its transmission to the landlord], and the Collector shall cause the landlord's fee to be paid [transmitted] to, and the notice to be served on, the landlord [named in the notice] in the prescribed manner.

The words in heavy brackets have been inserted in the section by Act I, B. C., of 1907, where that Act is in force. It is also provided by that Act that the word "transmitted" shall be substituted for "paid."

It is the duty of persons succeeding by inheritance to a permanent tenure to notify the succession and it is not the duty of the superior landlord to find out who all the heirs of deceased tenure-holder are. Accordingly, when a person is admittedly one of the heirs and as such in possession and liable for the rent, he cannot defeat a landlord's suit for rent by showing that there are other heirs equally liable, unless possibly he goes further and shows that their names have been notified to the landlord as successors of the original holders or that they have been paying the rent and getting receipts as successors (Khetto Mohan Pal v. Pran Krishna Kabiraj, 3 C. W. N., 371).

In a suit brought by patnidars on the death of the last owner for arrears of rent which accrued due before his death, the defence of the dar-patnidar was that, as the plaintiffs had not complied with the terms of this section, the suit was not maintainable. Held, that as the plaintiffs did not claim the rent as the holders of the tenure, but as the representatives of the holder or of their father, the rent became an increment to the estate of the father and therefore the suit was maintainable (Sheriff v. Jogemaya Dasi, 27 Calc., 535).

Payment of landlord's fees—Notice-givers under this section should pay the landlord's fees direct into the Treasury (Bd. Cir., No. 4, June, 1898).

16. A person becoming entitled to a permanent tenure by succession shall not be entitled to recover by suit, distraint or other proceeding any rent payable to him as the holder of the tenure, until the Collector has received the notice ~~and fees~~ [fees and costs] referred to in the last foregoing section.

Bar to recovery of rent pending notice of succession.

The words in brackets are to be substituted for the words "and fees" in this section, where Act I, B. C., of 1907 is in force.

Sections 15 and 16 apply to patni tenures.—Sections 15 and 16 apply to patni tenures, notwithstanding the provisions of sec. 195 (e). The object of section 195 (e) is that nothing in the Bengal Tenancy Act shall interfere with the patni law in respect of patni tenures, but that in other respects the Bengal Tenancy Act shall be held to apply as supplementing the patni law (Durga Prasad Bando-padhyaya v. Brindabun Rai, 19 Calc., 504).

Sections 15 and 16 do not have retrospective effect.—Sections 15 and 16 do not have retrospective effect and do not apply in a case in which the succession opened out before the Tenancy Act came into effect (Profullah Chandra Basu v. Samirudin Mandal, 22 Calc., 337).

Section 16 bars recovery of rent, but not institution of suit.—Section 16 does not preclude a party from instituting a suit for rent, notwithstanding that the Collector has not received the notice and the fees referred to therein, but it is a bar to the plaintiff's obtaining a decree before the notice and the fees are received by the Collector. The words "recover by suit" do not, however, mean "realize by suit," and the section is not intended to bar merely the actual realization of the money by the plaintiff. They bar his obtaining the decree (Kalihar Ghosh v. Umai Patwari, 24 Calc., 241; 1 C. W. N., 98). When on the death of one shebait, another shebait succeeds to a permanent tenure and does not give a notice of succession to the landlord, and does not ask for an opportunity to comply with the requirements of sec. 15, sec. 16 is an effective bar to the recovery of a decree for rent (Mabatulla Nasya v. Nalini Sundari Gupta, 10 C. W. N., 42; 2 C. L. J., 377).

No certificate required for collection of arrears of rent due to estate of deceased.—Under sub-section 2, section 4, of Act VII of 1889, (The Succession Certificate Act), the word "debt" in sub-section (1) includes any debt except rent, revenue or profits payable in respect of land used for agricultural purposes. Arrears of rent due to the estate of a deceased person can, therefore, be collected without the production of a certificate under the Act (Nagendra Nath Basu v. Sadatubashini Basu, 3 C. W. N., 294; Ranchordas v. Bhagubhai 8 Bom., 394).

17. Subject to the provisions of section 88, the foregoing sections shall apply to the transfer of, or succession to, a share in a permanent tenure.

Transfer of and succession to, share in permanent tenure.

Rights and liabilities of transferee of part of tenure.—Section 88 provides that a division of a tenure or holding, or distribution of the rent payable in respect thereof, shall not be binding on a landlord, unless it is made with his consent in writing. Subject to these provisions, an heir, as well as a transferee, even of a part of a permanent tenure, is entitled to compel the landlord to recognise him under secs. 15 and 17 of this Act (Ananda Kumar Naskar v. Haridas Halder, 27 Calc., 549). A landlord is not bound to recognize any sub-division of a tenure, unless the provisions of ss. 12 and 17 have been strictly complied with (Ram Mayi Dasi v. Rupai Paramanik, 1 C. L. J., 41 n.) Although the transferee of a fractional share of a patni cannot enforce registration of his name on payment of the necessary fee and tender of the requisite security, yet the transfer is not altogether void, and he is liable for the rent jointly and severally with the registered tenant, if the landlord chooses to recognize him as one of the joint holders of the patni, and he is also liable for the entire rent of the patni estate (Saurendro Mohan Tagore v. Sarnomayi, 26 Calc., 103). A purchaser of a part of a tenure is not personally liable for rent which fell due before the date of his purchase; yet a suit for the rent of the whole tenure is not bad, merely because he is joined as a defendant. The transferee of a part of a tenure is jointly liable with his co-sharer for the rent; for, though the privity between the parties may be one of estate only, it is in respect of the whole of the tenure by reason of the indivisibility of the tenure without the landlord's consent (Jagmaya Dasi v. Girindra Nath Mukhurji, 4 C. W. N., 590). When the holder of a permanent tenure transferred a portion of it, and the transferee held that portion separately and was allowed to pay proportionate rent for the same to the landlord for a great many years; held, that upon sale by the transferee of that portion of the tenure, his liability for rent to the landlord ceased. This act did not have the effect of subdividing the tenure (Kali Sundari Debia v. Dharani Kanta Lahiri, 10 C. W. N., 272).

When raiyats having permanent interests in a holding sold a portion of it and the transferees again sold a portion of their purchased interest to R, and R obtained settlement from the landlord; held, that, although the transferees did not register their name in the landlord's serishtā and paid no rent from the date of their purchase, yet, as the landlord had notice of this purchase, he was bound under sec. 17 to sue the transferors and the transferees jointly, and a sale of the holding in execution of a decree for rent obtained against the transferors only did not affect the transferees' interest, (Baisab Charan Chaudhuri v. Akhil Chandra Chaudhuri, 11 C. W. N., 217).

Relinquishment of permanent tenures.—Permanent tenures once created cannot ordinarily be relinquished at the option of the holders. It is not open to a patnidar to throw up the patni, and so escape from the liability to pay rent. The contract, though not indissoluble, can be dissolved only by act of Court and after inquiry (Hira Lal Pal v. Nilmani Pal, 20 W. R., 383). The principle laid down in this case is applicable to all intermediate tenures (Jadu Nath Ghosh v. Schoene Kilburn & Co., 9 Calc., 671). But if a permanent tenure is relinquished, and the zamindar accepts the relinquishment, neither the tenure-holder nor any one under him can reclaim it. A voluntary abandonment for a long period without any inevitable force major or other cause beyond the power of the holder must be considered to be equal to an express relinquishment (Chandramani Nyabhushan v. Sambhu Chandra Chakravartti, W. R., Sp. No, 1864, 270). Where a mukarari pattah reserved liberty to the tenants to relinquish the whole or any portion of the land demised and entitled them to a proportionate reduction of the rent at the specified rate for the extent of land that might be found on measurement to have been relinquished, and the lessees professed to relinquish a certain portion of the land, but were found to have retained 35 bighas out of the portion of the land alleged to have been surrendered, it was found that the possession by the lessees of a part of the land professed to be relinquished made the relinquishment and surrender invalid in law (Ram Charan Singh v. Raniganj Coal Association, 2 C. W. N., 697 ; 26 Calc., 29 ; L. R., 25 I. A., 210). A formal deed of re-conveyance of a dar-mokarari interest is not necessary—the receipt of the money and the relinquishment of possession sufficiently showing what has become of the dar-mokarari interest (Imambandi v. Kamleswari, 14 Calc., 109 ; L. R., 13 I. A., 160).

On failure of heirs permanent tenures escheat to the Crown.—In the case of a grant of an absolute hereditary mukarari tenure, on failure of heirs of the lessee, it escheats to the Crown, and does not revert to the original grantor or his heirs (Sonmit Koer v. Himmat, 1 Calc., 391 ; 15 W. R., 549).

CHAPTER IV.

RAIYATS HOLDING AT FIXED RATES.

Incidents of holding at fixed rates.

18. A raiyat holding at a rent, or rate of rent, fixed in perpetuity—

- (a) shall be subject to the same provisions with respect to the transfer of, and succession to, his holding as the holder of a permanent tenure, and
- (b) shall not be ejected by his landlord, except on the ground that he has broken a condition consistent with this Act, and on breach of which he is, under the terms of a contract between him and his landlord, liable to be ejected.

Raiyats holding at fixed rates.—Section 18 of the Tenancy Act does not make all the incidents of a permanent tenure applicable to a raiyat holding at fixed rates, but makes only the provisions with respect to transfer and succession applicable (Nilmani Maitra v. Mathura Nath Joarder, 4 C. W. N., clix ; 5 C. L. J., 413). Raiyats holding at fixed rates are also in the same position as tenure-holders as regards ejectment, except that, if a raiyat holding at a fixed rate of rent is liable to ejectment for a breach of a condition of his contract, that condition must be consistent with the provisions of this Act ; whereas, in the case of a tenure-holder similarly liable to ejectment, the condition, the breach of which renders him liable to ejectment, need only be consistent with the provisions of this Act, if made after its commencement (vide sec. 10).^{*} Unless, then, it be otherwise provided in his contract, a raiyat holding at a fixed rate cannot be ejected for arrears of rent (sec. 65), though his crops may be distrained (sec. 121). He cannot be ejected except in execution of a decree (secs. 89 and 178 (1) (c)). He has the same relief against forfeiture as a tenure-holder (sec. 155), and a suit for his ejectment must also be brought within one year (art. i, Sched. III).

E held 50 bighas of land for more than 12 years under a jangalburi lease, which provided for a progressive rate of rent and did not expressly provide that the interest of E was to be heritable or perpetual. It did not expressly exclude enhancement on any ground, but provided for enhancement on the ground of increase in the productiveness of the soil effected at the expense of the landlord; held, that E was not a raiyat holding at fixed rates (Raj Kumar Sarkar v. Naya Chatu Bibi, 31 Cal., 960). The word kaimi does not import fixity of rent (Fazil v. Keramuddin, 6 C. W. N., 916).

Onus of proof.—In a suit for enhancement of rent, the onus is on the defendant to prove that he is a raiyat at fixed rate. (Gudar Tewari v. Brij Nandan Prasad, 5 C. W. N., 880).

Produce rents are not fixed rents.—In several rulings it has been held that a produce rent, which, though varying yearly with the varying amount of the yearly produce, is yet fixed as to the proportion it is to bear to such produce, is a fixed rent (see Thakurani Dasi v. Bisheshur Mukhurji, B. L. R., F. B., 326; 3 W. R., Act X, 29; Mitrajit Singh v. Tundan Singh, 12 W. R., 14; 3 B. L. R. App., 88; Ram Dayal Singh v. Lachmi Narain, 6 B. L. R., App., 25; 14 W. R., 388; Jatto Moar v. Basmati Koer, 15 W. R., 479; and Hanuman Prasad v. Kaulesar Pandey, 1 All., 301). On the other hand, the contrary was held in Yakub Hussain v. Wahid Ali (4 W. R., Act X, 23) and Thakur Prasad v. Mahomed Bakir (8 W. R., 170). The framers of this Act were of opinion that produce rents were not fixed rents; for they omitted from the Act a sub-section to section 50, which it was at first proposed to introduce, providing that, when a raiyat paid a fixed produce rent, the rent or rate of rent should not be deemed to have varied merely by reason of the amount paid having varied from year to year. Sir Steuart Bayley in explaining the omission of the proposed sub-section, said:—“It seemed clear to us, that where the rent is paid in kind, although the proportion of the gross produce remains the same, yet, by a self-acting machinery this very fact discounts the rise in prices, and rents are thus of necessity enhanced or reduced as prices rise or fall. There is here no room, therefore, for the presumption.” (Selection from papers relating to the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, p. 421).

Transferee of share of holding at fixed rates entitled to be recognized as a tenant.—A person who has purchased a share in a mukarari holding and has given notice of the transfer to the landlord and has paid the landlord's fee is entitled, notwithstanding the provisions of sec. 88 of this Act, which provide that the division of a tenure or holding shall not be binding on a landlord without his consent in writing, to be regarded as one of the persons who own and possess the holding in question. Sections 17 and 18 of the Bengal Tenancy Act recognize the transfer of a share of a holding and entitle the transferee to claim to be regarded as one of the tenants in respect of the holding. In these circumstances a decree in a rent suit, brought only against the former tenant of a mukarari holding after he had transferred a share in the holding, cannot be regarded as a valid and binding decree against the transferee, and a sale held in execution of such a decree cannot affect his rights (Mohesh Chandra Ghosh v. Saroda Prasad Singh, 21 Calc., 433).

Guzastha and Gorabandi holdings.—Guzastha holdings are referred to in the following rulings:—Jatto Moar v. Basmati Koer, 15 W. R., 479; Tetra Koer v. Bhanjan Rai, 21 W. R., 268; Lal Sahu v. Deo Narain Singh, 3 Calc., 781; 2 C. L. R., 294. According to these rulings they may be either occupancy rights or holdings at fixed rates. According to the report of the Patna conference, however, guzasthadars are raiyats holding at fixed rates. (Govt. of Bengal Report, 1884, Vol. II., P. 81). Gorabandi holdings are spoken of in the following cases:—Lilal Singh v. Nirpat Mahtan, 17 W. R., 306; Buti Singh v. Murat Singh, 20 W. R., 478; 13 B. L. R., 284, note; and Chattarbhuj Bharti v. Janki Prasad Singh, 4 C. L. R., 298. In this last cited case it was said that there are no decided cases to show that gorabandi rights are more extensive than occupancy rights, or that they are transferable. The Bhagalpur conference, however, reported that the term gorabandi is now used and understood by the raiyats to mean a raiyati holding at fixed rates. (Govt. of Bengal Report, 1884, Vol II, P. 113).

Bengal Tenancy (Validation) Act, 1903.—The first portion of this Act (I, B. C., of 1903), which is closely connected with the preceding sections 12, 13, 17 and 18, is printed below.

BENGAL ACT NO. I OF 1903.

[PUBLISHED IN THE CALCUTTA GAZETTE OF THE 25TH
FEBRUARY, 1903.]

An Act to validate certain transfers, made under the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, of permanent tenures and holdings at fixed rents or fixed rates and of shares in the same; and to amend section 106 of that Act.

VIII of 1885.

WHEREAS doubts and difficulties have arisen respecting the meaning and effect of sections 12, 13, 17 and 18 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, as regards the payment of the prescribed landlord's fee, and the effect of the non-payment of such fee ;

And whereas it is expedient to declare that registered transfers and sales and decrees or orders for foreclosure of mortgage, confirmed and made absolute by the Civil Courts, of permanent tenures and holdings at fixed rates and fixed rents, and of shares in such tenures and holdings, shall not be deemed to be invalid merely on the ground that the landlord's prescribed fee has not been paid ;

And whereas it is also expedient to amend section 106 of the said Act in manner hereinafter appearing ;

And whereas the said Act having been passed by the Governor General of India in Council, the sanction of the Governor General has been obtained, under section 5 of the Indian Councils Act, 1892, to the passing of this Act ;

It is hereby enacted as follows :—

1. No transfer which has heretofore been made or which may hereafter be made under section 12, section 13, section 17 or section 18 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, of a permanent tenure, or of a holding at a rent or rate of rent fixed in perpetuity or of a share in such tenure or holding, shall be deemed to be invalid merely on the ground that the landlord's fee prescribed by the said sections 12 or 13 has not been paid :

Validation of transfers of and tenures and holdings and shares in the same.
VIII of 1885.

Provided always that, subject to the Explanation following, nothing in this section shall be held to affect the decision of a Court of competent jurisdiction which has become final before the commencement of this Act.

Explanation.—A decree in a suit for rent which has become final disallowing a claim for rent on the ground that the relationship of landlord and tenant does not exist between the parties to the suit by reason of the non-payment of the landlord's fee, shall not bar a suit for rent which became payable subsequently to such claim.

2. In any case where the prescribed fee has been or may hereafter be left unpaid, the landlord may, Realization of fee when left unpaid. within two years of the commencement of this Act, or within two years of the date of registration of the document effecting the transfer, or within two years of the date of confirmation of the sale by the Civil Court, or within two years of the date upon which a decree or order absolute for the foreclosure of a mortgage has been or may hereafter be made by the Civil Court, apply to the Collector for realization of such fee from the transferee, or from the auction-purchaser or from the person who has obtained an order absolute for foreclosure of mortgage in the Civil Court, and on such application being presented, the Collector shall realize such fee, if still unpaid, together with costs of realization, from such person as if it were an arrear of revenue.

3. Nothing in section 1 shall be deemed to affect the Saving of section 88. provisions of section 88 of the said Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885.

Objects of the Bengal Tenancy (Validation) Act, 1903.
The objects of the above Act, which received the assent of the Governor General of India in Council on the 19th February, 1903, are fully explained in the Statement of Objects and Reasons, which is as follows :—

“The first object of this Bill is to validate transfers of shares in tenures and holdings, at fixed rates, made in past years by registered documents and by sales in execution of decrees of Courts without the payment in either case of the landlord's fees prescribed by section 12 of the Bengal Tenancy Act VIII of 1885.

Section 12 of the Bengal Tenancy Act prohibits Registering Officers from registering any instrument purporting or operating to transfer a permanent tenure, unless the prescribed landlord's fee is paid to them for transmission to the landlord. Section 17 of the Act declares that the said section 12, among other sections, shall apply also to the transfer of a share in a permanent tenure. In the year 1888, in consequence of the provisions of section 17 having been overlooked, Registering Officers were instructed not to receive the prescribed fee in the case of instruments transferring a share in a permanent tenure. These erroneous instructions extended also to the case of instruments transferring a share in the holding of a raiyat enjoyed at a rent or rate of rent fixed in perpetuity. The instructions were not withdrawn till the 19th of September, 1899. Meanwhile numerous transfers of shares in such tenures and holdings were registered without payment of the prescribed landlord's fee.

Section 13 of the Act directs the Civil Courts, before confirming the sale of a permanent tenure in execution of a decree, other than a decree for arrears of rent, and before making a decree or order absolute for the foreclosure of a mortgage of a permanent tenure, to require the purchaser or mortgagee to pay the prescribed landlord's fee for transmission to the landlord. The fact that section 17 makes section 13, among other sections, applicable to shares in a permanent tenure, has frequently been overlooked, and it is believed that numerous sales and foreclosures of shares in permanent tenures and shares in holdings at fixed rates have been effected under the Act without payment of the fee in question.

To obviate the oversights both of the executive authorities and of the Civil Courts above explained, it is considered expedient to legislate on the subject, by declaring that the transfers, sales and foreclosures mentioned above shall not be deemed to be invalid merely on the ground that the landlord's fee was not paid at or before the date of the transaction.

Section 18 of the Tenancy Act deals with the transfer of and the succession to raiyats' holdings held at a rent, or rate of rent, fixed in perpetuity. There is no provision in this section, or in succeeding sections, expressly placing the transfer of, or succession to, a share of such a holding on the same footing as the transfer of a share in a tenure is placed by section 17."

CHAPTER IVA.

PROVISIONS AS TO TRANSFERS OF TENURES AND HOLDINGS AND LANDLORD'S FEES.

This Chapter has been introduced by s. 8, Act I, B. C., of 1907, and applies only to the province of Bengal.

“ 18A. Nothing contained in any instrument of transfer to which the landlord is not a party shall be evidence against the landlord of the permanence, amount or fixity of rent, area, transferability or any incident of any tenure or holding referred to in such instrument.

Saving as to statements in instruments of transfer, where landlord no party.

“ 18B. The acceptance by a landlord of any landlord's fee payable under Chapter III or Chapter IV in respect of any tenure or holding shall not operate—

Saving as to acceptance of landlord's fees.

(a) as an admission as to the permanence, amount or fixity of rent, area, transferability or any incident of such tenure or holding, or

(b) as an express consent under section 88 to the division of such tenure or holding, or to the distribution of the rent payable in respect thereof.

The object of these new sections is thus explained in the Notes on Clauses to the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Bill, 1906.

“ The working of sections 12 to 17 of the present Act, relating to the transfer of permanent tenures, is not satisfactory. They induce tenants to register transfers of tenures which are not really permanent, in the hope that the acceptance of the fee by the landlord will operate as an admission of the permanence and transferability of the tenure. The landlords, on the other hand, are reluctant to accept the fees, and the result is that a very large amount of unclaimed fees has accumulated in different districts in the province. This state of things is not only a source of embarrassment to Government, but also creates doubts and difficulties in regard to the position of the transferees of tenures. It is hoped that the amendments now proposed will overcome the reluctance of landlords to accept the fees in the case of tenures which are really permanent, and that tenants will be deterred thereby from registering transfers of tenures which are not of this character.

The same considerations apply to the transfer of, and succession to, holdings at fixed rents or rates of rent, and under section 18 (a) of the Act, these are governed by the same conditions. Clauses 5 and 6 have been so framed as to make the proposed amendments applicable to the case of holdings at fixed rents or rates of rent. A clause has also been added to sec. 189, empowering the Local Government to prescribe the authority by whom the fees deposited under sections 12, 13, 15, 17 and 18, clause (a), may be declared to be forfeited, and the mode in which such fees when so forfeited shall be dealt with."

" 18C. All landlord's fees paid under Chapter III or Chapter IV which are held in deposit on or after the commencement of the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Act, 1907, may, unless accepted or claimed by the landlord within three years from such commencement or from the date of the service of the notice prescribed in section 12, section 13 or section 15 (as the case may be), whichever is later, be forfeited to the Government."

There is no provision in the Act for the disposal of unclaimed fees. As these have accumulated, and in order to expedite claims to fees due, thus freeing the district establishments from much extra work, Government is now given power to deal with them in such manner as it thinks fit.

CHAPTER V.

OCCUPANCY-RAIYATS.

General.

General.
Continuance of existing occupancy-rights.

19. (1) Every raiyat who immediately before the commencement of this Act [or the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Act, 1907,] has, by the operation of any enactment, by custom or otherwise, a right of occupancy in any land shall, when this Act, [or the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Act, 1907,] comes into force, have a right of occupancy in that land.

[(2) The exclusion from the operation of this Act, by a notification under sub-section (3) of section 1, of any area constituted a Municipality under the provisions of the Bengal Municipal Act, 1884, or of any part of such area, or the inclusion of any area in the town of Calcutta by notification under section 637 of the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1899, shall not affect any right, obligation or liability previously acquired, incurred or accrued in reference to such area.]

Extended to Orissa, (Not., Sept., 10th, 1891).

The words in brackets in sub-section (1) and sub-section (2) have been inserted and added by Act I, B. C., 1907. They are intended to preserve existing rights and obligations in areas which under the amended provisions of section 1 may be excluded from the operation of the Bengal Tenancy Act by the Local Government or may be excluded from or included, in the limits of the town of Calcutta.

Acquisition of occupancy rights under the former rent law.—Under sec. 6 of Act X of 1859, and sec. 6 of Act VIII, B. C., of 1869, every raiyat who had cultivated or held land for twelve years had a right of occupancy in the land so cultivated or held by him, whether it was held under a pattah or not, so long as he paid the rent payable on account of the same, but this rule did not apply to khumar nij-jote or sir land belonging to the proprietor of the estate or tenure and let by him on lease for a term, or year by year, nor, as respected the actual cultivator, to land sub-let for a term, or year by year, by a raiyat having a right of occupancy. The holding of the father or other person from whom a raiyat inherited was to be deemed the holding of the raiyat within the meaning of the section. Section 7 of both Acts further provided that nothing in section 6 should be held to affect the terms of any written contract for the cultivation of land entered into between a landholder and a raiyat, when it contained an express stipulation contrary thereto. A raiyat could, therefore, under the former law contract himself out of his status. Under the former law, it was held that a raiyat holding land under a bhagdari or bhaoli tenure (i. e., upon a rent consisting of a portion of the produce) could acquire a right of occupancy (Harihar Mukhurji v. Biressar Binnurji, 6 W. R., Act X, 17; Jatto Moar v. Basmati Koer, 15 W. R., 479). So also, could a raiyat holding a nuksan utbandi jole, (see sec. 180) and who by the custom of the locality paid rent when the land could be cultivated, and no rent, when he could not cultivate it (Premanand Ghosh v. Surendro Nath Rai, 20 W. R., 329). A right of occupancy could be acquired by cultivator in that portion of the land used for his habitation as well as in that which was cultivated (Mohesh Chandra Gangapadhaya v. Bishohnath Das, 24 W. R., 402), even if instead of cultivating the land he set up shops on it and received profits from the shop-keepers (Khajurunnessa v. Ahmed Resa, 11 W. R., 88), in bastu land, if the tenure of the bastu land was raiya-twari (Pogose v. Raju Dhopi, 22 W. R., 511), in a tank appurtenant to land let for cultivation, (Nidhi Krishna Basu v. Ram Das Sen, 20 W. R., 341; Uma Charan Baruah v. Mani Ram Baruah, 8 C. W. N., 192), and in land let for grazing horses (Fitzpatrick v. Wallace, 2 B. L. R., A. C., 317; 11 W. R., 231). A firm owning an indigo concern and taking a cultivating lease of land could acquire a right of occupancy in it, provided the lease was granted to the original members of the firm, and by the custom of the locality the rights of occupancy in the lands could be transmitted to persons subsequently admitted as members of the firm (Laidley v. Gaur Gobind Sarkar, 11 Calc., 501). A raiyat could acquire a right of occupancy, even though he let out his land to others to cultivate (Brindaban Chandra Chaudhri v. Issar Chandra Biswas, W. R., Sp. No., 1864, Act X, 1; Ram Mangal Ghosh v. Lakhi Narain Shaha, 1 W. R., 71); provided he was a bona fide cultivator in the sense of deriving the profits from the produce directly (Kali Charan Singh v.

Amirudin, 9 W. R., 579). A raiyat who had held or cultivated a piece of land continuously for more than 12 years, but under several written leases or pattahs, each for a specific term of years, was entitled to a right of occupancy, and neither the mere fact of his taking a lease for a term of years, nor the existence of a right of re-entry on the part of the landlord amounted to an express stipulation under sec. 7, so as to prevent the right of occupancy being acquired under sec. 6 of Act X of 1859 (Sheo Prakash Misra v. Ram Sahu Singh, 17 W. R., 62; 8 B. L. R., 165; Mukhtar v. Brajraj Singh, 9 C. L. R., 144; Chandrabati Koer v. Harrington, 18 Calc., 349; L. R., 18 I. A., 27). Similarly, a raiyat allowed to continue in occupation of the land on the expiry of a lease, which gave the landlord, a right of re-entry at the end of its term, but which the landlord did not choose to avail himself of, and whose total period of occupation amounted to twenty years, was held to have acquired a right of occupancy (Ibatullah v. Mahomed Ali, 25 W. R., 114.) Raiyats were entitled to add the time during which their fathers or other persons from whom they had inherited had been in possession to the time of their own possession in computing the period of twelve years required for the acquisition of a right of occupancy (Watson v. Sarat Sundari Debi, 7 W. R., 395; Nim Chand Baruah v. Murari Mandal, 8 W. R., 127; Lal Bahadur Singh v. Solano, 10 Calc., 45; 12 C. L. R., 559) They could count both the time when they had been in sole possession of the land and the time they had been in possession of it jointly with others (Forbes v. Ram Lal Biswas, 22 W. R., 51. See contra, Mahomed Chaman v. Ram Prasad Bhakut, 8 B. L. R., 388; 22 W. R., 52 note). They could acquire rights of occupancy, even although the persons under whom they held the land had no title to it (Amir Hussain v. Sheo Suhai, 19 W. R., 338; Zulfan v. Radhika Prasanno Chandra, 3 Calc., 560; 1 C. L. R., 388), and the expiration of the lease of an ijaradar under whom a raiyat's possession under a jotedari right had commenced, could not affect the application of section 6 of Act X (Ghulam Panja v. Harish Chandra Ghosh, 17 W. R., 552). Wrongful eviction is not such an interruption of possession as would prevent a raiyat acquiring a right of occupancy (Mahomed Ghazi Chaudhuri v. Nur Mahomed, 24 W. R., 324; Lutifunnissa v. Pulin Bihari Sen, W. R., Sp. No., F. B., 91; Radha Govind Koer v. Rakhal Das Mukhurji, 12 Calc., 82). A right of occupancy might be acquired in respect of an undivided share of an estate (Muktakeshi Dasi v. Kailash Chandra Mitra, 7 W. R., 493; Jardine Skinner & Co. v. Sarat Sundari Debi, 3 C. L. R., 140; L. R., 5 I. A., 164; Baidya Nath Mandal v. Sudharam Misri, 8 C. W. N., 751; Uma Charan Baruah v. Mani Ram Baruah, 8 C. W. N., 192). Rights of occupancy could be acquired in khamar, nij-jote or sir land, if let otherwise than for a term, or year by year (Gaur Hari Singh v. Bihari Raut, 12 W. R., 278; 3 B. L. R., App., 138; Bhagwan Bhagat v. Jag Mohan Rai, 20 W. R., 308; Ashraf v. Ram Kishor Ghosh, 23 W. R., 288). Compare sec. 116 of this Act.

Non-acquisition of occupancy rights under the former law.—Rights of occupancy could not be acquired by trespassers (Pir Baksh v. Miajan, W. R., Sp. No., F. B., 164; Ghulam Haidar v. Purno Chandra Rai, 3 W. R., Act X, 147; Ishan Chandra Ghosh v. Harish Chandra Banurji, 18 W. R., 19; 10 B. L. R., App., 5). A raiyat who secretly possesses himself of land and pays no rent for it has no right of occupancy in that land (Gharib Mandal v. Bhuban Mohan Sen, 2 W. R., Act X, 85). Possession obtained and continued by fraud can give no right of occupancy (Bhubanjai Acharji v. Ram Narain Chaudhri, 9 W. R., 449). Mere possession of a permissive character without any right cannot confer a right of occupancy (Mohar Ali Khan v. Ram Rattan Sen, 21 W. R., 400; Aduilo Charan De v. Peter Das, 17 W. R., 383). Mere possession as a servant for 12 years does not give rise to right of occupancy (Umamayi Barmanya v. Boko Behra, 13 W. R., 333). A person occupying land as an assignee of the samtindar and cultivating because of the opportunity thus afforded cannot claim the benefit of sec. 6 of Act X of 1859 (Uma Nath Tewari v. Kundan Tewari, 19 W. R., 177). Rights of occupancy could not be acquired by a middleman (Gopi Mohan Rai v. Sib Chandra Sen, 1 W. R., 68): or by a tikhdar, (Ram Saran Sahu v. Veryag Makton, 25 W. R., 554); or by a tenant holding under a sar-i-peshgi constituting a security for money advanced (Bengal Indigo Co. v. Raghubar Das, 24 Calc., 272; L. R. 23 I. A., 158; 1 C. W. N., 83). Rights of occupancy could not be acquired in land occupied exclusively by buildings (Sarnomayi v. Blumhardt, 9 W. R., 552; Mohar Ali Khan v. Ram Ratan Sen, 21 W. R., 400), or in land the main object of the occupation of which was the dwelling-house, and when the cultivation of the soil, if any, was entirely subordinate thereto (Kali Krishna Biswas v. Janki, 8 W. R., 250; Ram Dhan Khan v. Hara Dhan Paramanik, 12 W. R., 404; 9 B. L. R., 107 note). No right of occupancy could be acquired in a tank used only for the preservation and rearing of fish and not forming a part of any grant of land or an appurtenance to any land (Shibu Jelya v. Gopal Chandra Chaudhri, 19 W. R., 200); and a grant of a right of fishery in such a tank gives no interest in the sub-soil (Mahanand Chakravarti v. Mangala Keolani, 31 Calc., 937; 8 C. W. N., 804); or in a tank with only so much land as is necessary for its banks (Nidhi Krishna Basu v. Ram Das Sen, 20 W. R., 341; or in a jalkar (Uma Kanth Sarkar v. Gopal Singh, 2 W. R., Act X, 19; Sham Narain Chaudhri v. Court of Wards, 23 W. R., 432; Jagga bandhu Saha v. Promotho Nath Rai, 4 Calc., 767; Bollai Saff v. Akram Ali, 4 Calc., 961; or by an indigo concern or firm, having no corporate existence (Cannan v. Kailash Chandra Rai, 25 W. R., 117); or by a firm of capitalists (Rai Kamal Dasi v. Laidley, 4 Calc., 957). In computing the period of twelve years necessary for the acquisition of occupancy rights raiyats are not entitled to add the period of their predecessors' possession to their own, except when they have inherited the lands from their predecessors or the jotes are transferable (Watson v. Sarat Sundari Debi, 7 W. R., 395; Dinobandhu De v. Ram Dhan Rai, 9 W. R., 522; Durga Sundari v. Brindaban Chandra Sarkar, 11 W. R., 162; Narendra Narain Rai v. Ishan Chandra Sen, 22 W. R., 22; 13 B. L. R., 274; Khiroo Chandra Rai v. Gordon, 23 W. R., 237; Lal Bahadur Singh v. Solano, 10 Calc., 45; 12 C. L. R., 559); not even with the consent of the zamindar (Tara Prasad Rai v. Surjo Kanti Acharji, 15 W. R., 152; Haidur Baksh v. Bhubendra Deb Kumwar, 17 W. R., 179; but see contra on this point, Haro Chandra Guha v. Dunne, 5 W. R., Act X, 55). Rights of occupancy could not be acquired in lands sub-let for a term or year by year by raiyats having occupancy rights (Gilmore v. Sarbessari Dasi, W. R., Sp. No., 1864, Act X, 72; Jamiatunnissa Bibi v. Nur Mahomed, ibid, 77; Ketal Gain v. Nadir Mistri, 6 W. R., 168; Abdul Jabar v. Kali Charan Datta, 7 W. R., 81; Kali Kishor Chaturji v. Ram Chandra Shah, 9 W. R., 344; Haran Chandra Pal v. Mukta Sundari, 10 W. R., 113; 1 B. L. R., A. C., 81; Ram Dhan Khan v. Haradhan Paramanik, 12 W. R., 404; 9 B. L. R., 107 note; Nil Kamal Sen v. Danesh, 15 W. R., 469; Ishan Chandra Ghosh v. Harish Chandra Banurji, 18 W. R., 19; Annapurna Dasi v. Riddha Mohan Patro, 19 W. R., 95). Rights of occupancy could not be gained in khamar, nij-jote or sir land, if let on a lease for a term, or year by year (Gaur Hari Singh v. Bihari Raut, 12 W. R., 278; 3 B. L. R., App., 138; Bhagwan Bhagat v. Jogmohan Rai, 20 W. R., 308; Ashraf v. Ram Kishor Ghosh, 23 W. R., 288.) See sec. 116. In Haro Govindo Raha v. Ram Ratno De, (4 Calc., 67), it was doubted whether rights of occupancy could accrue in land held under a service tenure, but in Ram Kumar Bhuttacharji v. Ram Niwas Rajguru, (31 Calc., 1021), it has been decided that such rights can be acquired in chaukidari chakran lands; but not by the under-tenants of such lands (Mritanjai v. Kenatullah, 11 C. W. N., 46).

Acquisition of occupancy rights by custom.—According to Peacock, C. J., in Thakurani Dasi v. Bisheshar Mukhurji, (B. L. R., F. B., 326; 3 W. R., Act X, 29), Act X "did not take away the right of any raiyat who had a right by grant, contract, prescription or other valid title to hold at a fixed rate of rent." In Hills v. Ishwar Ghosh (W. R., Sp. No., F. B., 148), it was also said by the same learned Judge that "if there are any ancient or hereditary rights to which a raiyat is entitled, he is not precluded by Act X of 1859 from claiming and proving such rights in due course of law." See also Lilanand Singh v. Nirpat Mahtun (17 W. R., 306.) All customs, usages and customary rights are now saved by the provisions of sec. 183, from illustration 2 to which section it is evident that there may be a valid custom or usage of the acquisition of rights of occupancy by under-raiyats. This is further apparent from sec. 113, as amended by the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Act, III, B. C., of 1898, in which reference is made to the holding of an under-raiyat having occupancy rights.

An occupancy right acquired under former law continues under present law.—In a case under the present Act, in which certain land had been used as an orchard, and had been held by the plaintiff for about fifty years, it was argued that the land, being horticultural land, a right of occupancy could not be acquired in it under the present Act. But it was held that a right of occupancy had been acquired in the land under the former law, and that, whether or not the present Act applies to horticultural land, when a right of occupancy had been acquired under the old law, it was not forfeited by the repeal of that Act, there being nothing in the new enactment to deprive any person of a statutory right which had been acquired (Hari Ram v. Nursingh Lal, 21 Calc., 129. See also Hassan Ali v. Govind Lal Basak, (9 C. W. N., 141). There is nothing in the Bengal Tenancy Act to take away a right of occupancy acquired under leases granted at a time when Act VIII, B. C., of 1869 was in force, (Baidya Nuth Mandol v. Sadhuram Misri, 8 C. W. N., 751.)

Under sec. 178 (1) (b) nothing in any contract between a landlord and tenant made before or after the passing of this Act shall take away an occupancy right in existence at the date of the contract.

20. (1) Every person who, for a period of twelve years, whether wholly or partly before or after the commencement of this Act, has continuously held as a raiyat land situate in any village, whether under a lease or otherwise, shall be deemed to have become, on the expiration of that period, a settled raiyat of that village.

Definition of "settled
raiyat."

(2) A person shall be deemed, for the purposes of this section, to have continuously held land in a village notwithstanding that the particular land held by him has been different at different times.

(3) A person shall be deemed, for the purposes of this section, to have held as a raiyat any land held as a raiyat by a person whose heir he is.

(4) Land held by two or more co-sharers as a raiyati holding shall be deemed, for the purposes of this section, to have been held as a raiyat by each such co-sharer.

(5) A person shall continue to be a settled raiyat of a village as long as he holds any land as a raiyat in that village and for one year thereafter.

(6) If a raiyat recovers possession of land under section 87, he shall be deemed to have continued to be a settled raiyat notwithstanding his having been out of possession more than a year.

(7) If, in any proceeding under this Act, it is proved or admitted that a person holds any land as a raiyat, it shall, as between him and the landlord under whom he holds the land, be presumed, for the purposes of this section, until the contrary is proved or admitted, that he has for twelve years continuously held that land or some part of it as a raiyat.

Extended to Orissa (Not., September 10th, 1897).

Sub-sections (1) and (2). Settled raiyats.—These sub-sections, which are the result of an attempt to rehabilitate the "khudkash" or "resident raiyat" of the old regulations, made a great change in the rent law. Under Act X of 1859 and Act VIII, B. C., of 1869, it was necessary for the acquisition of a right of occupancy in land that a raiyat should have held the same land for twelve years, and if he took up fresh land in the village, he had no right of occupancy in it until the lapse of a period of twelve years (Amar Chand Lahatta v. Bakshi Paikar, 22 W. R., 228). Now, a raiyat is a settled raiyat of the village and has (sec. 21) an occupancy right in all land in the village in which he, or the person whose heir he is, has held any land for twelve years. When the holdings of the defendants consisted of land held by them partly for more than twelve years, and partly for less than twelve years, and the two classes of land were undistinguishable; held, that the defendants were settled raiyats, and had under s. 21 occupancy rights in all the lands held by them (Sarat Chandra Rai v. Asiman, 31 Calc., 725; 8 C. W. N., 601). But this rule does not apply to chur or dearah land or to land held under the custom of utbandi, which must still be held for twelve years before a right of occupancy accrues (sec. 180.)

The provisions of sub-section (1) were introduced to prevent landlords barring the acquisition by their raiyats of rights of occupancy by shifting them, or changing the lands of their holdings before the expiry of twelve years. It was at one time proposed to insert the word "estate" in this section in place of the word "village"; but it was ultimately determined not to do so. Landlords can, therefore, still prevent their raiyats acquiring occupancy rights by shifting them from one village to another within their estates before the completion of the statutory period. There is one point which the provisions of sub-section (2) leave somewhat uncertain, viz., whether a raiyat can become a "settled raiyat" by holding during twelve years different plots of land in the same village under different landlords, or whether he must hold his land under one and the same landlord. See Kuldip Singh v. Chatur Singh Rai, (3 C. L. J., 285).

Distinction between occupancy raiyats and settled raiyats.—The term "occupancy-raiyats" used in the Act does not cover "settled raiyats." An occupancy right may be acquired by a new-comer by purchase," (i. e., provided it be transferable by custom), "while the status of "settled raiyat, is acquired by cultivating any land in the village as a raiyat for twelve years, or by inheritance from a raiyat who has done so." (Statement of Objects and Reasons of Bill, No. III of 1897, to amend the Bengal Tenancy Act, para 24) and Kuldip Singh v. Chatur Singh Rai, (2 C. W. N., ccclii; 3 C. L. J., 285). The status of a settled raiyat as defined in sec. 20 cannot be transferred and, consequently, though every settled raiyat has a right of occupancy, every occupancy-raiyat is not necessarily a settled raiyat (Kuldip Singh v. Chatur Singh Rai, 2 C. W. N., ccclii; 3 C. L. J. 285).

The Board of Revenue have issued the following instructions to settlement officers on this point.

"A raiyat who has held any land in a village for 12 years by himself or partly through the person from whom he has inherited, is a settled raiyat of that village. He has the occupancy-right not only in that land but also in all other land in that village forming part of his holding or which he may at any time add to his holding. His status as a settled-raiyat passes to his heir, but it cannot be sold. Thus, all occupancy-raiyats who have acquired the occupancy-right through the occupation of land for 12 years, or by inheritance from one who held for that period, should be recorded as settled raiyats. The only remaining class of occupancy-raiyats are those who have purchased the occupancy-right, but have not held the land to which it is attached for 12 years, or who have inherited from such purchasers, the term of 12 years from the purchase being still unexpired. These alone should be recorded as occupancy-raiyats" (Revenue circular, No. 1, Oct. 1902).

Sub-section (3).—The provisions of this sub-section are similar to those of sec. 6 of Act X of 1859 and of Act VIII, B. C., of 1869, according to which "the holding of the father or other person from whom a raiyat inherits shall be deemed to be the holding of the raiyat within the meaning of this section." Under the former law, a raiyat was always entitled to add the occupation of his father or other person from whom he had inherited his land to his own in computing the period necessary for his acquisition of an occupancy right, but not that of any person from whom he might have purchased the land, unless the holding was of a transferable nature. See notes to sec. 19, ante, pp. 86, 88. Occupancy rights are now expressly made heritable by sec. 26. As to the liability of occupancy-raiyats for rent which accrued in the lifetime of their predecessors, see the notes to that section. An heir of an occupancy-raiyat can claim recognition by the landlord on the death of his ancestor who was the recorded tenant (Ananda Kumar Naskar v. Hari Das Haldar, 27 Calc., 545 ; 4 C. W. N., 608).

Sub-section (4).—The sub-section follows the rule laid down by the High Court in Forbes v. Ram Lal Biswas (22 W. R., 51), setting aside Mahomed Chaman v. Ram Prasad Bhagat (8 B. L. R., 338 ; 22 W. R., 52 note).

When some lands were held by several occupancy-raiyats jointly and some of them relinquished in favour of the landlord ; held, that the relinquishment did not operate by way of enlarging the rights of the raiyats who remained on the land by giving them an interest over the whole holding (Piari Mohan Mandal v. Radhika Mohan Dasra, 5 C. L. J., 9).

Sub-section 5.—Under this sub-section a raiyat may apparently abandon his holding and leave the village and may still retain his rights as a settled raiyat, provided he returns within one year's time, and takes another holding in the same village, it may be under a different landlord.

Sub-section (6).—The sub-section follows the rule laid down by the High Court in Mahomed Ghazi Chaudhri v. Nur Mahomed (24 W.

R., 324), in which a zamindar sued a raiyat for ejectment and the raiyat pleaded continuous occupancy for twelve years, and it was found he had been ejected during that period, but had got back into possession. It was held that if the eviction were wrongful, it would not be such an interruption as would prevent the raiyat from acquiring a right of occupancy, but it was for the raiyat to show that the eviction was wrongful. See also Lutifunnissa v. Pulin Bihari Sen, (W. R., Sp. No., F. B., 91) and Radha Govind Koer v. Rakhal Das Mukhurji, (12 Calc., 82).

Sub-section (7). Onus of proof. This sub-section made a great change as to the onus of proof in rent cases. It was introduced in the interests of the raiyats, who had always experienced difficulty in producing legal proof of their acquisition of occupancy rights: Now, the onus is on the landlord to disprove the assertion on the part of their raiyats of their having held land continuously for twelve years. This presumption can only arise in the case of a raiyat who has other occupancy holdings in the same village when those other occupancy holdings are held under the same landlord (Kuldip Singh v. Chatur Singh Rai, 3 C. L. J., 285). And this presumption does not apply to the occupants of chur or dearah land, who, if they allege that they have been for twelve continuous years in possession, must prove that allegation (Beni Prasad Koeri v. Chaturi Tewari, 33 Calc., 444; 4 C. L. J., 63).

In a suit brought by a purchaser of an estate at a sale for arrears of Government revenue, it is for the defendant who claims to be a raiyat with a right of occupancy to start a prima facie case by showing that he held the lands as a raiyat within the meaning of the proviso to sec. 37, Act XI of 1859 (Ambika Charan Chakravarti v. Daya Gazi, 3 C. L. J., 51 n; 10 C. W. N., cxx).

21. (1) Every person who is a settled raiyat of a village within the meaning of the last foregoing section shall have a right of occupancy in all land for the time being held by him as a raiyat in that village.

Settled raiyats to have occupancy-rights.

(2) Every person who, being a settled raiyat of a village within the meaning of the last foregoing section, held land as a raiyat in that village at any time between the second day of March, 1883, and the commencement of this Act, shall be deemed to have acquired a right of occupancy in that land under the law then in force; but nothing in this sub-section shall affect any decree or order passed by a Court before the commencement of this Act.

Extended to Orissa (Not., Sept. 10th, 1891).

Restrictions on the acquisition of occupancy rights.—

Notwithstanding the provisions of this section, occupancy rights cannot be acquired in proprietors' private lands, known in Bengal as khamar, nij or nij-jote and in Behar as sirat, sir or kamat, if let under a lease for a term of years or under a lease from year to year (sec. 116.) As already pointed out, settled raiyats do not acquire occupancy rights in char, dearah or utbandi lands, until they have held the same land for twelve continuous years (sec. 180.) Occupancy rights cannot be acquired in ghatwali lands (Upendra Nath Hazra v. Ram Nath Chaudhri, 33 Calc., 630; Mohesh Manjhi v. Pran Krishna Mandal, 1 C. L. J., 138.)

When a lessee of lands in the occupation of raiyats who had jote rights obtained khas possession with the consent of the raiyats for the purpose of indigo cultivation; held, that the lessee being merely a landlord in occupation did not acquire occupancy rights in the land, and the lessor became entitled to khas possession on the expiry of the lease (Ram Lachan Koeri v. Collingridge, 11 C. W. N., 397.)

Accreted lands.—A raiyat who has a right of occupancy has the same right in land accreted to his jote as he has in his jote (Gaur Hari Kaibartto v. Bhola Kaibartto, 21 Calc., 233); but not if he is a yearly raiyat of char or dearah land (Beni Prasad Koeri v. Chaturi Tewari, 33 Calc., 444.)

Urban and suburban lands.—The use of the word "village" in this section shows that no right of occupancy can be acquired under the Act in towns and suburban lands, and it has been held that "there is no authority for the proposition that there may be rights of occupancy in suburban lands let for purposes of building, though these rights may not be cognizable under a law intended only for agricultural landlords and tenants" (Rakhaldas Addi v. Dinomayi Debi, 16 Calc., 652.) The Act does not expressly exclude from its operation urban areas except the town of Calcutta (Hassan Ali v. Govinda Lal Basak, 9 C. W. N., 141.) But see the addition to s. 1 (3), made by s. 3, Act I, B. C., 1907, p. 2.

Sub-section (2).—The 2nd March, 1883, is the date on which leave was obtained to introduce into Council the Bill to amend the Tenancy Act. The object of this sub-section was to prevent raiyats being induced to contract themselves out of their rights during the passing of the Bill through Council. This object is given further effect to in sec. 178. The provisions of sub-section (2) of section 21 are expressly retrospective and apply to suits pending at the commencement of the Act (Jogeshar Das v. Aisani Koibartto, 14 Calc., 553; Tapsi Singh v. Ram Suran Koeri, 15 Calc., 376).

Veto on contracts barring acquisition of occupancy rights.

—Under sec. 178 (1) (a) nothing in any contract between a landlord and tenant made before or after the passing of this Act shall bar in perpetuity the acquisition of an occupancy right in land. Under sub-sec. (2) nothing in any contract made between a landlord and tenant since the 15th July, 1880, (the date of the publication of the Rent Commission's Report) and before the passing of this Act shall prevent a raiyat from acquiring in accordance with this Act, an occupancy right in land; and under sub-sec. (3) (a) nothing in any contract between a landlord and tenant after the passing of this Act shall prevent a raiyat from acquiring in accordance with this Act an occupancy right in land.

22. (1) When the immediate landlord of an occupancy-holding is a proprietor or permanent tenure-holder, and the entire interests of the landlord and the raiyat in the holding become united in the same person by transfer, succession or otherwise, the occupancy-right shall cease to exist; but nothing in this sub-section shall prejudicially affect the rights of any third person.

Effect of acquisition of occupancy-right by landlord.

(2) If the occupancy-right in land is transferred to a person jointly interested in the land as proprietor or permanent tenure-holder, it shall cease to exist; but nothing in this sub-section shall prejudicially affect the rights of any third person.

(3) A person holding land as an ijaradar or farmer of rents shall not, while so holding, acquire a right of occupancy in any land comprised in his ijara or farm.

Explanation.—A person having a right of occupancy in land does not lose it by subsequently becoming ing jointly interested in the land as proprietor or permanent tenure-holder, or by subsequently holding the land in ijara or farm.

The provisions of this section have been greatly modified by s. 30, Act I, B. C., 1907. So far as the province of Bengal is concerned, the section runs as follows :—

22. (1) When the immediate landlord of an occupancy-holding is a proprietor or permanent tenure-holder, and the entire interests of the landlord and the raiyat in the holding become united in the same person by transfer, succession or otherwise, [such person shall have no right to hold the land as a tenant, but shall hold it as a proprietor or permanent tenure-holder (as the case may be)]; but nothing in this sub-section shall prejudicially affect the rights of any third person.

Effect of acquisition of occupancy-right by landlord.

(2) If the occupancy-right in land is transferred to a person jointly interested in the land as proprietor or permanent tenure-holder, [he shall be entitled to hold the land subject to the payment to his co-proprietors or joint permanent tenure-holders of the shares of the rent which may be from time to time payable to them; and if such transferee sub-lets the land to a third person, such third person shall be deemed to be a tenure-holder or a raiyat, as the case may be, in respect of the land.

Illustration.—A, a co-sharer landlord, purchases the occupancy holding of a raiyat X. A is entitled himself to hold the land on payment to his co-sharers of the shares of the rent payable to them in respect of the holding. A sub-lets the land to Y, who takes it for the purpose of establishing tenancy on it; Y becomes a tenure holder in respect of the land. Or A sub-lets it to Z, who takes it for the purpose of cultivating it himself; Z becomes a raiyat in respect of the land.]

(8) A person holding land as an ijaradar or farmer of rents shall not, while so holding, acquire [by purchase, or otherwise,] a right of occupancy in any land comprised in his ijara or farm.

Explanation.—A person having a right of occupancy in land does not lose it by subsequently becoming jointly interested in the land as proprietor or permanent tenure-holder, or by subsequently holding the land in ijara or farm.

Extended to Orissa, (Not., Sep. 10th, 1891)

The words in heavy brackets in this section were added by s. 10, Act I, B. C., 1907.

Sub-section (1).—The rule laid down in this section is analogous to the provisions of section 111, cl (1), of Act IV of 1882, under which a lease of immoveable property determines in case the interests of the lessee and the lessor in the whole of the property become vested at the same time in one person in the same right. It is in accordance with the rulings of the High Court in the cases of Mitrajit Singh v. Fitzpatrick, 11 W. R., 206; Reed v. Srikrishna Singh, 15 W. R., 430; Bul Chand Jha v. Lathu Mudi, 23 W. R., 387; Lal Bahadur Singh v. Solano, 10 Calc., 45; 12 C. L. R., 559; and Radha Govind Koer v. Rakhal Das Mukhurji, 12 Calc., 82. But see contra, Umesh Chandra v. Raj Narain, 10 W. R., 15; Rushlon v. Atkinson, 11 W. R., 485 and Savi v. Panchanan, 25 W. R., 503. In Lal Bahadur Singh v. Solano, it was said that a right of occupancy must be acquired against somebody, and if a raiyat is in possession of the land in a double capacity, both as a raiyat and as a malik, it is almost impossible to conceive how he can under these circumstances acquire a right of occupancy against himself. In Radha Govind Koer v. Rakhal Das Mukhurji, (12 Calc., 82), it was decided that even if the proprietor purchased an occupancy raiyat's land benami in the name of a third person, the right was gone; and in Piart Mohan Mukhurji v. Badal Chandra Bagdi, (28 Calc., 205; 5 C. W. N., 310), it was held that an under-raiyat's lease which was without the landlord's consent and unregistered was invalid, and a landlord purchasing the holding of the raiyat in execution of a decree for arrears of rent was entitled to eject the under-raiyat, who was not protected by this clause. But the contrary was laid down in Amirulla v. Nasir Mahomed, (31 Calc., 931). This judgment was subsequently withdrawn, as it was discovered that no notice had been served on the heirs of the deceased respondent. But the principles of the judgment were affirmed in Amir-ulla v. Nazir Mahomed, (3 C. L. J., 155 ; 34 Calc., 104). It was, however, distinguished from in Badan Chandra Das v. Rajeswari Debya, (2 C. L. J., 570) ; in which case the plaintiff, a jotedar under Government, let out a portion of his jote to a raiyat as chukanidar, who again sub-let a portion of his holding to the defendant, without the consent of the plaintiff, and otherwise than by a registered instrument. Subsequently, the raiyat having surrendered a portion of his holding, which, he had sub-let to the defendant, plaintiff brought this suit for recovery of possession ; held, sec. 22 did not apply, and the landlord was entitled to khas possession and no notice to quit was necessary.

There is no merger in the case of a patni interest coming into the same hands as the samindari interest (Jibanti Nath Khan v. Gokul Chandra Chaudhri, 19 Calc., 760). The contrary was held in the case of a patni interest created after the passing of the Transfer of Property Act (Promotho Nath Mittra v. Kali Chaudhri, 28 Calc., 744 ; see, too, Prasanna Nath Rai v. Jagat Chandra, 3 C. L. R., 159) When shikmi and mukarari interests become vested at one time in the same persons, then, whether the mukarari lease was a lease for agricultural purposes or not, the mukarari interest merges in the superior tenure (Surja Narain Mandal v. Nanda Lal Sinha, 33 Calc. 1212).

The rights of third persons referred to in this sub-section and in sub-section (2) must be valid rights (Piari Mohan Mukhurji v. Radal Chandra Bagdi, 28 Calc., 208 ; 5 C. W. N., 312).

Sub-section (2).—In Gur Baksh Rai v. Jeolal Rai, (16 Calc., 127 in which a tenant had commenced to occupy his holding in 1871 and had purchased a fractional share of the proprietary interest in 1878, it was held on his suing for possession after being dispossessed in May, 1886, that there was nothing in Act VIII, B. C., of 1869 to prevent his acquiring such right, if after his purchase he continued to hold the land as a raiyat, if the relation of landlord and tenant existed between himself and his co-sharer proprietor, and if the period for which he so held extended for twelve years from the commencement of his holding. In Sitanath Panda v. Palaram Tripathi, (21 Calc, 869), the plaintiff sued for a share of the rent of a jote, alleging that it had been purchased by the defendants, who were his co-sharers in the landlord's interest. It was held that the plaintiff was entitled to a decree and it was said that, though the section provides that on the transfer of an occupancy right in land to a person jointly interested in the land as proprietor or permanent tenure-holder, the occupancy right shall cease to exist, "it does not follow that the tenancy will be altogether extinguished. The third person mentioned in the clause must be held to include every person interested other than the transferor and transferee. So that the acquisition of an occupancy right by a proprietor would not affect the right of a co-sharer landlord to receive his share of the rent of the tenancy." In another case, Jawadul Hak v. Ram Das Saha, (24 Calc., 143 ; 1 C. W. N., 166), the plaintiff, who was a co-sharer in a taluk, sued for khas possession to the extent of his share in a jote, in which the defendant had put up to sale and purchased the occupancy right of a tenant, the defendant being the plaintiff's co-sharer in the taluk in which the jote was situated. The Munsiff before whom the suit first came dismissed the suit, holding that the defendant who had purchased the jote, was entitled to hold it as a tenant, and that the plaintiff was accordingly not entitled to khas possession of his share. His decision was reversed by the Subordinate Judge, who held that the principal defendant had purchased nothing, the effect of his purchase being to extinguish the entire tenancy. On appeal to the High Court the Subordinate Judge's decision was reversed by Beverley, J., and on appeal under the Letters Patent to a Bench of five Judges the decision of Beverley, J., was affirmed. In the judgment of the Bench it was said :—"Sub-section (2) of section 22 of the Tenancy Act provides that if an occupancy right is transferred to a person jointly interested in the land as proprietor, the occupancy right shall cease to exist. It is not said, and the sub-section cannot be understood to mean, that the holding shall cease to exist, but that the occupancy right which is an incident to the holding shall cease to exist, and there is nothing in the sub-section inconsistent with the continuance of the holding, divested of this right of occupancy which attached to it. The saving clause in the sub-section 'that nothing in it shall prejudicially affect the rights of any third person,' indicates also that the holding would for some purposes at all events, continue to exist."

The ruling in the case of Jawadul Hak v. Ram Das Saha, (24 Calc., 143) was followed in Miajan v. Minnat Ali, (24 Calc., 521). But in Ram Saran Poddar v. Muhomed Latif, (3 C. W. N., 62) it was held that, when a landlord had brought an occupancy holding to sale, had purchased it himself, and settled it with a new raiyat, he could not sell the same occupancy holding again in execution of a decree for arrears of rent of past years. It was said that there was no subsisting right in the old raiyat, which could be sold, and the plaintiff, who purchased at the second sale, had acquired nothing.

In Girish Chandra Chaudhri v. Kedar Chandra Rai, (27 Calc., 473 ; 4 C. W. N., 569), the case of Jawadul Hak v. Ram Das Saha was again distinguished from. In this case the plaintiffs and the defendants were the joint owners of a taluk, appertaining to which there was a non-transferable occupancy holding. The defendants brought to sale and purchased that holding in execution of a money decree and took possession of the land. The plaintiffs sued to obtain joint possession with the defendants of the land. They were successful in the lower Courts. In second appeal it was argued on the authority of Jawadul Hak v. Ram Das Saha that the occupancy right was severable from the tenancy right, and that although the occupancy right could not be sold, the sale and purchase of the tenancy right were good, and that the plaintiff had consequently no right to interfere with the possession of the purchasing defendants. But the appeal was disallowed. "Section 27," it was said, "does not make a non-transferable occupancy holding transferable, when the purchaser happens to be one of the proprietors. That section, read in connection with the other sections of the Act, must be taken to refer to occupancy holdings which are of a transferable character, and the section enacts that when such a holding is transferred to one of the co-proprietors the occupancy right in the land so transferred shall cease to exist. The decision to which we have been referred merely held that although by the operation of that section the occupancy right ceased, to exist, there might be a good transfer of the holding. Although under the provisions of sec. 22, an occupancy right may be severable, it is only severable in cases to which that section applies, and cannot be made severable in all cases. Apart from any special provision of law such as is contained in section 22, and is applicable only to the cases referred to in that section, it does not seem possible on any principle to hold that in the case of a non-transferable occupancy holding, the holding can be sold without the right of occupancy, so as to give the transferee a right to retain possession of it." See also Dilbar Sardar v. Husain Ali, (26 Calc., 553), and Ramrup Mahto v. Mannars, (4 C. L. J., 209). The correctness of the decision in Jawadul Hak's case was subsequently affirmed by a Full Bench in Ram Mohan Pal v. Kachu, (32 Calc., 386; 1 C. L. J., 1; 9 C. W. N., 249).

Sub-section (3).—Sub-section (3) and the explanation to the section follow the rulings of the High Court in the following cases: (Gilmore v. Srimant Bhumik, W. R., Sp. No., 1864, Act X, 77; Watson & Co. v. Jogendro Narain Rai, 1 W. R., 76; Mokundo Lal Dhobi v. Crowdy, 17 W. R., 274; 8 B. L. R., App., 95; Umanath Tewari v. Kundan Tewari, 19 W. R., 177; Savi v. Panchanan Rai, 25 W. R., 503; Ram Saran Sahu v. Veryag Mahton, 25 W. R., 554; Jardine Skinner & Co. v. Sarat Sundari Debi, 3 C. L. R., 140; L. R., 5 I. A., 164; Rai Kamal Das v. Laidley, 4 Calc., 957).

In a case decided under the Tenancy Act, (Maseyk v. Bhagabati Burmania, 18 Calc., 121), the question was whether certain persons who had occupied land as raiyats were debarred from acquiring occupancy rights in it owing to their being jointly interested in the land as ijaradars or farmers. It was held that they were not.

Alterations made in this section by Act I, B. O., of 1907.—

In the Notes on Clauses of the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Bill 1906, it was explained that the object of the amendment of section 22 was to counteract the ruling of the High Court in Jawadul Hak's case and the Full Bench ruling in Ram Mohan Pal v. Kachu. "These decisions" it was said, "lay down a rule opposed to the policy of the authors of Act VIII of 1885, which was to discourage the acquisition of occupancy holdings by landlords."

The provisions of sub-section (2) were greatly modified by the Select Committee on the Bill who in their report observe that "the amendments made by them in the section will give effect to the intention of the framers of the Act, by providing that, where a sole landlord acquires an occupancy holding of his raiyat, the interests of such landlord and tenant merge into a landlord's interest; and that where one of several co-sharer landlords or joint tenure-holders acquires an occupancy right of a tenant of all the co-sharers or joint-tenure holders, such landlord cannot thereby acquire an occupancy right, or by sub-letting, bar the acquisition of raiyati rights by the sub-lessees. At the same time, under the section as modified by us, the landlord will not be prevented from cultivating the land himself, though the holding will not become proprietor's private land. We have inserted an illustration to make the meaning of the section quite clear. Our attention has been called to a ruling of the High Court (Ramrup Mahito v. Manners, 4 C. L. J., 209) to the effect that the word 'acquire,' in sub-section (3) of section 22, does not include 'purchase.' In order to prevent the acquisition of a right of occupancy by an ijaradar during the period of his lease through a purchase behind the back of the landlord, we have inserted the words 'by purchase or otherwise' after the word 'acquire.'"

Incidents of occupancy right.

23. When a raiyat has a right of occupancy in tenancy; but shall not be entitled to cut down trees in contravention of any local custom.

Extended to Orissa, (Not., Sept. 10th, 1891).

Nothing in a contract made after the passing of this Act shall take away or limit the right of an occupancy raiyat to use land as provided by this section [sec. 178 (3) (b).]

Use of land by occupancy raiyats.—In an early case under Act X of 1859 it was said that a raiyat with a right of occupancy might erect a pukka house on his land and do what he liked with it so long as he did not injure it to the zamindar's detriment (Nyamatullah v. Govind Chandra Dutta, 6 W. R., Act X, 40). In later cases, however, it was held that a zamindar might object to the erection of brick houses on land let for purposes of cultivation, and might by injunction restrain his raiyat from doing anything which would substantially alter the character of the tenure (Shib Das Bundopadhaya v. Baman Das Mukhopadhaya, 8 B. L. R., 242; 15 W. R., 360; Jagat Chandra Rai v. Ishan Chandra Banurji, 24 W. R., 220; Lal Sahu v. Deo Narayan Singh, 3 Calc., 781; 2 C. L. R., 294). An occupancy raiyat had also no right to excavate a tank on his land (Tarini Charan Basu v. Deb Narain, 8 B. L. R., App, 69), in contravention of the terms of his lease (Monindra Chandra Sarkar v. Manirudin Biswas, 11 B. L. R., App., 40; 20 W. R., 230), or to dig earth for the purpose of making bricks (Kadambini Debi v. Nabin Chandra Adukh, 2 W. R., 157; Anand Kumar Mukhurji v. Bissonath Banurji, 17 W. R., 416). If he had a mukarari interest in the land, he might build a well or do anything else which did not entirely destroy the land so as to endanger the zamindar's ground rent (Dhipat Singh v. Halalkhuri Chaudri, W. R., Sp. No., 1864, 279). But if a landlord stood by and allowed his tenant to erect pukka buildings on the land, he could not turn him out of possession (Beni Madhab Banurji v. Jai Krishna Mukhurji, 12 W. R., 495; 7 B. L. R., 152; Sib Das Bandopadhaya v. Baman Das Mukhopadhaya, 8 B. L. R., 242; 15 W. R., 360). Similarly, if he allowed him to excavate a tank without making any attempt to restrain him (Kedar Nath Nag v. Khettro Pal Sritiratna, 6 Calc., 34; 6 C. L. R., 569), or to build a homestead or use part of the land for tanks or gardens (Prasanna Kumar Chaturji v. Jagan Nath Basak, 10 C. L. R., 25), or to excavate earth for brick-making (Nicholl v. Tarini Charan Basu, 23 W. R., 298), or to convert his land into a mango grove (Naina Misra v. Rupikun, 9 Calc., 609; 12 C. L. R., 300), he would not be allowed to eject or interfere with him.

Now, an occupancy raiyat's rights in this respect are regulated by secs. 76 and 77 of this Act. Under sec. 77 (1) a raiyat at fixed rates and an occupancy raiyat have a right to make "improvements" in their land, and "improvement" is defined in section 76 (1) to mean any work which adds to the value of the holding, which is suitable to the holding and which is consistent with the purpose for which it was let, such as, e.g., wells, tanks, water-channels [76-(2)(a)], and suitable dwelling-houses, for the raiyat and his family with all necessary out-offices, [76 (2) (f)]. Under sec. 108, cl. (p) of the Transfer of Property Act, which section however has not yet been extended to agricultural leases (s. 117), a lessee must not, without the lessor's consent, erect on the property any permanent structure, except for agricultural purposes.

Trees.—Under the former law it was decided that, though a tenant had a right to enjoy all the benefits of the growing timber during his occupation, he had no right to cut down the trees and convert the timber to his own use (Abdul Rahman v. Dataram Bashi, W. R., Sp. No., 1864, 367); but he had a right to the possession of trees on his land (Mahomed Ali v. Bolaki Bhagat, 24 W. R., 330). Now, under the terms of this section a raiyat with a right of occupancy may cut down trees on this land without his landlord's consent, unless there be a custom to the contrary, of which it is for the landlord to give evidence (Nasir Chandra Pal Chaudhri v. Ram Lal Pal, 22 Cal., 742). As to the ownership of the trees themselves, if the tenant has a perpetual lease at a fixed rent and the lessor has reserved no reversionary interest in the land or the trees growing on it, the lessees are entitled to the ownership of the trees (Saroda Sundari Debia v. Goni, 10 W. R., 419; Golak Rana v. Nubo Sundari Dasi, 21 W. R., 344). See also Harbans Lal v. Maharaja of Benares, (23 All., 126). But in the case of raiyats with only rights of occupancy, according to the decision in Nasir Chandra Pal Chaudhri v. Ram Lal Pal, and the long series of decisions cited in that case, the trees are the property of the proprietor of the land on which they grow, though the tenant has a right to enjoy all the benefit that the growing timbers may afford him during his occupancy, and to cut them down subject to a custom to the contrary. But the proprietor's rights are subject to modification or complete extinction by contract and custom. The case of Nasir Chandra Ghosh v. Nand Lal Gosami, (22 Cal., 751, note) affords an example of the modification of his rights in this respect by custom; for, in this case, it was found that by the custom of the zamindari, the zamindar was entitled to recover only one-fourth share of the value of the trees cut down by the raiyats, when the raiyats had had them cut down without his consent or permission. A different rule has, however, been laid down in the North-West Provinces with regard to the fallen wood of self-sown trees. It has there been held that a zamindar claiming a right to the fallen wood of self-sown trees growing on an occupancy holding must prove some custom or contract, by which he is entitled to such wood, there being no general rule in India to the effect that there is a right in the landlord or a right in the tenant by general custom to the fallen wood of self-sown trees (Nathan v. Kamla Kuar, 13 All., 571). When there was a custom in a village that the raiyats could, when they required fire-wood for the purposes of cremation and on occasion of village feasts, appropriate agachha or valueless trees, grown on the land of the raiyats after they had been inducted into possession, with the permission of the barua or village headman, and on such permission being asked nothing had to be paid by the raiyats, it was held in a case in which certain agachha trees had been cut down without such permission being asked for, that the landlord could have sustained no damage by reason of the acts of the raiyats in cutting and misappropriating the trees (Samsar Khan v. Lochan Das, 23 Calc., 854). A tamarind tree is not an agachha or shrub (Nilmani Maitra v. Mathura Nath Joardar, 4 C. W. N., cliv ; 5 C. L. J., 413). The case of Man Mohini Gupta v. Raghu Nath Misra, (23 Calc., 209) affords an illustration of a landlord's right in trees being extinguished by contract. In this case, a lease of a mauzah was granted for the express purpose of clearing jungle land and bringing it under cultivation, and it was held that, as there was no reservation in the lease of the right in the trees, the lessee had the right to appropriate them, when cut. A perpetual injunction restraining the defendant from planting trees the roots of which are likely to penetrate the foundation of plaintiff's building and wall, is unworkable (Lakshmi Narain Banurji v. Tara Prasanna Banurji, 31 Calc., 944).

raiayat to pay rent.

24. An occupancy-raiyat shall pay rent for his holding at fair and equitable rates.

Extended to Orissa, (Not., Sept. 10th, 1891).

The expression "fair and equitable rates" is apparently taken from sec. 5 of Act X of 1859 and of Act VIII, B. C., of 1869, which laid down, as is done in sec. 27 of this Act, that the rate previously paid by the raiyat shall be deemed fair and equitable until the contrary is proved.

Protection from eviction except on specified grounds.

25. An occupancy-raiyat shall not be ejected by his landlord from his holding, except in execution of a decree for ejectment passed on the ground—

(a) that he has used the land comprised in his holding in a manner which renders it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy, or

(b) that he has broken a condition consistent with the provisions of this Act, and on breach of which he is, under the terms of a contract between himself and his landlord, liable to be ejected.

Extended to Orissa, (Not., Sept. 10th, 1891).

Protection from eviction.—Before a tenant can be ejected on the grounds mentioned in clauses (a) and (b) of this section, the landlord must serve a notice on the tenant specifying the misuse or breach complained of, and where the misuse or breach is capable of remedy, requiring the tenant to remedy the same, and, in any case to pay reasonable compensation; and no suit for ejectment can be brought unless the tenant has failed to comply within a reasonable time with the notice (sec. 155). Under sec. 178, sub-section (1), clause (c), nothing in a contract made before or after the passing of the Act shall entitle a landlord to eject a tenant otherwise than in accordance with the provisions of this Act. Under the former rent law, it was ruled that, though in strict law a farmer forfeits his lease by the withdrawal of the security given by him at the time of taking the farm, yet cases of forfeiture are not favoured, when no injury has resulted, or where a money compensation is a sufficient remedy (Alam Chandra Saha v. Moran & Co., W. R., Sp. No., 1864, Act X, 31). But in another case it was said that parties must be bound by the terms which they have deliberately agreed upon between themselves (Ram Kumar Bhattacharji v. Ram Kumar Sen, 7 W. R., 132). As to breach of conditions of leases it was decided that in the absence of a provision for the cancelment of a lease, or that the landlord shall have a right of re-entry on breach of any of its stipulations, a breach does not cancel a lease or give a right to eject (Augar Singh v. Mohini Datta Singh, 2 W. R., Act X, 101). But when forfeiture is provided as the penalty for the breach of any particular clause, it may be enforced (Mahomed Faiz Chaudhri v. Shib Dulari Tewari, 16 W. R., 103; Bir Chandra Manik v. Hussain, 17 W. R., 29): and there is nothing incompatible in the two remedies of damages and forfeiture for breach of the conditions of a lease (Chandra Nath Misra v. Sardar Khan, 18 W. R., 218). On the expiry of the term of a lease, by which a ghat together with certain jote lands were let out at a certain annual jama for both the jote lands and the ghat, the defendants held over for many years on the same terms. The plaintiff gave the defendants notice to quit and sued for khas possession of the ghat: held, that the plaintiffs were entitled to khas possession of the ghat though the defendants were occupancy raiyats as regards the jote lands (Hayes v. Ghina Barhi, 33 Calc., 459). A suit for ejectment of a tenant cannot be maintained, unless the tenancy has been determined, i. e., unless there has been a previous notice to quit or a demand for possession (Deo Nandan Prasad v. Meghu Mahton, 11 C. W. N., 225). See note "Determination of relation of landlord and tenant," at the commencement of Chap. VIII.

Use of land in a manner unfitting it for purposes of tenancy.—In a suit under this Act a tenant was sued for converting land admittedly let for agricultural purposes into an orchard, and he was held to have used it in a manner unfitting it for the purposes of the tenancy and to be liable to ejectment (Soman Gop v. Raghubar Ojha, 24 Calc., 160; 1 C. W. N., 223). So, when land is let out for agricultural purposes, an indigo factory cannot be erected on it, for the manufacture of indigo is not an agricultural purpose (Surendro Narain Singh v. Hari Mohan Misra, 31 Calc., 174; 9 C. W. N., 87).⁽¹⁾

Denial by tenant of his landlord's title no ground of forfeiture or ejectment.—The denial by a tenant of his landlord's title is no ground of forfeiture of his tenancy under the Tenancy Act, as under the former law, and he cannot now be ejected for this reason (Debiruddin v. Abdur Rahim, 17 Calc., 196; Dhora Kairi v. Ram Jewan Khuri Mahtan, 20 Calc., 101). This is still the law in districts in which Act VIII, B. C., of 1869 prevails, but a denial in the written statement would not operate as a forfeiture (Nizamudin v. Mantajudin, 28 Calc., 135; 5 C. W. N., 263). But the rule that the denial of the relation of landlord and tenant does not operate as a forfeiture does not apply when the defendants have denied in a previous suit that they were the plaintiffs' tenants, and when that denial has been given effect to by a decree of Court. When it has been found that the land belongs to the plaintiffs, and in the previous suit that the defendants are not the plaintiffs' tenants, the defendants have no right to remain on the land, and the plaintiffs are entitled to khas possession (Nil Madhub Basu v. Anant Ram Bagdi, 2 C. W. N., 755; Faiz Dhali v. Aftabuddin, 6 C. W. N., 575; Haranath Chakravartti v. Kamini Kamar Chakravartti, 3 C. L. J., 25 n; Ramgati v. Pran Hari Seal, 3 C. L. J., 201). But the correctness of these decisions was doubted in Mallika Dasi v. Makhkam Lal Chaudhuri, (2 C. L. J., 389; 9 C. W. N. 928,) in which it was laid down that the doctrine of forfeiture by disclaimer of landlord's title does not apply to raiyati tenancies governed by the Bengal Tenancy Act and the principle of estoppel cannot be applied to make the doctrine of forfeiture indirectly applicable to such tenancies. A tenant defendant, who sets up an adverse title in himself, may be estopped from setting up an occupancy right in appeal (Satya Bhama Dasi v. Krishna Chandra Chaturji, 6 Calc., 55.) See also Sujjad Ahmad Chaudhuri v. Ganga Charan Ghosh, (1 C. L. J., 116 ; 9 C. W. N., 460). A lessee of a service tenure incurs a forfeiture of his tenancy by denial of his landlord's title and the landlord would be entitled to eject him, if he declared by some act or other antecedent to the institution of the suit his intention to determine the tenancy. Notice to quit in such a case is not necessary. Such a case falls within the Transfer of Property Act (Anandamoyi v. Lakhi Chandra Mitra, 33 Calc., 339).

Now, in Bengal a tenant who renounces his character as a tenant of the landlord by setting up without reasonable or probable cause title in a third person or himself is liable to have a decree for damages passed against him. See the new section 186 A, added by s. 57, Act I, B. C., 1907.

Non-payment of rent.—An occupancy raiyat cannot be ejected for arrears of rent ; but his holding can be sold in execution of a decree for the rent thereof (sec. 65.) Section 6 of Act X of 1859 and Act VIII, B. C., of 1869 provided that a raiyat had an occupancy right in land "so long as he paid the rent payable on account of the same." It was, accordingly, held that, though non-payment of rent did not bar the acquisition of an occupancy right, payment of rent was necessary to maintain it, and non-payment rendered a raiyat liable to be evicted (Narain Rai v. Opnit Misra, 9 Calc., 304 ; 11 C. L. R., 417.) So, where a raiyat had been dispossessed and had failed to pay rent for five or six years, it was held in a suit by him for possession that he had no subsisting right of occupancy (Hem Chandra Chaudhuri v. Chand Akund, 12 Calc., 115.) In another case, however, it was said that mere non-payment of rent did not necessarily amount to a forfeiture of the right of occupancy, (Masyatulla v. Nurzahan, 9 Calc., 808 ; 12 C. L. R., 389), and in a case in which the decision in Hem Chandra Chaudhuri v. Chand Akund was specially considered it was said that, though non-cultivation of the land, coupled with non-payment of the rent, might be sufficient to justify the conclusion that the tenant had relinquished the land, mere non-payment of rent was not in itself sufficient to show that there was no subsisting right of occupancy (Nilmani Dasi v. Sonatan Doshayi, 15 Calc., 17.) When the relation of landlord and tenant has once been proved to exist, mere non-payment, though for many years, is not sufficient to show that it has ceased. A tenant who alleges this must prove it, particularly if he is in possession of the land (Rango Lal Mandal v. Abdul Ghafur, 4 Calc., 314 ; 3 C. L. R., 119.) See note, p. 25. Non-payment of rent will not relieve an occupancy raiyat of his status of tenant so as to give him a title to the land (Poresk Narain Rai v. Kashi Chandra Talukdar, 4 Calc. 661.) Nor does it, even when coupled with the fact that the landlords never recognised him as a tenant (Ambika Sundari Guha v. Dino Nath Sen, 9 C. W. N., ccxxxix).

Invalid transfer of a whole or part of holding.—The sale or parging with the whole or part of a holding is not a ground of forfeiture according to the Tenancy Act, and so where a raiyat had sold half his holding but remained in possession of the other half, and when the whole of the rent of the holding had been deposited in the Collectorate to the credit of the landlord, it was held that he was not liable to be ejected (Kabil Sardar v. Chandra Nath Chaudhri, 20 Calc., 590). See also Bansi Das v. Jagdip Narain Chaudhri, 24 Calc., 152; Durga Prasad Sen v. Daula Ghazi, 1 C. W. N., 160; Gozaffar Hussain v. Dalgleish, 1 C. W. N., 162; Kissen Pertab Sahi v. Tripe, 2 C. W. N., cliv; and Kamaleshwari Prasad Singh v. Haraballabh Narain Singh, 2 C. L. J., 369). But if a tenant transfers his holding, ceases to pay rent for it and accepts a new tenancy from the transferee, the landlord is entitled to eject the transferee as a trespasser (Kali Nath Chakravarti v. Upendra Chandra Chaudhri, 24 Calc., 212; 1 C. W. N., 163; Samujan Rai v. Mahatan, 4 C. W. N., 493). See also Dwarka Nath Misra v. Harish Chandra, (4 Calc., 925); Sristidhar Biswas v. Madan Sardar, (9 Calc., 648); Harihar Mukhurji v. Jadu Nath Ghosh, (7 W. R., 114), (in which last mentioned case it was said that a tenant having a right of occupancy cannot create a tenure intermediate between himself and the zamindar), and Pratap Chandra Das v. Kamala Kanta Saha, (4 C. L. J., 13 n). So, under the old law a mere invalid transfer of a non-transferable holding did not give a zamindar a right to take "actual possession, so long as the rent was paid by the recorded tenant or his heirs and not by a stranger (Jai Krishna Mukhurji v. Raj Krishna Mukhurji, 5 W. R., 147). Nor did it work a forfeiture of the tenancy (Gora Chand Mostafi v. Baroda Prasad Mostafi, 11 W. R., 94; 13 B. L. R., 279 note; Saddai Parira v. Baistab Parira, 15 W. R., 261; 12 B. L. R., 84, note; Dwarka Nath Misra v. Kanai Sirdar, 16 W. R., 111). But when an occupancy raiyat sold his holding, gave up possession and disclaimed all interest in it, his right of occupancy ceased and the landlord could eject the purchaser (Harna Mohan Mukhurji v. Chintamani Rai, 2 W. R., Act X, 19; Harihar Mukhurji v. Jadu Nath Ghosh, 7 W. R., 114; Durga Sundari v. Brindaban Chandra Sarkar, 11 W. R., 162; Sukodra v. Smith, 20 W. R., 139; 12 B. L. R., 82; Narendra Narain Rai v. Ishan Chandra Sen, 22 W. R., 22; 13 B. L. R., 274; Ram Chandra Rai v. Bholu Nath Lashkar, 22 W. R., 200). So, also, if an occupancy raiyat not authorised to transfer his holding creates a usufructuary mortgage of it, the landlord is entitled to eject him (Krishna Chandra Datta v. Kishari, 10 C. W. N., 499; 3 C.

L. J., 222; Rasik Lal Datta v. Bidhu Mukhi Dasi, 33 Calc., 1094; 4 C. L. J., 406.) But where defendants 2 and 3, who had a non-transferable occupancy holding sold it to defendant No. 1, and took an under-lease from the latter, it was held that the landlord was entitled to get a decree for possession against defendant No. 1, and was not entitled to get khas possession against defendants 2 and 3, but only to receive rent from them (Dina Nath Rai v. Krishna Bijai Saha, 9 C. W. N., 379). This was followed in Madar Mandal v. Mahima Chandra Mazumdar, (33 Calc., 531; 3 C. L. J., 343), in which it was ruled that the mere sale of a right of occupancy to a third person, notwithstanding that the vendors remain in occupation under a sub-lease from the purchaser does not amount to abandonment or entitle the landlord to eject the original tenants. See also Nadhu Mandal v. Kartik Mandal, (9 C. W. N., 56). But when a raiyat transferred a non-transferable holding to a third person, took a sub-lease from his transferee and refused to pay rent to his landlord, as before, and when dispossessed sought to recover possession not under his former right as raiyat, but as under-raiyat of his transferee, and persisted in refusing to pay rent to his landlord, it was held that he was not entitled to recover possession. (Unreported case, S. A., No. 1214 of 1905, decided by Rampini and Sharafuddin, JJ., May 21st, 1907). — 764/77 — 50 Cal. 40.

A landlord cannot sue his tenants for the rent of a holding and at the same time sue a sar-peshgidar for the same on the ground that the sar-peshgidar is in possession of a portion of the same (Ramadas v. Thakurdas, 1 C. L. J., 136.)

Onus of proof.—When the plaintiff sued for ejectment and it was disputed whether the land was agricultural, it was held that the onus lay on the defendant, (1) because the lands were situate within a Municipality, and, (2) because he was a tenant and sought exemption from ejectment (Sashi Bhusan Mukhurjee v. Sriram Samanta, 10 C. W. N., cclxxxviii).

Annual Tenancy. Notice to quit.—To determine an annual tenancy the notice should require the tenant to quit at the end of the year of the tenancy (Hemangini Chaudhurani v. Srigobind Chaudhuri, 6 C. W. N., 69; 29 Calc., 203).

Co-sharer landlords.—A co-sharer landlord cannot eject a tenant even in respect of his own share, or in case of a service holding, maintain a suit for the khas possession of his own share (Ghulam Mohiuddin v. Khairan, 8 C. W. N., 325).

Limitation.—The period of limitation for ejectment under clause (a) of this section is two years under art. 32, Sch. II of the Limitation Act (Soman Gop v. Raghubar Ojha, 24 Calc., 160; 1 C. W. N., 223; Sarup Das v. Jageswar Rai, '26 Calc., 564; 3 C. W. N., 464). The period of limitation for a suit for ejectment under clause (b) of this section is one year under art. 1, Sch. III, appended to this Act.

26. If a raiyat dies intestate in respect of a right of occupancy, it shall, subject to any custom to the contrary, descend in the same manner as other immoveable property; provided that in any case in which under the law of inheritance to which the raiyat is subject his other property goes to the Crown, his right of occupancy shall be extinguished.

Extended to Orissa (Not., Sept. 10th, 1891).

Heritability of occupancy rights—There can be no question now as to the heritability of occupancy rights. See note to sec. 20, subsection (3) and Ananda Kumar Naskar v. Huri Das Halder, (27 Calc., 545; 4 C. W. N., 608). Formerly, notwithstanding the provisions of sec. 6 of Act of 1859 and VIII, B. C., of 1869, doubts were expressed by Peacock, C. J., as to their heritability (Ajudhya Prasad v. Imambandi Begam, 7 W. R., 528), and in one case it was decided that on the death of an occupant raiyat the zamindar could let the land to whom he pleased and that a distant relation of the deceased raiyat was not entitled to succeed by inheritance (Jati Ram Sarmah v. Manglu Sarmah 8 W. R., 60). There cannot be a partial acceptance or renunciation of an inheritance, nor can one of several heirs accept a part only of an inheritance to the prejudice of the other heirs and of the creditors of the deceased. An acceptance in part has the effect of an acceptance of the whole, and carries with it the same liability (Moazzam Hussain v. Bhauddin, 5 C. W. N., 189).

Liability of heirs of occupancy raiyats.—Under the present Act, it has been held that "inasmuch as heirs of a raiyat who may have died intestate having rights of occupancy, succeed to his holding, and inasmuch as a raiyat is bound to pay rent unless he surrenders in the manner prescribed by section 86, the heirs are liable to pay rent whether they hold the lands or not. The zamindar would not be at liberty to occupy the lands of such a tenant, unless he has obtained from the heirs something amounting to an actual surrender, and unless he has himself proceeded in the manner prescribed by section 87. Therefore, heirs of a deceased dying intestate, having rights of occupancy, are entitled to hold until they have, expressly, or in a manner from which a surrender may be presumed, as is stated in sec. 86, relieved themselves from such liability, and unless they have surrendered or done something from which a surrender in the terms of section 86 can be presumed, they are liable for the rent. Non-cultivation of the land does not necessarily amount to a surrender" (Pieri Mohan Mukhurji v. Kumaris Chandra Sarkar, 19 Cal., 790). But the Allahabad High Court in Lekhraj Singh v. Rai Singh, (14 All., 381) has decided that it is only an occupancy raiyat in possession who has accepted the occupancy holding that is liable to be sued for arrears of rent which accrued during the lifetime of the person from whom the right of occupancy has devolved upon him. In his judgment in this case, Edge, C. J., observed :—"The person on whom the right of occupancy devolves is not bound to accept the tenancy, but if he does accept it, he, in my opinion, must accept it subject to its burdens, and one of these burdens is the legal liability to pay the rent which is in arrear." Knox, J., also pointed out that the person who had succeeded to the position of tenant might plead as answer to a suit for arrears that he was not the tenant of the plaintiff and had never attorned to him.

Decrees for arrears of rent obtained against a Hindu widow are personal debts, payment of which can be enforced only against the property left by her, and not against her husband's estate which has passed to the next heirs (Krishto Gobind Mozumdar v. Hem Chandra Chaudri, 16 Cal., 511). But they are a first charge on the tenure or holding on which they have accrued and may be executed against it (sec. 65).

Whether occupancy rights can be bequeathed.—Neither in this section nor in any other section of the Act is there any provision, analogous to that in section 11 in regard to permanent tenures, authorizing the testamentary bequest of occupancy holdings. From clause (d) sub-section (3) of section 178, which provides that nothing in any contract made between a landlord and tenant after the passing of this Act shall take away the right of a raiyat to bequeath his holding in accordance with local usage, it would seem that the framers of the Act intended the matter to be regulated by the provisions of section 183.

Failure of heirs.—On a failure of heirs occupancy rights under this section are extinguished, in which respect they differ from tenures, which in similar circumstances escheat to the Crown. See note to section 17, p. 75.

Occupancy rights transferable by custom.—This chapter contains no provision as to the transferability or non-transferability of occupancy rights. The question has been left to be decided by custom. Sir Steuart Bayley, when moving that the report of the Select Committee on the Bengal Tenancy Bill should be taken into consideration, on this point observed :—"Turning now to the incidents attached to the right of occupancy it will be seen that we have made a most important change in regard to one of these incidents—transferability. Instead of legalising it and regulating it by law, we have left it everywhere to custom." This has been effected by the provisions of section 183, which make the whole Act subject to "custom, usage and customary right, except so far as inconsistent with, or expressly or by necessary implication abolished by its provisions. The application of "usage" to the transferability of occupancy rights is emphasized by illustration 1 to section 183, which is to the effect that "a usage, under which a raiyat is entitled to sell his holding without the consent of his landlord, is not inconsistent with, and is not expressly or by necessary implication modified or abolished by, the provisions of this Act. That usage, accordingly, wherever it may exist, will not be affected by this Act."

Moreover, by clause (d), sub-section (3), section 178 of this Act, it is provided that nothing contained in any contract made between a landlord and a tenant after the passing of this Act shall take away the right of a raiyat to transfer his holding in accordance with local usage. Accordingly, in Palakdhari Rai v. Manners, (23 Cal., 179), decided under the Tenancy Act, and in which the defendants to whom certain occupancy holdings had been transferred pleaded that they were transferable by custom or usage, it was held with reference to this illustration that a transfer in accordance with usage was valid, even without the consent of the landlord. In this case, the observations of their lordships of the Privy Council in Jaggamohan Ghosh v. Manik Chand (7 Moo. I. A., 263) on the subject of "mercantile usage" to the effect that "mercantile usage needs not the antiquity, the uniformity or the notoriety of custom," and that "it is enough if it appears to be so well-known and acquiesced in that it may reasonably be presumed to have been an ingredient tacitly imported by the parties into their contract" were referred to, and it was said that "in applying this case, it must be borne in mind that it relates to a usage in dealing in a particular class of mercantile transactions and contracts made in the course of such business. Consequently, in introducing these principles in the present case, which does not relate to contracts entered into between parties to the litigation, but affects a third party, the landlord, it would be necessary to prove the existence of the usage on his estate, or that it was so prevalent in the neighbourhood that it can be reasonably presumed to exist on that estate." In this case it was further pointed out that under both Act X of 1859 and Act VIII, B. C., of 1869, "occupancy rights were not transferable against the will of the landlord save by custom, not mere usage." "The Courts held," it was said, "that the custom of the country or the locality alone conferred the right of transfer of such holdings without the consent of the landlord. Sales of such holdings in execution of decrees against such tenants used occasionally to be held. When they were held at the instance of the landlord as decree-holder, the transfer so affected would be with his consent, but when the sales were in execution of decrees by third parties, the right of transfer without such consent was generally disputed. Rulings under the law in which it has been admitted or held that occupancy rights are transferable by custom will be found in Haro Mohan Mukhurji v. Lalan Mani Dasi, 1 W. R., 5; Jagat Chandra Raj v. Ram Narain Bhattacharji, 1 W. R., 126; Jai Krishna Mukhurji v. Raj Krishna Mukhurji, 1 W. R., 153; and Sriram Basu v. Bissonath Ghosh, 3 W. R., Act X, 3. Rulings to the effect that occupancy rights are not transferable save by custom are to be found in Sriram Basu v. Bissonath Ghosh, 3 W. R., Act X, 3; Ajudhya Prasad v. Imambandi Begum, 7 W. R., 528, (a Full Bench decision, overruling that in Tara Mani Dasi v. Biressar Mazumdar, 1 W. R., 86); Durga Sundari v. Brindaban Chandra Sarkar, 11 W. R., 162; 2 B. L. R., App, 37; Nanku Rai v. Mahabir Prasad, 11 W. R., 405; 3 B. L. R., App, 35; Annapurna Dasi v. Uma Charan Das, 18 W. R., 55; Shankarpati Thakurani v. Saifullah Khan, 18 W. R., 507; Buti Singh v. Murat Singh, 20 W. R., 478; 13 B. L. R., 284 note; Narendra Narain Rai v. Ishan Chandra Sen, 22 W. R., 22; 13 B. L. R., 274). Their lordships of the Privy Council have also recently held that under the old rent law a right of occupancy cannot be transferred (Chandrabati Kuer v. Hurrington, 18 Calc., 349; L. R., 18 I. A., 27).

But the existence of a custom in a particular district by which rights of occupancy in such district are transferable will not justify the holder of such a right of occupancy in sub-dividing his tenure and transferring different parts of it to different persons; and in case of such transfer the samindar is entitled to treat the transferees as trespassers and eject them (Tirthanand Thakur v. Mati Lal Misra, 3 Calc., 774). See note pp. 108, 109 and notes to sec. 183—"Proof of custom," "usage."

* Occupancy rights, not transferable by custom, do not pass at execution sales.—It is sometimes contended that, though there may be no custom or usage under which occupancy rights are transferable, they may yet pass at execution sales, and that such transfers, though not valid against the landlord, will yet be valid as against the former tenant. This, however, does not appear to be the law. Thus, in Kripa Nath Chaki v. Dyal Chand Pal, (22 W. R., 169), it was ruled that the sale of a jote in execution of a decree against a jotedar does not prove it to be transferable, nor does the purchaser acquire a right of occupancy by his purchase where the right is not dependent on custom, but is a mere creation of the rent law. Then, in Dwarkanath

Misra v. Haris Chandra (4 Calc., 925), it was held that the right of occupancy acquired by a cultivating raiyat under sec. 6 of Bengal Act VIII of 1869 cannot be transferred either by a voluntary sale or gift or in execution of a decree, and that "there is no ground for distinguishing a voluntary sale from a sale in execution; for, if a sale by private contract would validly pass it, then a sale in execution would equally pass it, and vice versa". The same was held in Bhiram Ali v. Gopi Nath Saha, (24 Calc, 355; 1 C. W. N., 396), in which it was ruled that "in the absence of custom or local usage to the contrary, a raiyati holding, in which the raiyat has only a right of occupancy, is not saleable at the instance of the occupancy raiyat or any creditor of his other than his landlord seeking to obtain satisfaction of his decree for arrears of rent." See also Piari Mohan Mukhurji v. Jati Kumar Mukhurji (11 C. W. N., 83). In a subsequent case, Basarat Mandal v. Sabulla Mandal, (2 C. W. N., cclxxix) in which Bhiram Ali v. Gopi Nath Saha was cited, it was held that the question of transferability was one which might be raised by the landlord, but could not be legitimately raised by a trespasser, and it was said that the plaintiff in this case having purchased the tenant right, whatever its precise nature, it had, a market value and was capable of being recognized by the landlord. The plaintiff had therefore a right to be protected in the enjoyment of his purchase against all the world, except possibly his landlord. See also Ambika Nath Acharji v. Aditya Nath Maitra, (6 C. W. N., 624). But in Durg Charan Mandal v. Kali Prosana Sirkar, (26 Calc., 727; 3 C. W. N., 586), Bhiram Ali v. Gopi Nath Saha was followed and it was held (1) that an occupancy holding not transferable by custom, as also the interest of the judgment-debtor in such holding, are not saleable in execution of a decree for rent obtained by certain co-sharer landlords: (2) that a judgment-debtor may raise such an objection, and (3) that the confirmation of the sale was no bar to the raising of such an objection. See also Sitanath Chaturji v. Atmaram Kar, (4 C. W. N., 571). But in another case, the defendant had owned a non-transferable holding, which was sold in execution of a decree against him, and one K was the purchaser; K transferred his interest and the transferee sued for possession; held, that the defendant having had full knowledge of the execution proceedings and not having objected to the sale was not competent to resist the purchaser after confirmation of sale (Murulla v. Burullah, 9 C. W. N., 972). In Majid Hossein v. Raghobar Chaudhri, (27 Calc., 187), it has been decided that, when an application is made to execute a decree for money by the attachment and sale of an occupancy holding, the judgment-debtor is entitled under s. 244, C. P. C., to raise the question as to whether the holding is saleable by custom or usage, and to have that question determined by the Court executing the decree. In a suit for recovery of khas possession by the plaintiff who had purchased an occupancy holding in execution of a mortgage decree, the defendant claimed under a lease from a co-sharer landlord who also had purchased the holding in execution of a decree for his share of the rent : Held, that the question of the transferability of the holding did not arise (Ayenuddin Nasya v. Srisri Chandra Banurji, 11 C. W. N., 76). When plaintiff had purchased a holding with the consent of the landlord, the question whether the holding was transferable by custom or usage without the consent of the landlord did not properly arise (Bibijan v. Kishori Mohan Bandopadhyaya, 11 C. W. N., cliv). See also Gauhar Khalifa v. Kasimudin (4 C. W. N., 557) and Durga Charan Agradani v. Karamat Khan, (7 C. W. N., 607). A sale in execution of a money decree of an occupancy holding not transferable by custom is valid and effectual, if the sale is held with the consent of the landlord (Ananda Das v. Ratnakar Panda, 7; C. W. N., 572), or if a settlement is made by the landlord with the purchaser as soon as can be reasonably expected after the sale (Dwarka Nath Pal v. Tarini Sankar Rai, 5 C. L. J., 289; 34 Calc., 199; 11 C. W. N., 513). But when a non-transferable holding is sold by a tenant by a kabala, he is estopped from setting up the invalidity of the sale by him (Bhagirath Changa v. Hafizudin, 4 C. W. N., 679). So also in the case of a mortgagor (Krishna Lal Saha v. Bhairab Chandra, 2 C. L. J., 19n). A non-transferable occupancy holding cannot be sold in execution of a decree obtained by an ijaradar of a fractional sharer of a portion of the rent payable to him so as to pass the holding (Sudagar Sarkar v. Krishna Chandra Nath, 3 C. W. N., 742; Jarip v. Ram Kumar De, 3 C. W. N., 747).

Onus and proof of transferability.—The onus of proof of the transferability of an occupancy right is upon the person who alleges it to be transferable (Shankarpatti Thakurani v. Saifullah Khan, 18 W. R., 507; Kirpamayi Debi v. Durga Govind Sarkar, 15 Calc., 89; Madhu Sudan Sen v. Kamini Kanta Sen, 9 C. W. N., 895; 32 Calc., 1023). If the usage of transferability is set up, it is necessary to prove its existence on the estate of the landlord or that it is so prevalent in the neighbourhood that it can be reasonably presumed to exist on that estate (Palakdhari Rai v. Manners, 23 Calc., 179). To prove a custom or usage of transferability, it is not sufficient to show that such holdings are sold in the village or neighbouring villages. The essence of such a usage is that transfers made to the knowledge of, but without the consent of, the landlord, are valid, and must be recognised by him (Piari Mohan Mukharji v. Jati Kumar Mukharji, 11 C. W. N., 83). A transfer of an occupancy holding cannot be justified by local usage, which is still growing up. The usage should have ripened into maturity (Ramhari Singh v. Jabbar Ali, 6 C. W. N., 861.) The recognition by the landlord of a raiyat as a tenant of a portion of a holding is not sufficient to prove the custom of transferability (Ganesh Das v. Ram Pratab Singh, 5 C. W. N., clxxv). Where the lower appellate Court said : "There is abundant evidence on the record to show that such lands are actually sold in the neighbourhood, and the kabulis filed in this case support this fact" : held, that this did not amount to a finding of a local usage (Dinonath Ghosh v. Nobin Chandra Ghosh, 6 C. W. N., 181).

Transfers of occupancy rights when transferable by custom how to be effected.—As already pointed out in the note to sec. 3, sub-sec. (18), pp. 39, 40, the sale or transfer of tangible immovable property can under sec. 54 of the Transfer of Property Act be effected, if the property is worth Rs. 100, and upwards, by a registered deed of sale, or if worth less than Rs. 100, by a registered deed of sale or by delivery of the property. This will apply to the sale of occupancy holdings. No registration of the transfer in the landlord's serishtah is required to be made and no suit to obtain such registration is now maintainable (Ambika Prasad Chaudhri v. Keshri Sahai, 24 Calc., 642.) The provisions of secs. 12 to 16 of the Act apply only to permanent tenure-holders and raiyats holding at fixed rates, but under sec. 73 of this Act, when an occupancy raiyat transfers his holding without the consent of his landlord, the transferor and transferee are jointly and severally liable to the landlord for arrears of rent accruing after the transfer until notice of the transfer is given to the landlord. Under the old law, transfers of ordinary raiyati holdings did not require to be registered in the landlord's serishtah (Tara Mani Das v. Biressar Mazumdar, 1 W. R., 86; Huro Mohan Mukhurji v. Chintamani Rai, 2 W. R., Act X, 19; Karu Lal Thakur v. Lachmipat Dugar, 7 W. R., 15; Uma Charan Selt v. Hari Prasad Misra, 10 W. R., 101; Jai Krishna Mukhurji v. Durga Narnain Nag, 11 W. R., 348), and in the case of a holding transferable by custom, the receipt of rent from the transferee by the landlord with knowledge of the transfer puts an end to the connection of the transferor with the holding (Abdul Aziz Khan v. Ahmed Ali, 14 Calc., 795).

Receipt of rent from transferee of non-transferable holding validates transfer.—It is clear that the receipt of rent by a landlord from the transferee of a holding not transferable by custom will validate the transfer (Nobo Kumar Ghosh v. Krishna Chandra Banerji, W. R., Sp. No., 1864, Act X, 112; Mritanjai Sarkar v. Gopal Chandra Sarkar, 10 W. R., 466 ; Bharat Rai v. Ganga Narain Mahapatra, 14 W. R., 211 ; Allender v. Dwarkanath Rai, 15 W. R., 320 ; Amin Baksh v. Bhairo Mandal, 22 W. R., 493 ; Hamid Ali Chaudhuri v. Asmat Ali, 11 C. W. N. clxviii). The same effect will result from the landlord having allowed sums paid in to the Collectorate as rent by the transferee to be carried to his credit (Ram Gobind Rai v. Dashubhuja Debi, 18 W. R., 195) ; and from his having made the transferee a party to a suit for rent and from his accepting a decree against him jointly with others (Ram Kishor Acharji v. Krishna Mani Debi, 23 W. R., 106 ; Mahomed Asmal v. Chandi Lal Pandey, 7 W. R., 250). But in Gaur Lal Sarkar v. Rameshar Bhunik, (6 B. L. R., App., 92), it was said that the mere receipt of rent on the part of the zamindar from a purchaser from a tenant having a right of occupancy will not sanction the sale to the purchaser so as to give him a right of occupancy, as the zamindar might not have been fully aware of the transfer ; and the payment of rent marfatwari confers no raiyati title on the marfatwar (Khudiram Chaturji v. Rukhini Boishtobi, 15 W. R., 197) ; and when rent is taken from a purchaser as sarbarikhar, the purchaser is not recognised by the landlord as his tenant (Rasomai Purkhait v. Srinath Maira, 7 C. W. N., 132.) Finally, in Bhajokhari Banik v. Aka Ghulam Ali (16 W. R., 97) it was pointed out that the purchaser of a raiyati tenure is bound to communicate with the zamindar and obtain his consent to the transfer of the tenure, and that, without this being done, a gumashla's receipts of rent are not binding on the zamindar. In Sheo Charan Lal v. Prabhu Dayal, (1 C. W. N., 142), it was ruled that having regard to the provisions of section 107 of the Transfer of Property Act, which lay down that a lease from year to year or for a term of more than one year can be made only by a registered instrument, the mere acceptance of rent by the real owner under a lease granted by a trespasser cannot bind the real owner. It does not, however, appear that the lease in this case was one granted for agricultural purposes (see sec. 117 of the Transfer of Property Act).

Sub-letting.—The provisions as to sub-letting will be found in sec. 85. Under the section, any raiyat may sub-let his holding subject to certain restrictions, and under clause (e), sub-section (3), section 178 of this Act nothing contained in any contract made between a landlord and a tenant after the passing of this Act shall take away the right of an occupancy raiyat to sub-let his land subject to, and in accordance with, the provisions of this Act.

Enhancement of rent.

*Enhancement of rent.
Presumption as to fair and equitable rent.*

27. The rent for the time being payable by an occupancy-raiyat shall be presumed to be fair and equitable until the contrary is proved.

Extended to Orissa, (Not., June 27th, 1892).

The provisions to this section are supplementary to those of sec. 24, which prescribe that an occupancy raiyat shall pay rent for his holding at fair and equitable rates. The two sections are founded on the provisions of section 5 of Act X of 1859 and of Act VIII, B. C., of 1869, according to which the rate previously paid by a raiyat was to be presumed fair and equitable until the contrary was shown in a suit by either party. (See Ishar Ghosh v. Hills, W. R., Sp. No., F. B., 148; Hills v. Jendur Mandal 1 W. R., 3; Thakurani Dasi v. Bisheshar Mukhurji, 3 W. R., Act X, 29; B. L. R., F. B., 202).

money-rents.*

28. Where an occupancy-raiyat pays his rent in money, his rent shall not be enhanced except as provided by this Act.

Extended to Orissa, (Not., June 27th, 1892).

Enhancement—Enhancement of rent must mean an enhancement of the same kind of rent. A conversion of nakdi into bhaoli, cannot be regarded as an enhancement (Hassan Kuli Khan v. Nakchhedhi Nonia, 33 Calc., 200; Gauri Saran Makto v. Mahamed Latif Hussain, 4 C. L. J., 82 n).

Produce rents.—Produce rents apparently cannot be enhanced under the provisions of this sub-chapter. The only section of this sub-chapter that applies to rents payable in kind would seem to be section 27. A landlord can, however, always apply under sec. 40 to commute a rent payable in kind into a money rent, and then the provisions of this sub-chapter will be applicable. Under the old law, this could also be done, and in a case brought for this purpose it was held that the fact of the raiyat having paid in kind for a number of years was no bar to enhancement (Thakur Prasad v. Mahomed Bakir, 8 W. R., 170; Mahomed Yakub Hossein v. Wahid Ali, 4 W. R., Act X, 23).

of rent by contract.*

29. The money-rent of an occupancy-raiyat may be enhanced by contract, subject to the following conditions:—

- (a) the contract must be in writing and registered ;
- (b) the rent must not be enhanced so as to exceed by more than two annas in the rupee the rent previously payable by the raiyat ;
- (c) the rent fixed by the contract shall not be liable to enhancement during a term of fifteen years from the date of the contract ⁽¹⁾ :

Provided as follows—

- (i) Nothing in clause (a) shall prevent a landlord from recovering rent at the rate at which it has been actually paid for a continuous period of not less three years immediately preceding the period for which the rent is claimed.
- (ii) Nothing in clause (b) shall apply to a contract by which a raiyat binds himself to pay an enhanced rent in consideration of an improvement which has been or is to be effected in respect of the holding by, or at the expense of, his landlord, and to the benefit of which the raiyat is not otherwise entitled ; but an enhanced rent fixed by such a contract shall be payable only when the improvement has been effected, and, except when the raiyat is chargeable with default in respect of the improvement, only so long as the improvement, exists and substantially produces its estimated effect in respect of the holding.

(1) Compare s. 9. No such restriction is placed on the enhancement of tenure-holders' rents by contract.

- (iii) When a raiyat has held his land at a specially low rate of rent in consideration of cultivating a particular crop for the convenience of the landlord, nothing in clause (b) shall prevent the raiyat from agreeing, in consideration of his being released from the obligation of cultivating that crop, to pay such rent as he may deem fair and equitable.

This section applies only to an increase in the rate of rent, and not to an increase in the amount of rent by reason of an increase of the area (Satish Chandra Giri v. Kabiruddin Mallik, 26 Calc., 233; Nilmadhab Saha v. Kadam Mandal, 3 C. L. J., 74 n^o). On the expiry of the term of a prior settlement the plaintiff took a fresh settlement from Government of certain lands and contracted with the Government that he would not collect higher rents than were recorded in the settlement papers:—held, that that contract would not prevent him from recovering from the defendants higher rents by enforcing a contract which the latter had entered into with him. Section 9 of Reg. VII of 1822 did not render such an agreement illegal (Gaur Chandra Saha v. Mani Mohan Sen, 32 Calc., 463). When additional rent is claimed on the ground that the defendant has converted arable land into pasture land, and that both by contract and custom arable land is liable to pay more rent than pasture land, the suit is not one for enhanced rent under sec. 29 (Rameswar Singh v. Kanchan Sahu, 1 C. L. J., 78 n).

Clause (a)—A widow may sign a kabulyat on behalf of her minor son agreeing to pay enhanced rent, and the son on attaining full age and entering on possession of the tenancy is bound by the kabulyat (Watson & Co. v. Sham Lall Mitra, 15 Calc., 8). The words “both parties to give effect to the terms of the solehnamah” do not amount to incorporating the solehnamah in the decree and, therefore, the decree does not make any matter mentioned in the solehnamah res judicata or judicial evidence, when it has not been registered (Atilram Saha v. Nidan Mandal, 10 C. W. N., liv).

Clause (b)—A contract which contravenes the provisions of this clause is wholly void. It is not divisible, so that a decree for enhanced rent up to the extent allowed by law cannot be given (Krishna Dhan Ghosh v. Brojo Gobindu Rai, 24 Calc., 895; 1 C. W. N., 442). But an agreement embodied in a kabulyat, to pay a certain amount of rent and which had been entered into by the raiyat not as an agreement for the enhancement of rent, but as a settlement of a dispute as to the nature and character of the existing rent so as to avoid further litigation, is not an agreement to enhance within the meaning of this clause (Sheo Sahay Pandey v. Ram Rachia Rai, 18 Calc., 333; Nath Singh v. Damri Singh, 28 Calc., 90. See also Madhu Manjhi v. Nil Mani Singh, 18 W. R., 533). But under s. 109 B (2) and s. 147 A (3), added to the Act by Act I, B. C., of 1907, where any agreement or compromise made for the purpose of settling a dispute as to the rent payable is filed before a Revenue officer or in Court, the Revenue officer or the Court is required, in order to ascertain whether the effect of such agreement or compromise is to enhance the rent in a manner, or to an extent, not allowed by s. 29 in the case of a contract, to record evidence as to the rent which was legally payable immediately before the period in respect of which the dispute arose. And under s. 109 B (1) and s. 147 A (2) the Revenue officer or Court is not allowed to give effect to any agreement or compromise, the terms of which, if they were embodied in a contract, could not be enforced under this Act. Apparently, therefore, the rulings as to the effect of agreements entered into with the object of settling disputes as to the rent payable have been set aside where Act I, B. C., of 1907 is in force. The provisions of clause (b) are not retrospective and do not apply to a kabulyat executed before the passing of this Act (Tejendra Narain Singh v. Bakai Singh, 22 Calc., 658). It was further held in the last cited case by Prinsep and Ghosh, J. J., (Rampini, J., dissenting), that a stipulation in a kabulyat executed in 1881 that on the expiry of seven years a fresh lease would be executed, and that if the raiyat cultivated the lands without executing a fresh lease, he would pay rent at the rate of Rs. 4 per bigha (a rate much higher than that fixed for the term of seven years) was in the nature of a penalty and could not be enforced. By an oral agreement in the year 1885, a tenant agreed to pay an enhancement of rent, and he paid rent at that rate until subsequently in the year 1893 he executed a registered kabulyat by which he agreed to pay a further enhancement of rent, which was more than two annas in the rupee. The landlord then sued on the kabulyat for the rent agreed to therein, and it was held (*) that, inasmuch as the enhancement of rent referred to in s. 29 of the Bengal Tenancy Act refers to enhancement after the promulgation of the Act, if in this case the enhancement which was made in the year 1885 was before the Act came into force, it would not bar an enhancement during the period of fifteen years from the date thereof, as contemplated by cl. (3) of s. 29. But if the said enhancement was made after the Act came into force, it would also not bar a subsequent enhancement within fifteen years from the date thereof, as the previous contract was only an oral one, and was not effectual and binding upon the defendant : (2) that, having regard to cl. (b) of s. 29, as the enhancement was more than two annas in the rupee, the registered kabulyat was bad in law, if the rent then agreed to be paid was an enhanced rent. The kabulyat was also bad in law, if the rent agreed to be paid was partly enhanced and partly increased rent (Mathura Mohan Lahiri v. Mati Sarkar, 25 Calc., 781). When a lease is in the nature of a usufructuary mortgage, no right of occupancy can accrue by holding under such a lease. Hence, cl. (b) of sec. 29 does not bar a claim to increased rent (Mohan Lal Dohy v. Radhey Koer, 7 C. W. N., ccxv).

A kabulyat executed by an occupancy raiyat at an enhanced rate of more than two annas in the rupee, although executed in consideration of the avoidance of stringent conditions in a previous lease, is void. (Probat Chandra Gangapadhyia v. Chirag Ali, 33 Calc., 607 ; 11 C. W. N., 62 ; 4 C. L. J., 320).

Proviso (1) Effect of payment of rent for three years.—

In the case of Mathura Mohan Lahiri v. Mati Sarkar (25 Calc., 781), cited above, it was further held that having regard to the proviso (1) of s. 29 and the provisions of s. 27, the plaintiff would at any rate, (i. e., failing the kabulyat), be entitled to recover rent at the rate paid by the defendant for more than three years. When a raiyat agreed on behalf of himself and his co-sharers to pay enhanced rent, and the enhanced rent was paid for four years, it was held that it might be assumed that the co-sharers acquiesced in the arrangement, and the holding would be liable for the rent, and the co-sharers would be answerable to the raiyat who had made the arrangement to pay the enhanced rent for any payment made under it (Barhanudin Howladar v. Mohun Chandra Guha, 8 C. L. R., 511). But it was subsequently decided by a Full Bench that proviso 1 to s. 29 does not control clause (b) of that section. The landlord of an occupancy raiyat cannot therefore recover rent at the rate at which it has been paid for a continuous period of not less than three years immediately preceding the period for which the rent is claimed, if such rate exceeds by more than two annas in the rupee the rent previously paid by the raiyat. The case of Mathura Mohan Lahiri v. Mati Sarkar, so far as it decided to the contrary was wrongly decided. The rate contemplated by proviso (1) is not the average rate (Bipin Bihari Mandal v. Krishnadhan Ghose, 32 Calc., 395 ; 9 C. W. N., 295, 1 C. L. J., 10. ; Asraf Paramanik v. Sarada Prasad Rai, 10 C. W. N., civ). The rule would appear to be that save on the ground of a landlord's improvement or release from the obligation to grow a special crop, the money rent of an occupancy raiyat cannot be enhanced by contract between the raiyat and his landlord by more than two annas in the rupee, or oftener than once in fifteen years. Higher or more frequent enhancements can only be obtained by suit. See also Ram Taran Chaturji v. Asmatullah, (5 C. W. N. ccxxiv). Where tenants after mortgaging their land agree to pay, and for two or three years pay, an increased rent to their landlord who is ignorant of the mortgage, and the property is afterwards sold in execution of the mortgage debt, the zamindar is entitled to recover the increased rent from the tenants or from the party who has succeeded to their rights and interests (Mitrajit Singh v. Raj Chandra Rai, 15 W. R., 448).

Proviso (ii). To justify enhancement in contravention of cl. (b) of sec. 29, evidence as regards the improvement effected by the landlord and of the fact that enhancement was agreed to be paid in consideration of such improvement is admissible (Probat Chandra Gangopadhyia v. Chirag Ali, 33 Calc., 607 ; 9 C. W. N., 62 ; 4 C. L. J., 320.)

Proviso (iii). An agreement to pay an enhanced rent in case the tenant raises a particular crop is not protected by proviso (iii) to sec. 29 (Probat Chandra Gangopadhyia v. Chirag Ali, 33 Calc., 607 ; 9 C. W. N., 62 ; 4 C. L. J., 320.) When kabulyats are executed for increased rents on account of increase in the areas of the holdings, but not for enhanced rates, sec. 29 has no application (Nil Madhub Saha v. Kadam Mandal, 3 C. J. L., 74 n.).

30. The landlord of a holding held at a money-rent by an occupancy-raiyat may, subject to the provisions of this Act, institute a suit to enhance the rent on one or more of the following grounds, (namely) :—

of rent by suit.

(a) that the rate of rent paid by the raiyat is below the prevailing rate paid by occupancy-raiyats for land of a similar description and with similar advantages in the same village [or in neighbouring villages], and that there is no sufficient reason for his holding at so low a rate ;

(b) that there has been a rise in the average local prices of staple food-crops during the currency of the present rent ;

- (c) that the productive powers of the land held by the raiyat have been increased by an improvement effected by, or at the expense of, the landlord during the currency of the present rent ;
- (d) that the productive powers of the land held by the raiyat have been increased by fluvial action.

Explanation.—“ Fluvial action ” includes a change in the course of a river rendering irrigation from the river practicable when it was not previously practicable.

Extended to Orissa, (Not., June 27th, 1892).

The words in brackets in clause (a) were inserted by the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Act, III, B. C., of 1898 which was extended to Orissa by Not., Nov. 5, 1898. A suit for enhancement of rent under this section may be referred to arbitration (Ganga Charan Rai v. Sasti Mandal, 6 C. W. N., 614.)

Clause (a) Prevailing rate.—A definition of the expression “prevailing rate” is now to be found in section 31 A, sub-section (1), introduced into the Tenancy Act by the amending Act of 1898, where it is provided that “in any district or part of a district to which this sub-section is extended by the Local Government by notification in the Calcutta Gazette, whenever the prevailing rate in any class of land is to be ascertained under section 30, clause (a), by an examination of the rates at which lands of a similar description and with similar advantages are held within any village or villages, the highest of such rates at which and at rates higher than which the larger portion of those lands is held may be taken to be the prevailing rate.” On the subject of the amendments made in this section and in sec. 31 of this Act by the amending Act of 1898, it was said in the Statement of Objects and Reasons of the Bill to amend the Act :—

“ The third object of this Bill is to amend the substantive provisions of the law relating to the enhancement of rent, so as to make them workable on certain points on which they are now practically inoperative. In suits and proceedings for enhancement of rent on the ground of prevailing rate, the Civil Courts and Revenue Officers are bound to confine their enquiries and comparisons of rates to the same village, and the definition of what is a prevailing rate is so vaguely worded that in practice it is found almost impossible to enhance rents on this ground. A revenue survey village in Bengal may contain 100 acres, or several thousand acres, or may consist of scattered blocks. It does not necessarily furnish a proper standard of comparison. As regards the meaning of the term "prevailing rate," there is only one decision of the High Court bearing on the subject, and that declares that a prevailing rate is not an average rate, but does not explain what it is. The view taken by the Special Judges generally has been that a prevailing rate is a uniform rate paid by a majority of the raiyats for lands of the same class in the village. This was the interpretation generally put on the term "prevailing rate" under Act X of 1859. The effect of the wording of section 30 of the Act, as it stands, is to give a ground of enhancement which cannot be worked. It is proposed to somewhat enlarge the area for comparison, while an attempt is made to define what is meant by "prevailing rate." Whatever objections there may be to this ground of enhancement generally, it is universally admitted that when land is held at a pepper-corn rent by reason of fraud or collusion between the proprietor's amlu and the raiyats, there is no other ground on which the zamindar can obtain an enhancement up to a reasonable rate except that of the "prevailing rate," and in such case it is just that this ground of enhancement should be made a workable one. The intention of the amendments proposed in sections 30 and 31 of the Act, and of the new sections 31 A and 31 B is to effect this object, without at the same time endangering the interests of the tenants by making an average rate a prevailing rate, thus rendering it possible to level all the lower rates up to such average rate, while maintaining all the higher rates, however much in excess they may be of the average rate. As, under the definition now proposed, a prevailing rate will always be found where rates exist at all, and the effect of the new definition will be to greatly facilitate the enhancement of rents, and as rents are known to be already too high in certain districts, power is taken by Government to withhold the operation of the new definition from any district or part of a district. In order to guard against all the rates being levelled up to the maximum rate, by manipulation of new prevailing rates from time to time, it is provided in section 31 B that a prevailing rate once determined shall not be liable to enhancement except on the ground of rise in prices."

The case referred to in the above extract is apparently the case of Shital Mandal v. Prasannā Mayi Debi, (21 Cal., 986), in which it is said that the words "prevailing rate" in clause (a), section 30, appear to be used in the sense in which they are used in the earlier cases under Act X of 1859, and mean "the rate actually paid and current in the village, and not the average rate."

As the definition of "prevailing rate" given in section 31 A (1) will only apply in those districts to which the local Government may extend the provisions of that sub-section, the rulings in Shital Mandal v. Prasanna Mayi Debi and other cases on this subject will be of importance in suits arising in districts to which they may not have been extended. In another case under clause (a), section 30, where it was found that there was no one prevailing rate, and that the raiyats holding lands in the village of similar description and with similar advantages paid rent at varying rates, it was held that the lowest rate might be taken and the rent of the defendants might be enhanced up to that rate (Alij Khan v. Raghunath Tewari, 1 C. W. N., 310). When there were different kinds of land, and the majority of tenants holding lands similar to those of the defendant paid a higher rate, this higher rate was held to be the prevailing rate (Maugni Rai v. Seo Charan Munder, 1 C. W. N., clxxix). In one case, decided under the former law, Dina Ghazi v. Mohini Mohan Das, (21 W. R., 157), it was held that, if a generally prevailing rate cannot be found, the currency of the different rates being so nearly equal as to make it impossible to say which is the prevailing rate, the average of the different rates current in the village may be taken and treated as the prevailing rate. But this case stands by itself. In Samira Khatun v. Gopal Lal Tagor, (1 W. R., 58) ; Roshan Bibi v. Chandra Madhab Kar, (16 W. R., 177) and Audh Bihari Singh v. Dost Mahomed, (22 W. R., 185), it was expressly said that the adoption of an average rate from different rates was not the correct mode of fixing the proper rate, and in Sadhu Singh v. Ramanugraha Lal, (9 W. R., 83), the words "prevailing rate" were held to mean the rate generally prevalent, or the rate paid by the majority of the raiyats in the village. In Dhunraj Kunwar v. Uggar Narain Kunwar, (15 W. R., 2), they were said to mean the rate paid by so large a majority of the same class of tenants for similar lands as would justify one to hold the rate to be the prevailing rate. Then, it was observed that a decision must be arrived at as to what is the prevailing rate, and a decree should not be given for "a fair rate" (Pelaram Kotai v. Nund Kumar Chatteram, 6 W. R., Act X, 45). That rate need not be the prevailing rate ; it may be a lower rate (Akul Ghazi v. Aminuddin, 5 C. L. R., 41). Putwarian and abwabs must not be taken into consideration in finding what is the prevailing rate (Barmah Chaudhri v. Srinand Singh, 12 W. R., 29). The fact of a particular rate of rent having been decreed against two raiyats not having rights of occupancy is not enough to show that the rate so decreed is the rate prevailing in the neighbourhood (Sarahatunnissa v. Gyani Raktaur, 11 W. R., 142). Nor can the rate claimed be held to be established as the prevailing rate on the probability, or even the certainty, that if the rents of the neighbouring occupants were re-adjusted, they would come up to the rate claimed

Clause (a). Lands of a similar description.—In one case, Tikaram Singh v. Sandes, (22 W. R., 335), in which, although the plaintiff had not given evidence as to the rate of rent payable by tenants of the same class holding lands of precisely similar quality and adjacent to those occupied by the defendant, yet he had given evidence as to such lands so occupied of a somewhat better quality than those occupied by the defendant, and the rate of rent allowed was such as, regard being had to the slight difference in the quality of the lands, was proper to award in conformity with the spirit of the rent law, it was held that this decision was reasonable and was accordingly affirmed. The principles enunciated in this case, however, hardly seem to be good law.

Clause (a).^{*} Sufficient reason for holding at low rate.—Sufficient reasons for raiyats holding at exceptionally low rates would seem to be that they hold the land on reclaiming or jangalhuri leases, or have reclaimed the land (see Nur Mahomed v. Hari Prasanno Rai, W. R., Sp. No., 1864, Act X, 75; Chaudhri Khan v. Gaur Jana, 2 W. R., Act X, 40; Parmanand Sen v. Paddamani Dasiya, 9 W. R., 349; Surasundari Debi v. Ghulam Ali, 19 W. R., 141; Haro Prasad Rai v. Janmajai Bairagi, 9 Calc., 505; 12 C. L. R., 251), or that they belong to classes of raiyats holding land at favourable rates of rent in accordance with local custom [see sec. 31, clause (c)].

Clause (b). Rise in prices.—Under the old law, (sec. 17, clause (2), of Act X of 1859 and sec. 18, para. (3), of Act VIII, B.C., of 1869) a raiyat's rent could be enhanced on the ground of a rise in, "the value of produce." This was difficult to prove: see Haro Prasad Rai v. Umatar Debi, (7 Calc., 263). It will in future be easy, in consequence of the provisions of sec. 39, which prescribe the preparation of lists of the market prices of staple food crops, to establish a right to enhancement on the ground of a rise in prices, which must be a rise in the prices of food crops, and will not depend on the value of the particular crop grown by the raiyat, which, if an export, may fluctuate with the fluctuations of foreign markets.

Clauses (c) and (d). Increase in productive powers of land.—The old law allowed of an enhancement of rent on the ground of an increase in "the productive powers of land, otherwise than by the agency and expense of the raiyat." This ground of enhancement has now been subdivided into two, viz., landlords improvements and fluvial action, which alone, in the opinion of the framers of the Act, "can bring about an increase in the productive powers of the land so as to justify an enhancement of rent." "All other cases," it was said by Sir Steuart Bayley, "seem to resolve themselves into cases, such as railways or canals, in which the landlord will get his enhancement by improvement of prices, or else into improvements effected by Government or by the raiyat" (Selections from papers relating to the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1886, p. 415).

Increase of area.—Under the old law the raiyat's rent could also be enhanced on the ground of an increase in area of the land held by him. This is, properly speaking, not a ground of enhancement, and is therefore dealt with separately in section 52.

No notices of enhancement required.—As already pointed out in the note to s. 6, p. 55, notices of enhancement are wholly unnecessary.

By whom suit for enhancement may be brought.—Having regard to the provisions of sec. 188 of this Act, a suit for enhancement of rent on the grounds specified in this section must be brought by all the landlords, and cannot proceed at the instance of some only of the fractional co-sharers (Gopal Chandra Das v. Umesh Narain Chaudhri, 17 Calc., 695; Baidya Nath De Sarkar v. Ilum, 2 C. W. N., 44; 25 Calc., 917). See note to sec. 188. Sec. 30 of the Act does not apply to the enhancement of the rent of an undivided share of a holding (Horibol Brahma v. Tasimudin Mandal, 2 C. W. N., 680). A suit for enhancement may be brought by a farmer (Durga Charan Chaturji v. Golak Chandra Biswas, 23 W. R., 228); by an ijaradar, when there is no stipulation in his lease precluding him from so doing (Durga Prasad Mahanti v. Jainarain Hazrah, 2 Calc., 474); and by a Hindu widow, whether suing as widow of her deceased husband or, as guardian of her minor son (Surja Kanth Acharji v. Hemanta Kumari, 20 Calc., 498; L. R., 25 I. A., 25).

Time from which enhancement takes effect.—Under the provisions of sec. 154, a decree for enhancement, if passed in a suit instituted in the first eight months of the agricultural year, ordinarily takes effect from the commencement of the next agricultural year; if passed in a suit instituted in the last four months of the agricultural year, it ordinarily takes effect on the commencement of the next year but one following; but a later date may for special reasons be fixed by the Court.

Arbitration.—In a suit for enhancement of rent under sec. 30 the case was referred to arbitration. Held, that the arbitrator had jurisdiction to settle a fair and equitable rent, as the parties declared that they would be bound by what the arbitrator would decide (Ganga Charan Rai v. Sasti Mantal, 6 C. W. N., 614).

Court-fees.—Under sec. 7, sub-sec. 11 of Act VII of 1870, in a suit to enhance the rent of a raiyat having a right of occupancy, the amount of the fee payable shall be computed according to the amount of the rent of the land to which the suit refers, payable for the year next before the date of presenting the plaint.

Rules as to enhancement on ground of prevailing rate.

31. Where an enhancement is claimed on the ground that the rate of rent paid is below the prevailing rate—

(a) in determining what is the prevailing rate the Court shall have regard to the rates generally paid during a period of not less than three years before the institution of the suit, and shall not decree an enhancement unless there is a substantial difference between the rate paid by the raiyat and the prevailing rate found by the Court ;

(b) if in the opinion of the Court the prevailing rate of rent cannot be satisfactorily ascertained without a local inquiry, the Court may direct that a local inquiry be held under Chapter XXV of the Code of

XIV of 1882. Civil Procedure by such Revenue-officer as the Local Government may authorise in that behalf by rules made under section 392 of the said Code :

(c) in determining under this section the rate of rent payable by a raiyat his caste shall not be taken into consideration, unless it is proved that by local custom caste is taken into account in determining the rate ; and,

whenever it is found that by local custom any description of raiyats hold land at favourable rates of rent, the rate shall be determined in accordance with that custom ;

(d) in ascertaining the prevailing rate of rent the amount of any enhancement authorized on account of a landlord's improvement shall not be taken into consideration ;

(e) if a favourable rate has been determined under clause (c) for any description of raiyats, such rate may, if the Court thinks fit, be left out of consideration in ascertaining the prevailing rate ;

(f) if the holding is held at a lump rental, the determination of the rent to be paid may be made by ascertaining the different classes of land comprised within the holding, and applying to the area of each class the prevailing rate paid on that class within the village or neighbouring villages.]

Extended to Orissa, (Not., Jan., 27th, 1892).

Clauses (e) and (f) of this section have been added by the amending Act III, B. C., of 1898, which has been extended to Orissa, (Not., Nov. 5th, 1898).

Clause (b). Government Notification regarding rank of Commissioner.—In the Calcutta Gazette of 22nd July, 1890, Part I, p. 756, is published the following notification, with reference to the provisions of cl. (b) of this section :—

“In modification of the Government notification, dated 4th Nov., 1885, the Lieutenant-Governor has been pleased to make under sec. 392 of Act XIV of 1882, the following revised rules as to the persons to whom commissions shall be issued under the Bengal Tenancy Act.

“Whenever, under secs. 31 (b) and 158 (2) of the Bengal Tenancy Act, a Court directs that a local inquiry be held under Chap. XXV of the Code of Civil Procedure, the commission shall be issued to such person, not being below the rank of a Sub-Deputy Collector, as the Collector of the district may, from time to time, select for the purpose."

"The Court shall issue a precept to the Collector requiring him forthwith to nominate a fit person as above to conduct the inquiry, and the commission shall be issued to the person so nominated."

Clause (b). Board of Revenue's instructions regarding local inquiries.—The Board of Revenue in its circular No. 4 for August, 1894, points out that the person to whom the commission is issued

"is bound, under the Civil Procedure Code, to make the local inquiries himself. He may entertain a reasonable staff of chainmen and amins to enable him to perform the work properly.

"No cost should be incurred to meet the charges of the local inquiry beyond that actually allowed by the Court issuing the commission, under rule 30 (b) at page 41 of the High Court's General Rules and Circular Orders, as revised in 1891. If the probable costs were calculated with regard to the time likely to be occupied in the execution of the commission, and the commissioner finds that the time fixed is insufficient, he should give timely notice to the party at whose instance the commission was issued and report the fact to the Court. Then, unless the sum necessary to cover the expenses for such further period as may be required to complete the execution of the commission is deposited in Court by the party and the commissioner certified of such deposit, he should suspend the investigation at the close of the period originally fixed, pending the further instructions of the Court."

The expenses of the commission will generally fall under the following heads :

- (1) Remuneration of the commissioner.
- (2) His travelling and halting allowances.
- (3) Charges for the temporary subordinate establishment that may be employed.
- (4) Incidental charges that may be unavoidable.

The first will be calculated on the basis of the actual pay which the person to whom the commission is issued has been receiving. The second will be regulated by the scale prescribed for officers of Government of the class to which the commissioner belongs, unless the Court should, for exceptional reasons, order an allowance in excess of the above. The third and the fourth will be passed on the authority of the Revenue officers concerned, but must on no account assume proportions so as to exceed, in conjunction with the charges under heads (1) and (2), the sum actually allowed by the Court."

The Board of Revenue in its circular No. 7 of April, 1899, says :—

"The words 'from time to time' in the notification, above quoted" (i. e., the Government notification) "give the Collector the option of changing his nomination, if, in case of sickness, transfer, urgent press of work, or other valid reason, his original nominee cannot make the enquiry."

Clause (c).—The provisions of this clause are founded on, and are almost identical with, those of section 20 of the North-Western Provinces Rent Act (XII of 1881). The custom in question must be a local, and not a family custom. (Reynolds's N. W. Provinces Rent Act, p. 34¹).

[31A.] (1) In any district or part of a district to which this sub-section is extended by the Local Government by notification in the Calcutta Gazette, whenever the prevailing rate for any class of land is to be ascertained under section 30, clause (a), by an examination of the rates at which lands of a similar description and with similar advantages are held within any village or villages, the highest of such rates at which and at rates higher than which the larger portion of those lands is held may be taken to be the prevailing rate.

What may be taken in certain districts to be the "prevailing rate."

Illustrations.

(a) The rates at which land of a similar description and with similar advantages is held in a village are as follow :—

200	„	1	8	0
150	„	1	12	0

Total ... 700

Then, Rs. 2-4 is not the prevailing rate, because only 150 bighas, or less than half, are held at that rate. Rs. 2 is not the prevailing rate, because 250 bighas, or less than half, are held at that or a higher rate. Re. 1-12 is the prevailing rate, because 400 bighas, or more than half, are held either at this or a higher rate, and this is the highest rate at which, and at rates higher than which, more than half the land is held.

(b) The rates at which land of a similar description and with similar advantages is held in a village are as follow :—

250	,,	1	4	0
150	,,	1	8	0
150	,,	1	12	0
50	,,	2	0	0
<hr/>

Then, for the reasons given in illustration (a), neither Rs. 2 nor Re 1-12 is the prevailing rate, nor is Re. 1-8 the prevailing rate, because only 350 bighas (exactly half) are held at Re. 1-8 or at rates higher than Re. 1-8. In this case Re. 1-4 is the prevailing rate, because more than half the lands are held at Re. 1-4 or higher rates, and this is the highest rate at which, or at rates higher than which, more than half the land is held.

(2) The Local Government may, by a like notification, withdraw sub-section (1) from any district or part of a district to which it has been extended as aforesaid.]

Extended to Orissa (Not, Nov. 5th, 1898) and to the district of Tipperah (Not., No. 1470, T. R., dated September 1st, 1900).

Section 31A.—This is a new section introduced into the Act by the amending Act III, B. C., of 1898. In it the Legislature for the first time abandons the principle laid down in the rulings of the High Court (see note, pp. 125, 126) to the effect that the prevailing rate is that paid by the majority of raiyats in the village and prescribes that the highest of the rates at which and at rates higher than which the major portion of the lands of any area is held may be taken to be the prevailing rate. This is a new departure in two respects, viz., (1) that the prevailing rate is now defined not with reference to the number of raiyats paying rent, but with reference to the quantity of land for which rent is payable; and (2) that it enables the highest of rates in the ascending scale of rates, at which and at rates higher than which the major portion of land of a similar description and with similar advantages in the same village or in neighbouring villages is held to be taken as the prevailing rate; so that in time all lesser rates may be raised to this rate. The provisions of sub-section (1) will, however, only be applicable in those districts to which the Local Government may see fit to extend them. See note pp. 124, 125.

[31B.] When the prevailing rate has once been determined by a Revenue Officer under Chapter X or by a Civil Court in any suit under this Act, it shall not be liable to enhancement save on the ground and to the extent specified in section 30, clause (b), and section 32.]

Limit to enhancement of prevailing rate.

Extended to Orissa (Not., Nov. 5th, 1898).

Section 31 B.—This section was also introduced into the Act by the amending Act of 1898.

In the statement of Objects and Reasons it was stated: "In order to guard against all the rates being levelled up to the maximum rate by manipulation of new prevailing rates from time to time, it is provided in section 31B that a prevailing rate once determined shall not be liable to enhancement except on the ground of rise in prices." The section applies only to the enhancement of a prevailing rate, when such a rate has once been determined. It would not apparently prevent the rent of a particular holding being enhanced on any of the other grounds specified in section 30 of the Act, i.e. "landlord's improvements" or "fluvial action." Where such grounds are applicable to a particular holding, its rent can apparently be enhanced, even though the rent had been fixed with reference to a prevailing rate.

Rules as to enhancement on ground of rise in prices.

32. Where an enhancement is claimed on the ground of a rise in prices—

- (a) the Court shall compare the average prices during the decennial period immediately preceding the institution of the suit with the average prices during such other decennial period as it may appear equitable and practicable to take for comparison ;
- (b) the enhanced rent shall bear to the previous rent the same proportion as the average prices during the last decennial period bear to the average prices during the previous decennial period taken for purposes of comparison: provided that, in calculating this proportion, the average prices during the later period shall be reduced by one-third of their excess over the average prices during the earlier period;

- (c) if in the opinion of the Court it is not practicable to take the decennial periods prescribed in clause (a), the Court may, in its discretion, substitute any shorter periods therefor.

Extended to Orissa (Not., June 27th, 1892).

Clause (a).—Section 39 provides for the preparation of price-lists so as to enable the provisions of this clause to be given effect to.

Clause (b).—The rule of proportion embodied in this clause is that laid down by the Judges in the case of Thakurani Dasi v. Bisheshar Mukhurji, (B. L. R., F. B., 202 ; 3 W. R., Act X, 29). The deduction prescribed in the proviso is to allow for the increased cost of production. The Select Committee on the Bill on this point said :—“We recognised the difficulty of making the Courts ascertain the actual cost of production, and, as it was necessary to fix an arbitrary limit, we have fixed the deduction at one-third as a general rule” (Selections from papers relating to the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, p. 384).

Rules as to enhancement on ground of landlord's improvement.

33. (1) Where an enhancement is claimed on the ground of a landlord's improvement—

- (a) the Court shall not grant an enhancement unless the improvement has been registered in accordance with this Act ;
- (b) in determining the amount of enhancement the Court shall have regard to—
- (i) the increase in the productive powers of land caused or likely to be caused by the improvement,

- (ii) the cost of the improvement,
- (iii) the cost of the cultivation required for utilizing the improvement, and
- (iv) the existing rent and the ability of the land to bear a higher rent.

(2) A decree under this section shall, on the application of the tenant or his successor in interest, be subject to re-consideration in the event of the improvement not producing or ceasing to produce the estimated effect.

Extended to Orissa (Not., June 27th, 1892).

The subject of "improvements" is dealt with in sections 76 to 83. The rent of an occupancy raiyat may, also under section 29, be enhanced by private contract made between the landlord and the raiyat on account of an improvement made by the landlord ; but the enhanced rent fixed by such contract is only payable subject to the restrictions laid down in proviso (ii) to section 29.

Rules as to enhancement on ground of increase in productive powers due to fluvial action.

34. Where an enhancement is claimed on the ground of an increase in productive powers due to fluvial action—

- (a) the Court shall not take into account any increase which is merely temporary or casual ;
- (b) the Court may enhance the rent to such an amount as it may deem fair and equitable, but not so as to give the landlord more than one-half of the value of the net increase in the produce of the land.

Extended to Orissa (Not., June 27th, 1892).

The rule laid down in clause (a) follows the High Court rulings under the old law in Krishna Mohan Patro v. Hari Sankar Mukhurji, (7 W. R., 235) and Abdul Ghani v. Bhattu, (22 W. R., 350).

35. Notwithstanding anything in the foregoing sections, the Court shall not in any case decree any enhancement which is under the circumstances of the case unfair or inequitable.

Enhancement by suit to be fair and equitable.

Extended to Orissa (Not., June 27th, 1892).

36. If the Court passing a decree for enhancement considers that the immediate enforcement of the decree in its full extent will be attended with hardship to the raiyat, it may direct that the enhancement shall be gradual; that it is to say, that the rent shall increase yearly by degrees for any number of years not exceeding five until the limit of the enhancement decreed has been reached.

Power to order progressive enhancement.

Extended to Orissa (Not., June 27th, 1892).

37. (1) A suit instituted for the enhancement of the rent of a holding on the ground that the rate of rent paid is below the prevailing rate, or on the ground of a rise in prices, shall not be entertained if within the fifteen years next preceding its institution the rent of the holding has been enhanced by a contract made after the second day of March, 1883, or if within the said period of fifteen years the rent has been commuted under section 40, or a decree has been passed under this Act or any enactment repealed by this Act enhancing the rent on either of the grounds aforesaid or on any ground corresponding thereto or dismissing the suit on the merits.

(2) Nothing in this section shall affect the provisions of section 373 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

Extended to Orissa (Not., June 27th, 1892).

Sub-section (1).—The 2nd March, 1883, is the date on which leave to introduce the Bill to amend the rent law was obtained.

A decree obtained in a suit instituted to enforce a contract made before the 2nd March, 1883, in which the defendant agreed to pay a higher rent was held to be no bar under the provisions of this section to a suit for enhancement of rent under the provisions of the Tenancy Act (R. Mitter v. Dwarka Nath Chakravarti, decided by Prinsep and Bannerjee, JJ, May 28th., 1891).

A suit for both enhancement and arrears at an enhanced rate is maintainable. The causes of action, though separate, may be combined under sec. 45, C. P. C., (Gudar Tewari v. Brij Nandan Prasad, 5 C. W. N., 880).

Waiver of enhanced rent decreed.—In 1267 the plaintiff obtained a decree in a suit to enhance the defendant's rent. It was held that the acceptance by the plaintiff of the old rent from 1268 to 1271 was no waiver of his claim to the higher rent decreed to him (Lauder v. Binod Lal Ghosh, 6 W. R., Act X, 37).

Reduction of rent.

38. (1) An occupancy-raiyat holding at a money-rent may institute a suit for the reduction of his rent on the following grounds, and, except as hereinafter provided in the case of a diminution of the area of the holding, not otherwise, (namely):—

- (a) on the ground that the soil of the holding has without the fault of the raiyat become permanently deteriorated by a deposit of sand or other specific cause, sudden or gradual, or
- (b) on the ground that there has been a fall, not due to a temporary cause, in the average local prices of staple food-crops during the currency of the present rent.

(2) In any suit instituted under this section, the Court may direct such reduction of the rent as it thinks fair and equitable.

Extended to Orissa (Not., June 27th, 1892).

A raiyat cannot by any contract made after the passing of this Act contract himself out of the provisions of this section [(sec. 178, sub-sec. (3), cl. (f)].

Reduction of rent.—An occupancy raiyat cannot sue for a reduction of rent except on one of the grounds specified in this section. He, therefore, cannot sue to have his rent abated on the ground that it is higher than the prevailing rate.* But neither could he do so under the old law (Baban Mandul v. Shib Kumari Barmani, 21 W. R., 404). Nor could he have applied for abatement of rent on the ground of fraud, his remedy being to apply to have the contract set aside (Sukur Ali v. Amla Ahalya, 8 W. R., 504; Darimba Debya v. Nilmani Singh Deo, 5 C. L. R., 465;) and a landlord receiving remission from Government on account of damage done to his estate by a cyclone was not on that account bound to allow a remission to his under-tenants, unless he had received the former on the understanding or agreement that he would allow it in turn (Golak Chandra Mahanti v. Parbati Charan Das, 15 W. R., 167).

How reduction of rent can be claimed.—Under the old law a raiyat entitled to a reduction of rent had three courses open to him. He could either sue for abatement of rent, or wait till sued by his landlord and then set up a claim to a set-off, or he might complain of an excessive demand of rent and sue for a refund (see Bell's Law of Landlord and Tenant, 2nd. edit, p. 57; and Barry v. Abdul Ali, W. R., Sp. No., 1864, Act X, 64; Baikantho Paruki v. Surendro Nath Rai, 1 W. R., 84; Savi v. Abhai Nath Basu, 2 W. R., Act X, 28; Dindyal Lal v. Thakru Kunwar, 6 W. R., Act X, 24; Nil Muni Singh Deo v. Annoda Prasad Mukhurji, 10 W. R., F. B., 41; 1 B. L. R., F. B., 97; Mahtab Chand v. Chitro Kumari Debi, 16 W. R., 201; Gaur Kishor Chandra v. Bonomali Chaudhri, 22 W. R., 117). The present section only provides for a reduction of rent being obtained on the grounds specified in it in a suit instituted for the purpose. A tenant may also obtain a reduction of rent under section 52 (1) (b) on the ground of a deficiency proved to exist in the area of his tenure or holding, but whether this reduction must be sued for, or whether the deficiency of area may be pleaded by way of set-off, is not apparent. A raiyat from whom any sum has been exacted as rent may also sue under sec. 75 for a refund and for an additional sum as a penalty.

Permanent deterioration of soil of holding.—In Gauri Patra v. Reilly, (20 Calc., 579), it was said that the Judge of the Court below was wrong in his interpretation of the word “permanent” in this section. He seemed to think that a deterioration ought not to be held to be permanent, if by application of capital and skill the cause of the deterioration might be removed. But a more liberal interpretation must be put upon the word, and it must be construed with reference to existing conditions. Under the old law it was held that the grounds on which a raiyat could claim an abatement must have resulted from causes beyond his control (Mansur Ali v. Harvey, 11 W. R., 291), such as a deposit of sand on part of his land (Inayatullah v. Ilahi Baksh, W. R. Sp., No., 1864, Act X, 42).

Produce-rents.—The provisions of sec. 38 apply only to rents payable in money. There is no provision of this Act under which raiyats paying rent in kind can claim or sue for a reduction of rent.

Price-lists.

39. (1) The Collector of every district shall prepare, monthly, or at shorter intervals, periodical lists of the market-prices of staple food-crops grown in such local areas as the Local Government may from time to time direct, and shall submit them to the Board of Revenue for approval or revision.

Price-lists.

Price-lists of staple food-crops.

(2) The Collector may, if so directed by the Local Government, prepare for any local area like price-lists relating to such past times as the Local Government thinks fit, and shall submit the lists so prepared to the Board of Revenue for approval or revision.

(3) The Collector shall, one month before submitting a price-list to the Board of Revenue under this section, publish it in the prescribed manner within the local area to which it relates, and if any landlord or tenant of land within the local area, within the said period of one month, presents to him in writing any objection to the list, he shall submit the same to the Board of Revenue with the list.

(4) The price-lists shall, when approved or revised by the Board of Revenue, be published in the official Gazette ; and any manifest error in any such list discovered after its publication may be corrected by the Collector with the sanction of the Board of Revenue.

(5) The Local Government shall cause to be compiled from the periodical lists prepared under this section lists of the average prices prevailing throughout each year, and shall cause them to be published annually in the official Gazette.

(6) In any proceedings under this Chapter for an enhancement or reduction of rent on the ground of a rise or fall in prices, the Court shall refer to the lists published under this section, and shall presume that the prices shown in the lists prepared for any year subsequent to the passing of this Act are correct, [and may presume that the prices shown in the lists prepared for any year prior to the passing of this Act are correct], unless and until it is proved that they are incorrect.

(7) The Local Government, subject to the control of the Governor-General in Council, shall make rules for determining what are to be deemed staple food-crops in any local area and for the guidance of officers preparing price-lists under this section.

The words in brackets were inserted in this section by the amending Act of 1898, which has been extended to Orissa (Not., Nov. 5th, 1898).

Price-lists.—Price-lists relating to current times have been prepared ever since the passing of the Tenancy Act under rules to be found in Chap. II of the Govt. rules under the Tenancy Act (see Appendix I). By Govt. notification No. 4307 L. R., dated Nov. 7th, 1896, published in the Calcutta Gazette of Nov. 11, 1896, Part I, p. 1150, price lists for periods anterior to the passing of the Tenancy Act in certain specified parts in the Orissa division have been ordered to be prepared (see Schedule II appended to the Govt. rules, Appendix I).

Sub-section (6).—This sub-section, as originally passed, provided that only price-lists “prepared for any year subsequent to the passing of the Act” should be presumed to be correct. The Bill to amend the Act, which afterwards became the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Act, 1898, proposed to omit these words.

On the motion of the Hon’ble Babu Surendro Nath Banerjee in Council, the words now inserted in the section were added to it, and the words it was proposed to omit were allowed to remain. The effect of this amendment is that price-lists for periods subsequent to the passing of the Act shall, and those for periods prior to the passing of the Act may, be presumed to be correct, until it is proved that they are incorrect.

Rules regarding the preparation of price-lists.—For these rules, see Chap. II, of the Government Rules under the Act, Appendix I.

Commutation.

40. (1) Where an occupancy-raiyat pays for a holding rent in kind, or on the estimated value of a portion of the crop, or at rates varying with the crop, or partly in one of those ways and partly in another, either the raiyat or his landlord may apply to have the rent commuted to a money-rent.

(2) The application may be made to the Collector or Sub-divisional Officer, or to an officer making a settlement of rents under Chapter X, or to any other officer specially authorized in this behalf by the Local Government.

(3) On the receipt of the application the officer may determine the sum to be paid as money-rent, and may order that the raiyat shall, in lieu of paying his rent in kind, or otherwise as aforesaid, pay the sum so determined.

(4) In making the determination the officer shall have regard to—

- (a) the average money-rent payable by occupancy-raiyats for land of a similar description and with similar advantages in the vicinity;
- (b) the average value of the rent actually received by the landlord during the preceding ten years or during any shorter period for which evidence may be available; and
- (c) the charges incurred by the landlord in respect of irrigation under the system of rent in kind, and the arrangements made on commutation for continuing those charges.

(5) The order shall be in writing, shall state the grounds on which it is made, and the time from which it is to take effect, and shall be subject to appeal in like manner as if it were an order made in any ordinary revenue proceeding.

(6) If the application is opposed, the officer shall consider whether under all the circumstances of the case it is reasonable to grant it, and shall grant or refuse it accordingly. If he refuses it, he shall record in writing the reasons for the refusal.

Sub-sections (1) (2) and (4) of this section have been amended by s. 11, Act I, B. C., of 1907 and as altered by that Act the section runs as follows :

(1) Where an occupancy-raiyat pays for a holding rent in kind, or on the estimated value of a portion of the crop, or at rates varying with the crop, or partly in one of those ways and partly in another, [or partly in any of those ways and partly in cash,] either the raiyat or his landlord may apply to have the rent commuted to a money-rent.

(2) The application may be made to the Collector or Sub-divisional Officer, or to [a Revenue-officer appointed by the Local Government under the designation of Settlement Officer or Assistant Settlement Officer for the purpose of making a survey and record-of-rights] under Chapter X, or to any other officer specially authorized in this behalf by the Local Government.

(3) On the receipt of the application the officer may determine the sum to be paid as a money rent, and may order that the raiyat shall, in lieu of paying his rent in kind, or otherwise as aforesaid, pay the sum so determined.

(4) In making the determination the officer shall have regard to—

- (a) the average money-rent payable by occupancy-raiyats for land of a similar description and with similar advantages in the vicinity ;
- (b) the average value of the rent actually received by the landlord during the preceding ten years or during any shorter period for which evidence may be available ;
- (c) the charges incurred by the landlord in respect of irrigation under the system of rent in kind, and the arrangements made on commutation for continuing those charges; and

[(d) improvements effected by the landlord or by the occupancy-raiyat in respect of the raiyat's holding, and to the rules laid down in section 33 regarding enhancement of rent on the ground of a landlord's improvement.]

Under sec. 178, sub-section (3), cl. (g), nothing in any contract made after the passing of the Act can take away the right of either landlord or tenant to apply for a commutation of rent under this section. But it has been ruled that a landlord may demand payment of rent in kind in accordance with the original contract, although the tenant has paid rent in money for some years (Sohabat Ali v. Abdul Ali, 3 C. W. N., 151).

Rents payable in kind.--“The system of rent payment in kind prevails extensively only in the districts of Gaya, Shahabad and Patna, where the character of the country renders necessary the maintenance of an elaborate village system of irrigation; but in most, if not all, other districts of the province lands are also found, the produce of which is divided between the cultivator and the landlord, and the marked absence of applications for commutation would seem to indicate that this section of the law is little known. It may, however, be also largely due to local custom recognizing in such cases no right to the land in the cultivator, but merely to a share of the produce raised by him. In Bihar the holding of land on a produce rent, known as the bhaoi (1) system, is a regular form of tenancy, very common in the three districts named above lying south of the Ganges.....The practical difficulties in the way of maintenance of the system of irrigation by the raiyats themselves, which would necessitate combination among the residents of each village or of several villages, where a water channel serves more than one village, have undoubtedly established among the tenants a preference for the bhaoi system. Under it the rental varies with the outturn of the crops, and the tenants are, at least, secured half their produce; while the landlord on whom the duty of maintaining the irrigation work devolves, is under a strong inducement in his own interests to keep them in fair order.” (Secy. to the Board of Revenue's report on the working of the Tenancy Act, No. 419 A, dated 30th April, 1892, para. 21).

(1) Probably a contraction of bhao, rate, and wall, relating to.

Board of Revenue's instructions under this section.—

The Board of Revenue in their circular No. 5, dated June, 1892, have issued the following instructions for the guidance of officers to whom applications for commutation are made.

"The Board have reason to believe that misconception exists among some officers as to the requirements of the law under section 40 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, and that this has led to the rejection of applications for commutation of rents payable in kind on insufficient grounds, and the consequent discouragement of such applications. They desire, therefore, to point out that, subject to the grounds of his decision being recorded and to an appeal, the officer dealing with an application under the section has full discretion to seek for such evidence, and make such inquiry, as he may deem necessary in order to determine the money-rent to be fixed. If the tenants are unable to produce receipts showing the quantity of produce previously received by the landlord or its cash-equivalent—and they will seldom possess such receipts—or the landlords file papers purporting to give previous outturns and divisions of the crops which the tenants repudiate, or which are apparently false, the applications should not necessarily be rejected, but the officer should endeavour to arrive at a fair estimate of the money-rent by recording and duly considering such oral testimony as may be produced by the parties, by reference to other sources of information, such as the cess papers of the estate, and, if necessary, by local inquiry conducted in person or through some other competent officer."

Sub-section (5). The provisions of this sub-section are imperative. The object of requiring the time from which the order is to take effect to be stated is to enable the parties to know from what date the new arrangement is to come into operation. It ought not to be left in uncertainty and in the absence of any date being fixed in the order, the order must be taken to be practically inoperative, or at any rate, to remain in suspense, until it is amended by the specification of the term of its operation (Raghunath Saran Singh v. Dhodha Rai, 18 Calc., 467).

An appeal from an order of a Collector under this section to the Commissioner must be preferred within 30 days (Sch. III, art. 5). An order passed in appeal by a Revenue Court under sec. 40 is final (Sali-gram Singh v. Ramgir, 3 C. W. N., 311).

Sub-section (6).—When the application for commutation is opposed, the application may be granted or refused, according as the officer disposing of it may think proper. The section does not provide for the case, which is of common occurrence, in which the application is opposed on the ground that the rent is not payable in kind but in money.

No suit will lie in Civil Court to call in question propriety of an order under this section.—A tenant made an application to the Collector under sec. 40 of this Act for a declaration that he was the defendant's raiyat in respect of a parcel of guzastha kash land and for commutation of the rent which had hitherto been payable in kind. The Collector granted the application; but the order was reversed on appeal by the Commissioner. The tenant then sued under section 42 of the Specific Relief Act for substantially the same relief as he had asked before the Collector. It was held (1) that an order passed in appeal under sec. 40 is final, and no suit lies in the Civil Court by which its propriety can be questioned; and (2) that before the passing of the Tenancy Act no suit could lie in the Civil Court for commutation of the rent, and, therefore, the special procedure laid down in sec. 40 for enforcing the new right created therein is the only procedure which can be followed (Saligram Singh v. Ramgir, 3 C. W. N., 311).

Changes made by Act I, B.C., of 1907.—The alteration in sub-section (2) made by s. 11, Act I, B. C., 1907, was, it was said in the Select Committee's report, for the purpose of ensuring that the power to commute rents should be entrusted only to an officer of some standing. The Select Committee explain the reason for the addition of clause (d) as follows:

"At present section 40 contains no provision requiring an officer commuting produce rents to have regard to improvements made by the landlord or tenant in respect of the holding under commutation. We consider this a defect, as the existence of such improvements is often an important factor in determining the amount of the cash rent to be fixed on commutation. We propose, therefore, to add a provision to sub-section (4) of section 40 allowing this to be done."

[40 A. (1) Where the rent of a holding has been commuted under section 40, it shall not, except on the ground of a landlord's improvement or of a subsequent alteration of the area of the holding, be enhanced for fifteen years; nor shall it be reduced for fifteen years, save on the ground of alteration in the area of the holding, or on the ground specified in clause (a) of sub-section (1) of section 38.

Period for which commuted rents are to remain unaltered.

(2) The said period of fifteen years shall be counted from the date on which the order takes effect under sub-section (5) of section 40.]

This section has been added to the Act in Bengal by sec. 12, Act I, B. C., of 1907. In explanation of the introduction of this section the Select Committee on the Bill, observe that the absence of such a provision as this would seem to be a defect in the present law. Compare section 113, which contains similar provisions in regard to rents settled under chapter X.

CHAPTER VI.

NON-OCCUPANCY-RAIYATS.

41. This chapter shall apply to raiyats not having a right of occupancy, who are in this Act referred to as non-occupancy-raiyats.

Application of Chapter.

Extended to Orissa, (Not., Sept. 10th, 1891).

Non-occupancy rights.—Nothing in this Chapter applies to proprietors' private lands (sec. 116), or to land held under the custom of utbandi [sec. 180 (2)]. Non-occupancy rights can be acquired in agricultural land, even though the person letting the tenant into the land has no valid title and is therefore a trespasser (Mohim Chandra Saha v. Hazari Paramanik, 17 Calc., 45; Binud Lal Prakash v. Kalu Paramanik, 20 Calc. 708), provided the tenant has acted in good faith (Piari Mohan Mandal v. Radhika Mohan Hazra, 8 C. W. N. 315; Upendro Chandra Bhattacharya v. Pratab Chandra Pradhan, 3 C. W. N., 320). See notes to sec. 3 (3) p. 24; and sec. 5, p. 53. But this is not the case when the Transfer of Property Act is applicable (Sheo Charan Lal v. Prabhu Dayal, 1 C. W. N., 142). A non-occupancy raiyat can sub-let his land (sec. 85), and by no contract made after the passing of the Act can he bind himself not to do so [sec. 187 (3) (e)]. Non-occupancy rights may be transferable by custom (sec. 183), and may, in accordance with local usage, be bequeathed (sec. 178 (3) (d)), and nothing in a contract made after the passing of the Act can take away a raiyat's right to transfer or bequeath his holding in accordance with local usage [sec. 178 (3) (d)]. But non-occupancy rights are not heritable (Karim v. Sundar Bewa, 24 Calc., 207; 1 C. W. N., 89). Section 26 expressly makes the right of an occupancy-raiyat heritable, and therefore by necessary implication the right of a non-occupancy raiyat is not heritable (Lakhan Narain Das v. Jainath Pandey, 5 C. L. J., 457; 11 C. W. N., 626.) A non-occupancy raiyat cannot apply for reduction of his rent, except on the ground of diminution of area [sec. 52 (b)]. But in Gauri Patra v. Reily (20 Calc., 579), it had been said that, "though it is only an occupancy-raiyat, who is authorized by the Act to bring a suit under sec. 38, yet the principles laid down in that section ought to be taken into consideration in all proceedings for the settlement of rent, whatever be the status of the raiyats." A non-occupancy raiyat can construct a well and erect a suitable dwelling-house for himself and his family on his land, without his landlord's permission, and he can make any other improvement, as defined in sec. 76, if his landlord, after being requested in writing to make the improvement, neglects to make it (sec. 79). ⁽¹⁾

42. When a non-occupancy-raiyat is admitted to the occupation of land, he shall become liable to pay such rent as may be agreed on between himself and his landlord at the time of his admission.

Initial rent of non-occupancy-raiyat.

Extended to Orissa, (Not., Sept. 10th, 1891).

43. The rent of a non-occupancy-raiyat shall not be enhanced except by registered agreement or by agreement under section 46 :

Conditions of enhancement of rent.

Provided that nothing in this section shall prevent a landlord from recovering rent at the rate at which it has been actually paid for a continuous period of not less than three years immediately preceding the period for which the rent is claimed.

Extended to Orissa, (Not., Sept. 10th, 1891)

Enhancement.—There are no restrictions on the enhancement of a non-occupancy raiyat's rent by registered agreement, as there are in the case of an occupancy-raiyat's rent (sec. 29). But a non-occupancy raiyat cannot be compelled to execute an agreement under sec. 46, unless the Court considers the rate of rent demanded by the landlord to be fair and equitable [sec. 46 (6)]. An occupancy raiyat's rent once enhanced cannot be enhanced by contract again for fifteen years [sec. (29) (c)]. There is no such limitation on the enhancement of a non-occupancy raiyat's rent, but if he agrees to pay the rent stipulated for in an agreement tendered to him under sec. 46, he can remain in occupation of his holding at that rate for a period of five years [sec 46 (7)].

(1) Cf. sec. 108 (p), Act IV of 1882, which however has not been extended under s. 117 to agricultural leases.

44. A non-occupancy-raiyat shall, subject to the provisions of this Act, be liable to ejectment on one or more of the following grounds, and not otherwise, (namely) :—

Grounds on which non-occupancy-raiyat may be ejected.

- (a) on the ground that he has failed to pay an arrear of rent ;
- (b) on the ground that he has used the land in a manner which renders it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy, or that he has broken a condition consistent with this Act and on breach of which he is, under the terms of a contract between himself and and his landlord, liable to be ejected ;
- (c) where he has been admitted to occupation of the land under a registered lease, on the ground that the term of the lease has expired ;
- (d) on the ground that he has refused to agree to pay a fair and equitable rent determined under section 46, or that the term for which he is entitled to hold at such a rent has expired.

Extended to Orissa, (Not., Sept. 10th, 1891).

Ejectment.—The terms of this section show that a non-occupancy raiyat cannot be ejected from his holding except on the grounds specified in this section. Parting with the possession of a portion of the holding or denying the title of the person under whom the non-occupancy raiyat holds is therefore not a ground of forfeiture, and a non-occupancy raiyat cannot be ejected for having done either (Chandra Mohan Mukhopadhyaya v. Bissessarwar Chaturji, 1 C. W. N., 158).

Clause (a).—This clause must be read with sec. 89, which provides that no tenant shall be ejected except in execution of a decree, and with sec. 66, which enables a non-occupancy raiyat to save himself from eject-ment for arrears of rent by paying into Court the amount of the arrears within 15 days from the date of the decree, or within such further period as the Court may allow for the purpose.

Clause (b).—The provisions of this clause are subject to those of sec. 155, which require a landlord before suing a tenant for ejectment on this ground to serve a notice on the tenant specifying the misuse or breach* of contract complained of, and giving him an opportunity of remedying the same. Under sub-section (4) of section 155 a tenant against whom a decree for ejectment on this ground has been passed can always save himself from ejectment by paying the compensation fixed by the Court for the misuse or breach of contract in question.

Clause (c).—From the terms of this clause it will be seen that a non-occupancy raiyat admitted into occupation on a verbal or written but not registered lease is in a better position than a raiyat admitted into occupation under a registered lease. The former cannot be ejected on the ground specified in this clause (c); while the latter can be ejected on this ground. A non-occupancy raiyat admitted to the occupation of land on a verbal lease, or one who is allowed to hold on for six months after the expiry of the term of a registered one, (see sec. 45), therefore, cannot be ejected so long as he pays the rent, does not misuse the land or break his contract, or refuse to pay such an enhanced rent as a Court may consider fair and equitable. In a case in which it was sought to eject a tenant from certain homestead land, held as part of a raiya holding, under a lease which contained a stipulation that the tenant would quit whenever the landlord called upon him to do so, it was ruled that sec. 44, cl. (c), only applied when a lease is granted for a fixed term, and that under sec. 178, sub-sec. 1, cl. (c), the stipulation in the lease could not be enforced (Nando Kumar Guha v. Kali Kumudin Haji, 3 C. W. N., xlvii). This clause is limited to cases in which the raiyat has been admitted to occupation under the lease (Kamini Prasad Rai v. Khudadad Khan, 9 C. W. N., cclxxxvii).

Limitation.—The period within which a suit for the ejectment of a raiyat on the ground that he has used the land in a manner which unfits it for the purposes of the tenancy may be brought is two years under art. 32, sched. II of Act XV of 1877 (Souyan Gop v. Raghbir Ojha, 24 Calc., 160; 1 C. W. N., 223; Sarup Das v. Jageswar Rai, 26 Calc., 564). The period for a similar suit on the ground that the raiyat has broken a condition on breach of which he is under the terms of the contract between his landlord and himself liable to be ejected is one year (art. 1, Sched. III of this Act). The period of limitation applicable to the case of a non-occupancy raiyat who has been dispossessed from his holding otherwise than in execution of a decree is either 6 years or 12 years, as provided in art. 120, or art. 142, Act XV of 1877 (Tamisuddin v. Ashraf Ali, 31 Calc., 647 : 8 C. W. N., 446). But this has been altered in the province of Bengal by sec. 61, Act I. B. C., of 1907, which has modified art. 3, Sched. III of this Act, and enacts that the period of limitation for a suit for the recovery of possession by a *raiya*t is two years from the date of dispossession.

45. A suit for ejectment on the ground of the expiration of the term of a lease shall not be instituted against a non-occupancy-raiyat unless notice to quit has been served on the raiyat not less than six months before the expiration of the term, and shall not be instituted after six months from the expiration of the term.

ejectment on ground of expiration of lease.

Extended to Orissa, (Not., Sept, 10th., 1891).

This section has been repealed in Bengal by sec. 2, Act I, B. C., of 1907. It has, however, been provided in Schedule III of this Act (see art. 1 (a)) that the period of limitation for the ejectment of a non-occupancy raiyat on the ground of the expiration of the term of his lease is 6 months, as is now provided in this section. The only change, then, made in the law in Bengal is to do away with the necessity of giving a notice to quit to a non-occupancy raiyat not less than six months before the expiry of the term. In the Notes on Clauses on the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Bill, 1906, it is said :

“ Experience has shown that the necessity to serve a notice to quit on a non-occupancy raiyat holding under a lease is often overlooked by the landlord, and that, even when served, the landlord has no means of proving service. It is therefore proposed to dispense with the notice by repeal of section 45, at the same time transferring the provision as to limitation for a suit for ejectment of a non-occupancy raiyat to Schedule III of the Act.”

Service of notice.—Rule 2 of Chap. V of the Govt. rules under this Act provides that a “notice to quit under this section shall be served through the Court having jurisdiction to entertain a suit for ejectment from the holding in the manner prescribed for the service of a summons on a defendant under the Code of Civil Procedure, and shall be subject to the same process fee.”

Effect of non-service of notice in due time.—The notice referred to in this section must be served in due time, and if this be not done, the non-occupancy raiyat by holding over does not become a trespasser, but remains a tenant and cannot be ejected as a trespasser (Gobardhan Saha v. Karuna Bewa, 25 Calc. 75). But see note p. 152.

46. (1) A suit for ejectment on the ground of refusal to agree to an enhancement of rent shall not be instituted against a non-occupancy raiyat unless the landlord has tendered to the raiyat an agreement to pay the enhanced rent, and the raiyat has within three months before the institution of the suit refused to execute the agreement.

ejectment on ground of refusal to agree to enhancement.

(2) A landlord desiring to tender an agreement to a raiyat under this section may file it in the office of such Court or officer as the Local Government appoints in this behalf for service on the raiyat. The Court or officer shall forthwith cause it to be served on the raiyat in the prescribed manner, and when it has been so served, it shall for the purposes of this section be deemed to have been tendered.

(3) If a raiyat on whom an agreement has been served under sub-section (2) executes it, and within one month from the date of service files it in the office from which it issued, it shall take effect from the commencement of the agricultural year next following.

(4) When an agreement has been executed and filed by a raiyat under sub-section (3), the Court or officer in whose office it is so filed shall forthwith cause a notice of its being so executed and filed to be served on the landlord in the prescribed manner.

(5) If the raiyat does not execute the agreement and file it under sub-section (3), he shall be deemed for the purposes of this section to have refused to execute it.

(6) If a raiyat refuses to execute an agreement tendered to him under this section, and the landlord thereupon institutes a suit to eject him, the Court shall determine what rent is fair and equitable for the holding. *

(7) If the raiyat agrees to pay the rent so determined, he shall be entitled to remain in occupation of his holding at that rent for a term of five years from the date of the agreement, but on the expiration of that term shall be liable to ejectment under the conditions mentioned in the last foregoing section, unless he has acquired a right of occupancy.

(8) If the raiyat does not agree to pay the rent so determined, the Court shall pass a decree for ejectment.

(9) In determining what rent is fair and equitable, the Court shall have regard to the rents generally paid by raiyats for land of a similar description and with like advantages in the same village.

(10) A decree for ejectment passed under this section shall take effect from the end of the agricultural year in which it is passed.

Extended to Orissa, (Not., Sept. 10th. 1891).

Sub-section (2).—The rule framed by Government under this sub-section is to be found in rule 3, Chap. V of the Government rules under the Act (Appendix I).

Sub-section (4).—The rule framed by Government under this sub-section is to be found in rule 4 of Chap. V of the Government rules.

Sub-section (9).—This sub-section is not exhaustive. It was not intended that if there was no land of a similar description and with like advantages in the same village as the land in suit, it should be impossible to enhance the rent of a non-occupancy raiyat upon any other ground (Hossain Ali Khan v. Hati Charan Saha, 27 Calc., 476 & 4 C. W. N., 321).

47. Where a raiyat has been in occupation of land and a lease is executed with a view to a continuance of his occupation, he is not to be deemed to be admitted to occupation by that lease for the purposes of this Chapter, notwithstanding that the lease may purport to admit him to occupation.

Explanation of "admitted to occupation."

Extended to Orissa, (Not., Sept. 10th, 1891).

When a lease is executed after the tenant was in possession with a view to a continuance of his occupation, the case falls within the words of the section (Kamini Prasad Rai v. Khudadad Khan, 9 C. W. N., cclxxxvii).

CHAPTER VII.

UNDER-RAIYATS.

48. The landlord of an under-raiyat holding at a money-rent shall not be entitled to recover rent exceeding the rent which he himself pays by more than the following percentage of the same, (namely) :—

Limit of rent recoverable from underraiyats.

(a) when the rent payable by the under-raiyat is payable under a registered lease or agreement—fifty per cent; and

(b) in any other case—twenty-five per cent.

Extended to Orissa, (Not., Sept. 10th, 1891).

Clause (a)—The provisions of this clause are retrospective (Ram Kumar Jugi v. Jafar Ali, 26 Calc., 199, note; Guru Das Shul v. Nand Kishor Pal, 26 Calc., 199; Babuludin Mahomad v. Dwarka Nath Singh, 28 Calc., 166).

Restriction on ejection of under-raiyats.

49. An under-raiyat shall not be liable to be ejected by his landlord, except—

(a) on the expiration of the term of a written lease;

(b) when holding otherwise than under a written lease, at the end of the agricultural year next following the year in which a notice to quit is served upon him by his landlord.

Extended to Orissa, (Not., Sept. 10th, 1891).

Ejection.—This section would seem to prescribe when an under-raiyat can be ejected arbitrarily at the pleasure of his landlord. For an under-raiyat can always be ejected for non-payment of arrears of rent (sec. 66). But he does not forfeit his under-tenancy on any other ground. He, therefore, cannot be ejected for denying his landlord's title (Dhora Kairi v. Ram Jewan Kairi Mahlon, 20 Calc., 101). In this case it is added that an under-raiyat cannot be ejected from his holding except after notice to quit, as prescribed in sec. 49 (b) of this section. This must of course mean "except also where he is liable to be ejected on the expiration of the term of a written lease," in which case it would appear no notice to quit need be served on him [clause (a)]. In similar circumstances a non-occupancy raiyat requires a notice to quit to be served on him before he can be ejected, (sec. 45), (except in Bengal, where section 45 has been repealed by Act I, B. C., of 1907), and when a non-occupancy raiyat is holding without a written lease, he cannot be ejected at his landlord's pleasure at all, but only on the grounds specified in sec. 44. An under-raiyat, who has been let into land under a kabulyat but has been allowed to hold on for a number of years after the expiry of the period mentioned in the kabulyat, comes within the provisions of sec. 49, clause (b), and cannot be ejected without the service on him of a notice to quit, and the bringing of a suit for ejectment against him cannot be regarded as sufficient notice (Rabiram Das v. Uma Kant Chakravartti, 2 C. W. N., 238). After the expiry of a written lease, a mere delay in the institution of a suit by the lessor for the ejectment of the lessee without notice to quit, is no reason for dismissal of the suit on the ground that the lessee was allowed to hold over (Ratan Lal Gir v. Farshi, 34 Calc., 396). A suit for ejectment cannot be brought until after the liability to ejectment has arisen (unreported case, S. A., No. 1436 of 1895, decided Dec. 2nd., 1896). But if the suit is brought before the expiry of the Bengali year in respect of the arrears of rent for that year, the raiyat landlord is not entitled to eject the under-raiyat tenant under sec. 66 (Guru Das Shit v. Nund Kishor Pal, 26 Calc., 199). Section 49 refers to a suit in ejectment brought by the immediate landlord of the under-raiyat and has no application to a suit in which the plaintiff is not such immediate landlord (Badan Chandra Das v. Rajeswari Debi, 2 C. L. J., 570). When the lands included in the holding of an agricultural raiyat consisted partly of agricultural and partly of homestead land, and the portion that could be used as a homestead was let out for use as a homestead :—held, that the under-tenant was an under-raiyat and that to maintain a suit in ejectment a notice under sec. 49, cl. (6) was necessary (Mahendra Nath Sarkar v. Biswanath Haldar, 29 Calc., 231; 6 C. W. N., 183). The purchaser of an under-raiyati interest, whom the landlord refuses to recognize is entitled to the surplus sale proceeds on the sale of the holding (Haran Chandra Sen v. Pulin Chandra Saha, 5 C. L. J., 357).

Leases.—This section contemplates two classes of leases (a) written leases for terms and (b) unwritten leases. It does not contemplate the case of an unwritten lease without any term (Mahendra Nath Sipai v. Parbati Charan Das, 8 C. W. N., 136; Idu Gazi v. Chandra Kali Sundrani, 8 C. W. N., 139; Madan Chandra Kapali v. Jaki Karakar, 6 C. W. N., 377).

Notice to quit.—"The section does not prescribe any period of notice or that the suit shall not be brought until the expiry of a certain time after expiry of the period of notice. The effect of the section seems to be that the landlord can serve a notice to quit at any time in the course of the year, but that he shall not eject the raiyat until the end of the agricultural year next following the year in which the notice to quit is served, that is to say, the under-raiyat must under any circumstances get a full year expiring at the end of the agricultural year from the time when the notice is served. The legislature advisedly seems to have refrained from fixing any period of notice, and the section was probably framed as it is framed with the view of doing away with all questions of the reasonableness or otherwise of the notice, it being considered sufficient to intimate the landlord's intention of determining the tenancy and leaving the law to operate so that the raiyat if he chooses to remain on the land shall not be ejected until a certain time had expired after the notice was served. The circumstance that the landlord has called upon the tenant to quit at a time when he could not compel him to do so, does not we think vitiate the notice" (Naharullah Patwari v. Madan Ghazi, 1 C. W. N., 133; Dwarka Nath Santra v. Rani Dasi, 28 Calc., 308). In a suit brought by the plaintiff landlord to recover khas possession of a holding which he had purchased at a sale held in execution of a decree for arrears of rent obtained against the tenant, the defendant pleaded that he was an under-tenant with a right of occupancy: held, that, as the sub-letting was otherwise than by a registered instrument and without the landlord's consent it was invalid as against him and it was not necessary for him to follow the procedure prescribed by s. 167 (Piari Mohan Mukhurji v. Badal Chandra Bagdi, 28 Calc., 205). If a landlord (permanent tenure-holder) purchases from his occupancy-raiyat his right, title and interest in the holding by a deed of sale, he cannot by virtue of such purchase eject the under-raiyat who was let into the land by the occupancy raiyat without serving on him a notice to quit under sec. 49 (b), even if the sub-letting was made without the landlord's consent and otherwise than by a registered instrument (Amirulla Mahomed v. Nazir Mahomed, 34 Calc., 104 3 C. L. J., 155). See also Fazil v. Keramuddin, (6 C. W. N., 916) But when a raiyat granted a permanent sub-lease, and an assignee of the interest of the under-raiyat sub-let to the plaintiff who was dispossessed by the purchaser of the right, title and interest of the raiyat at an execution sale, and sued to recover possession ; held, that he could not on the ground of mere prior possession claim the protection afforded by sec. 49 (b) to an under-raiyat with a bona fide subsisting tenancy, whose permanent lease is void (Ramgati Mandal v. Shyama Charan Datta, 6 C. W. N., 919).

The law does not require the notice to be signed by the landlord. It is sufficient if it is given at his instance (Mohendra Nath Sarkar v. Biswa Nath Halder, 6 C. W. N., 183).

No form of notice to quit to an under-raiyat is prescribed. When such notice calls upon the tenant to quit at the end of the agricultural year in which it is given, but the suit is not brought till the end of the following agricultural year, the suit is good. But if after the giving of such a notice the suit is instituted at the end of the agricultural year in which the notice was given, it is premature (Sailendro Nath Mukurji v. Bhairab Chander Kolay, 2 C. L. J., 107 n).

Service of notice.—As there is no special rule for the service of the notice to quit under clause (b), its service should apparently be effected in accordance with rule 3, chap. I of the Government rules under the Tenancy Act, i. e., in the manner provided in the Civil Procedure Code for the service of a summons. If the notice to quit has not been served in this manner, the suit for ejectment should be dismissed. See note to this rule, App. I. Service through the post is not good service (Turudas Malakar v. Ramdayal Malakar, 2 C. W. N., 125 ; Loknath Gop v. Pitambar Ghosh, 3 C. W. N., 215 ; Makhan Lal v. Kuldeep Narain, 27 Calc., 774). An objection as to the mode of service of the notice cannot be taken for the first time in second appeal (Loknath Gop v. Pitambar Ghosh, 3 C. W. N., 215).

Occupancy rights.—Under-raiyats may acquire occupancy rights by custom or usage. This is apparent from illustration 2 to sec. 183, which is as follows :—“The custom or usage that an under-raiyat should under certain circumstances, acquire a right of occupancy is not inconsistent with, and is not expressly or by necessary implication, modified or abolished by, the provisions of this Act. That custom or usage, accordingly, wherever it exists, will not be effected by this Act.”

In sec. 113, too, reference is made to the holding of an under-raiyat having, and to that of an under-raiyat not having, occupancy rights.

Other rights of under raiyats.—The rights of an under-raiyat are not heritable (Keramulla v. Afajan, 8 C. W. N., 481). But this was distinguished from by a Full Bench which laid down that irrespective of custom or local usage, the heir of an under-raiyat under an annual holding is entitled on the death of the under-raiyat to remain in possession of the land until the end of the then agricultural year, for the purpose, if the land has been sub-let, of realising the rent which might accrue during the year ; or, if not sub-let, for the purpose of tending and gathering in the crops (Arif Mintul v. Ramratun Mandal, 8 C. W. N., 479 : 31 Calc., 757). See also Jamini Sundari Dasi v. Rajendra Nath Chakravarti, (11 C. W. N., 519), in which it was decided that the heirs of an under-raiyat under an annual holding do not acquire any interest in his holding by inheritance. The rights of an under-raiyat are, apparently transferable by custom or usage (sec. 183), as under the old law (Bonamali Bajadar v. Koilash Chandra Mazumdar, 4 Calc., 135). An under-raiyat may sub-let in his turn, for though sec. 85 apparently contemplates sub-letting by raiyats, yet in sec. 4 (3) under-raiyats are defined as "tenants holding whether immediately or mediately under raiyats." He can protect himself against the extinction of his rights in the land in consequence of a surrender of the holding by his raiyat landlord only by means of a registered instrument [sec. 86 (6)]. The grant of a mukarari lease may convert tenants, who were originally under-raiyats, into raiyats holding at fixed rates (Baburam Medda v. Umesh Chandra Parui, 2 C. W. N., ccxxxiv).

A sub-lease differs from an assignment of lease in that it creates no privity of contract between the sub-tenant and the landlord ; the landlord has to deal with his lessee and not with the sub-tenants of the latter. A landlord putting an end by proper notice to the tenancy of his tenant thereby determines the estate of the under-tenants of the latter (Timmappa v. Rama Venkanna, 21 Bom., 311).¹

Limitation.—An under-raiyat who has been ejected and seeks to recover possession must now under Act I, B. C., of 1907 bring his suit within 6 months of the date of ejectment. See art. 3, Sched. III, as amended by sec. 61, Act I, B. C., of 1907.

CHAPTER VIII.

GENERAL PROVISIONS AS TO RENT.

Relation of landlord and tenant must exist before provisions of this Act can be applied.—As this Act is an Act relating to the law of landlord and tenant, the relation of landlord and tenant must exist between the parties before its provisions can be applied. This rule was laid down in many cases under the former rent law. See Hari Prasad v. Kunjo Bihari Saha, W. R., F. B., 29; Nandi Das v. Tiwari Lal, W. R., Sp. No., 1864, Act X, 75; Jishan Hossein v. Bakar, 3 W. R., Act X, 3; Bharat Chandra Sen v. Osimudin, 6 W. R., Act X, 56; Ramessar Adhikari v. Watson & Co., 7 W. R., 2; Dayal Chand Sahai v. Nabin Chandra Adhikari, 16 W. R., 235; 8 B. L. R., 180; Jalpa v. Kailash Chandra Dey, 10 W. R., 407; Chandra Nath Chaudhri v. Ahsanullah Mandal, 10 W. R., 438; and Lachmipat Das v. Inayat Ali, 22 W. R., 346. The only exception to this rule would seem to be in the case provided for in sec. 157, when a landlord suing for ejectment of a trespasser may as an alternative relief claim that he may be declared liable to pay a fair and equitable rent for the land occupied by him. As to how the relation of landlord and tenant arises between parties, see note to sec. 3 (3), pp. 23—25.

A landlord is bound to give, and maintain his tenant in, peaceable possession.—In every agreement to lease there is an implied contract that the lessor will give peaceable possession of the land leased to the lessee (Mani Datta Singh v. Campbell, 11 W. R., 278; Radha Nath Chaudhri v. Jai Sundra Maitra, 2 C. L. R., 302). Every lessor, when he grants a lease, enters into an implied understanding to give peaceable possession of the land to his lessee, and it is not necessary for the lessee to apply to be put in possession (Mani Datta Singh v. Campbell, 12 W. R., 149). A landlord cannot claim rent where the lessee has never obtained possession (Harish Chandra Kundu v. Mohini Mohan Mitra, 9 W. R., 582; Bullen v. Lalit Jha, 3 B. L. R., App, 119). He is bound to secure quiet possession to his lessee (Krishna Sundra Sandyal v. Chandra Nath Rai, 15 W. R., 230). If he dispossesses him in any way, he cannot claim rent (Kadambini Dasi v. Kushi Nath Biswas, 13 W. R., 338; Govind Chand Jati v. Man Mohan Jha, 14 W. R., 43; Haimabati Dasi v. Srikrishna Nandi, 14 W. R., 58). There need not be complete eviction of the lessee to enable the latter to claim exemption from liability to pay rent (Lalita Sundari v. Sarnamayi Dasi, 5 C. W. N., 353). But the landlord does not dispossess his tenant merely by taking kabulyats from his tenant's under-tenants, if the tenant's possession is not actually disturbed (Mani v. Kalachand, 9 C. W. N., 871). He is further bound to protect him against eviction by title paramount (Gopanand Jha v. Govind Prasad, 12 W. R., 109; Braja Nath Pal Chaudhri v. Hira Lal Pal, 10 W. R., 120; 1 B. L. R., A. C., 87); but not against the wrongful acts of third parties (Govind Chandra Chandra v. Krishna Kanta Datta, 14 W. R., 273; Rang Lal Singh v. Rudro Prasad, 17 W. R., 386; Donzelle v. Giridhari Singh, 23 W. R., 121). When the superior holders of a tenure over the plaintiff compelled his tenants to attorn to them and pay rent accordingly, this was held not to be in law an ouster of the plaintiff, and the plaintiff obtained a decree for rent against the defendants, who were said to have a cause of action for damages against the superior holders of the tenure (Chandra Nuth Bhattacharji v. Jagat Chandra Bhattacharji, 22 W. R., 337). When the act of a landlord is not a mere act of trespass, but something of a graver character interfering substantially with the enjoyment by the tenant of the demised property, the tenant is entitled to a suspension of the rent during such interference, even though there may not be actual eviction (Dhanpat Singh v. Mahomed Kazim Ispahain, 24 Calc., 296). A lessor is not entitled to claim rent from the lessee for the period during which he wilfully disturbs the lessee's quiet possession. The law does not require that there should be a complete eviction of the lessee in order that he may be exempted from liability to pay rent (Lalita Sundari v. Sarnamayi Dasi, 5 C. W. N., 353). So, also, in Haro Kumari v. Purna Chandra Sarbogya, (28 Calc., 188), it was held that a landlord is not entitled to recover rent for the lands in the possession of a tenant, who holds a tenure under a lease which reserves rent at a certain rate per bigha, when he has dispossessed the tenants from other lands of the tenure, inasmuch as it cannot be said that each bigha of land is separately assessed and separately chargeable with rent. But a lessee who has lost a portion of the lands covered by the lease is not entitled to suspend payment of rent, if the dispossession has been effected not by the landlord, but by other lessees under him (Kali Prasanna Khasnavis v. Mathura Nath Sen, 34 Calc., 191).

These rulings generally agree with the provisions of section 108 of the Transfer of Property Act, clauses (b) and (c); but the former of these clauses now provides that the lessor is only bound to put the lessee in possession of the property on his requesting him to do so.

Burden of proof as to receipt of possession.—In a suit to recover arrears of rent under a kabulyat, the defendant who had paid rent for upwards of four or five years pleaded that he had obtained possession of a portion only of the lands demised. It was held that the onus of proving this plea lay on the defendant (Beni Madhab Mukhurji v. Sridhar Deb Ghatak, 10 C. L. R., 555).

Landlords cannot grant leases for terms exceeding periods of their interests.—Mr. Field in his Digest, art. 6, p. 7, formulates the law on this point as follows :—"No person having a limited interest in land is competent to grant a lease which shall be valid for any purpose or period in excess of his own interest" See Reg. XVIII of 1812, sec. 2 ; Mohan Koer v. Zoraman, Marsh., 166 ; Kailash Chandra Biswas v. Piressari Dasi, 10 W. R., 408 ; Damri Shaikh v. Bisseshar Lal, 13 W. R., 291 ; Harish Chandra Rai v. Sri Kali Mukhurji, 22 W. R., 274 ; Sarat Sundari Debi v. Binny, 25 W. R., 347 ; Madhu Sudan Singh v. Roke, 25 Calc., 1 ; L. R., 24 I. A., 164 ; 1 C. W. N., 433. See contra, Hiramani v. Ganganarain Rai, 10 W. R., 384. Mr. Field adds :—"A lease of the lessor's interest and of something in excess is void as to the excess merely, and is valid to the extent of the lessor's interest ; provided that, if the lessor acquires such excess after the execution of the lease, such lease is valid as against him for such excess also" (Kurn Chobe v. Junki Prasad, 1 N. W. P. Rep., 164 ; Amir Ali v. Hira Singh, 20 W. R., 291 ; sec. 115, Act I of 1872).

But see sec. 191 of this Act, which apparently allows a landlord of temporarily settled land to grant a lease at a particular rate of rent beyond the term of his own settlement, provided the tenant's right so to hold the land has been recognized by a duly empowered Revenue authority.

Determination of relation of landlord and tenant.—Until the relation of landlord and tenant is legally determined, the landlord cannot dispossess the tenant (Chaitan Singh v. Sadhari Monim, 5 C. L. J., 62). A suit for ejectment of a tenant cannot be maintained, unless the tenancy has been determined i. e., unless there has been a notice to quit, or a demand for possession (Deo Nandan Prasad v. Meghu Mahton, 11 C. W. N., 225 ; 34 Calc., 57 ; 5 C. L. J., 181 ; Anandamoyi v. Lakshi Chandra, 33 Calc., 339 ; 3 C. L. J., 274.)

Rules and Presumptions as to amount of rent.

50. (1) Where a tenure-holder or raiyat and his predecessors in interest have held at a rent or rate of rent which has not been changed from the time of the Permanent Settlement, the rent or rate of rent shall not be liable to be increased except on the ground of an alteration in the area of the tenure or holding.

(2) If it is proved in any suit or other proceeding under this Act that either a tenure-holder or raiyat and his predecessors in interest have held at a rent or rate of rent which has not been changed during the twenty years immediately before the institution of the suit or proceeding, it shall be presumed, until the contrary is shown, that they have held at that rent or rate of rent from the time of the Permanent Settlement.

Provided that if it is required by or under any enactment that in any local area tenancies, or any classes of tenancies, at fixed rents or rates of rent shall be registered as such on, or before, a date specified by or under the enactment, the foregoing presumption shall not after that date apply to any tenancy or, as the case may be, to any tenancy of that class in that local area unless the tenancy has been so registered.

(3) The operation of this section, so far as it relates to land held by a raiyat, shall not be affected by the fact of the land having been separated from other land which formed with it a single holding, or amalgamated with other land into one holding.

(4) Nothing in this section shall apply to a tenure held for a term of years or determinable at the will of the landlord.

Former and present law.—The former law was contained in secs. 4 of Act X of 1859 and of VIII, B. C., of 1869, and 16 and 17 of these Acts respectively, and was to the effect that the presumption arose when it was proved that the rent at which the land had been held had not been changed for twenty years, and it has been ruled that it is not necessary in order that the presumption may arise to prove that the land to which the suit relates has been the subject of a permanent settlement (Sudanand Mahanti v. Nauratan Mahanti, 16 W. R., 289; 8 B. L. R., 280). The present law prescribes that the presumption will arise when there is proof that the rent or rate of rent has not been changed, but it restricts the cases in which the presumption arises to those in which it is shown that the land has been held by a tenure-holder or raiyat or his predecessors in interest and excludes those cases in which it may have been held by strangers. The presumption may arise in the case of a ghatwali tenure (Gauri Kant v. Ram Gopal, 2 C. L. J., 379). The onus lies on the tenant to prove that he has held at a rent or rate of rent which has not been changed from the time of the Permanent Settlement, or for 20 years or more preceding the suit (Govind Priya v. Ratan Dhupi, 4 C. L. J., 37).

In what cases presumption cannot arise.—It is provided in sec. 115 that when the particulars mentioned in section 102, cl. (b), have been recorded under chap. X of the Act, the presumption under sec. 50 shall not thereafter apply to the tenancy. See note to that section and Secretary of State v. Kazimudin, (26 Calc., 617). The presumption can also not arise in the case of produce rents, which, as pointed out in the note to sec. 18, (p. 77) are not fixed rents. (See also Selections from papers relating to the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, p. 421). The presumption cannot arise except in a suit or proceeding under the Act (Nilmani Maithra v. Mathura Nath Joardar, 4 C. W. N., clix; 5 C. L. J., 413; Gauri Kant v. Ram Gopal, 2 C. L. J., 379; Rasomai Purkhait v. Srinath Muira, 7 C. W. N., 132; Sarat Chandra Ghosh v. Sham Chand Singha, 10 C. W. N., 930.)

Proof of payment necessary to raise presumption.—A raiyat is bound to give strict proof of a uniform payment of rent for twenty years. This is a matter which should not be decided in his favour on mere inference (Sham Lal Ghosh v. Boistab Charan Mazumdar, 7 W. R., 407; Rajnarain Chaudhri v. Atkins, 1 W. R., 45; Mahmuda Bibi v. Haridhan, 5 W. R., Act X, 12; Ram Kishor Mandal v. Chand Mandal,

5 W. R., Act X, 84; Prem Sahu v. Niamat Ali, 6 W. R., Act X, 90; Ram Jadu Ganguli v. Lakhi Narain Mandal, 8 W. R., 488. But see Radha Nath Sarkar v. Binodi Pal, 3 W. R., Act X, 151). Ex-parte summary decrees are not satisfactory proof that a variation has taken place (Kali Kant Rai v. Ashrafunnissa, 2 W. R., 326). Uniformity in the amount actually paid is not required to be proved, but uniformity in the rate agreed upon, either expressly or impliedly, between the parties to be paid (Moran & Co v. Anand Chandra Mazumdar, 6 W. R., Act X, 35); and the question to be tried is not whether the rent has been paid at a uniform rate, but whether it has not been changed at any time within the twenty years prior to the institution of the suit (Akmal Ali v. Ghulam Ghafur, 11 W. R., 432; Sham Charan Kundu v. Dwarkanath Kabiraj, 19 W. R., 100). On the other hand, the amount paid is not conclusive evidence of the amount of rent at which land is held and may be rebutted by showing that the actual rent is greater or less (Ananda Mayi Dasi v. Sarnomayi, 6 W. R., Act X, 83). A trifling difference in the jama will not necessarily affect the fact of uniform payment of rent (Gopal Chandra Basu v. Mathura Mohan Banurji, 3 W. R., Act X, 132; Haronath Rai v. Amir Biswas, 1 W. R., 231; Haro Nath Rai v. Chitramani Dasi, 3 W. R., Act X, 122; Ilahi Baksh v. Rupan Teli, 7 W. R., 284); as for instance, a variation of one anna (Mansur Ali v. Banu Singh, 7 W. R., 282), or a reduction in the jama of one anna and three pies (Ram Ratun Sarkar v. Chandra Mukhi, 2 W. R., Act X, 74), or even of one rupee in sixty, (Anand Lal v. Hills, 4 W. R., Act X, 33), or the payment of a small illegal cess (Samirudin Lashkar v. Haro Nath Rai, 2 W. R., Act X, 93; Dwarka Nath Singh v. Nabo Kumar Basu, 20 W. R., 270), or an arrangement by which a certain rent in cash is to be paid in lieu of rent in kind (Mitrajit Singh v. Tundan Singh, 12 W. R., 14). But see note, p. 166. An abatement of rent in consequence of diluvion does not prove alteration of the rate of rent (Reazunnissa v. Tukan Jha, 10 W. R., 246); nor does an abatement on account of lands having been rendered unculturable by the overflow of a river (Radha Govind Rai v. Kiamatul-lah, 21 W. R. 401). The change of sicca rupees into company's rupees is not proof of any real change of rent (Kali Churan Datta v. Sashi Dasi, 1 W. R., 248; Katyani Debi v. Sundari Debi, 2 W. R., Act X, 60; Tarasundari Barmanya v. Sibessar Chaturji, 6 W. R., Act X, 51; Watson & Co. v. Nando Lal Sarkar, 21 W. R., 420). It is not necessary that there should be evidence directly bearing on every year of the twenty; it is sufficient if the whole interval is included between limits upon which the evidence bears, provided that the evidence is such as to lead to the belief that the rent was uniform throughout the intervening period (Rash Bihari Ghosh v. Ram Kumar Ghosh, 22 W. R., 487; Rashmani Debya v.

Haranath Rai, 1 W. R., 280; Kalyani Debi v. Sundari Debi, 2 W. R., Act X, 60; Govind Karmokar v. Kumud Nath Bhattacharji, 3 W. R., Act X, 148; Tarini Kant Lahiri v. Kali Mohun Sarma, 3 W. R., Act X, 123; Kamal Lochan Rai v. Zimirudin Sardar, 7 W. R., 417; Foschola v. Haro Chandra Basu, 8 W. R., 284; Sarnomayi v. Babu Khan, 9 W. R., 270; and it is not absolutely necessary to prove uniform payment up to the date of suit (Gaya Ram Datta v. Guru Charan Chaturji, 2 W. R., Act X, 59), even for the full period of twenty years (Radhamayi De v. Aghar Nath Biswas, 25 W. R., 384).

Pleadings on which presumption will arise.—It is not necessary that the presumption should be specifically pleaded. It arises as a matter of course on proof of uniform payment for twenty years (Bhairabnath Sandyal v. Mati Mandal, W. R., Sp. No., Act X, 100; Manmohan Ghosh v. Hasrat Sardar, 2 W. R., Act X, 39; Ram Ratna Sarkar v. Chandar Mukhi Debi, 2 W. R., Act X, 74; Jaga Mohan Das v. Purna Chandar Rai, 3 W. R., Act X, 133; Hem Chandra Chaturji v. Purno Chandra Rai, 3 W. R., Act X, 162; Ruj Kumar Rai v. Assa Bibi, 3 W. R., Act X, 170; Nyamatullah v. Gobinda Chandra Datta, 4 W. R., Act X, 25; Dhan Singh Rai v. Chandra Kant Mukhurji, 4 W. R., Act X, 43; Guru Das Dandal v. Darbari, 5 W. R., Act X, 86; Sham Lal Ghosh v. Madun Gopal Ghosh, 6 W. R., Act X, 37; Girish Chandra Basu v. Kali Krishna Haldar, 6 W. R., Act X, 58; Rakhal Das Tewari v. Kinuram Haldar, 7 W. R., 242; Pulin Bihari Sen v. Nemai Chand, 7 W. R., 472; Manikarnika Chaudhurain v. Anand Mayi, 8 W. R., 6; Sudishti Lal Chaudhri v. Nathu Lal Chaudhri, 8 W. R., 487; Harak Singh v. Tulsi Ram Sahu, 11 W. R., 84; Mitrajit Singh v. Tundan Singh, 3 B. L. R., App., 88; 12 W. R., 14; Harak Singh v. Tulsi Ram Sahai, 13 W. R., 216; Tirthanand Thakur v. Herdu Jha, 9 Calc., 252). But the presumption will not arise if the pleadings contain any allegation inconsistent with the tenure or holding having been held since the time of the Permanent Settlement, e.g., when they allege a commencement of the tenancy at a much later date (Ram Krishna Sarkar v. Dilar Ali, W. R., Sp. No., 1864, Act X, 36; Hari Krishna Rai v. Babu, 1 W. R., 5; Lachmi Prasad v. Ramghulam Singh, 2 W. R., Act X, 30; Ghura Singh v. Otar Singh, 4 W. R., Act X, 15; Harak Singh v. Tulsi Ram Sahu, 11 W. R., 84), or if the tenant sets up a proprietary right adverse to his landlord (Bissonath Rai v. Bhairab Singh, 7 W. R., 145). If a tenant has paid rent for over twenty years prior to the date of suit at a uniform rate, the presumption of law would be, unless rebutted, that that has been the rate from the time of the permanent settlement. The mere fact that the tenant has only been able to show that his rate of rent has not been changed from a particular year will not preclude him from the benefit of the presumption (Mongola v. Kumud Chandra Singh, 5 C. W. N., 60).

There is no presumption that the state of things described in Thak and Survey maps existed at the time of the Permanent Settlement (Anando Hari Basak v. Secretary of State, 3 C. L. J., 316).

How presumption may be rebutted.—The presumption can be rebutted by proof or admission that the tenancy began subsequently to the date of the permanent settlement (Ramkrishna Sarkar v. Dilar Ali, W. R., Sp. No., 1864, Act X., 36; Hari Krishna Rai v. Babu, 1 W. R., 5; Magnamayi Debi v. Haro Chandra Raot, 6 W. R., Act X., 27; Kundu Misra v. Ganesh Singh, 15 W. R., 193). But the production of a pattah dated subsequent to the Permanent Settlement, if not inconsistent with the inference that it is a continuance of a former state of things, will not interfere with or defeat the presumption (Krishna Mohan Ghosh v. Ishan Chandra Mitra, 4 W. R., Act X., 36; Lachmi Narain Saha v. Kuchil Kant Rai, 6 W. R., Act X., 46; Karunamayi Dasi v. Shib Chandra De, 6 W. R., Act X., 50; Girish Chandra Basu v. Kali Krishna Haldar, 6 W. R., Act X., 58; Ram Chandra Datta v. Jogesh Chandra Datta, 19 W. R., 353; Piari Mohan Mukhurji v. Kailash Chandra Bairagi, 23 W. R., 58). If a tenant cannot show that a pattah of date subsequent to the Permanent Settlement is merely confirmatory of a previous holding, he is not entitled to the benefit of the presumption (Jainudin v. Purna Chandra Rai, 8 W. R., 129). The presumption may also be defeated by showing that the rent has varied, a variation from Rs. 11-15 to Rs. 13-4 being sufficient for this purpose (Bisheshar Chakravarti v. Uma Charan Rai, 7 W. R., 44. But see Haro Nath Rai v. Amir Biswas, (1 W. R., 230). But a mere alteration in the rate of rent on the part of a samindar or person other than the tenant will not prove a variation, unless it be shown that the tenant submitted to or paid that varied and enhanced rent (Gopal Mandal v. Nobo Krishna Mukurji, 5 W. R., Act X., 83). A decree for enhancement, though the rent at the enhanced rate has never been collected under it, is also sufficient for the purpose (Rakhail Das Basu v. Ghulam Sarwar, 2 W. R., Act X., 69; Udai Narain Sen v. Tarini Charan Rai, 11 W. R., 496; Naffur Chandra Pal v. Poulson, 19 W. R., 175; Durga Charan Chaturji v. Dayamoyi Dasi, 20 W. R., 243. But see Kali Kant Rai v. Ashrafunnissa, 2 W. R., 326; Jai Kishori Chaudhrain v. Gopal Lal Thakur, 6 W. R., Act X., 28; Haronath Rai v. Govind Chandra Datta, 23 W. R., 352; 15 B. L. R., 120; L. R., I. A., 193). The payment of additional rent for additional land does not defeat the presumption (Samirudin Lashkar v. Haro Nath Rai, 2 W. R., Act X., 93). The fact of a raiyat having pleaded a mukarari tenure cannot disentitle him to the benefit of the presumption (Chamarni v. Ainullah, 9 W. R., 451).

The presumption will not be rebutted by showing that the estate within which the tenure is situated was not permanently settled in 1793. The section does not apply only to tenures forming part of an estate permanently settled by the permanent settlement of 1793 (Tamasha v. Asutosh Dhar, 4 C. W. N., 513).

Proviso to sub-section (2).—This proviso was introduced with a view to the introduction into Council of a Bill for the registration of the tenancies referred to ; but the Bill, though introduced into Council, was subsequently abandoned (Proceedings of the Bengal Council, Nov. 27th, 1886, p. 102).

Division or consolidation of holdings.—The provisions of sub-section (3) are in accordance with the rulings of the Courts under the former law. See Sukhimani Halder v. Ganga Gobinda Mandal, W. R., Sp. No., Act X, 125 ; Hills v. Bisharath Mir, 1 W. R., 10 ; Ram Kumar Mukhurji v. Raghab Mandal, 2 W. R., Act X, 2 ; Kenaram Mallik v. Ram Kumar Mukhurji, 2 W. R., Act X, 17 ; Gopal Chandra Basu v. Mathur Mohan Banurji, 3 W. R., Act X, 132 ; Hills v. Haru Lal Sen, 3 W. R., Act X, 135 ; Khoda Newaz v. Nabo Krishna Raj, 5 W. R., Act X, 53 ; Raj Kishor Mukhurji v. Hurihar Mukhurji, 10 W. R., 117 ; Kashinath Lashkar v. Bama Sundari Debi, 10 W. R., 429 ; Sudhamukhi Dasi v. Ram Gati Karmakar, 20 W. R., 419. But if it be found that one of the holdings constituting the tenure has been created since the decennial settlement, the tenant cannot ask for the benefit of the presumption (Maula Baksh v. Jadunath Sadu Khan, 21 W. R., 267), and if the rent of an undivided share of a tenure has been enhanced, then, the whole tenure is liable to enhancement (Sarat Sundari Debi v. Ananda Mohan Ghatak, 5 Calc., 273 ; 4 C. L. R., 448).

Effect of presumption in the case of occupancy raiyats.—The presumption created by section 50 does not operate to convert an occupancy raiyat into a raiyat holding at fixed rates, nor does it render the tenancy subject to the incidents of a holding at fixed rates as prescribed by section 18 of the Act (Bansi Das v. Jagdip Narain Chaudhri 24 Calc., 152). The view expressed in this case was, however, dissented from by Amir Ali and Jenkins, JJ., in Dulhin Golab Koeri v. Balla Kurmi, (1 C. W. N., cclxxxi). This case subsequently came before a special Bench of five Judges, by which it was held that when the facts are such as to give rise to a presumption under sec. 50, sub-section (2), they do give rise to, or at least justify, the presumption that the raiyat is a raiyat holding at fixed rates (see Dulhin Golab Koeri v. Balla Kurmi, 2 C. W. N., 580 ; 25 Calc., 744).

Sub-section (4).—This sub-section can only refer to the case of a tenure which is held for a term of years at the time of the suit or proceeding. When the term of a kabulyat expired in 1872, this cannot preclude the tenants from the benefit of the terms of sec. 50 (2) (Atafal Ali v. Ghulam Mahiudin, 11 C. W. N., lxiii).

51. If a question arises as to the amount of a tenant's rent or the conditions under which he holds in any agricultural year, he shall be presumed, until the contrary is shown, to hold at the same rent and under the same conditions as in the last preceding agricultural year.

Presumption
as to amount of rent and conditions of holding.

Holding over.—Holding over means that the relation of landlords and tenants continues with the assent of both parties. The overt acts by which the relation may be continued are either the receipt of rent by the landlord or his assenting to the continuance of the tenancy by other acts or words (Ratan Lal v. Faroshi, 11 C. W. N., cxxxvi). When a tenant holds over after the expiration of his lease, he is not a trespasser (Sadhu Jha v. Bhupwan Upadhyay, 5 W. R., Act X, 17; Ram Khelawan Singh v. Sundra, 7 W. R., 152; Chaturi Singh v. Mukund Lal, 7 Calc., 710), and he does so on the terms of his lease, on the same rent and on the same stipulations as are mentioned in the lease, until the parties come to a fresh settlement (Kishori Lal De v. Administrator General of Bengal, 2 C. W. N., 303. See also Inayatullah v. Ilahi Baksh, W. R., Sp. No., 1864, Act X, 42; Jamaut Ali Shah v. Chattardhari Sahi, 16 W. R., 185; Sheo Sahai Singh v. Bichan Singh, 22 W. R., 31; Tara Chandra Banurji v. Amir Mandal, 22 W. R., 394; Allab Bibi v. Jugal Mandal, 25 W. R., 234; Beni Prasad Koeri v. Raj Kumar Chobe, 6 C. W. N., 589; Jugesh Chandra Rai v. Laljan, 9 C. W. N., cviii). In the case of Kishori Lal De v. Administrator General of Bengal, it was further said that "there is no general rule of law to the effect that the lease of an agricultural tenant who holds over must be taken as renewed from year to year," and that "if any contract is to be implied, it should be taken to have been entered into so soon as the term of the former lease expired rather than at the beginning of each year." But the correctness of this dictum was doubted in Ali Mamud Paramanik v. Bhagabati Debya (2 C. W. N., 525), and Administrator General of Bengal v. Asraf Ali, (28 Calc., 233); and see Woodfall's Law of Landlord and Tenant, 12th edit., p. 207; 14th edit., pp. 230, 766. Where a tenant holds over after the expiration of his lease without further agreement, such holding over, though by English law styled a tenancy by sufferance, is wrongful. Slight evidence, however, will suffice to change his position into that of a tenant at will. Under art. 139, Sch. II., of the Limitation Act time begins to run against a landlord when the period of a fixed lease expires, when there is no evidence from which a fresh tenancy can be inferred, and not at some indeterminate date after that period (Kanthappa v. Sheshappa, 22 Bom., 893; Chandri v. Daji Bhau, 24 Bom., 504)

When the contrary is not shown.—If a decree for enhanced rent has been superseded by a subsequent arrangement between the parties, it cannot be acted upon (Nobin Chandra Sarkar v. Gaur Chandra Saha, 6 Calc., 759; 8 C. L. R., 161), and in a case in which the plaintiff sued for enhancement and the defendant entered into a compromise and agreed to pay rent at an enhanced rate for two years, it was held that on the expiry of those two years, the defendant was not liable to pay rent at the higher rate (Barhancdin Hauladar v. Mohan Chandra Guha, 8 C. L. R., 511).

Alteration of rent on alteration of area.

Alteration of rent on alteration of area.

Alteration of rent in respect of alteration in area.

52. (1) Every tenant shall— *

(a) be liable to pay additional rent for all land proved by measurement to be in excess of the area for which rent has been previously paid by him, unless it is proved that the excess is due to the addition to the tenure or holding of land which having previously belonged to the tenure or holding was lost by diluvion or otherwise without any reduction of the rent being made; and

(b) be entitled to a reduction of rent in respect of any deficiency proved by measurement to exist in the area of his tenure or holding as compared with the area for which rent has been previously paid by him, unless it is proved that the deficiency is due to the loss of land which was added to the area of the tenure or holding by alluvion or otherwise, and that an addition has not been made to the rent in respect of the addition to the area.

(2) In determining the area for which rent has been previously paid, the Court shall, if so required by any party to the suit, have regard to —

- (a) the origin and conditions of the tenancy, for instance, whether the rent was a consolidated rent for the entire tenure or holding ;
- (b) whether the tenant has been allowed to hold additional land in consideration of an addition to his total rent or otherwise with the knowledge and consent of the landlord ;
- (c) the length of time during which the tenancy has lasted without dispute as to rent or area ; and
- (d) the length of the measure used or in local use at the time of the origin of the tenancy as compared with that used or in local use at the time of the institution of the suit.

(3) In determining the amount to be added to the rent, the Court shall have regard to the rates payable by tenants of the same class for lands of a similar description and with similar advantages in the vicinity, and, in the case of a tenure-holder, to the profits to which he is entitled in respect of the rent of his tenure, and shall not in any case fix any rent which, under the circumstances of the case, is unfair or inequitable.

(4) The amount abated from the rent shall bear the same proportion to the rent previously payable as the diminution of the total yearly value of the tenure or holding bears to the previous total yearly value thereof, or, in default of satisfactory proof of the yearly value of the land lost, shall bear to the rent previously payable the same proportion as the diminution of area bears to the previous area of the tenure or holding.

[(5) When in a suit under this section the landlord or tenant is unable to indicate any particular land as held in excess, the rent to be added on account of the excess area may be calculated at the average rate of rent paid on all the lands of the holding exclusive of such excess area.]

[(6) When in a suit under this section the landlord or tenant proves that, at the time the measurement on which the claim is based was made, there existed in respect of the estate or permanent tenure or part thereof in which the tenure or holding is situate, a practice of settlement being made after measurement of the land assessed with rent, it may be presumed that the area of the tenure or holding specified in any patta or kabuliyat, or (where there is an entry of area in a counterfoil receipt corresponding to the entry in the rent-roll) in any rent-roll relating to it, has been entered in such patta, kabuliyat or rent-roll after measurement.]

Extended to Orissa (Not., Oct. 17th, 1896), Sub-section (5) was added to the section by Act III, B. C. of 1898, sub-section (6) by s. 13, Act I, B. C., of 1907.

Increase in area by accretion.—Formerly there was a conflict of rulings as to whether a tenant had any right in land which had accreted to his tenancy. But the matter has now been set at rest by the Full Bench decision in Gaur Hari Kaibartto v. Bhola Kaibartto, (21 Calc., 233), in which it was decided that a raiyat who has a right of occupancy is entitled to hold lands accreted to his 'jote as an increment to it. Sec. 4 of Reg. XI of 1825 even applies to a person who is not an occupancy raiyat (Mia Jan v. Akram Ali, 5 C. L. J., 26 n). Then, as to a landlord's right to rent for land so added to a tenant's tenure or holding, it was held under the former law that he would only be so entitled, provided the tenant was liable by his engagement or by established usage to such an increase of rent (see section 4, clause 1, Reg. XI of 1825 and Jagat Chandra Datta v. Panioty, 6 W. R., Act X, 48; Gopal Lal Thakur v. Kumar Ali, 6 W. R., Act X, 85; Jagat Chandra Datta v. Panioty, 8 W. R., 427; in review, 9 W. R., 379; Ramnidhi Manjhi v. Parbati Dasi, 5 Calc., 823; Ghulum Ali Chaudhri v. Kali Krishna Thakur, 8 C. L. R., 517; 7 Calc., 479; Brajendra Kumar Bhumik v. Upendra Narain Singh, 8 Calc., 706; Haro Sundari Dasi v. Gopi Sundari Dasi, 10 C. L. R., 559). Now under clause (a) of this section, a tenant is of course liable to pay additional rent for such land except in the circumstances specified. In a suit brought by the talukdar of a certain mauzah against the dar-talukdar for a declaration that he was entitled to get rent at a certain rate, and in the alternative for compensation for use and occupation of the disputed land which was an accretion to the mauzah, and in respect of which a settlement was made with him by Government treating it as a separate estate, the defence was that the suit was not maintainable unless a rental was assessed in the first instance, and that no arrears of rent could be claimed as there was no relation of landlord and tenant between the parties. Held, that the landlord could not treat the disputed land as a separate tenure, that the increment was to be regarded as part of the parent estate, and treating it as part and parcel of the parent estate, he was entitled to get assessment of rent on the disputed land; but he was not entitled in the suit to back rent or compensation for use and occupation (Ahsanulla v. Mohini Mohan Das, 26 Calc., 739).

Increase in area due to encroachment.—A tenant may encroach upon either the neighbouring land of his own landlord or upon that of a third person. In the latter case he makes the encroachment for his landlord's benefit, and not for himself, and his landlord is entitled to additional rent for the land so added to the subject of the tenancy (Naddiar Chand Saha v. Meajan, 10 Calc., 820. See also Andrew v. Francis, 2 Hay's Reports, 560, and Esubai v. Damodar Ishwardas, 16 Bom., 558). In one case, Guru Das Rai v. Issar Chandra Basu, (22 W. R., 246), it was ruled that if a tenant's tenancy was permanent or he had a right of occupancy, he could not be ejected from lands added to his lands by encroachment, while his tenancy lasted, but when the rent was re-adjusted the lands might be brought into calculation.

But this was expressly dissented from in Naddiar Chand Saha v. Meajan. When the encroachment is made on the adjoining land of his own landlord, it was at first held that his landlord's only remedy was to treat the tenant who had made the encroachment as a trespasser (Rasham Bibi v. Bisso Nath Sarkar, 6 W. R., Act X, 57; DeCourcy v. Megh Nath Jha, 15 W. R., 157); but in subsequent cases it was ruled that the landlord could either treat him as a tenant in respect of the excess land or as a trespasser at his pleasure (David v. Ramdhan Chaturji, 6 W. R., Act X, 97; Rajmohan Mitra v. Guru Charn Aich, 6 W. R., Act X, 106; Sham Jha v. Durga Rai, 7 W. R., 122, Ghulam Ali v. Gopal Lal Thakur, 9 W. R., 65); and this is the law now (Ishan Chandra Mitra v. Ram Ranjan Chakravartti, 2 C. L. J., 125). See sec. 157, and also the case of Prahlad Teor v. Kedar Nath Basu, (25 Calc., 302) in which it has been expressly said that "when a tenant encroaches upon the land of his landlord, though the landlord may, if he chooses, treat him as a tenant in respect of the land encroached upon, the tenant has no right to compel the landlord against his will to accept him as a tenant in respect of that land." But it does not follow that because the landlord has this option he can treat the tenant as a trespasser at any time after having exercised his option in treating him as a tenant for some time (Abdul Hamid v. Mohini Kant Saha, 4 C. W. N., 508). If a tenant encroaches on the adjoining waste land of his landlord, his possession of the lands encroached upon can only commence to be adverse when a title adverse to his landlord is asserted or the landlord becomes aware of the encroachment (Wali Ahmed v. Tota Miah, 31 Calc., 397; Ishan Chandra Mitra v. Ram Ranjan Chakravartti, 2 C. L. J., 125).

Increase in area found on measurement.—Under the old law, a tenant was not a trespasser in respect of land within the boundaries, or clearly part, though in excess, of the area originally leased to him, and he could be sued for additional rent for this land (Bipra Das De v. Sakirmani Dasi, W. R., Sp. No. 1864, Act X, 38; Saudamini Dasi v. Guru Prasad Datta, 3 W. R., 14; Gopinath Mukkurji v. Ram Hari Mandal, 9 W. R., 476; Ahmed Hossein v. Bandi, 15 W. R., 91; Pran Krishna Bagchi v. Manmohini Dasi, 17 W. R., 34). But it was held that in order to ascertain what was actually leased to him, the boundaries of his land should be looked to and not the estimated area (Abdul Mannah v. Barada Kant Banurji, 15 W. R., 394; Modikudin Joardar v. Sandes, 12 W. R., 439; Shib Chandra Mahniah v. Brajonath Aditya, 14 W. R., 301; Pahalwan Singh v. Moheshwar Baksh Singh, 16 W. R., P. C., 5; 9 B. L. R., 150; Ishan Chandra Ghosh v. Pratap Chandra Rai, 20 W. R., 224).

(a).—To entitle a plaintiff to a decree for increased rent on the ground of an alteration in the area of the defendant's holding, the plaintiff must show that the defendant is holding land in excess of what he is paying rent for, and, in order to do that, he must show for what quantity of land the defendant is paying rent (Surjo Kant Acharji v. Banerwar Shaha, 24 Calc., 251). A decree for additional rent on account of additional land cannot stand merely on the ground that the defendant's land as now measured by a particular standard is larger in area than the defendant admits. It must be shown that the defendant is in possession of more land than he has been previously paying rent for, or that the rent which he has been paying was not payable for the whole of the land which is in his possession, or that the pole with which the defendant's land has now been measured was the pole with which it was measured in the first instance (Alif Khan v. Raghu Nath Prasad, 1 C. W. N., 310). The expression "the area for which rent has previously been paid" means the area with reference to which the rent previously paid had been assessed or adjusted (Rajendro Lal Goswami v. Chandra Bhusan Goswami, 6 C. W. N., 318). It has, further, been held that the provisions of section 52 are applicable to settlement proceedings under Chap. X of this Act; so in such proceedings a zamindar is not entitled to additional rent merely on showing that the tenants are in possession of land in excess of the areas entered in his zamindari papers, or in their rent receipts. It is incumbent on the zamindar in such circumstances to show that the lands held by the tenants are in excess of the lands originally let to them in consequence of some encroachment or some alluvial increment, or that the previous settlement was made on the basis of a measurement, and the rates of rent applied to the area then determined, while, on a fresh measurement being made by the same length of measure, it has been found that he is entitled to receive some additional rent, which by carelessness or neglect or some other reason he had hitherto lost (Gauri Patro v. Reily, 20 Calc. 579). In the case of Sheoratan Koer v. Sobh Gond, Rule 266 of 10th Sept, 1895, (unreported) circulated with Board of Revenue's C. O., No. 1 of March, 1896, it was pointed out that when in settlement proceedings the tenants admitted the landlord's claim to additional rent for excess lands, each of the tenants should be asked by the Settlement Officer what he understood and admitted to be the representation of the area of his previous holding, and that, then, the Settlement Officer would be in a position to determine whether on the new measurement such tenant was liable to additional rent on excess lands. When the tenants agreed to pay rent at certain rates on account of excess area it is for them to show that the areas were less than those contracted to be paid for (Nil Madhab Saha v. Kadam Mandal, 3 C. L. J., 74n). When a kabuliyat executed before the passing of the Tenancy Act provided for the payment of rent at a certain rate on any excess area, and the suit was for measurement only, the suit was held not to be under sec. 52 (Matangini Dasi v. Ram Das Mallik, 7 C. W. N., 93). To entitle a landlord to an increase of rent under sec. 52, he must prove facts and circumstances showing that there was some reason not within the control of the landlord for additional lands being included in the holding (Ratan Lal Biswas v. Jadu Halsana, 10 C. W. N., 46). When the plaintiff adduces evidence to show that the standard of measurement prevalent at the time the claim is made, was in use when the tenancy was created, and the defendant produces no rebutting evidence, the Court may presume that the state of things in existence at the time of the suit existed also at the inception of the tenancy (Ishan Chandra Mitra v. Ram Ranjan Chakravartti, 2 C. L. J., 125). A landlord is entitled to additional rent for excess lands only when he shows (a) what the quantity of land was at the inception of the tenancy; (b) that the rent was settled with reference to the area; (c) that no consolidated rent for the entire area let out was settled; and (d) that the quantity of land held at the time of suit is in excess of that originally let out (Raj Kumar Sahay v. Ram Lal Singh, 5 C. L. J., 538).

Oral evidence when inadmissible to prove area.—A contract of tenancy being inadmissible for want of registration, oral evidence as to the quantity of land held by the tenant is under sec. 91 of the Evidence Act not admissible to prove the same (Govinda Chandra Bagchi v. Jogeshwar Sarkar, 1 C. W. N., xxiv).

Right to additional rent a recurring one.—The right to recover additional rent is a recurring one. A landlord is entitled to exercise it whenever he finds it necessary to do so (Jotindra Mohan Tagore v. Chandra Nath Safai, 6 C. W. N., 360).

Back rent.—There is nothing to prevent the landlord from claiming back rents for any additional area, if such additional area was in the use and occupation of the raiyat, provided the claim is not barred by limitation (Jagannath Manjhi v. Juman Ali, 29 Calc., 247).

Reduction of rent for decrease in area.—Under the former rent law and rulings all tenants were entitled to abatement of rent on the ground of diluvion or deficiency proved by measurement in the area of the subject of the tenancy. Thus a patnidar or other lease-holder could sue for abatement of rent on the ground of part of the lands of his patni having been resumed by Government as chakaran land (Hara Krishna Banurji v. Jai Krishna Mukhurji, 1 W. R., 299), or on the ground of part of the land having been taken up for railway purposes (Prasannamayi Dasi v. Sundar Kumari Debi, 2 W. R., Act X, 30; Mahtab Chand v. Chitro Kumari, 16 W. R., 201; Uma Sankar Sarkar v. Tarini Chandra Singh, 9 Calc., 571; Watson & Co. v. Nistarini Gupta, 10 Calc., 544). A dar-patnidar and a hauladar had similar rights (Ram Narain Chakravartti v. Pulin Bihari Singh, 2 C. L. R., 5; Kamala Kant Das v. Pogose, 2 W. R., Act X, 65). A tenant with or without a right of occupancy was entitled to an abatement of rent for land washed away, unless precluded by the terms of his kabulyat from claiming that abatement (Inayatullah v. Ilahi Baksh, W. R., Sp. No., 1864, Act X, 42), and such right passed to a purchaser on a sale of the tenant's right (Kali Prasanna Rai v. Dhananjai Ghosh, 11 Calc., 625). Now, a tenant cannot be precluded by the terms of his agreement from claiming an abatement of rent; for under sec. 178 (3) (f) nothing in any contract made after the passing of this Act (i. e., the 14th March 1885) can take away the right of a raiyat to apply for a reduction of rent under this section. But in Satyendra Nath Thakur v. Nilkantha Singh, (21 Calc., 383), in which a tenant was sued for arrears of rent of his jote, and compromised the case by executing a solehnama, agreeing to pay rent at 13as. per bigha on 4,300 bighas, and that no remission of rent should be claimed on any account whatever, and in which, the jote being subsequently sold in execution of a decree passed on the basis of the solehnama, the landlord sued the purchaser for arrears at the rate specified in the solehnama, it was held that the compromise was a valid and binding transaction, and, that being so, the purchaser was bound by it. * The provisions of sec. 178 (3) (f) were not referred to in this case. Abatement could be claimed for land taken up by Government for a road (Din Dyal Lal v. Thakru Kunwar, 6 W. R., Act X, 24), and on the ground of dispossession by title paramount (Brajanath Pal Chaudhri v. Hiralal Pal, 10 W. R., 120; 1 B. L. R., A. C., 87; Gopanand Jhu v. Govind Prasad, 12 W. R., 109); but not if the tenant could not show that his lessor had had no title, and that the person who ousted him had a title (Rung Lal Singh v. Rudro Prasad, 17 W. R., 386). When the right to claim abatement was founded on an agreement, its exercise might be barred by limitation (Prasanno Mayi Dasi v. Dayamayi Dasi, 22 W. R., 275). This cannot be the case under the present law, for the right to sue for abatement arises under this section and is not founded on agreement. If the raiyat knew that the area of land leased to him was less than that mentioned in his pattah, it was held that he was not entitled to abatement of rent on this ground (Tripp v. Kali Das Mukhurji, W. R., Sp. No., 1864, Act X, 122). Nor would he be entitled to abatement, if he came into possession of a less quantity of land through his own fault (Sitanath Basu v. Sham Chand Mitra, 17 W. R., 418). In a case in which land had been taken up for public purposes, and the zamindar declared he would allow no abatement of rent on this ground, and permitted the patnidar to appropriate the whole of the compensation paid by Government, it was held that a purchaser of the patni was not entitled to abatement of rent, as he must be presumed to have had notice of the proceedings (Piari Mohan Mukhurji v. Aftab Chand, 10 C. L. R., 526). But in another case in which the zamindar made no such stipulation, it has been held that in such a case the patnidar is entitled to an abatement of rent, and also to some share of the compensation (Bhavani Nath Chakravartti v. Land Acquisition Deputy Collector, 7 C. W. N., 130). A decree had determined that lands leased in mukarari to a lessee with a fixed rent thereon were less in extent than they were specified to be in the pattaks that comprised them, the lessors not having title to the whole, and the lessee had obtained possession of the less estate. It was held that the lessee was entitled to a corresponding abatement of the rent reserved (Imumbandi Begam v. Kamleswari Prasad, 21 Calc., 1005; L. R. 21, I. A., 118). A tenant holding under a permanent mukarari lease is not entitled to get abatement of rent by reason of a portion of the land in his occupation having been diluviated by the action of a river (Nandu Lal Mukhurji v. Kaimudin, 9 C. W. N., 886). When an abatement of rent has been granted by a landlord on condition that it is to continue for a limited term or during the continuance of certain circumstances, the original rent is revived as soon as the term expires, or the circumstances cease to exist (Manindra Chandra Nandi v. Pran Krishto Sarkar, 1 C. L. J., 98n).

Abatement of rent could be sued for or claimed as a set-off—Abatement of rent can be sued for, or be claimed as a set-off in a suit for arrears of rent (Afsarudin v. Sarashibala, Marsh., 558; Barry v. Abdul Ali, W. R., Sp. No., 1864, Act X, 64; Din Dyal Lal v. Thakru Kunwar, 6 W. R., Act X, 24; Gaur Kishor Chandra v. Bonamali Chaudhri, 22 W. R., 117). As rent is a recurring cause of action, a tenant may set up a claim to abatement in a suit for the rent of any particular year, notwithstanding the fact that he has paid full rent for several previous years (Maktab Chand v. Chittro Kumari, 16 W. R., 201). But it has been held under the former law that, though the Limitation Act may not prevent a defendant from setting up a claim for abatement, still a delay of 24 years in claiming it may disentitle him to relief in a Court of equity (Ram Narain Chakravartti v. Pulin Bihari Singh, 2 C. L. R., 5), and the same principle was applied in the case of a taluk created before the Permanent Settlement and where diluvion was not pleaded until 30 years after the occurrence (Ram Charan Basak v. Lucas, 16 W. R., 279).

How reduction of rent can be obtained under the present law.—Section 52 (b) does not explain whether reduction of rent on account of a decrease in area can be claimed as a set-off or only in a suit brought for the purpose. The words “every tenant shall be entitled,” &c., seem to point to the conclusion that a reduction of rent on this ground may be claimed as a set-off. On the other hand, a reduction of rent on the grounds specified in sec. 38 viz., (1) permanent deterioration of the soil of the holding, and (2) fall in the average local prices of food crops, would seem to be obtainable by an occupancy raiyat only in a suit instituted for the purpose. The expression “tenant” in this section does not include the case of a mere co-sharer tenant who has only a fractional share in the tenure : it means the tenant of the tenure and not one of many tenants : so when a suit for rent is brought by some of several joint landlords against one of several joint tenants for recovery of the plaintiff’s share of the rent, such tenant defendant cannot claim abatement under the provisions of this section. His remedy is to bring a suit for abatement making all the joint landlords and his co-sharers in the tenancy parties (Bhubendra Narain Datta v. Raman Krishna Datta, 27 Calc., 417 ; 4 C. W. N., 107).

Res judicata in cases of claims for reduction of rent.—When a suit was brought for a year’s rent, and the tenant claimed abatement, a judgment was obtained, which determined the amount to be abated on materials which would be applicable to one year as well as another. It was held that the question of abatement was determined between the parties not only for the year of which the rent was in suit, but for all future years (Nabo Durga Dasi v. Faiz Baksh Chaudhri, 24 W. R., 403 ; 1 Calc., 202). In a suit for arrears of rent, the defendant admitted that the sum claimed was due, but pleaded that it was due for a larger area of land than that specified in the plaint. An issue was framed on this contention and decided against the defendant. The defendant then brought a suit to have it declared that a sum of money, equal in amount to the sum paid on admission in the former suit, comprised the rent due on all the lands held by him under the plaintiff in the former suit and it was held that this question was res judicata (Bassan Lal Sukal v. Chandi Das, 4 Calc., 686). But in a suit by raiyats against their samindar, praying for measurement of certain land and for a declaration of the amount of their yearly rent, in which it appeared that in a previous suit brought by the samindar for rent, the raiyats had alleged that the amount of rent and the extent of land had been overstated by the samindar, but the Court decided that the raiyats were bound by a jamabandi signed by them, and refused to try whether the extent of land had been overstated, it was held that the suit was not barred as res judicata (Raghu Nath Mandal v. Jaggat Bandhu Basu, 7 Cal., 214; 8 C. L. R., 393). In a suit in which the plaintiff sued for the rent of certain land, the defendant contended that he was not liable for the entire rent, as part of his land was in the plaintiff's possession. No issues were framed, and there was no measurement of the land, but it was held that the defendant had failed to prove his contention. The plaintiff then sued the defendant again for arrears of rent of subsequent years. The defendant had the land measured, adduced evidence, and raised the same plea as before; and it was held that the matter was not res judicata, and that it was open to him to do so, as the area of the land in the defendant's possession and the annual rent payable for the same had not been definitely determined in the previous suit. (Nil Madhab Sarkar v. Braja Nath Singh, 21 Cal. 236).

Proved by measurement—These words in sub-section (1) (a) and (b) would seem to mean "proved in the course of the suit;" for the word "proved" would seem to imply the production of evidence in the course of a trial. Hence, a measurement precedent to the institution of the suit would not seem to be essential before a suit can be brought for increase or reduction of rent under this sub-section.

Sub-section (2), clause (c). Rulings under the former law.—The defendant having for more than sixty years occupied lands in excess of the number of bighas specified in his pattah, and the lands in question having always been deemed to form part of what was covered by the pattah, it was held that they had been occupied and enjoyed as the land included in the pattah since before the Decennial Settlement, and that the rent therefore could not be enhanced (Janaki Bullabh Chakravarti v. Nabin Chandra Rai, 2 W. R., Act X, 33; Indra Bhushan Deb v. Golak Chandra Chakravarti, 12 W., R., 350; Farquharson v. Government of Bengal, 16 W. R., P. C., 29).

Sub-section (2), clause (d). Ruling under the former law.—It cannot be said that because of some difference in the length of the measuring pole in use at different periods the area of the land has been altered (Baban Mandal v. Shib Kumari Barmani, 21 W. R., 404).

Sub-section (4).—The rule prescribed in this sub-section is the same as that laid down in Brajanath Pal v. Hira Lal Pal, (1 B. L. R., A. C., 87; 10 W. R., 120). In order to bring a case within the first alternative mentioned in 52 (4), it is to be shown in the first place what the yearly value of the tenure is. It is next to be shown what is the diminution of the total yearly value of the tenure, and in order to calculate the diminution, the Court must find out the yearly value of the land lost (Kanai Lal Khan v. Midnapur Zamindari Co., 5 C. L. J., 48n).

Sub-section (5).—This sub-section was added to section 52 by the the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Act III, B. C., of 1898, which was extended to Orissa by Not., Nov. 5th, 1898. In the statement of Objects and Reasons prefixed to the Bill of 1897 to amend the Tenancy Act, the necessity for the addition of this sub-section was explained as follows :—

“It has been held by some Special Judges, interpreting a decision of the High Court (1) that when additional rent is claimed on the ground of excess area, the landlord must indicate the precise plots or pieces of land acquired by the tenant in excess of the original holding, while section 52 itself does not provide for the assessment to rent of excess lands, where there are no rates for lands of a similar description in the vicinity but lump rentals. The section, as amended, indicates that it should not be always necessary, in order to prove excess area, to point out the particular plots that were acquired since the original letting, and provides a rule for assessment of such excess areas, when proved. When the original letting was at so much a bigha, and it is shown by measurement by the same standard and under the same conditions that the tenant is holding a large number of bighas than he is paying rent for, it should not be necessary for the landlord to point out the particular plots which the tenant has acquired in excess of the original area comprised in his holding.”

Sub-section (6).—This sub-section has been added by Act I, B. C., of 1907. In the Notes on Clauses to the Bill, which afterwards became Act I, B. C. of 1907, it is said :—

“The law, as it stands at present, contains no provision for the proof of excess area, otherwise than by evidence of its specific existence in each case, and the decisions of the Courts have not always been in accordance with the intentions of the framers of the Amendment Act of 1898, who, by adding sub-section (5) to section 52, by implication suggested that excess area may be assessed to rent, even if the landlord is unable to indicate any particular land as held in excess. The proposed modification of section 52 will allow the custom of settlement on measurement to be taken as a presumption that the area of a tenure or holding mentioned in the landlord's papers has been ascertained by actual measurement, and thus make it easier for the landlords to prove the existence of excess area.”

The Select Committee explained the changes they made in this sub-section as follows :—

“The clause as originally drafted required the landlord or tenant to prove that a custom of measurement existed in the village in order to have the presumption applied that any entry of area had been made after measurement. It has been represented, we think rightly, that it would be very difficult to prove a custom of measurement; and also that what is really relevant is not a general custom, but a usage existing at the time the measurement on which the claim is based was made. We are also of opinion that the village is not a suitable unit for this matter. A village may contain several estates or permanent tenures, and the practice of the different landlords in regard to measurement may not be identical. There is no reason therefore why the same presumption should apply to all. We consider that the unit should be the estate, permanent tenure or part thereof, in which the holding concerned is situated. We are also of opinion that the presumption should only arise in respect of an area entered in a rent-roll, if it is supported by a corresponding entry in a counterfoil receipt, from which it may be inferred that the tenant knew of and accepted the description of the area of his holding adopted by the landlord. The changes, which we propose in the clause, give effect to these views."

A suit under this section cannot proceed at the instance of fractional co-sharers—A suit for additional rent on the ground of excess land found in the possession of a raiyat must in consequence of the provisions of section 188 of this Act be brought by all the joint landlords and cannot proceed at the instance of some of the fractional shareholders (Gopal Chandra Das v. Umesh Narain Chaudhri, 17 Calc., 695). But the provisions of sec. 188 are not applicable to a case in which one co-sharer sues for arrears of the rent payable under a kabulyat for land left unassessed at the time of the original letting on the ground of its being unculturable, but which had subsequently become fit for cultivation, and in which kabulyat the rent payable for this land on its becoming fit for cultivation had been fixed; for such a suit is not one under this section but one upon the original contract of letting (Ram Chandra Chakravarti v. Giridhar Datta, 19 Calc., 755). A kabulyat executed by the holder of a dar-maurasi patta in favour of his immediate landlord, a mukararidar, provided that the former should have his name entered in the samindar's sertshtah, in place of the mukararidar's and pay rent direct to the samindar, and in case the area of the tenure should exceed certain bighas, he should pay rent on each excess bigha to the mukararidar and the samindar respectively. The agreement was satisfied by the samindar: held, that though the mukararidar and the samindar were both landlords of the dar-maurasidar, they were not joint landlords under s. 188 (Matangini Dasi v. Ram Das Mallik, 7 C. W. N., 94). Where a co-sharer landlord sues for arrears of rent and additional rent on a kabulyat in which the right of the plaintiff to certain rent, and his right to additional rent for excess area were admitted, and the right of the plaintiff and the liability of the defendant were set out without any reference to the right of any other co-sharer; held, that such a suit was maintainable, although the plaintiff's co-sharer was not made a party (Govind Chandra Pal v. Humidulla Bhuiyan, 7 C. W. N., 670).

There is no defect in such a suit, when the whole of the rent is sued for, and all the non-joining co-sharer landlords are made parties defendant (Din Turini Dasi v. Broughton, 3 C. W. N., 225). A fractional shareholder of a tenure has no right to grant abatement of rent in respect of a holding within the tenure independently of his other co-sharer (Syama Charan Mandal v. Saim Mollah, 1 C. W. N., 415; Bhupendra Narain Datta v. Raman Krishna Datta, 27 Calc., 417; 4 C. W. N., 107). When the lands for which rent is claimed were no part of the original holding, formed subsequently to its creation and are outside its boundaries, they constitute a new holding, and the right to claim such rent is a right inseparable from the landlord's position as proprietor of the lands and exists independently of sec. 52. Section 188 is, therefore, no bar to a suit brought by a co-sharer landlord for the recovery of his share of the encroached lands, or for the assessment of rent on them. But the case is different when a co-sharer landlord claims khas possession with an alternative claim for rent, not merely of the additional land found in the possession of the tenant, but for the entire quantity of land found in his possession, including the lands of the old holding. Such a suit is within the scope of section 52, and is barred by the provisions of sec. 188 (Abdul Hamid v. Mohini Kant Saha, 4 C. W. N., 508).

Court fees.—Under sec. 7, sub-sec. 11, Act VII of 1870, in a suit (1) to enhance the rent of a raiyat having a right of occupancy, and (2) for abatement of rent, the amount of fee payable under the Act shall be computed according to the amount of the rent of the land to which the suit refers, payable for the year next before the date of presenting the plaint.

Payment of rent.

53. Subject to agreement or established usage, a money-rent payable by a tenant shall be paid in four equal instalments falling due on the last day of each quarter of the agricultural year.

*Payment of rent.
Instalments of
rent.*

Former law.—Under the former law (sec. 20, Act X of 1859 and sec. 21, Act VIII, B. C., of 1869) instalments of rent were payable according to the pattah or engagement, or if there was no written specification of the time of payment, according to "established usage," and these words referred to the established usage in the pargana and not to the established usage between the parties (Chaitanya Chandra Rai v. Kedar Nath Rai, 14 W. R., 99). When the kabulyat stipulated that payment should be made in monthly kists, the raiyat was bound by its terms, notwithstanding that the landlord had previously not enforced them strictly (Piari Mohan Mukhurji v. Braja Mohan Basu, 21 W. R., 36 ; 22 W. R., 428).

Present law.—A decision under the old law by which payment annually was decreed is no evidence of an “agreement” between the parties, and the words “established usage” in the section refer, not to a practice previously prevailing between the parties, but to the established usage of the pargana, in which the property is situated (Hira Lal Das v. Mathura Mohan Rai Chaudhri, 15 Calc., 714). This decision was followed, as to the meaning to be attached to the words “established usage” in this section, in Watson v. Srikrishna Bhumi, (21 Calc., 132). When an instalment of rent falls due after the date on which the sale of a holding is confirmed, the purchaser is liable for the whole of the instalment, though he may have had possession for only a part of the period in respect of which the instalment is due ; for rent is ordinarily to be regarded, not as accruing from day to day, but as falling due only at stated intervals according to the contract of tenancy, or, in the absence of such contract, according to the general law as laid down in this section (Satyendro Nath Thakur v. Nil Kanth Singh, 21 Calc., 383). When a landlord has brought a tenure to sale in execution of a decree for arrears of rent, the purchaser becomes his tenant only from the date of the confirmation of the sale, and the arrears accruing due between the date of sale and the date of confirmation of sale must be treated as arrears of rent payable by the out-going tenant, whose interest does not cease till the sale is confirmed (Karunami Banurji v. Surendra Nath Mukhurji, 2 C. W. N., cccxxvii).

In sec. 3 (5) it is provided, that “in secs. 53 to 68, both inclusive, rent includes also money recoverable under any enactment for the time being in force as if it was rent.” Hence, sums payable under the Cess Act (IX of 1880, B. C.), the Survey (Act V, B. C., of 1875), and the other Acts mentioned in the note at p. 29 are, subject to agreement, established usage, or statutory enactment, payable in four quarterly instalments.

Produce rents.—This section applies to money rents only. Produce rents would, therefore, seem to be payable according to agreement between the parties or established usage.

54. (1) Every tenant shall pay each instalment of rent before sunset of the day on which it falls due.

Time and place for payment of rent.

(2) The payment shall, except in cases where a tenant is allowed under this Act to deposit his rent, be made at the landlord's village-office, or at such other convenient place as may be appointed in that behalf by the landlord :

Provided that the Local Government may, from time to time, make rules either generally or for any specified local area, authorizing a tenant to pay his rent by postal money-order.

(3) Any instalment or part of an instalment of rent not duly paid at or before the time when it falls due shall be deemed an arrear.

Extended to Orissa, (Not., Sept. 10th, 1891).

Sub-section (1).—Under the old law in Kashi Kant Bhattacharji v. Rohini Kant Bhattacharji, (6 Calc., 325), it was held by a Full Bench that "rent becomes due at the last moment of the time which is allowed to the tenant for payment."

Sub-section (2).—It is for a debtor to pay his debts due at a fixed time ; and when a debtor pleads tender of payment as a ground for not being saddled with interest, it is for him to prove such tender (Sarat Sundari Debi v. Collector of Mymensingh, 5 W. R., Act X, 69). A tenant's liability to pay rent remains, notwithstanding that the landlord has no village office and has not appointed a convenient place for payment. When there is no controlling agreement, the tenant must go to his landlord and pay the rent to him as it falls due. Rent not so paid carries interest under sec. 67 (Fakir Lal Goswami v. W. C. Bonnerji, 4 C. W. N., 324).

Sub-section (2). Proviso.—By a resolution, dated the 19th March 1891, published in the Cu'cutta Gazette of the 25th March, 1891, Part I, p. 287, the Local Government under sec. 54 (2) of this Act directed that from the 1st July, 1891, payment of rent by means of money order would be authorized in all the districts of Bengal in which the Bengal Tenancy Act is in force. See note to sec. 56, pp. 191, 192, as to forms of receipt for rent paid by money order.

Sub-section (3). When rent is duly paid—Payment of rent to one of several joint proprietors is payment to all (Udit Narain Singh v. Hudson, 2 W. R., Act X, 15 ; Muktakeshi Dasi v. Kailash Chandra Mitra, 7 W. R., 493). Payment by tenant under the landlord's directions to another or for a specified purpose of a sum equivalent to the amount claimed as rent is tantamount to a payment to the landlord himself, and is a sufficient answer to the landlord's suit for rent (Jai Kumar v. Furlong, W. R., Sp. No., 1864. Act X, 112). Where a tenant is left in that condition in which he is compelled to pay his landlord's debt to save his security from forfeiture, the circumstances constitute a sufficient authority to make the payment of Government revenue to save the estate from sale (Hills v. Umamai Barmani, 15 W. R., 545. See section 170 (3) of this Act). An auction-purchaser with notice of a payment in advance made by the tenant to the former proprietors of rent due for a period subsequent to the date of purchase is bound by such payment (Ram Lal Shaha v. Jogendra Narain Rai, 18 W. R., 328 ; Madan Mohan Lal v. Holloway, 12 Calc., 555). But in a suit to recover contribution on the allegation that plaintiff and defendant were joint tenants and that there was an arrear of rent due from them for which the zamindar was about to sue, when plaintiff paid it with other cesses and expenses, it was held that as there had been no demand or any suit or other effectual proceeding for the recovery of the rent, the payment by the plaintiff was voluntary and officious, and that as the demand with which the plaintiff complied was an excessive demand, his compliance with it would not bind the defendant to pay the amount of contribution sued for (Lakhi Kant Das v. Sib Chandra Chakravarti, 12 W. R., 462).

Sub-section (3). Produce rents.—If a produce rent is not paid, a suit for the money value of the produce at the time when it ought to have been paid, will lie as a suit for arrears of rent (Krishna Bandhu Bhattacharji v. Rotish Sheik, 25 W. R., 307). A suit for produce rent or its money value is a suit for rent under the Bengal Tenancy Act and not a suit for damages for breach of contract, and therefore, is not cognizable by a Provincial Small Cause Court (Shoma Mehta v. Rajani Biswas, 1 C. W. N., 55) See note at p. 26.

Sub-section (3). An arrear of rent.—Under sec. 67 an arrear of rent shall bear simple interest at the rate of 12 p. c. (or 12½ p. c., where Act I, B. C. of 1907 is in force), per annum from the expiration of the quarter in which the instalment falls due, and under sec. 147, suits for arrears of rent cannot be brought more frequently than at intervals of three months.

55. (1) When a tenant makes a payment on account of rent, he may declare the year or the year and instalment to which he wishes the payment to be credited, and the payment shall be credited accordingly.

Appropriation of payments.

(2) If he does not make any such declaration, the payment may be credited to the account of such year and instalment as the landlord thinks fit.

Extended to Orissa, (Not., Sept., 10th, 1891).

Appropriation of payments.—The provisions of this section are founded on those of sections 59 and 60 of the Contract Act (IX of 1872). Section 59 provides that when a debtor, owing several distinct debts to one person, makes a payment to him either with express intimation or under circumstances implying that the payment is to be applied to the payment of a particular debt, the payment, if accepted, must be applied accordingly. Section 60 provides that when the debtor has omitted to intimate, and there are no circumstances indicating, to which debt the payment is to be applied, the creditor may apply it at his discretion to any lawful debt actually due and payable to him from the debtor, whether its recovery is or is not barred by the law in force for the time being as to the limitation of suits. Under the present Act it has been held that it was open to a Court which has to deal with the facts of a case to say whether, taking receipts which extended over a number of years together, and having regard to the fact that they did not specify the years to which the amounts related, the amounts paid in any particular year were partly for the rents of that year and partly for the arrears due in respect of previous years (Surjo Kunt Acharji v. Baneshar Shahu, 24 Calc., 251). Under the Indian Contract Act, 1872, as well as the ordinary rules of law, when neither the debtor nor any circumstances indicate to which of several debts, a payment is to be applied, the creditor may apply it at his discretion to any debt actually due and payable to him from the debtor (Rameswar Koer v. Mehdi Hossein Khan, 26 Calc., 39; L. R., 25 I. A., 179). The word “rent” does not necessarily include interest; so if any sum of money be paid by a tenant to a landlord as rent, and the latter receives it as such, he cannot be permitted to apply that money towards any interest which may then be due (Bhagabati Debya Chaudhurani v. Basanta Kumari Debi, 11 C. W. N., 110; 5 C. L. J., 69). See note p. 32.

Rulings under the former law.—The payments in each year must be presumed to be for the current year and surplus payments to be for past not subsequent years, but payments cannot be credited to previous arrears beyond the term of limitation (Taramani Dasi v. Kuli Charan Sarma, W. R., Sp. No., Act X, 1864, 14). A general payment in one year without proof that it was in satisfaction of the rents of that year may be applied in satisfaction of the arrears of the previous year (Ahmuty v. Brodie, W. R., Sp. No., Act X, 1864, 15). A payment for rent should be credited to the oldest arrears first, and not to current rents, unless so specifically stated by the party making it (Sarnamayi v. Singhrup, W. R., Sp. No., Act X., 134). If a raiyat shows payment of rent for 1265 and 1266, it is to be presumed that all previous claims have been satisfied. To entitle the landlord to carry to the credit of 1264 any of the payments made in 1266, he must show that at the close of 1264 there was an arrear due to him (Sarat Sundari Debi v. Brodie, 1 W. R., 274). An acknowledgment of the plaintiff in a former case of having realized a certain sum of money on account of rent for three years may afford some presumption that the older items in the account were satisfied, and if that presumption could not be rebutted, might be an answer to an action on the older demand (Imayat Hossain v. Didar Baksh, W. R., Sp. No., 1864, Act X., 97, but see contra, Mitrajit Singh v. Chokar Narain Singh, 2 W. R., 58). In a suit by a landlord against his tenant for arrears of rent due for a portion of the year 1283, the defendant pleaded payment and called as his witness the plaintiff's agent, who admitted the receipt of certain payments from the defendant's under-tenants during the time for which the arrears were demanded; but swore they were payments made in respect of arrears due on account of previous years, and it was held that the defendant, having pleaded payment, was bound to prove that the admitted payments were in respect of that portion of the year 1283 for which the arrears were claimed (Saifan v. Rudro Sahai, 7 Calc., 582).

Receipts and accounts.

56. (1) Every tenant who makes a payment on account of rent to his landlord shall be entitled to obtain forthwith from the landlord a written receipt for the amount paid by him, signed by the landlord.

Receipts and accounts.

Tenant making payment to his landlord entitled to a receipt.

(2) The landlord shall prepare and retain a counterfoil of the receipt.

(3) The receipt and counterfoil shall specify such of the several particulars shown in the form of receipt given in Schedule II to this Act as can be specified by the landlord at the time of payment:

Provided that the Local Government may, from time to time, prescribe or sanction a modified form either generally or for any particular local area or class of cases.

(4) If a receipt does not contain substantially the particulars required by this section it shall be presumed, until the contrary is shown, to be an acquittance in full of all demands for rent up to the date on which the receipt was given.

Extended to Orissa, (Not., Sept. 10th., 1891), and to the Sonthal Parganas (Not., Mar., 1st, 1904).

Sub-section (1). Receipts granted under this sub-section must, if there are more landlords than one, be signed by all of them, or by an agent authorized to act on behalf of all of them (sec. 188). This authority may be given either verbally or in writing. If the receipt is signed by an agent on behalf of only one landlord, then, it must be signed by an agent authorized in writing to grant receipts on his behalf [sec. 187 (3)] (Gopinath Chakravartti v. Umakanth Das Rai, 24 Cal., 169). Under cl. (c), art. 15 of sch. II of Act I of 1879, receipts granted for any payment of rent by a cultivator on account of land assessed to Government revenue are exempt from stamp duty. Receipts granted to cultivators by owners of revenue free property, if for sums exceeding Rs. 20, should, therefore, be stamped under art. 52 of schedule I of the Stamp Act. This section entitles every tenant to a receipt on payment of any rent (Norendro Chandra Lahiri v. Asmatulla, 1 C. W. N., xix).

Sub-section (3). Proviso.—The Local Government has sanctioned special forms of rent receipt under this sub-section, (1) for certain areas under settlement in the Rajshahye district (Not. dated 30th January, 1888, Calcutta Gazette, February 1st 1888, Part I, p. 83); (2) for landlords receiving rent by money-orders, a separate receipt being given for each holding (Resolution, dated 8th May, 1890, Calcutta Gazette, May 8th, 1890, Part I, p. 452). (For forms of receipt see Calcutta Gazette, May, 8th, 1890, Part I, p. 453, and Calcutta Gazette, July 24th 1889, Part I, p. 650); (3) for use in the Orissa division (Not. 378 L. R., dated 22nd January 1894, Calcutta Gazette, January 24th 1894, Part I, p. 84); (4) for use in the Western Duars of the Jalpaiguri district (Not. 872 T. R., dated 10th October 1899, Calcutta Gazette, November 1st 1899, Part I, p. 1899); (5) for use in the Sonthal Parganas (Not. dated 1st March, 1904, Calcutta Gazette, March 2nd, 1904, Part I, pp. 347-349); (6) for use in certain Government and Encumbered estates in the districts of Hazaribagh, Ranchi and Singhbhum (Not. dated 23rd March 1905, Calcutta Gazette, March 29th, 1905, Part I, p. 536); (7) for use in certain portions of the Chota Nagpur Division, except Manbhum (Not., dated 23rd March, 1905, Calcutta Gazette, March 29th, 1905, Part I, p. 539; Not., dated 21st June, 1905, Calcutta Gazette, June 28th 1905, Part I, p. 1150; (8) for use in the Government estate in the district of Palamau, and in the Kolhan Government estate and the Chaibasa town Khas Mahal in the district of Singhbhum (Not., dated 23rd March, 1905, Calcutta Gazette, March 29th, 1905, Part I, p. 541); and (9) for use in the estate of Bara Lal Nawal Kishore Nath Sah Deo of Palkote in the district of Ranchi (Not., dated 9th June 1905, Calcutta Gazette, June 14th, 1905, Part I, p. 1086).

Sub-section (4).—When there are several joint landlords and a receipt has been given by only one of them, it is necessary for the Court before giving effect to the presumption arising under sec. 56, clause (4), to find affirmatively that the person by whom the receipt was signed was authorized by them all, either verbally or in writing, to grant it (Gopinath Chakravartti v. Umakanth Das Rai, 24 Calc., 169).

Receipts how to be proved.—Rent receipts should, as a general rule, be attested or proved by some oral evidence. But the tenant cannot be expected in every case to summon all the gomastas of his zamindar for the past twenty or thirty years to attest his dakhilas. He should be required in his examination to attest the dakhilas himself, as far as he can. All dakhilas which have been given to him personally, he can prove as well as any other witness (Rajeshari Debi v. Shibnath Chaturji, 4 W. R., Act X, 42; Raj Mahomed v. Banu Rasma, 12 W. R., 34; Madhab Chandra Chaudhri v. Promotho Nath Rai, 20 W. R., 264; Surjo Kanth Acharji v. Baneswar Shaha, 24 Calc., 251). Some evidence of their genuineness must be given (Dumaine v. Utam Singh, 13 W. R., 462; Lachmipat Singh v. Jangali Kalyan Das, 9 W. R., 147), even if they are not positively denied (Ramjadu Ganguli v. Lakhi Narain Mandul, 8 W. R., 488; Krittibas Mahanti v. Ramdhan Kharah, 7 W. R., 526; B. L. R., Sup. Vol., 658; Bharat Rai v. Ganga Narain Mahapatro, 14 W. R., 211, and contra, Govind Karmokar v. Kumud Nath Bhattacharji, 3 W. R., Act X, 148). But they may be accepted by a Court as undisputed documents, if the opposite party says he is not prepared to deny their genuineness (Indra Bhushan Deb v. Golak Chandra Chakravartti, 12 W. R., 350). Some evidence of the handwriting of the parties who gave them should be given, or some satisfactory account of the custody from which they came (Umesh Chandra Mukherji v. Bama Dasi, 7 W. R., 15). But it is not necessary for a party who desires to prove a rent receipt to call the writer of it, if alive, as a witness, so long as he can give other satisfactory proof of it (Gangu Narain Das v. Saroda Mohan Rai, 12 W. R., 30; 3 B. L. R., A. C., 230). Unattested dakhilas are not evidence of payment of rent (Udiat Zuman v. Mohiudin Ahmad, 9 W. R., 241; Lachmipat Singh Dugar v. Uma Nath Mandal, 10 W. R., 490; Reazunnissa v. Buku Chaudhrai, 12 W. R., 267). Where a party filing dakhilas deposed that the amounts of rent he had paid were according to the sums entered in the dakhilas, such statement was held not to 'prove the dakhilas, being merely a deposition to the fact of a certain payment of rent, and not to the authenticity of the documents filed (Kailash Nath Halder v. Uma Nath Rai Halder, 11 W. R., 170). Receipts signed by the landlord's agent, if shown to be authentic, are prima facie evidence of payment of rent, but not conclusive evidence (Amir Baksh v. Yusuf Ali, 22 W. R., 489).

Effect of receipt of rent by reversioner.—The grant of a putni lease by a Hindu widow is not void but voidable, and the receipt of rent by the reversioner from the putnidar amounts to an election to treat the lease as valid. To prove that the receipt ought not to have that effect, the reversioner must adduce evidence on that point (Madhu Sudan Singh v. Rooke, 1 C. W. N., 433; 25 Calc., 1; L.R., 24 I. A., 164).

57. (1) Where a landlord admits that all rent payable by a tenant to the end of the agricultural year has been paid, the tenant shall be entitled to receive from the landlord, free of charge, within three months after the end of the year, a receipt in full discharge of all rent falling due to the end of the year, signed by the landlord.

(2) Where the landlord does not so admit, the tenant shall be entitled, on paying a fee of four annas, to receive within three months after the end of the year a statement of account specifying the several particulars shown in the form of account given in Schedule II to this Act, or in such other form as may from time to time be prescribed by the Local Government either generally or for any particular local area or class of cases.

(3) The landlord shall prepare and retain a copy of the statement containing similar particulars.

Extended to Orissa, (Not., Sept., 10th, 1891).

By a notification, No. 377, L. R., dated 22nd January, 1894, published in the Calcutta Gazette of the 24th January, 1894, Part I, p. 83, the Local Government has under sub-section (2) prescribed a modified form of account for use in the Orissa division.

58. (1) If a landlord without reasonable cause refuses or neglects to deliver to a tenant a receipt containing the particulars prescribed by section 56 for any rent paid by the tenant, the tenant may, within three months from the date of payment institute a suit to recover from him such penalty, not exceeding double the amount of value of that rent, as the Court thinks fit.

(2) If a landlord without reasonable cause refuses or neglects to deliver to a tenant demanding the same either the receipt in full discharge or, if the tenant is not entitled to such a receipt, the statement of account for any year prescribed in section 57, the tenant may, within the next ensuing agricultural year, institute a suit to recover from him such penalty as the Court thinks fit, not exceeding double the aggregate amount or value of all rent paid by the tenant to the landlord during the year for which the receipt or account should have been delivered.

(3) If a landlord without reasonable cause fails to prepare and retain a counterfoil or copy of a receipt or statement as required by either of the said sections, he shall be punished with fine which may extend to fifty rupees.

Extended to Orissa, (Not., Sept, 10th, 1891). Sub-section (1) and sub-section (3) have been extended to the Sonthal Parganas (Not., Mar, 1st 1904).

The sub-sections (3) to (8) in brackets which follow have been substituted for sub-section (3) and added to the section by Act I, B.C., of 1907.

[(3) If a landlord or his agent without reasonable cause fails to deliver to the tenant a receipt or statement, or to prepare and retain a counterfoil or copy of a receipt or statement, as required by either of the said sections, such landlord or agent, as the case may be, shall be liable to a fine not exceeding fifty rupees, to be imposed, after summary inquiry, by the Collector.

(4) The Collector may hold a summary inquiry under sub-section (3) either on information received from a Revenue-officer within one year, or upon complaint of the party aggrieved made within three months, from the date of failure, or upon the report of a Civil Court.

(5) Where, in any case instituted under sub-section (3), the Collector discharges any landlord or agent, and is satisfied that the complaint of the tenant on which the proceedings were instituted is false or vexatious, the Collector may, in his discretion, by his order of discharge, direct the tenant to pay to such landlord or agent such compensation, not exceeding fifty rupees as the Collector thinks fit.

(6) An appeal shall lie to the Commissioner of the Division against any order of the Collector imposing a fine under sub-section (3) or awarding compensation under sub-section (5); and the orders passed by the Commissioner on such appeal shall, subject to any order which may be passed on revision by the Board of Revenue, be final.

(7) Any fine imposed or compensation awarded under this section may be recovered in the manner provided by any law for the time being in force for the recovery of a public demand.

(8) For the purpose of an inquiry under this section,* the Collector shall have power to summon and enforce the attendance of witnesses and compel the production of documents in the same manner as is provided in the case of a Court under the Code of Civil Procedure.] .

Sub-section (1).—The operation of section 58 is not limited to the case when the payment has been made by the registered tenant. When a landlord receives rent from a person whose name has not been registered, and thus recognizes him as his tenant, he renders himself liable to the penalty provided for in sec. 58, if he refuses to deliver a receipt without reasonable cause (Narendro Chandro Lahiri v. Asmatulla, 1 C. W. N., xix).

Sub-section (3).—A Magistrate has jurisdiction to try a landlord for an act specified in s. 58 (3) in the same way as he would try a summons case (Emperor v. Ram Das, 9 C. W. N., 816).

New sub-sections (3) to (8).—The object of these new sub-sections is explained in the Notes on Clauses of the Bill as follows :

“The provisions of the Tenancy Act regarding the issue of proper rent-receipts by landlords are very generally disregarded in certain parts of the province. It is considered necessary to take more active measure to enforce them. At present, the provisions of section 58 can only be set in motion on the complaint of the tenant and are practically inoperative. It is proposed, therefore, to give the Collector power to take action on reports received from Revenue or Judicial officers, who will be required to bring to the Collector's notice any breaches of the law which come to their knowledge. The power to require payment of compensation to the landlord will, it is hoped, to a large extent debar the bringing of false and vexatious complaints. In cases where the complaint is substantiated, the Collector should be empowered to award compensation to the tenant on the same scale as is provided in section 58 (1) and (2), and where compensation is so awarded by the Collector, the tenant should not be allowed to sue the landlord in the Civil Court for any penalty. It is inadvisable that tenants should be able to obtain damages in two different Courts; the amendments proposed will be sufficient to safeguard their rights and to secure obedience to the law."

In the report of the Select Committee on the Bill it is said :—

"We have modified considerably the changes which it was proposed in the Bill to introduce into section 58 of the Act. The terms used in the sub-sections as drafted would practically render the failure to give a receipt a criminal offence, and this is generally objected to by the associations of landlords consulted. We have, therefore, removed the cause of objection by substituting a form of procedure closely akin to that prescribed by section 52 of the Bengal Survey Act, 1875, for the imposition of penalties, and by the Public Demands Recovery Act, 1895, for their recovery. The tenant must first prove that he received no receipt, and we do not consider it necessary to make any specific provision as to the burden of proof. We have struck out of the clause the provisions as to compensation to tenants. We fear that the prospect of this compensation would be a temptation to bring false cases. Further, we think that the provision requiring judicial officers to report cases of failure to grant receipts would be generally disregarded, while the report by Revenue officers can best be prescribed by executive order. We have, therefore, omitted the last portion of the proposed sub-section (4), and in the same sub-section have proposed a time-limit within which information may be laid or complaint made. We consider that the Board of Revenue should have power to revise any order under the section, and have made provision for this."

59. (1) The Local Government shall cause to be prepared and kept for sale to landlords at all sub-divisional offices forms of receipts with counterfoils and of statements of account suitable for use under the foregoing sections.

Local Government to prepare forms of receipt and account.

(2) The forms may be sold in books with the leaves consecutively numbered or otherwise as the Local Government thinks fit.

Extended to Orissa, (Not., Sept. 10th, 1891).

The use of the Government forms of receipt is not obligatory, (Government letter, No. 1542, T. R., dated 7th September, 1885, published in the supplement to the Calcutta Gazette of the 16th Sept., 1885, p. 1648).

60. Where rent is due to the proprietor, manager or mortgagee of an estate, the receipt of the person registered under the Land Registration Act, 1876, as proprietor, manager or mortgagee of that estate, or of his agent authorized in that behalf, shall be a sufficient discharge for the rent; and the person liable for the rent shall not be entitled to plead in defence to a claim by the person so registered that the rent is due to any third person.

But nothing in this section shall affect any remedy which any such third person may have against the registered proprietor, manager or mortgagee.

Extended to Orissa, (Not., Sept. 10th., 1891).

Land Registration Act and rulings under it.—Section 78, Act VII of 1876 (B. C.), prescribes that “no person shall be bound to pay rent to any person claiming such rent as proprietor or manager of an estate or revenue-free property in respect of which he is required by this Act to cause his name to be registered, or as mortgagee, unless the name of such claimant shall have been registered under this Act; and no person, being liable to pay rent to two or more such proprietors, managers or mortgagees holding in common tenancy, shall be bound to pay to any one such proprietor, manager or mortgagee more than the amount which bears the same proportion to the whole of such rent as the extent of the interest in respect of which such proprietor, manager or mortgagee is registered bears to the entire estate or revenue-free property.” Section 76 is to the effect that “the receipt of any proprietor, manager or mortgagee, whose name and the extent of whose interest is registered under this Act, shall afford full indemnity to any person paying rent to such proprietor, manager or mortgagee.” Section 81 of the same Act, however, makes the provisions of these sections subject to “the conditions of any written contract” and to the right of “any person deeming himself to be entitled to any sum of money to recover such sum by due process of law from any other person who has received the same.” Before the passing of the Tenancy Act, it was held that registration under Bengal Act VII of 1876 is not only not conclusive proof, but no evidence at all, upon the question of the title of a proprietor so registered, and that such registration does not relieve a plaintiff from proving his title to land claimed by him (Ram Bhushan Mahto v. Jebli Mahto, 8 Calc., 853). Further, entries made under Bengal Act VII of 1876 by the Collector recording the names of proprietors of revenue paying estates are not evidence under sec. 35 of the Evidence Act of the fact of proprietorship (Saraswati Dasi v. Dhanpat Singh, 9 Calc., 431; 12 C.L.R., 12); and the mere fact of a person being registered under the provisions of Bengal Act VII of 1876 as proprietor of land in respect of which he seeks to recover rent is not sufficient to entitle him to sue for it (Ram Krishna Das v. Harain, 9 Calc., 517; 12 C. L. R., 141).

The present law.—The provisions of this section are more stringent than those of the Land Registration Act. No person claiming as a proprietor can recover rent from a tenant unless his name has been registered under the Land Registration Act. It is immaterial how the transfer of proprietorship has been effected, whether it is a case of transfer by purchase or a case of transfer by succession. Every person succeeding to the proprietary right in any estate must apply for registration of his name (Panak Lal Mandar v. Thakur Prasad Singh, 25 Calc., 717). It is enough for a proprietor to be registered in one district. If part of his estate is transferred to another district, his suit for rent should not be dismissed because his name has not been registered in that district also (Surendra Narain Singh v. Jai Nath Das, 1 C. W. N., civ). When a number of tenants collect rent jointly, the fact that one of them alone has got his name registered under the Land Registration Act in respect of his share does not entitle him to recover his share of the rent separately (Rampad Singh v. Rumdass Pandi, 1 C. W. N., ccxlv). The second clause of the section practically precludes a defendant from impugning the title of a proprietor, manager or mortgagee, whose name has been registered as such under the Land Registration Act. It would seem that he cannot do so, even if he pays into Court the amount admitted to be due under the provisions of sec. 149 of this Act. It has, therefore, been held that a tenant cannot deny the right of a registered proprietor to distrain, and plead payment of rent to a third person whose name is not registered (Hanuman Akir v. Govinda Kuar, 1 C. W. N., 318). So, too, he cannot, as a defence to a suit by a registered proprietor for rent, plead that the rent is due to a mortgagee to whom the landlord has assigned a part of his interest, but whose name has not been registered (Hem Chandra Misri v. Sourindro Mohan Tagore, 5 C. W. N., 482). However, in one case, Durga Das Hazra v. Samash Akon, (4 C. W. N., 606), it has been ruled that when a tenant in good faith and under the reasonable belief that the land held by him was included in the estate of a third person, attorned to him four years prior to the suit, this had the effect of dispossessing the plaintiff and of rendering the provisions of this section inapplicable ; so that the tenant was not estopped from pleading that the rent was due to a third person, notwithstanding that the plaintiff was the registered proprietor. But it is only the registered proprietor who can claim the benefit of this section. His lessee cannot (Mahomed Mashar v. Kadir 11 C. W. N., cxxviii). A tenant cannot plead as a defence to a claim for rent* that it is due to a mortgagee to whom the landlord has assigned a part of his interest, but whose name has not been registered (Hem Chandra Misri v. Sourindro Mohan Tagore, 5 C. W. N., 482). In a suit brought for rent by a registered proprietor, the defendant cannot plead that the plaintiff is a benamdar (Sadhu Charan, Pal v. Radhika Mohun Rai, 8 C. W. N., 695).

Registration when required.—A person appointed to be manager of an estate under section 95 of this Act must have his name registered under the provisions of the Land Registration Act, before he can recover rent from the tenants of the estate of which he has been appointed manager (Makbul Ali Chaudhri v. Girish Chandra Kundu, 22 Calc., 634). So also must a person who is an administrator and as such the representative of a deceased proprietor of an estate, and legal owner of his property (McIntosh v. Jharu Mollah, 22 Calc., 454).

When not required.—A Receiver appointed by a Court and suing as such to get in arrears which accrued during the life-time of a deceased registered proprietor is not required to be registered before being entitled to sue (Belchambers v. Hussan Ali Mirza, 2 C. W. N., 493). When a mortgagee had got his name registered as such under sec. 44 of the Land Registration Act and sued for rent, alleging that the right of redemption of the mortgagor had been extinguished by limitation, it was pleaded that in these circumstances the plaintiff was not entitled to sue, as he had not registered his name as proprietor. But it was held he was entitled to sue as mortgagee till the fact of the redemption of the mortgage was noted in the General Register under sec. 26 of the Act, and that so long as his name continued on the register, a receipt granted by the mortgagor proprietor did not operate as a valid discharge under sec. 78 of the Land Registration Act or sec. 60 of the Tenancy Act (Sundar Das v. Charitter Rai, 1 C. W. N., clxiii). In a suit for enhancement brought by a zar-i-peshgi thikadar on the ground that the defendant paid at a rate lower than the prevailing rent, it was held that the suit was for the declaration of enhanced rates payable in future and was therefore not affected by the provisions of this section or of sec. 78, Act VII, B. C., of 1876 (Maugni Ram v. Seo Charan Munder, 1 C. W. N., clxxix).

A suit for rent accruing due partly during the lifetime of a registered proprietor and partly after his death was brought by his representatives ; the defence was that the suit was not maintainable, as the plaintiffs were not registered proprietors and had no certificate under the Succession Certificate Act. Held, that sec. 78 of the Land Registration Act is not a bar to the realization of rent accruing due during the lifetime of the registered proprietor, but a suit for rent accruing due after the death of the registered proprietor is not maintainable by his representatives, without having their names registered under the Land Registration Act. Held, also, that rent is not a "debt" within the meaning of sec. 4 of the Succession Certificate Act, and, therefore, no succession certificate is necessary (Nagendra Nath Basu v. Satodal Basini Basu, 26 Calc., 536 ; 3 C. W. N., 294. See also Pramada Sundari Debi v. Kanai Lal Saha, 27 Calc., 178).

The provisions of this section and those of section 78 of the Land Registration Act do not apply to a patnidar, and when a zamindar purchases a patni, the patni interest does not merge in the proprietary interest so as to make these provisions applicable (Jibanti Nath Khan v. Gokul Chandra Chaudhri, 19 Calc., 760). A patnidar or an ijaradar is not proprietor of an interest in an estate within the meaning of the Land Registration Act. It is not necessary, therefore, for a patnidar or ijaradar to register his name under the Act to entitle him to sue for rent (Sukurulla Kazi v. Bama Sundari Dasi, 24 Calc., 404). So also in the case of the lessee of the registered proprietor (Mahomed Muzahar v. Alia Bewa, 3 C. L. J., 93 n), or to the assignee of a proprietor whose name has not been registered (Sarafat Hossain v. Tarini Prasad Dobey, 11 C. W. N., 141). But see Hem Chandra Misri v. Sourindra Mohan Tagore, 5 C. W. N., 482, ante p. 200). Sec. 42 of the Act has no application to the case of a co-sharer who by an amicable arrangement with the other co-sharers has been placed in possession of a larger than his registered share in some mauzahs, or of a less share or of no share in others. When the total interest which he holds in all the mauzahs represents his registered interest in the whole estate, and when the raiyats have acquiesced in the arrangement and paid rents in accordance therewith for several years prior to the period for which rents in the suit are claimed, held, that they cannot rely on sec. 78 to dispute the landlord's right to recover rent in accordance with that arrangement. (Paresh Mani Dasya v. Nabo Kishor Lahiri, 8 C. W. N., 193).

Registration before decree sufficient.—It was at first held that a tenant is not bound to pay rent to a person merely claiming as proprietor, and that such a person cannot sue the tenant for rent unless his name has been actually registered under Act VII, B. C., of 1876. A mere application to be registered, it was said, is not sufficient for the purpose, and the registration must have been effected before the filing of the suit. Registration before the pendency of the suit is necessary and registration before the decree, if made, is of no avail (Surja Kanth Acharji v. Hemanta Kumari Devi, 16 Calc., 706; Dharanidhar Sen v. Wajidunnissa, 16 Calc., 708). But the matter was reconsidered in the case of Alimudin Khan v. Hira Lal Sen, (23 Calc., 87), in which the plaintiff sued the defendants in the Calcutta Small Cause Court for arrears of rent of certain premises in Calcutta without having previously caused his name to be registered under Bengal Act VII of 1876, but at the first hearing he produced the certificate of registration which he had obtained since bringing the suit. The case was ultimately referred to a Full Bench, to which two questions were propounded vis., (1) whether the suit as brought by the plaintiff, an unregistered proprietor, should be dismissed, or whether a certificate of the plaintiff having been registered as proprietor under the Land Registration Act having been produced when the suit came on for trial, the trial could proceed; (2) was the case of Dharanidhar Sen v. Wajidunnissa, 16 Calc., 708, rightly decided? It was held by a majority of the Bench that the certificate of registration having been produced when the suit came on for trial, the trial could proceed. The Bench differed as to the second question, Petheram C. J., and Beverley, J., who were in the minority, holding that the case of Dharanidhar Sen v. Wajidunnissa had been rightly decided, Norris, J., that it had been wrongly decided, and Prinsep and Ghosh, JJ., holding that the case being a mofussil case governed by and possibly decided with regard to the Bengal Tenancy Act, the question whether it was or was not rightly decided had no bearing on a case like the present brought in the Calcutta Small Cause Court and relating to property in Calcutta, where the Bengal Tenancy Act was not applicable. This was followed in Hari Krishna Das v. Brindaban Shaha, (1 C. W. N., 712), which was a mofussil case, and in which it was held that a suit for arrears of rent should not be dismissed for want of registration of the plaintiff's name at the time the suit is brought, and that it is sufficient if his name is registered before the decree is made. The same rule was laid down in Belchambers v. Hussan Ali Mirza, (2 C. W. N., 493), and in Abdul Khair v. Meher Ali, 26 Calc., 712; 3 C. W. N., 381: so that the cases of Surja Kanth Acharji v. Hemanta Kumari Devi and Dharanidhar Sen v. Wajidunnissa, though not expressly overruled by the Full Bench decision in Alimudin Khan v. Hira Lal Sen, are practically set aside. But actual registration of name is necessary to enable a person to recover rent; a mere order of the Civil Court for registration is not sufficient (Ugra Mohan Thakur v. Bideshi Rai, 5 C. W. N., 360).

Penalty for non-registration.—If some of several joint landlords get their names registered under the Land Registration Act in respect of fractional shares, all the landlords may sue jointly for the entire rent, but will get a decree for a share of the rent proportionate to the share in respect of which their names are registered. The penalty for non-registration under sec. 78 of the Land Registration Act is the forfeiture, not of the whole rent, but of the rent of the share in regard to which the landlord is unregistered (Nil Madhab Patra v. Iskan Chandra Sinha, 25 Calc., 787 ; 2 C. W. N., 600).

61. (1) In any of the following cases, namely :—

- (a) when a tenant tenders money on account of rent and the landlord refuses to receive it or refuses to grant a receipt for it ;
 - (b) when a tenant bound to pay money on account of rent has reason to believe, owing to a tender having been refused or a receipt withheld on a previous occasion, that the person to whom his rent is payable will not be willing to receive it and to grant him a receipt for it ;
 - (c) when the rent is payable to co-sharers jointly, and the tenant is unable to obtain the joint receipt of the co-sharers for the money, and no person has been empowered to receive the rent on their behalf ; or
 - (d) when the tenant entertains a bona fide doubt as to who is entitled to receive the rent,
- the tenant may present to the Court having jurisdiction to entertain a suit for the rent of his tenure or holding an application in writing for permission to deposit in the Court the full amount of the money then due.

(2) The application shall contain a statement of the grounds on which it is made ; shall state—in cases (a) and (b), the name of the person to whose credit the deposit is to be entered, in case (c), the names of the sharers to whom the rent is due, or of so many of them as the tenant may be able to specify, and in case (d), the names of the person to whom the rent was last paid and of the person or persons now claiming it ; shall be signed and verified, in the manner prescribed in section 52 of the Code of Civil

XIV of 1882.

Procedure, by the tenant, or, where he is not personally cognizant of the facts of the case, by some person so cognizant ; and shall be accompanied by a fee of such amount as the Local Government, from time to time, by rule, directs.

Extended to Orissa, (Not., Sept., 10th, 1891).

Tender of rent when valid.—A raiyat's tender of rent to be valid must be made at the proper place and to a person authorised to receive the same (Ishan Chandra Rai v. Ahsanullah, 16 W. R., 79). Tenants who have been in the habit of depositing in Court the rent due to a landlord in his sole name are not justified, without receiving notice or order to that effect, in making the deposit in the joint names of that landlord and another (Rainey v. Nabo Kumar Mukhurji, 24 W. R., 128). A mistake in the name of the taluk at the time of making the tender is immaterial, especially when there is no doubt that the talukdar is aware of the tender being made (Uma Charn Sett v. Hari Prasad Misra, 10 W. R., 101). It may be added that in order to make a tender of money in payment valid there must be an actual production of money, unless the person to whom the tender is made expressly or impliedly dispenses with such production. The offer of payment must also be unconditional (Cunningham and Shephard's Contract Act, pp. 166, 167, 5th edit). Deposit of rent under s. 61 must be treated as equivalent to part payment (Atul Krishna Ghose v. Nripendra Narain Ghose, 1 C. L. J., 114). A deposit of rent may be made by a tenant of bastu land, who is a raiyat of the village, although under a different landlord (Pratap Chandra Das v. Bisewar Paramanik, 9 C. W. N., 416).

When rent was tendered to plaintiff's am-mukhtar, but plaintiff refused to receive it, the defendant was held liable to pay interest, as he had not followed the procedure prescribed by s. 61 (Ransgit Singha v. Bhagabati Charan Rai, 7 C. W. N., 720). See also S. A. No. 1116 of 1903, decided by Pratt and Mitra, JJ. on the 25th November 1904. But in Jugat Tarini Dasi v. Nobogopal Chuki, 34 Calc. 305, 5 C. L. J., 270, it has been laid down that a valid tender, which has been improperly refused, but which is kept good, though it does not extinguish the indebtedness, stops the running of interest after the tender.⁽¹⁾

Fees leviable on applications to deposit rent.—The rule framed by Government as to the fees to be levied under sub-section (2) will be found in rule 5, chap. VII of the rules under the Tenancy Act, and is as follows:—"For deposits of rent under section 61 (2), 4 annas for every such deposit of Rs. 25 or less, with an additional 4 annas for every Rs. 25 or part of Rs. 25 in excess: provided that in no case shall the fee exceed the sum of Rs. 5."

By notification of the Government of India, No. 4650 of the 10th September, 1889, it has been declared that "the proper fee to be charged on an application to deposit in any Court rent not exceeding the sum of fifteen rupees, shall be as follows:—If the amount deposited does not exceed Rs. 2-8, one anna; if the amount deposited exceeds Rs. 2-8, but does not exceed Rs. 5, two annas; if the amount deposited exceeds Rs. 5, but does not exceed Rs. 10, four annas; if the amount deposited exceeds Rs. 10, but does not exceed Rs. 15 six annas; provided that no fee shall be chargeable on an application to deposit rent in respect of which a fee is chargeable under any rule framed under sub-section (2) of section 61 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, VIII of 1885. (2) (See High Court's General Rules and Circular Orders, Civil, Chap. II, Part IV, rule 9, p. 78).

Limitation.—Co-sharer landlords being jointly and severally entitled to the rent, the service of notice of the deposit of rent on any one of them under sec. 61 will not reduce the period of limitation to six months under art. 2 (a) of sch. III (Rup Chand Mahton v. Gudar Singh, 29 Calc., 283 ; 6 C. W. N., 15).

(1) The correctness of this decision is now under the consideration of a Full Bench.

(2) The only fees remitted by the Government of India in connection with applications for the deposit of rent are those on applications in respect of which fees have already been paid under section 61 (2) of the Bengal Tenancy Act, VIII of 1885, in accordance with the notification of the Government of Bengal, dated 21st December, 1885. (High Court's G. L., No. 1 of 11th January, 1894).

62. (1) If it appears to the Court to which an application is made under the last foregoing section that the applicant is entitled under that section to deposit the rent, it shall receive the rent and give a receipt for it under the seal of the Court.

(2) A receipt given under this section shall operate as an acquittance for the amount of the rent payable by the tenant and deposited as aforesaid, in the same manner and to the same extent as if that amount of rent had been received—in cases (a) and (b) of the last foregoing section, by the person specified in the application as the person to whose credit the deposit was to be entered ; in case (c) of that section, by the co-sharers to whom the rent is due ; and in case (d) of that section, by the person entitled to the rent.

Extended to Orissa, (Not., Sept. 10th, 1891).

Deposit when valid.—Section 61 apparently only contemplates the deposit of a money rent and not of a rent payable in kind: Under Act VI of 1862, it was held that a deposit of rent contemplated by that Act must be one of rent which has become due, and that the deposit cannot be made before the rent is due (Jiban Mandar v. Taramani Kunwari, 6 W. R., Act X, 99). Under the old law, too, it was held that a deposit of rent could only be made by a registered tenant (Duli Chand v. Meher Chand Sahu, 8 W. R., 138) ; but there is no provision in this Act requiring occupancy raiyats and raiyats of an inferior status to register their names in the landlord's serishtah. Under the present Act it has been ruled that a deposit of rent, though not made by the tenant himself but by a transferee on his behalf, is a valid deposit under sec. 61 (Bihari Lal Mukhurji v. Basarat Mandal, 25 Calc., 289).

Sub-section (1). Duty of Court.—"It would appear upon a consideration of these two sections (61 and 62) that if a verified application is made to the Court, and if it contains the grounds under which an application under s. 61 is authorized to be made and if it also contains the particulars which must be mentioned, the Court is bound to receive the rent and give a receipt to the tenant. The Court is not authorized at this stage of the proceeding, or at any subsequent stage, to enter into a judicial enquiry as to whether sufficient grounds in law exist entitling the tenant to make the deposit.....It will be observed that there is no machinery provided for the Court to enter into a judicial enquiry in connection with the matter of the deposit, nor is there any provision entitling the samindar to come in and to be heard upon the subject.....The words 'the full amount of the money then due' in sec. 61, and 'the amount of the rent payable by the tenant' in s. 62, have no relation whatsoever to the amount of rent justly payable, but only to such rent due and payable. It is entirely at the option of the samindar either to receive the rent deposited or not, just as he pleases. He may, if he objects to the amount of rent payable by the tenant for his holding, bring a suit under sec. 158 of the Act to have that matter determined, or he may bring a suit for the recovery of the whole of the arrear of rent due to him up to the date of deposit within 6 months of the date of the service of the notice upon him, disregarding altogether the deposit made by the tenant; and if in that suit it be proved that the tenant had without reasonable or probable cause neglected or refused to pay the amount of rent due to the samindar, the Court might award to him damages and costs in addition to the rent. But if, on the other hand, it appears that the suit of the samindar was without reasonable or probable cause, the Court might award the tenant damages as against the landlord. Upon these considerations it seems to us clear that when a deposit is made by a tenant, and the Court grants him a receipt, the samindar cannot in any way be prejudiced, and that the tenant makes such a deposit at his own risk" (Sridhar Rai v. Rameswar Singh, 15 Calc., 166).

Sub-section (2). A deposit of rent operates as an acquittance.—When a tenant entertains a bona fide doubt as to who is entitled to receive his rent, and deposits it in Court under the provisions of this section, his deposit operates as an acquittance, and when such a deposit is proved as a defence to a suit for rent, the suit should be dismissed, and when the defendant is not to blame for the litigation, he is entitled to his costs (Stalkartt v. Guru Das Kundu, 21 Calc., 680).

63. (1) The Court receiving the deposit shall forthwith cause to be affixed in a conspicuous place at the Court-house a notification of the receipt thereof, containing a statement of all material particulars.

Notification of receipt of deposit.

(2) If the amount of the deposit is not paid away under the next following section, within the period of fifteen days next following the date on which the notification is so affixed, the Court shall forthwith—in cases (a) and (b) of section 61, cause a notice of the receipt of the deposit to be served, free of charge, on the person specified in the application as the person to whose credit the deposit was to be entered ; in case (c) of that section, cause a notice of the receipt of the deposit to be posted at the landlord's village-office or in some conspicuous place in the village in which the holding is situate ; and in case (d) of that section, cause a like notice to be served, free of charge, on every person who it has reason to believe claims or is entitled to the deposit.

Extended to Orissa, (Not., Sept. 10th, 1891).

Service of notice.—The local Government has framed the following rule for the service of notices under this section :—“In cases (a), (b) and (d) of section 61 herein referred to, the notice of the receipt of the deposit shall be served by forwarding the notice by post in a letter registered under Part III of the Indian Post Office Act, 1866, or, where the Court may deem it necessary, in the manner prescribed for the service of a summons on a defendant under the Code of Civil Procedure.” (See rule 5, chap. V of the Government rules under the Tenancy Act).

Limitation.—A suit for arrears of rent which fell due before a deposit was made under sec. 61 on account of the rent of the same holding must be brought within six months of the date of service of the notice of the deposit [Sch. 111, Part I, art. 2 (a)] But in a case under Act VI of 1862, in which a samindar had sold a patni for arrears of rent due for 1224, and the patnidar sued for the reversal of the sale and deposited the rent for 1225, and the samindar on the reversal of the sale of the patni sued for the rent of 1224 and was met with the objection that the suit should have been brought within six months from the date of the deposit of the rent of 1225, it was held that the samindar was entitled to recover, as he could not sue for the rent of 1224, until the sale caused by him for realizing those rents had been reversed (Mahomed Shukur-ullah v. Rumiya Bibi, 7 W. R., 487). Notice of deposit under s. 63 does not give a fresh and independent cause of action in respect of the balance then due (Atul Krishna Ghosh v. Nripendra Narain Ghosh. 1 C. L. J., 114).

64. (1) The Court may pay the amount of the deposit to any person appearing to it to be entitled to the same, or may, if it thinks fit, retain the amount pending the decision of a Civil Court as to the person so entitled.

Payment or refund of deposit.

(2) The payment may, if the Local Government so direct, be made by postal money-order.

(3) If no payment is made under this section before the expiration of three years from the date on which a deposit is made, the amount deposited may, in the absence of any order of a Civil Court to the contrary, be repaid to the depositor upon his application and on his returning the receipt given by the Court with which the rent was deposited.

(4) No suit or other proceeding shall be instituted against the Secretary of State for India in Council, or against any officer of the Government, in respect of anything done by a Court receiving a deposit under the foregoing sections; but nothing in this section shall prevent any person entitled to receive the amount of any such deposit from recovering the same from a person to whom it has been paid under this section.

Extended to Orissa, (Not., Sep. 10th, 1891).

Effect of withdrawal of deposit of rent by landlord.—In a suit decided by the Privy Council, in which a patnidar deposited two years' rent under this Act, and the rent was withdrawn by the landlord by a petition, stating that "my tenant had deposited Rs. 1,043 rent due to me," it was held that by such action the landlord must be regarded as having elected to recognize and confirm the patni tenure (Madhu Sudan Singh v. Rooke, 25 Calc., 1; 1 C. W. N., 433; L. R., 24 I. A., 164). The mere deposit of rent in the Collector's office by the purchaser of an under-tenure in his own name and that of the registered tenant is not sufficient notice to the samindar of such purchase, nor is the mere acceptance by the samindar of rent so paid an acknowledgment on his part of the purchaser as his under-tenant; but it is otherwise when there is acceptance with notice, notwithstanding that the transfer has not been registered (Mritan Jui Sarkar v. Gopal Chandra Sarkar, 2 B. L. R. A. C., 131; 10 W. R., 466).

Sub-section (2).—No rule has as yet been made by the Local Government for the payment of deposits of rent by postal money-order.

Court-fee leviable on applications for the payment and return of deposits of rent.—The Government of India by its Notification, No. 4650 of the 10th September, 1889, has remitted all fees payable under clause (a), para (4) and clause (b), para. 2 of art. 1, Sch. II of the Court Fees Act, on applications for the payment of deposit of rent in which the deposit does not exceed Rs. 25, and the application is made within three months of the date on which the deposit first became payable to the applicant. (High Court's General Rules and Circular Orders, Civil, Chap. II, Part IV, rule 9, A (10), p. 78). But when the deposit exceeds Rs. 25, but is less than Rs. 50, or when the deposit exceeds Rs. 25, but the application has not been made within three months of the date on which the deposit became payable, the application for payment or for the return of the deposit will, if presented to a Civil Court of original jurisdiction, be subject to a fee of 1 anna under para. 4, cl. (a), art. 1, Sched. II, Act VII of 1870. When the deposit amounts to or exceeds Rs. 50, and in all cases in which the application is made to a principal Civil Court of original jurisdiction, the application for the payment or return of the deposit will be subject to a Court-fee duty of 5 annas, under para. 2, cl. (b), art. 1, Sched. 2, Act VII of 1870.

a raiyat holding at fixed rates or an occupancy-raiyat, he shall not be liable to ejectment for arrears of rent, but his tenure or holding shall be liable to sale in execution of a decree for the rent thereof, and the rent shall be a first charge thereon.

Extended to Orissa, (Not., Sept. 10th., 1891).

Former law.—Under the former law, a permanent tenure-holder could not be ejected for arrears of rent, unless there was a condition to this effect in his lease (Balaram Das v. Jagendra Nath Mullik, 19 W. R., 349; Mumtaz Bibi v. Girish Chundra Chaudhuri, 22 W. R., 376). But he could always protect himself from ejectment by paying up the arrears decreed within 15 days of the date of the decree (Jan Ali Chaudhri v. Nityanand Basu, 10 W. R., F B., 12; Kamla Sahai v. Ram Ratan Neogi, 11 W. R., 201; Duli Chand v. Meher Chand Sahu, 12 B. L. R., 439; Mathur Mohun Pal v. Ram Lal Basu, 4 C. L. R., 469; Mahomed Amir v. Priag Singh, 7 Calc., 566; Duli Chand v. Raj Kishor, 9 Calc., 88). If there was no clause to this effect in his lease, and the tenure was transferable by the title deeds or the custom of the country, the landlord could only sell it (sec. 105 of Act X of 1859; sec. 4, Act VIII, B. C., of 1865; sec. 59, Act VIII, B. C., of 1869). All farmers and lease-holders, not having a permanent transferable interest in the land, and all raiyats could be ejected for non-payment of rent (secs. 21 & 22, Act X of 1859; and 22 and 23, Act VIII, B. C., of 1869). The High Court, however, in Kristendru Rai v. Aina Bewa, (8 Calc., 675; 10 C. L. R., 399), ruled that the provisions of sec. 59 of Act VIII, B. C., of 1869 applied to any tenure, which was transferable by sale; so that a landlord who had a decree for arrears of rent against a raiyat with a transferable jote, could not eject him, but could only sell the holding. This was followed in Fakir Chand v. Fauzdar Misra, (10 Calc., 547), though Mitter J., in this case expressed a doubt as to the correctness of this ruling.

Present law.—Under the terms of this section, permanent tenure-holders, raiyats holding at fixed rates and occupancy raiyats cannot be ejected merely on the ground of arrears of rent. They can be ejected only on the grounds specified in secs. 10, 18 and 25 and they cannot contract themselves out of the provisions of this section, even though secs.

178 and 179 are inapplicable (Samant Radhacharan v. Ananta Prasad, 4 C. L. J., 521). Only non-occupancy raiyats and under-raiyats can now be ejected for arrears of rent. But the tenures and holdings of tenants of the first three classes can be sold in execution of decrees for arrears of rent, and the rent is a first charge upon them. But this can only be done by a person who is a landlord at the time of the sale. For, if a landlord, after obtaining a decree for arrears of rent, against a saleable tenure loses his interest in the estate, he cannot bring the defaulting tenure itself to sale in execution of a decree for arrears (Hem Chandra Bhanja v. Mon Mohini Dasi, 3 C. W. N., 604; but a different view was taken in Chattrapat Singh v. Gopi Chand Bothra, 26 Calc., pp. 757, 760). The decision in Hem Chandra Bhanja v. Mon Mohini Dasi has now been overruled by a Full Bench in Khetra Pal Singh v. Kritarthamayi Dasi, (33 Calc., 566; 10 C. W. N., 547; 3 C. L. J., 470,) in which it has been decided that, if at a time when a suit for rent is instituted, and a decree is made, the plaintiff is still the landlord, the fact that subsequently he sells his landlord's interest does not prevent him from obtaining the benefit of sec. 65 of bringing to sale the tenure or holding in execution of such decree, the rent continuing as a first charge thereon. Section 65 applies to patni taluks (Piari Mohan Mukhurji v. Ram Chandra Bosu, 6 C.W.N., lxxxviii).

Rent a first charge on tenures and holdings.—In several cases under the former law it was held that a sale held in execution of a decree for rent should have priority over a sale held in execution of a decree of the Civil Court (Khubari Rai v. Raghubar Rai, 2 W. R., 131; Gopal Mandal v. Subhutra Boistubi, 5 W. R., 205; Safarunnissa v. Sari Dhopi, 8 W. R., 384; Sadhu Chandra Basu v. Guru Charan Basu, 15 W. R., 99). In other cases the contrary was held (Pranbandhu Sarkar v. Sarbasundari Debi, 3 B. L. R., A. C., 52, (note); 10 W. R., 434; Ram Baksh Chattlangia v. Hri loymani Debi, 10 W. R., 446; Tirthanand Thakur v. Paresmon Jha, 13 W. R., 449; Simiruddin v. Harish Chandra Karmokar, 3 B. L. R., A. C., 49; 13 W. R., 451, note; Daulat Ghazi Chaudhri v. Manwar, 15 W. R., 341; Wahid Ali v. Sadik Ali, 17 W. R., 417). In Tirthanand Thakur v. Paresmon Jha (13 W. R., 449), it was said that the produce of the land is by law (sec. 112, Act X of 1859) hypothecated for the rent payable in respect thereof, but not the land itself. These conflicting decisions were all considered by a Full Bench in Sham Chand Kundu v. Brajanath Pal (21 W. R., 94; 12 B. L. R., 484), in which it was laid down that a samindar who had obtained a decree for arrears of rent of a transferable tenure was entitled to sell the tenure, and a person who had obtained a transfer of such tenure, which he had not registered, and could not show a sufficient reason for not registering, was bound by the sale, and could not set up a title which he had acquired by a previous sale. This was followed in Rash Bihari Bundopadhyaya v. Piari Mohan Mukhurji (4 Calc., 346), in which it was ruled that a decree for rent obtained by a landlord against his registered tenant rendered the tenure comprised in the decree liable for sale, although such tenure had passed into other hands than those of the judgment-debtor, and in Chandra Narain Singh v. Krishna Chand Golicha (9 Calc., 855), in which a decree for arrears of rent of an under-tenure had been obtained against a tenant who became an insolvent, when the whole tenure became vested in the Official Assignee. On an application being made under secs. 59 and 60 of the Rent Law, (Beng. Act VIII of 1869), for an order that the tenure should be sold for its own arrears, this was objected to by the Official Assignee, who contended that the decree-holder's only right was to prove in the insolvency for the amount of his debt; but it was held that whether the arrears became due before or after the insolvency of the judgment-debtor, the decree-holder was entitled to sell the tenure in execution of his decree.

Now, however, it is clear from the last clause of this section that whenever a tenure or holding is sold otherwise than in execution of a decree for arrears of rent, it is sold subject to the lien of the landlord on it for any rent due at the time of sale. The landlord is, therefore, in the position of a first mortgagee as far as the rent is concerned (Turini Prasad Rai v. Narnin Kumari Debi, 17 Calc., 301). But the purchaser is not personally liable for the rent which fell due before the date of his purchase (Jogemaya Dasi v. Girindra Nath Mukhurji, 4 C. W. N., 590). So, when a tenure is sold in execution of a mortgage decree, the purchaser takes it subject to the liability for the rent which had accrued due in respect thereof at the time of its purchase (Maharani Dasya v. Hurendro Lal Rai, 1 C. W. N., 456). But the case is different when the tenure or holding is sold in execution of a decree for arrears of rent, for in this case it passes to the purchaser free of all liability for the rent which had accrued due prior to the date of sale. This was decided in Faiz Rahman v. Ram Sukh Bajpai, (21 Calc., 169), in which it said that "rent falling due during the time that a tenure belongs to any particular tenure-holder is a first charge on the tenure only so long as it is his, and has not been sold for arrears of rent. This, we think, is made clear beyond doubt by clause (c) of section 169, which enacts that if any surplus remains of the proceeds realized by the sale of a tenure in execution of a decree for arrears of rent, after satisfying that decree, any rent falling due between the date of the suit in which the decree was passed and the date of sale shall be paid therefrom to the decree-holder. This provision of the law evidently shows that the Legislature intended that the charge in respect of any rent falling due between the date of suit and the date of sale in satisfaction of the decree passed therein, shall be transferred from the tenure to its sale proceeds, and that the tenure shall pass to the purchaser at a sale for arrears of rent free of all liability created upon it by the default of the previous holders." Further, "section 65 which provides that the tenure or holding shall be liable to sale in execution of a decree for the rent thereof, and that the rent shall be a first charge thereon, only intends what is explicitly laid down in subsequent sections of the Act, that is, those in Chap XIV, namely, that the charge should be enforced by the sale of the tenure or holding free of encumbrances, and if in any case the decree for rent either has not been, or cannot be, enforced by the sale of the tenure, the charge created by section 65 cannot be enforced in any other way" (Sashi Bhusan Guha v Gagan Chandra Saha, 22 Calc., 364). So when the purchaser of a putni taluk paid off a decree for rent obtained against the old tenant for a period anterior to that of the rent decree in execution of which the tenure was sold, it was held that the purchaser was not entitled to contribution from the old tenant against whom the rent decree was obtained (Piari Mohan Mukhurji v. Sriram Chandra, 6 C. W. N., 794). In Ram Suran Poddar v. Mahomed Latif, (3 C. W. N., 62), it was held that when a landlord himself sold an occupancy holding in execution of a money decree, he could not again sell it in execution of a decree for rent due for past years, and that a purchaser at such a sale acquired no right in the holding. Where in execution of a decree for rent a ruiyati holding was sold and purchased by the landlord, and the plaintiff, a mortgagee of the ruiyati holding whose mortgage was not annulled sued on his mortgage, held, that the mortgagee was entitled to enforce the mortgage on payment of the money due under the rent decree. The landlord, when he made the purchase, became absolutely entitled to the property, and the landlord's charge for rent which was for his benefit continued to subsist after his purchase, and the plaintiff was to be regarded as a second mortgagee (Meherunnissa v. Sham Sundar Bhuiya, 6 C. W. N., 834). A ticcadar on the expiry of his lease obtained a decree against a tenant for rent, which fell due during the pendency of his lease. In execution of this decree, the tenure was sold and purchased by A. The landlord obtained a decree for rent for subsequent years against the same tenant. In the proceedings in execution taken on the decree obtained by the ticcadar, the landlord, decree-holder, put in an application stating that he had obtained a decree for arrears of rent for later years. Subsequently, the landlord took out execution of his decree and had the tenure put up to sale. A then intervened, objecting to the sale of the tenure. Held, that under s. 65 of this Act, rent being a first charge on the tenure, that first charge did not stand in favour of the ticcadar for the rent, which fell due during the pendency of his lease, but it stood in favour of the landlord in possession for the rent which fell due afterwards, and that the ticcadar in execution of his decree could not sell the tenure itself so as to pass all rights in it to the auction-purchaser A, and annul the first charge standing on it in favour of the landlord. The tenure itself was liable to sale under the decree obtained by the landlord against the tenant (Srimanta Rai v. Mahadeo Mahata, 31 Calc., 550 ; 8 C. W. N., 531). Where A held a tenure in the benami of B, who was the recorded tenant and the latter without the knowledge or consent of A executed a bond in favour of the landlord, who knew that B was merely a benamdar, mortgaging or charging the tenure for arrears of rent due in respect thereof ; held, that the bond could not affect the tenure and that the landlord suing on the bond was not entitled to claim a charge on the land (Roisuddin v. Kali Nath Mukhurji, 33 Calc., 985 ; 4 C. L. J., 219).

Road cess and interest.—The word “rent” in this section includes road-cess payable by the tenant [sec 3 (5)], and therefore, in the case of sale of a tenure in execution of a decree for road-cess it was held that the tenure itself had passed and not merely the right, title, and interest of the judgment-debtor (Nobin Chandru Laskar v. Bansinath Paramanik, 21 Calc., 722). But it has been held that an amount due for cesses is only a personal debt and cannot be recovered under the Public Demands Recovery Act from the property on which it is assessed, when such property belongs to a person whose name has not been recorded as proprietor under Act VII, B. C., of 1876 (Shekaat Hussain v. Sasi Kar, 19 Calc., 783). Interest on arrears of rent is not rent as defined in sec. 3 (5) ; and so would not seem to be a first charge on a tenure or holding under the provisions of this section. See note, p. 32.

Execution of decrees for arrears of rent.—Under the former law, a decree for arrears of rent of a saleable under-tenure could not be executed by the attachment of any immoveable property except the tenure itself, before it was shown that satisfaction of the decree could not be obtained by execution against the person or moveable property of the debtor : and it was only after sale of the under-tenure that the other immoveable property became attachable : and process could not be issued against the person and property of the debtor simultaneously (Deanatullah v. Nazar Ali Khan, 1 B. L. R., A. C., 216 ; 10 W. R., 341 ; Joki Lal v. Nursingh Narnain Singh, 4 W. R., Act X, 5 ; Harish Chandra Rai v. Collector of Jessore, 3 Calc., 712 ; Lalit Mohan Rai v. Binodai Debi, 14 Calc., 14). But these restrictions have now all been removed. Under the present law the landlord's position is this : he has a mortgage or charge upon the tenure for the rent, and he has a remedy against the tenant personally for the debt due to him. That being the case, he has a right to avail himself of either of his remedies, and is not bound to proceed against the tenure in respect of which the arrears have accrued in the first instance, but is entitled to pursue his other remedies before he sells the tenure itself (Tarini Prasad Rai v. Narain Kumari Debi, 17 Calc., 301). A landlord who obtains a decree for rent is entitled, if he pleases, in the first instance to attach the person of his judgment-debtor (Bhavani Charan Datta v. Pratap Chandra Ghose, 8 C. W. N., 575). He is not obliged in the first instance to endeavour to execute his decree by putting up for sale the tenure, the rent in respect of which is in arrear, and for which he has obtained a decree. The provisions of sec. 68 of the Transfer of Property Act are not amongst those made applicable by sec. 100 of that Act to a person having a charge within the meaning of the latter section, and the charge referred to in sec. 65 of the Act is not such a charge as that defined by section 100 of the Transfer of Property Act (Fatik Chandra De v. Folry, 15 Calc., 492). In a case in which decrees for rent had been obtained against a Hindu widow, the question was raised whether they were decrees merely against her personally, and therefore, to be satisfied out of whatever she left at her death, or whether the estate which had passed to the next heirs was liable. It was decided that the debt could not be regarded as other than a personal debt, payment of which could be enforced against the property left by the widow (Krishna Govinda Mazumdar v. Hem Chandra Chaudhri, 16 Calc. 511). When a landlord has taken a mortgage of the holding of a tenant, he is debarred under sec. 99 of the Transfer of Property Act from bringing the tenure to sale, in execution of a rent decree obtained for arrears due in respect of it otherwise than by instituting a suit under sec. 67 of that Act (Rai Ramani Dasi v. Surendra Nath Datta, 1 C. W. N., 80; Sheodeni Tewari v. Ram Saran Singh, 26 Calc. 164). (But see Khiarajmal v. Daim, 32 Calc., 296). Under the head of moveable property, which a landlord is at liberty to proceed against in execution of a decree for arrears of rent, is apparently his tenant's right to recover rent under a decree from an under-tenant (Mahesh Chandra Chaturji v. Guru Prasad Rai, 13 W. R., 401). But where the judgment-debtor is an agriculturist, his implements of husbandry and such cattle as may in the opinion of the Court be necessary to enable him to earn his livelihood as such, are under sec. 266 (b), C. P. C., exempt from attachment and sale in execution of decrees; but the materials of his houses and other buildings occupied by him as an agriculturist, though exempt from attachment or sale in execution of ordinary decrees [cl. (c)], are yet liable to be attached and sold in execution of decrees for arrears of rent. (See proviso 2 to sec. 266, C. P. C.; Maniklal Venilal v. Lakha, 4 Bom., 429; and Radha Krishna Hakumji v. Balvant. Ramji, 7 Bom., 530). A decree for the consolidated rent of three tenures cannot be executed by the sale of the tenures. This would be making each tenure liable for the rent of the other tenures (Mohendra Ram Tewari v. Ram Khiwan Rai, 10 C. W. N. ccliii; Hridai Nath Das v. Krishna Prosad Sarkar, 11 C. W. N., 497). As to what passes at a sale held in execution of a decree for arrears of rent, i. e., whether the tenure or holding or only the right, title and interest of the judgment-debtor, see notes to sec. 159.

Rights of fractional co-sharer landlords under this section.

—According to the terms of sec. 65, the rent due to a fractional co-sharer landlord would seem to be as much a first charge on the tenure or holding on which it has accrued as the rent due to the whole body of landlords. But the words "his tenure or holding shall be liable to sale in execution of a decree for the rent thereof" have been interpreted as presupposing a suit and a decree under the Act, i. e., a decree made in a suit in which all the landlord co-sharers are plaintiffs and not merely some of them, that is, fractional co-sharers (Narain Uddin v. Srimanta Ghosh, 29 Calc., 219). In any case the provisions of sec. 188 apparently prevent his enforcing his rights under this section, and so it has been held that an attachment of a tenure or holding in execution of a decree for arrears of rent is not such an attachment as is contemplated by sec. 170 of the Act (Beni Madhub Rai v. Jaod Ali Sarkar, 17 Calc., 390). A fractional co-sharer who has obtained a decree for his share of the rent cannot, therefore, sell the tenure or holding, but only the right, title and interest of his judgment-debtor in it in execution of his decree, and it is clear that, were he to be allowed to do otherwise, it would be unfair to his other co-sharers, who had not sued for their shares of the rent. A co-sharer landlord has also no right under sec. 65 to proceed against a share of the holding, when the original holding has not been subdivided (Hari Charan Basu v. Ranjit Singh, 1 C. W. N., 521; 25 Calc., 917). The Bengal Tenancy Act does not contemplate or provide for the sale of a holding at the instance of one only of several joint landlords, who has obtained a decree for the share of the rent separately due to him; such a sale must be under the provisions of the Civil Procedure Code and would not carry with it the special incidents attaching to a sale under the Bengal Tenancy Act. When, therefore, an occupancy holding, not transferable by custom or local usage, is sold in execution of a decree obtained by one of several joint landlords for the share of the rent separately due to him, the purchaser acquires nothing by his purchase, the judgment-debtor having no saleable interest in the holding (Saudagar Sarkar v. Krishna Chandra Nath, 26 Calc., 937 ; 3 C. W. N., 742). The decree referred to in sec. 65, for the satisfaction of which an occupancy holding can be brought to sale, is a decree obtained by all the landlords, or at all events a decree obtained by some of the landlords for the entire rent in the presence of all. A 16 annas proprietor obtaining a decree for the whole rent in a suit brought against all the tenants is entitled to sell the tenure in execution of his decree, although he recognized the fact that the tenants had subdivided the tenure and chose to accept a decree making each of them separately liable for his own share of the rent (Sarbo Lal v. Wilson, 32 Calc., 680). A fractional shareholder selling a non-transferable holding in execution of a decree which he obtained for his share of the rent is, therefore, in no better position than an outsider selling the holding in execution of a money decree (Jarip v. Ram Kumar De, 3 C. W. N., 747 ; Afras Mollah v. Kalsamunnissa, 10 C. W. N., 176 ; 4 C. L. J., 68). When a co-sharer is kept out of possession wrongfully by another co-sharer, a suit for contribution at the instance of the latter for rent paid by him during the period of dispossession does not lie against the former (Swarna Mayi Debi v. Hari Das Rai, 6 C.W., N., 903). *

Changes made by Act I, B. C., of 1907. The law on this point has, however, been altered, so far as Bengal is concerned, by s. 158 B., introduced into the Act by Act I, B. C., of 1907, which provides for the passing of a tenure or holding in execution of a decree for arrears of rent obtained by one or more co-sharer landlords, provided the suit has been framed in accordance with the provisions of the new section. See also the new section 188A.

- 66. (1) When an arrear of rent remains due from a tenant not being a permanent tenure-holder, a raiyat holding at fixed rates or an occupancy-raiyat, at the end of the Bengali year where that year prevails, or at the end of the month of Jeyt where the Fasli or Amli year prevails, the landlord may, whether he has obtained a decree for the recovery of the arrear or not, and whether he is entitled by the terms of any contract to eject the tenant, for arrears or not, institute a suit to eject the tenant.
- (2) In a suit for ejectment for an arrear of rent a decree passed in favour of the plaintiff shall specify

arrears in other cases.

the amount of the arrear and of the interest (if any) due thereon, and the decree shall not be executed if that amount and the costs of the suit are paid into Court within fifteen days from the date of the decree, or, when the Court is closed on the fifteenth day, on the day upon which the Court re-opens.

(3) The Court may for special reasons extend the period of fifteen days mentioned in this section.

Extended to Orissa, (Not., Sept. 10th, 1891).

Effect of assignment of arrears of rent.—When arrears of rent have been assigned to a third party, they are no more than civil debts, the assignor is no longer the landlord, and the tenant cannot be ejected under this section for non-payment (S. A. No. 362 of 1895, decided by O'Kinealy and Rampini, JJ., 15th Feby., 1898). The same rule applies to the assignment of decrees for arrears of rent (Dina Nath De v. Golap Mohini Dasi, 1 C. W. N., 183).

Arrears of produce rent.—Under the provisions of Act VIII B. C., of 1869 a suit in ejectment will lie for arrears of a shaoli rent (Krishna Gopal Mawar v. Barnes, 2 Calc., 374). The same would appear to be the case under the terms of this section.

Sub-section (1).—In Hem Chandra Bhanjo v. Mon Mohini Dasi, (3 C.W.N., 604), it was said, but apparently by way of an obiter dictum, that section 66 does not apply to a case in which the person seeking to execute the decree is not a landlord at the time of the execution. See, however, some observations contra in Chatrapat Singh v. Gopi Chand Bothra, (26 Calc., pp. 757, 760). See note p. 212. When a suit is brought before the expiry of the Bengali year in respect of the arrears of rent for that year, the landlord is not entitled to eject the tenant under section 66 (Guru Das Shut v. Nand Kishor Pal, 26 Calc., 199).

Sub-section (2).—The fifteen days grace allowed to a lessee prior to ejectment cannot be negated by any condition in the lease (Madhab Chandra Adit v. Ram Kulu, 16 W. R., 151; Jan Ali Chaudhari v. Nityanand Basu, 10 W. R., F. B., 12; Duli Chand v. Raj Kishor, 9 Calc., 88). If the judgment-debtor, pays the decretal amount within 15 days of the appellate Court's decree, he is protected from eviction (Abdul Rahman v. Digambari Dasi, 18 W. R., 477; Nur Ali Chaudhri v. Koni Miah, 13 Calc., 13. See also Nam Narain Singh v. Raghu Nath Sahai, 22 Calc., 467). But in a case in which an attempt had been made by the Court of First Instance to modify a decree in review, which was pronounced illegal, it was held that the 15 days were to be reckoned from the only decree in the case, i. e., the original decree of the Munsif (Poresh Nath Ghosh v. Krishna Lal Datta, 23 W. R., 50). If the Court is closed on or before the last day of the 15 days, the decretal amount can be paid in on the first day the Court re-opens (Hussain Ali v. Donzelle, 5 Calc., 906). This is now expressly made law by the terms of this sub-section. See, also, sec. 10, Act X of 1897. Payment into Court within the 15 days with a protest as to a sum improperly charged as interest is a sufficient payment to protect from ejectment (Srishtidhar Dey v. Durga Narain Nag, 17 W. R., 462). When the decretal amount was paid into Court within, but not credited in the treasury until after the expiry of, the 15 days, it was held that this was a good payment (Gajadhar Pauri v. Nark Pauri, 8 Calc., 528). The decree for ejectment passed under sec. 66, cl. (2), need not incorporate the terms as to the ejectment being avoided by payment within fifteen days from the date of the decree. These terms are rather in the nature of a direction to the Court of execution (Bodh Narain v. Mahomed Musa, 26 Calc., 639 ; 3 C. W. N., 628).

Sub-section (3).—The Court referred to in this sub-section is the Court passing the decree or the appellate Court, (Rao Bani Ram v. Prunnath Saha, 18 W. R., 412), but not the Court executing it (Sankar Singh v. Hari Mohan Thakur, 22 W. R., 460 ; Poresh Nath Ghosh v. Krishna Lal Datta, 23 W. R., 50). The extension of time authorised by sec. 66, cl. (3), can be granted by the Court after the decree and not only when passing the decree under cl. (2). It has been further held by Prinsep, J., that the application for such extension of time may be made by the judgment-debtor on a mere petition and not in the form of an application for review of judgment (Bodh Narain v. Mahomed Musa, 26 Calc., 639 ; 3 C. W. N., 628).

Waiver of the right to eject.—A landlord cannot sue for cancellation of lease and ejectment after he has sued for and realized the arrears of rent due (Unesh Chandra Chaturji v. Kamarudin Lashkar, 7 W. R., 20). Receipt of rent subsequent to decree for ejectment from a tenant against whom the decree was passed renders execution of the decree impossible (Nabo Krishna Mukhurji v. Harish Chandra Banurji, 7 W. R., 142 ; Savi v. Mahesh Chandra Basu, W. R., Sp. No., 1864, Act X, 29). A landlord, who sues for arrears of rent for the whole of one year and a portion of the next, and also for ejectment, is not entitled to a decree for the latter. The right to ejectment under section 22 of the Rent Act (Beng. Act VIII of 1869) accrues at the end of the year, and forfeiture or determination of the tenancy thereupon takes place, but if the landlord sues for subsequent arrears, he treats the defendant as his tenant, and the right acquired under that section must be taken to have been waived (Jageshar Chaudhuran v. Mahomed Ibrahim, 14 Calc., 33).

67. An arrear of rent shall bear simple interest Interest on at the rate of twelve [and a half] per arrears. centum per annum from the expiration of that quarter of the agricultural year in which the instalment falls due ~~(to the institution of the suit)~~ [to the date of payment or of the institution of the suit, whichever date is earlier.]

The words within brackets have been inserted and for the words "to the institution of the suit", the words "to the date of payment or of the institution of the suit, whichever date is earlier," have been substituted by s. 15, Act I, B. C., 1907.

Interest must be decreed.—Under the terms of this section interest at the rate of 12 p. c., p. a., must be decreed. The Courts have no discretion in the matter. Only if damages are awarded under sec. 68, should interest not be decreed. Under the former law it has been held that when a decree for rent at an enhanced rate is obtained, interest runs on the arrears at this rate from the date on which they became due (Ahsanullah v. Aftabudin Mahomed, 3 C. L. R., 382. But see Ghulam Ali v. Gopal Lal Tagore, 1 W. R., 56; Samira Khatun v. Gopal Lal Tagore, 1 W. R., 58; Raj Mohan Neogi v. Anand Chandra Chaudhri, 10 W. R., 166). Even when a landlord has no village office and has not under sec. 54 (2) appointed a convenient place for payment, arrears of rent will carry interest (Fakir Lal Goswami v. W. C. Bonnerjee, 4 C. W. N., 324). The mere non-enforcement by a landlord even for a series of years of his right to interest upon arrears of rent does not amount to a waiver of such right (Johari Lal v. Ballab Lal, 5 Calc., 102; 4 C. L. R., 349; Rati Kant Basu v. Gangadhar Biswas, W. R., F. B., 13; Shyama Churan Mandal v. Hiras Mulla, 26 Calc., 160).

Interest only due at the end of each quarter.—According to the terms of this section, whether the rent is payable monthly or quarterly, interest only runs from the expiration of the quarter in which the instalment of rent falls due. In the case of Hemanto Kumari Debi v. Jagadendra Nath Rai, (22 Calc., 221), however, their Lordships of the Privy Council have said :—"It appears there are some arrears which have become due since the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885. The Subordinate Court held that interest was to be calculated monthly on the arrears but the High Court held that under the provisions of that Act as regards arrears which became due after the Act came into force, the interest should be calculated quarterly. It appears to their Lordships that the High Court were wrong, and that the provision in section 67 of the Act on which they relied, only applies to cases when the rent is payable quarterly. Here it is not disputed that the rent is payable monthly, and on rent in arrear it appears to their Lordships that interest ought to be calculated monthly."

Changes made by Act, I B. O. of 1907.—The report of the Select Committee on the Bill explains the changes made in this section as follows :—

"The present clause provides definitely for the levy of interest on arrears of rent before the institution of a suit. This point arose in the course of our discussion of clause 4, regarding the definition of rent. We find that the framers of the Act of 1885 apparently intended to provide for the levy of interest before the institution of a suit, and that this was definitely allowed by the former Acts. From the wording of section 67, however, it might be inferred that interest could only be levied on arrears in cases where a suit had been instituted, and that any interest, taken before a suit was brought, might be treated as an illegal exaction under section 75. It has been represented that it is a common practice for landlords to take interest on arrears paid without the institution of a suit, and that it would be a hardship both to landlords and to tenants to hold that no interest could be charged unless a suit were instituted. We consider that on the whole it is advisable that the law should contain a definite provision in regard to this matter, more especially as such provision would merely be carrying out the intention of the framers of the original Act.

We also propose that the rate of interest should be altered from 12 per cent to 12½ per cent. The adoption of the latter rate will greatly facilitate calculation, and this is the rate which is allowed by the Cess Act on arrears of cesses payable by tenants to landlords."

Produce rents.—No interest would seem to be payable on arrears of produce rents, for interest is under this section payable only on an "arrear of rent", and an "arrear" is defined in sec. 54 (3) as any instalment or part of an instalment of rent not duly paid at or before the time when it falls due, and it is only a money rent, which is under s. 53 payable in instalments. See also Krishna Gopal Mawar v. Barnes, (2 Cal., 374), and Rangayya Appa Rao v. Bobba Sriramanulu, 8 C. W. N., 162; L. R., 31 I. A., 31). But it would seem that damages may be awarded in a suit for the money equivalent of a produce rent (Apurba Krishna Rai v. Ashutosh Datta, 9 C. W. N., 122).

Contracts made after the passing of the Act.—Under section 178 (3) (h) nothing in any contract made between a landlord and a tenant after the passing of this Act (i. e., 14th March, 1885), shall affect the provisions of this section relating to interest payable on account of arrears of rent : so, in a case in which the tenant had agreed by a kabulyat executed before the passing of the Act, but the term of which expired after the Act had come into force, to pay interest on arrears at the rate of 1 anna per rupee per mensem, it was held that this was a good contract during the pendency of the lease, but on the expiry of its term the tenant, who had held on without executing a fresh lease, was liable to pay interest on the arrears only at the rate of 12 p. c., p. a. (Alim v. Solish Chandra Chaturdharin, 24 Calc., 37) ; and when the lease is a subsisting one, a purchaser buys the lease subject to its terms including that relating to interest (Lal Gopal Datta v. Monmotho Lal Datta, 9 C. W. N., 175 ; 32 Calc., 258. See also Raj Narain Mitra v. Panna Chand, 7 C. W. N., 203). So also in the case of a kabulyat executed before the passing of the Act, when the tenant has acquired the holding by private purchase (Tilak Chandra Rai v. Jasoda Kumar Rai, 11 C. W. N., 215). But in another case, Kishori Lal De v. Administrator General of Bengal, (2 C. W. N., 303), in which a tenant had agreed in a kabulyat executed before the passing of the Act, for a term which expired before the Act came into force, to pay interest at the rate of 75 p. c., p. a., and who had held over on the expiry of the term of his lease and who was sued for arrears accruing due after the coming into force of this Act, it was held that he was liable to pay interest at the rate specified in the kabulyat, on the ground that he was to be taken as holding over on the same conditions as those set out in this kabulyat, and if any contract between him and his landlord was to be implied, it must be taken to have been entered into so soon as the lease expired rather than at the beginning of each year. But in the subsequent case of Ali Mamud Parumanik v. Bhagabati Debta (2 C. W. N., 525) this ruling was not followed, and the tenant who held over, and whose lease had expired after the passing of the Act, was found liable to pay interest on arrears only at 12 p. c. p. a. The same was also held in another case, (Administrator General of Bengal v. Asraf Ali, 28 Calc., 227), in which the lease of the tenant who held over had expired before the passing of the Act. See Dinanath Singh v. Abharam Karuni, (1 C. L. J., 8n,) and the note "Holding over," to sec. 51, p. 171. In Kali Nath Sen v. Trailokhya Nath Rai, (26 Calc., 315 ; 3 C. W. N., 194), it has been held that a stipulation for the payment of interest at an unusual and exorbitant rate, made in a contract entered into before the passing of this Act, cannot be supposed to be an incident of a tenancy which would attach to it after a sale for arrears of rent. And when in a lease the stipulation was that the lessee should pay a sum of rupees ten in default of delivery to the landlord of a certain quantity of molasses, held, that this was merely a personal covenant of the lessee, and it not having been notified in the sale proclamation, the auction-purchaser was not bound to pay it (Raj Narayan Mitra v. Panna Chand Singh, 7 C. W. N., 203).

This section is controlled by section 179.—The provisions of this section are rendered inapplicable to permanent mukarari leases by sec. 179 (Atulya Charan Basu v. Tulsi Das Sarkar, 2 C. W. N., 543). This was affirmed by the Full Bench decision in Matangini Dèbi v. Makrura Bibi, (29 Calc., 674 ; 5 C. W. N., 438), in which the ruling in Basanta Kumar Rai v. Promotho Nath Bhattacharji, (26 Calc., 130 ; 3 C. W. N., 36), to the contrary effect was set aside.

68. (1) If, in any suit brought for the recovery of arrears of rent, it appears to the Court that the defendant has, without reasonable or probable cause, neglected or refused to pay the amount of rent due by him, the Court may award to the plaintiff, in addition to the amount decreed for rent and costs, such damages, not exceeding twenty-five per centum on the amount of rent decreed, as it thinks fit :

Power to award damages on rent withheld without reasonable cause, or to defendant improperly sued for rent.

Provided that interest shall not be decreed when damages are awarded under this section.

(2) If, in any suit brought for the recovery of arrears of rent, it appears to the Court that the plaintiff has instituted the suit without reasonable or probable cause, the Court may award to the defendant, by way of damages, such sum, not exceeding twenty-five per centum on the whole amount claimed by the plaintiff, as it thinks fit.

Extended to Orissa, (Not., Sept. 10th, 1891).

Non-payment of cesses.—Tenants are liable to damages for neglect to pay road and public works cesses (Sarada Prasad Ganguli v. Prasanna Kumar Sandial, 8 Calc., 290). This is also the case under the present law, for road and public works cesses are rent within the meaning of this section [sec. 3 (5), p. 26].

Damages in lieu of interest only up to date of suit.—The proviso to sub-section (1) provides that interest is not to be decreed when damages are awarded. The damages represent the sum which the plaintiff is allowed in lieu of interest up to the date of suit : their award does not interfere with the interest which under sec. 68 may be allowed subsequently to that date, and would certainly not prevent the Court from allowing interest from the date of decree (Watson v. Srikrishna Bhumik, 21 Calc., 132). Damages were disallowed in a suit in which a set-off had been claimed on account of a sum due to the defendant under a Privy Council decree (Bharat Prosad Sahi v. Rameshwar Koer, 8 C. W. N., 118).

Limitation.—The period of limitation in suits for arrears of rent is three years from the last day of the year in which the arrear fell due [Sch. III, Part I, art 2, (b)]. Applications for execution of decrees made under this Act, if for sums not exceeding Rs. 500, are barred, if not presented within three years of the date of the final decree (Sched. III, Part III, art. 6).

Produce-rents.

Produce-rents.

Order for appraising or dividing produce.

69. (1) Where rent is taken by appraisement or division of the produce,—

(a) if either the landlord or the tenant neglects to attend, either personally or by agent, at the proper time for making the appraisement or division, or

(b) if there is a dispute about the quantity, value or division of the produce, the Collector may, on the application of either party, and on his depositing such sum on account of expenses as the Collector may require, make an order appointing such officer as he thinks fit to appraise or divide the produce.

(2) The Collector may, without such an application, make the like order in any case where in the opinion of the District or Sub-divisional Magistrate the making of the order would be likely to prevent a breach of the peace.

(3) Where a Collector makes an order under this section, he may, by order, prohibit the removal of the produce until the appraisement or division has been effected; [but an order made by the Collector under this sub-section shall not prevent the execution of any order passed by the Court for the distraint of the tenant's crops.]

[(4) Every officer appointed by the Collector under sub-section (1) to appraise or divide the produce shall, for the purposes of the Indian Penal Code, be deemed to be a public servant.]

Extended to Orissa, (Not., Sept. 10th, 1891).

The words in brackets at the end of sub-section (3) and sub-section (4) have been added by sec. 16, Act I, B. C., of 1907. The object of the addition to sub-section (3) is to prevent delay arising from Civil Courts passing orders for distraint and Collectors at or about the same time passing orders for appraisement in respect of the same produce. It was at first proposed that when an application for distraint had been made, the Collector should not make any order for appraisement. But it was subsequently considered that as a distraint is made for the realization of rent due for not more than one year, and appraisement is made in respect of the produce still on the ground, there is no reason why appraisement should not proceed, although the crop is under distraint. It has therefore been provided that an order under this section shall not interfere with any order passed by a Civil Court for the distraint of the crop.

Division or appraisement.—Produce rents are collected on two systems—called the agorebatui and danabandi systems. According to the former, the produce is divided between the landlord and tenant. According to the latter, the outturn of the crop and its value are appraised, and the tenant pays the landlord his share either in grain or money as may be agreed on. The two systems are described in a letter from the Commissioner of Patna to the Board of Revenue, No 1130 of the 21st August, 1858, as follows. Under the agorebatat system "the landlord employs men," it is said, "to watch his share of the crop when it approaches maturity, and when it is ready, cuts and carries it himself. In a more common variety of the same tenure the crop is cut and threshed by the raiyat under the superintendence of the samindar's servants, and the produce divided on the threshing-floor; but it is also matter of arrangement between the parties in this case whether the landlord shall have the straw or only the grain, and whether it shall be delivered at the threshing-floor of the raiyat's village, or at some other place more convenient to the samindar." Under the danabandi system, it is said, "when the crop is ripe, the patwari, the gomastha, the amin, a jareebkush or measurer, a salis or arbitrator, navisinda or writer" and the jet raiyats (head raiyats) "of the village, with the raiyat himself, proceed to the field in which the crop is growing. The salis first makes an estimate of the produce, the amin then makes another. If the two estimates agree, the matter is considered settled. If they differ, the raiyat cuts a cottah where the crop is thinnest; the samindar's people cut another, where it is heaviest. The produce is threshed out, mixed together, and weighed, and the produce of the whole field is estimated from this sample. A memorandum of the result, called a danabandi, is made out by the patwari and his writer, and signed by those present. The raiyat is then at liberty to cut and store his grain. The patwari next prepares a paper, called a behree, showing the amount of grain in the possession of the raiyat, and the respective shares of the malik and the raiyat, and sends for the malik's share, which the raiyat either pays in grain or money, as may have been agreed upon. If the agreement is to pay in money, the gomastha writes to the amlah of the surrounding villages for the nirik or market rate, which is returned on the back of his letter, and an average is then struck. It will thus be seen the accounts of the estimate of the crop and its weight form the chief evidence in these bhaoli cases, and that a jamawasil account is of comparatively little use."

Officers appointed to discharge the functions of a Collector.—By a notification, dated 21st April, 1886, published in the Calcutta Gazette of the 28th idem, Part I, p. 466, all officers in charge of sub-divisions were invested with the powers of a Collector for the purpose of discharging the functions of a Collector under sections 69 to 71 of this Act. By a notification, dated 28th May, 1886, published in the Calcutta Gazette of the 2nd June, 1886, Part I, p. 652, the Deputy Collector of Howrah, and by a notification, dated the 4th May, 1893, published in the Calcutta Gazette of the 5th dem, Part I, p. 274, the Deputy Collector attached to the sadar station of Gaya, were invested with powers of a Collector for the purpose of discharging the functions referred to in these sections. See note, p. 38.

Collector a "Court." Officer appointed by him not a "public servant," except in Bengal.—A Collector acting under this and the following section is a "Court" within the meaning of sec. 195 of the Criminal Procedure Code, and his sanction is necessary to the prosecution under secs. 465 and 471 of the Penal Code of tenants who had filed rent receipts alleged to be forgeries in certain appraisement proceedings before him (Raghubans Sahai v. Kokil Singh, 17 Calc. 872). But a person nominated by the Collector under this section for the purpose of making a division of crops between the landlord and tenant is not a "public servant" within the meaning of section 186 of the Penal Code (Chattar Lall v. Thakur Prasad, 18 Calc., 518). Sub-section (4) sets aside this ruling in the province of Bengal.

Collector not empowered to decide disputes as to nature of tenancy.—Neither this nor the following section gives the Collector power to decide disputes as to whether the tenancy is a bhaoli one, or one held on a money rent. When there is a bonâ fide dispute as to whether rent is bhaoli or nagdi, a Deputy Collector has no jurisdiction to proceed under secs. 69 and 70 (Nukheda Singh v. Ripu Mardan Singh, 4 C. W. N., 239).

A co-sharer landlord cannot apply for appraisement or division.—An application under s. 69 cannot be made by some only of a body of landlords, such an application being authorized by the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act and not by those of the Civil Procedure Code (Nukheda Singh v. Ripu Mardan Singh, 4 C. W. N., 239.)

No stamp duty leviable.—Art. 4, Sched. II, Act I of 1879, exempts from stamp duty an appraisement of crops for the purpose of ascertaining the amount to be given to a landlord as rent.

Notice.—The Collector is apparently not bound to give the opposite party any notice before making an order under this section, though under section 70, sub-section (2) the officer appointed to make an appraisement or division must give the opposite party notice of the time and place at which the appraisement or division will be made; but it would seem desirable that in ordinary circumstances he should do so.

70. (1) When a Collector appoints an officer under the last foregoing section, the Collector may, in his discretion, direct the officer to associate with himself any other persons as assessors, and may give him instructions regarding the number, qualifications and mode of selection of those assessors (if any), and the procedure to be followed in making the appraisement or division and the officer shall conform to the instructions so given.

Procedure
where officer ap-

(2) The officer shall, before making an appraisement or division, give notice to the landlord and tenant of the time and place at which the appraisement or division will be made ; but if either the landlord or the tenant fails to attend either personally or by agent, he may proceed ex parte.

(3) When the officer has made the appraisement or division, he shall submit a report of his proceedings to the Collector.

(4) The Collector shall consider the report, and after giving the parties an opportunity of being heard and making such enquiry (if any) as he may think necessary, shall pass such order thereon as he thinks just.

(5) The Collector may, if he thinks fit, refer any question in dispute between the parties for the decision of a Civil Court, but subject as aforesaid, his order shall be final and shall, on application to a Civil Court by the landlord or the tenant, be enforceable as a decree.

(6) Where the officer makes an appraisement, the appraisement papers shall be filed in the Collector's office.

Sub-section (5).—Until a Collector passes a final order under the sub-section, either the landlord or the tenant can institute a suit in the Civil Court for the purpose of having decided the questions at issue between them, and the fact of an application having been made to the Collector under sec. 69 will not be a bar to the prosecution of such a suit. "The jurisdiction of the Civil Court is superior to that of the Collector under secs. 69 and 70 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, and, so long as no final order has been passed by the Collector under those sections, it is quite competent to the Civil Court to proceed with a suit involving the decision of the same question, and, if necessary, to direct the Collector to stay his hand; and there is nothing in the Bengal Tenancy Act to show that the provisions of the Civil Procedure Code relating to the taking charge of property in dispute for its preservation and to the appointment of Receivers are not applicable under sec. 143 of that Act to suits between landlord and tenant" (S. As., Nos. 1560 to 1582 and 1808 to 1810 of 1888, decided by Banerjee and Rampini, JJ., 22nd July, 1889). The order of a Collector passed under sec. 70 (5) is final only when the proceedings are between landlord and tenants. As between tenants and third parties, his decision is not final, and a suit will lie for establishment of title and for recovery of the crops (Chheddi v Chhedan, Magar, 1 C. L. J., 52 n; 32 Calc., 422).

71. (1) Where rent is taken by appraisement of the produce, the tenant shall be entitled to the exclusive possession of the produce.

Rights and liabilities as to possession of crop.

(2) Where rent is taken by division of the produce, the tenant shall be entitled to the exclusive possession of the whole produce until it is divided, but shall not be entitled to remove any portion of the produce from the threshing-floor at such a time or in such a manner as to prevent the due division thereof at the proper time.

(3) In either case the tenant shall be entitled to cut and harvest the produce in due course of husbandry without any interference on the part of the landlord.

(4) If the tenant removes any portion of the produce at such a time or in such a manner as to prevent the due appraisement or division thereof at the proper time, the produce shall be deemed to have been as full as the fullest crop of the same description appraised in the neighbourhood on similar land for that harvest.

Extended to Orissa, (Not., Sept. 10th. 1891).

Penalties for interference with the produce.—Under sec. 186 (1) (c), if any person otherwise than in accordance with this Act or some other enactment for the time being in force, except with the authority or consent of the tenant, prevents or attempts to prevent the reaping, gathering, storing, removing or otherwise dealing with any produce of a holding, he shall be deemed to have committed criminal trespass within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code. And under section 186 (2), any person who abets within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code the doing of any act mentioned in sub-section (1), shall be deemed to have abetted the commission of criminal trespass within the meaning of that Code.

Suit against a depositary.—In the course of proceedings under sections 65 and 70 of this Act, the landlord's share of the produce was deposited with two independent persons, who executed a receipt, agreeing to deliver it up, whenever called on to do so. Subsequently, the landlord applied to the Collector for his share of this produce, and one of the depositaries appeared and stated that the whole of the produce, excepting 40 maunds, had been destroyed by rain. On the Collector declining to give the landlord any relief, he instituted a suit against the depositaries in the Civil Court for the value of the produce deposited with them, and it was held (1) that the receipt executed by the defendants established privity between them and the plaintiff, and (2) that when a plaintiff seeks relief in the Civil Court not against his tenant, but against a third party, a depositary or bailee, there is nothing in sections 69 and 70 to bar his suit (Jagu Singh v. Chua Singh, 22 Calc., 480).

Suits for produce rents.—Arrears of produce rents can be sued for (Krishna Bandhu Bhattacharji v. Rotish, 25 W.R., 307) and such suits lie in the Civil Court and not in the Small Cause Court (Shoma Mehta v. Rajani Baswas, 1 C. W. N., 55; Krishna Bandhu v. Rotish, 25 W. R., 307; Tazuddin v. Ram Prasad Bhagat, 1 All., 217). See notes pp. 26, 188. The damage to the plaintiff is the value of the crops at the time they were due and not subsequently (Lachman Prasad v. Hulash Mahtan, 2 B. L. R., App., 27; 11 W. R., 151). A khasra, or appraisal of the crop, though not made in the presence of the tenant (a danabandi tenant) is evidence against him, if he had notice when the khasra was about to be made (Hari Narain Singh v. Beljit Jha, 24 W. R., 125). A landlord who refuses to accept rent in kind when it is offered to him on the ground that he is suing for a money rent, cannot on the dismissal of his suit come into Court again and sue his tenant for the value of what he refused when it was proffered (Narain Gir v. Gaur Saran Das, 23 W. R., 368). In a suit for arrears of rent of a produce rent in which interest was claimed under a custom it was held that the plaintiff not having proved the alleged custom, secs., 54 (3), 67 and 68 were applicable, and the plaintiff was not entitled to get interest as claimed, but damages at the rate of 25 p. c. (Apurba Krishna Rai v. Ashutosh Datta, 8 C. W. N., cclxxxiv).

Liability for rent on change of landlord or after transfer of tenure or holding.

Liability for rent on change of landlord or after transfer of tenure or holding.

Tenant not liable to transferee of landlord's interest for rent paid to former landlord, without notice of the transfer.

72. (1) A tenant shall not, when his landlord's interest is transferred, be liable to the transferee for rent which became due after the transfer and was paid to the landlord whose interest was so transferred, unless the transferee has before the payment given notice of the transfer to the tenant.

(2) Where there is more than one tenant paying rent to the landlord whose interest is transferred, a general notice from the transferee to the tenants published in the prescribed manner shall be a sufficient notice for the purposes of this section.

Extended to Orissa, (Not., Sept. 10th, 1891).

Rent in secs. 72 to 75 includes money recoverable as rent.—Under sec. 3 (5), the word "rent" in secs. 72 to 75 includes also money recoverable under any enactment for the time being in force as rent. See note, p. 29. Where a landlord transferred his interest to another person and the tenant got notice of the transfer from the transferor, but not from the transferee : held, that payments of rent made to the transferor after such notice were not valid payments, and the transferee could claim them from the tenant. The object of sub-section (2) of s. 72 is to relieve the transferee landlord of the necessity of giving notice to each tenant : it does not make such notice a necessary notice (Nobin Chandra Chaudhuri v. Surendra Nath Ghosh, 7 C. W. N., 454).

Landlord's right to transfer his interest.—A landlord can create a tenure intermediate between him and his tenants, but they are not bound to pay rent to the tenure-holder, till they have received notice of the assignment (Mansur Ahmud v. Azizudin, W. R., Sp. No., 1864, Act X, 129). A parcel of land being a portion of the land composing a patni can be sold in execution of a decree against the patnidar and the tenant will be liable to pay rent to the purchaser after receipt of notice of the purchase (Madhab Ram v. Doyal Chandra Ghosh, 2 C. W. N., 108 ; 25 Calc., 445). But a landlord cannot grant two leases of the same interest in the same property (Kallam v. Panchu Mandal, 11 W. R., 128). If a raiyat without notice of the assignment of his landlord's interest pays his rent to the former landlord, the transferee cannot recover from him rent so paid (Nil Mani Rai v. Hills, 4 W. R., Act X, 38). This is in accordance with the provisions of sec. 50 of the Transfer of Property Act, which, however, require that the rent should be paid in good faith to the person of whom the tenant in good faith held the property. The element of good faith does not seem to be required by the terms of sec. 72. If tenants after having had notice of the purchase of a zamindari choose to continue to pay their rents to, or for the use of, the former proprietor, they do so at their own peril, and cannot plead such payments in answer to a suit for rent by the new owner (Collector of Rajshahye v. Harasundari Debi, W. R., Sp. No. 1864, Act X, 6). The same rule applies when tenants continue to pay rent to co-sharer landlords after notice of the acquisition by the third party of an interest in the land (Azim v. Ram Lall Shaha, 25 Calc., 330).

Rent paid in advance.—A tenant who pays rent to his landlord in advance is not, under the terms of this section, entitled to credit from the transferee for this payment. The landlord may sue both the tenant and the transferee for the rent (Madan Mohan Lal v. Holloway, 12 Calc., 555). But in one case decided under the former law it was ruled that an auction-purchaser with notice of a payment in advance, made by the tenant to the former proprietors, of rent due for a period subsequent to the date of purchase, is bound by such payment (Ram Lal Saha v. Jagendra Narain Rai, 18 W. R., 328). In another case it was held that a purchaser of land is bound by a contract between his vendor and a tenant, which is secured by the rent of the land remaining in the hands of such tenant, the contract being in the nature of an assignment of rent of the property sold (Churaman Singh v. Patu Kuar, 24 W.R., 68).

Back rents.—Back rents may be assigned (Harinath Mazumdar v. Moran & Co., W.R., Sp. No., 1864, Act X, 127), but the assignment is not valid against the tenant unless he has had express notice, or is a party to or otherwise aware, of the transfer (secs. 131 and 132 of the Transfer of Property Act). Under the provisions of sec. 135 of the Transfer of Property Act, a debtor is discharged by paying to the creditor before judgment the price and incidental expenses of the purchase of the debt (Muchiram Barik v. Ishan Chandra Chakravarti, 21 Calc., 568). Suit for arrears of back rents, though held under the old law to be suits for rent (Krishna Kumar Mitra v. Mohesh Chandra Banurji, W. R., Sp. No., 1864, Act X, 3; Harinath Mazumdar v. Moran & Co., W. R., Sp. No., 1864, Act X, 127; see contra, Bhagwan Sahai v. Sangeshar Chaudhri, 19 W. R., 431), would not seem to be suits for rent under the present Act. They are suits for debt only; for rent under sec. 3 (5) is whatever is payable by a tenant to his landlord and the assignee of the back rents cannot have been the landlord of the tenant at the time the rents accrued. See note to sec. 66 p. 219. Under sec. 148 (h) execution of a decree for arrears of rent cannot be taken out by an assignee, unless the landlord's interest in the land has become and is vested in him (Dinonath De v. Golup Mohini Dasi, 1 C. W. N., 183).

Service of notices.—Sub-section (1) of sec. 72 does not require that the notice therein contemplated should be served in any particular manner. It does not require to be served in the manner prescribed by rule 3, Chap. I of the Govt. rules under the Tenancy Act (Mudhab Ram v. Doyal Chandra Ghosh, 25 Calc., 445; 2 C. W. N., 108). A special rule has been passed for the service of the general notice referred to in sub-section (2) of this section (see rule 6, Chap. V of the Govt. rules, Appendix I).

Apportionment of rent.—Under sec. 37 of the Transfer of Property Act, when, in consequence of a transfer, property is divided and held in several shares, and thereupon the benefit of any obligation relating to the property as a whole passes from one to several owners of the property, the corresponding duty shall in the absence of a contract to the contrary amongst the owners, be performed in favour of each of such owners in proportion to the value of his share in such property, provided the duty can be severed and the person on whom the duty lies has had reasonable notice of the severance. But the provisions of this section do not apply to leases for agricultural purposes, unless and until the Local Government by notification in the official Gazette so directs. No such notification has as yet been issued, so that there is as yet no definite legal provision for the apportionment of rents, when the interests of the landlord are transferred to more than one person. Under the Estates Partition Act, (V, B. C., of 1897,) when a revenue paying estate is being divided, if it be necessary to divide tenures or holdings, rents can be apportioned between the different proprietors by the Revenue Officer entrusted with the duty of making the partition (see secs. 81 and 83, Act V, B. C., of 1897). In all other cases recourse must be had to a civil suit and the rents will then be apportioned by this Court, though there is no express law on the subject to guide it. There is no provision in this Act for the apportionment of rent, which is "required by the necessities of mankind, the exigencies of families and the demands of business." The absence of such provision has always been "a fruitful source of litigation and harassment to raiyats". (Rent Commission Rept., Vol. I. p. 57, para 127).

There are many cases under the old law, in which it has been ruled that the Civil Courts can apportion rents on a suit being brought for the purpose. Thus, in the case of Beni Madhub Ghosh v. Thakur Dass Mandal (B. L. R., F. B., 588; 6 W. R., Act X, 71) Peacock, C. J., said:—"It appears that the tenant originally held under four brothers of whom Gobind Mani's husband, Sri Krishna, was one. They were a joint family, and the tenant was paying rent to them jointly. I should have thought myself, though it is unnecessary to express any decisive opinion on the point, that where rent is received by a joint family, the tenant is not liable to be sued by each member of the joint family for a separate share of rent. But if the estate is severed by partition, and, instead of being a joint estate, becomes separate estates, then the rent would be apportioned in respect of the several allotments, and each member would be entitled to sue for his separate share of the rent in respect of the lands allotted to him on partition." Then, in Gopanand Jha v. Govind Prasad, (12 W. R., 109) it was ruled that when a lessee is evicted by title paramount to that of his lessor, an apportionment of the rent may take place in an action brought for the purpose, and that the onus is on the lessor to show what is the fair rent of the land out of which the tenant was not evicted. Again, in Srinath Chandra Chaudhri v. Mohesh Chandra Bandopadhyaya, (1 C. L. R., 453), it appeared that the Rajah Gopal Singh Deb was the proprietor of seven mauzas which were let in patni. Three of them were bought at a sale in execution of a money decree against Rajah

Gopal Singh Deb by the plaintiffs and four by the defendants, and the plaintiffs sued the patnidars for the proportionate amount of the rent due to them and for the determination of that amount, making the purchasers of the remaining four mauzas parties defendant ; and it was held that the suit was properly framed. In Annoda Charan Rai v. Kali Kumar Rai, (4 Calc., 89), the Court (Garth, C. J., and McDonell, J.,) said :—" If ijmali property is let to a tenant at one entire rent, we think it clear, upon principle and authority, that the rent is due in its entirety to all the co-sharers, and that all are bound to sue for it ; and that no co-sharer can sue to recover the amount of his share separately, whether the other co-sharers are made parties to the suit or not. Of course, if the land demised ceases to be ijmali, and one portion of the divided area becomes the property of A, whilst another becomes the property of B, it is necessary that an apportionment of the rent should take place ; and then, in order to obtain such an apportionment, it would be quite proper that either A or B should bring a suit against the tenant for so much of the rent as he considers his proper portion, making B or A, as the case may be, defendant to the suit. But here there has been no division of the area of the property. The area is entire, the rent has always been paid by the tenant in its entirety, and the title of the other co-sharers remains ijmali." The suit was accordingly dismissed. In Ishar Chandru Dattu v. Ram Krishna Das, (5 Calc., 902 ; 6 C. L. R., 421), it was held by a Full Bench, " that a sale of a share in a tenure, which has been let out to a tenant in its entirety, does not of itself necessarily effect a severance of the tenure or an apportionment of the rent ; but if the purchaser of the share desires to have such a severance or apportionment, he is, entitled to enforce it by taking proper steps for that purpose. If he takes no such steps, then the tenant is justified in paying the entire rent, as before, to all the parties jointly entitled to it. But if the purchaser desires to effect a severance of the tenure, and an apportionment of the rent, he must give the tenant due notice to that effect, and, then, if an amicable apportionment of the rent cannot be made by arrangement between all the parties concerned, the purchaser may bring a suit against the tenant for the purpose of having the rent apportioned, making all the other co-sharers parties to the suit." It is impossible upon principle, it is further said, " to distinguish cases, when a tenure is sold privately, from those when it is sold by public auction ; or, on the other hand, to distinguish cases, when a tenure is severed by different portions of its area being sold to different persons, from those when it is sold to different persons in undivided shares. In all cases of this kind, the entirety of the joint interest should be considered as severable at the option of the purchaser, and it would lead to most inconvenient results, and to the depreciation of the property thus sold in different lots, if the purchasers of such lots were compelled to collect their rents in one entire sum conjointly with one another, or with the owner of the unsold shares or portions." In Durga Prasad v. Ghosita Ghoria, (11 Calc., 284), the plaintiff held a jote under the defendant and his co-sharers, who were jointly in possession of an estate paying revenue to Government. A batwara of this estate was effected in 1877, and out of the plaintiff's jote lands, a plot of land fifteen cottahs in extent, fell to the patti or divided share of the defendants. The rate of rent according to the plaintiff at which he held the land while the estate was joint was Rs. 4 per bigha, but on partition the defendants demanded and enforced payment of Rs. 5 on account of the fifteen cottahs plot that fell to their patti. The plaintiff then sued under s. 19 of Act VIII, B. C., of 1869 for abatement of rent, and obtained a decree. In second appeal the decree was affirmed, but it was pointed out that the suit was not properly one for abatement, but one for apportionment of rent, and for a declaration that after batwara the share of the rent which the plaintiff was liable to pay to the defendant was as stated by the plaintiff. When one co-sharer had obtained a decree for his share of the rent separately, and the other co-sharers served notices and sued for apportionment of rent, it was held that there was no reason why the rent should not be apportioned, provided the notice was sufficient (Banwari Lal Mitra v. Kuladananda Chaudhri, 1 C. W. N., clxxxviii). A decree had determined that lands leased in mukarari to a lessee with a fixed rent thereon, were less in extent than they were specified to be in the pattahs that comprised them, the lessors not having title to the whole, and the lessee had obtained possession of the less estate. The revenue paying mehal within which were the lands subject to the mukarari, such lands being shares of mauzahs therein, was afterwards sold for arrears under Act XI of 1859. The purchaser at that sale was sued by the mukararidar to make good her incumbrance under sec. 54 of the Act. The lease was maintained by the decree that followed, but only as to part of the shares specified in the pattahs. In a suit for mesne profits brought by the lessee against the purchaser's heir, who filed a cross-suit against her for rent, it was held that as the lessee had not proved that she, having had possession under the lessee, had been dispossessed by the purchaser, there had not been an eviction in the proper sense of the word. But when in her suit for possession, part only was decreed to her, and she was precluded by the result from getting a substantial part, her position was the same as if she had been evicted. She, therefore, had the same equity for an apportionment as if she had been evicted (Imambandi Begam v. Kamleswari Prasad, 21 Calc., 1005 ; L. R., 21 I. A., 118). Where the act of the landlord is not a mere trespass, but something of a graver character interfering substantially with the enjoyment by the tenant of the demised property, the tenant is entitled to a suspension of rent during such interference, even though there may not be actual eviction, and if such interference be committed in respect of even a portion of the property, there should be no apportionment of rent, when the whole rent is equally chargeable upon every part of the land. But if the interference is in respect of only a certain portion of the demised property, the rent for which is separately assessed, there should be apportionment (Dhanpat Singh v. Mahomed Kazim Ispahain, 24 Calc., 296). If the lease under which the tenure is held reserves rent at a certain rate per bigha, it cannot be said that each bigha is separately assessed and separately chargeable with rent ; so if the landlord dispossesses the tenant from some of the lands of the tenure, he cannot claim rent for the lands that remain in the tenant's possession (Haro Kumari v. Purna Chandra Sarbogy, 28 Calc., 188). When the plaintiffs, who are joint landlords, have in suits separately instituted by them against the tenant defendant asked for apportionment of rent and for recovery of rents due on such apportionment, and all the parties interested have been made parties to the suits, there is no reason why the plaintiffs should not have the rents apportioned, and the apportionment may take place in respect both of the arrears alleged to be due and the future rent (Rajnarain Mitra v. Ekadasi Bag, 27 Calc., 479 ; 4 C. W. N., 494).

Apportionment of cesses. Where a Collector has under the Cess Act determined the annual value in respect of certain land and a portion of that land is subsequently granted as a tenure to an under-tenant and the Collector has not separately assessed the annual value of the land of the tenure so created, the under-tenant is nevertheless liable for any cesses in respect of that land. In such a case it is competent to a Court to ascertain the annual value of the land comprised in the defendant's tenure, so as to ascertain the amount due for cesses (Hari Mohan Dalal v. Ashtosh Dhur, 4 C. W. N., 776).

All co-sharers must be made parties.—In a suit for apportionment of rent, the plaintiff must make all his co-sharers parties, otherwise the suit is badly framed and should be dismissed (Ishar Chandra Datta v. Ram Krishna Das, 5 Calc., 902 ; 6 C. L. R., 421 ; Abhai Govind Chaudhri v. Hari Charan Chaudhri, 8 Calc., 277). A tenant held certain land under a lease which provided that after the land had been fully brought under cultivation, there should be a measurement and an adjustment of the rent finally and once for all, and after that there should be no further change in the rent. One of the landlords then brought a suit, alleging that the land had been fully brought under cultivation, and that there had been a measurement, and, therefore, she prayed for an adjustment of her share of the rent. It was held that on the terms of the lease the final adjustment of the rent could be obtained only by a suit brought by all the landlords, or by a suit by some of them, if the others refused to join, but in that case the suit must be for the adjustment of the entire rent and all the necessary parties must be properly before the Court (Bindu Bashini Dasi v. Piari Mohan Basu, 20 Calc., 107).

Separate payment of rent not conclusive evidence of apportionment.—When a tenant has agreed with his landlords to pay a certain rent for his whole holding, the fact that he has paid each landlord his proportionate share of the rent is not conclusive, but merely presumptive evidence that the rent has been apportioned between the landlords (Anu Mandal v. Kamaludin, 1 C. L. R., 248).

Accrual of rent.—Under sec. 36 of Act IV of 1882, in the absence of a contract or local usage to the contrary, rent shall, on the transfer of the interest of the person entitled to receive it, be deemed as between the transferor and transferee to accrue due from day to day, and to be apportionable accordingly, but to be payable on the days appointed for the payment thereof. But, according to the ruling in Satyendra Nath Thakur v. Nilkanth Singh, (21 Calc., 383), rent under this Act “should ordinarily be regarded not as accruing from day to day, but as falling due only at stated times according to the contract of tenancy or the general law in the absence of such contract, as laid down in sec. 53 of the Bengal Tenancy Act.” See notes to sec. 53, p. 186. When a landlord has brought a tenure to sale in execution of a decree for arrears of rent, the purchaser becomes his tenant only from the date of the confirmation of the sale, and the arrears accruing due between the date of sale and the date of confirmation of sale must be treated as arrears of rent payable by the out-going tenant, whose interest does not cease till the sale is confirmed (Karunamai Banurji v. Surendro Nath Mukherji, 2 C. W. N., cccxxvii).

holding without the consent of the landlord, the transferor and transferee shall be jointly and severally liable to the landlord for arrears of rent accruing due after the transfer, unless and until notice of the transfer is given to the landlord in the prescribed manner.

Extended to Orissa, (Not., Sept. 10th 1891).

Application of the section.—The provisions of this section would seem to be applicable only to such occupancy rights as are transferable by local usage (see note to sec. 26, pp. 111-113.) The transferee is of course not personally liable for rent which accrued due before he became the owner (Rash Bihari Bandopadhyay v. Piari Mohun Mukkurji, 4 Calc., 346). In no case can an occupancy raiyat transfer a share of his holding without the consent in writing of his landlord (sec. 88). An occupancy raiyat cannot now sue his landlord for registration of his name in the landlord's serishtah and for the striking off of his transferor's name : for there is no provision in the Act compelling a landlord to register any tenant's name in his books. An occupancy raiyat who has purchased an occupancy holding which is transferable by custom may sue to obtain a declaration to this effect under sec. 42 of the Specific Relief Act ; but the joint liability of the transferor and transferee for the rent will continue till the notice referred to in section 73 has been given in the prescribed manner (Ambika Prasad Chaudhri v. Keshri Sahai, 24 Calc., 642).

Plaintiff purchased certain jotes from defendants, 1 and 2, and agreed to pay the rents due to the landlord up to the time of sale. They did not pay, and the landlord sued the plaintiff for rents due for the period anterior as well as subsequent to the date of sale. In execution of the landlord's decree, 51 bighas were sold : held, that the plaintiff was entitled to recover from the defendants the sum due as arrears from them, to pay off which the 51 bighas had been sold (Kutubali Shah v. Azibulla Mandal, 7 C. W. N., 905).

Service of notice.—The rules framed by the Local Government for the service of the notice referred to in this section are to be found in rules 7 and 8, Chap. V of the Govt. rules, Appendix I.

Receipt of rent from transferee.—It was held by a Full Bench under the former law that when a landlord had received rent from the transferee and was fully aware of the transfer of a holding, which was by custom transferable without the consent of the landlord, the transferor's connection with the holding had come to an end and a suit against him for rent did not lie (Abdul Aziz v. Ahmed Ali, 14 Calc., 795). The same would seem to have been the law with regard to holdings not transferable by custom, for the receipt of rent from the transferee was regarded as evidence not only of knowledge of the transfer, but of consent thereto (see note to sec. 26, pp. 116, 117.)

Illegal cesses, &c.

74. All impositions upon tenants under the denomination of abwab, mathat, or other like appellations, in addition to the actual rent, shall be illegal, and all stipulations and reservations for the payment of such shall be void.

*Illegal cesses,
Abwab, &c.,

Abwabs.—Section 54 of Reg. VIII of 1793 laid down that all existing abwabs should be consolidated with the asal jama into one specific sum, and sec. 55 of the same Regulation prohibited the imposition of any new abwab or mathat upon the raiyats upon any pretence whatever upon pain of a penalty of three times the amount imposed for the entire period of the imposition. Section 3 of Reg. V of 1812 altered certain of the provisions of Reg. VIII of 1793, but declared that nothing therein contained should be construed as sanctioning or legalizing the imposition of arbitrary or indefinite cesses, whether under the denomination of abwab, mathat or any other denomination. Section 10 of Act X of 1859 and section 11 of Act VIII, B. C., of 1869 provided that under-tenants or raiyats, if any sum was exacted from them in excess of the sum specified in the puttah, whether as abwab or on any other pretext, were entitled to recover damages not exceeding double the amount so exacted. But there are many decisions of the High Court in which these provisions have not been strictly given effect to. Thus, in Jiatullah Paramank v. Jagadindro Narain Rai, (22 W. R., 12), it was ruled that if a zamindar demands a cess over and above the original rent, and the raiyat consents and contracts to pay it, this demand and the old rent form a new rent lawfully claimable under the contract. Then, in Budhna Oraayan Mahtun v. Jogeshar Doyal Singh, (24 W. R., 4), it was said that certain payments which were not so much in the nature of cesses, as of rent-in-kind, and which were fixed and uniform, and had been paid by the raiyat from the beginning, according to local custom, were not illegal cesses. In Nobin Chandra Rai v. Guru Govinda Mazumdar, (25 W. R., 8), it was laid down that a taksildar would be bound to account to the landlord for payments for bhika, or payments made by tenants in excess of the rents due from them, if paid voluntarily and not "exacted" from them. See also Bholanath Mukhurji v. Brojo Mohan Ghosh (14 W. R., 351). A landlord's agent is liable to pay to the landlord any sums collected by the agent from the tenants as kharch or illegal cesses (Nagendra Bala Dasi v. Gurudoyal Mukhurji, 30 Calc., 1011; 7 C. W. N., 535). In the Serajganj Jute Co. v. Torabdi Akund, (25

W.R., 252), it was said that where a raiyat has for many years been paying a tullab beshi of 2 as, in each rupee, in addition to the asal jama of the holding and the two payments have been incorporated in time, and have actually formed the subject of a single receipt, which the samindar challenged the raiyat, but which the raiyat failed, to produce, and where a raiyat, for the purpose of preventing disputes with his landlord, and for securing his own interests, has agreed to make a definite payment to his landlord in addition to his rent, such additional payment cannot be treated as an illegal cess, for the law favours such arrangements and provides for their being enforced : and in Mahomed Faiz Chaudhri v. Jamu Ghazi, (8 Calc., 730), it was ruled that a condition in a lease, that a tenant will pay to the landlord collection charges, can be enforced, if the condition is definite and certain in its nature and forms part of the consideration for the lease.

The whole subject was considered in the Full Bench case of Chultun Mahtan v. Tilakdhari Singh, (11 Calc., 175), in which it was decided that, where it is not actually proved that abwabs have been paid, or have been payable, before the time of the Permanent Settlement, a landlord is not legally entitled to recover them as against his raiyats, even assuming that by the custom of the estate the raiyats and their ancestors before them have for a great number of years paid such abwabs. In this case, Garth, C. J., said :—"I consider that the Regulation of 1793, as well as the Rent Law of 1859, intended to put an end to the abwab system, and to render them illegal. It has been argued that to abolish this system is contrary to the wishes of both landlords and raiyats, and I believe that to be true. Landlords often find it a convenient means of enhancing their rents in an irregular way, and the raiyats, as a rule, would far rather submit to pay abwabs than have their asal rent increased. But the system appears to me to be clearly illegal, and I consider that the Civil Courts should do their best to put an end to it." Mitter, J., in the same case observed :—"Under the provisions of the Regulations and Acts cited above, it seems to me that a contract for the payment of abwabs is unlawful, and is not enforceable by law. It has been contended before us that a claim for the recovery of the abwabs existing before the Permanent Settlement is enforceable, notwithstanding these provisions, because sec. 54 of Reg. VIII of 1793 contained only a direction for the consolidation of the abwabs with the asal jama ; but no penalty was attached to an omission on the part of the landholders to act according to that direction. But it seems to me that this contention is not correct, because sec. 61 of the said Regulation, in my opinion, provided the penalty in question—that penalty being the non-suiting of the claim for the recovery of the abwabs." But in a later case (Padmanand Singh

v. Baij Nath Singh, 15 Calc., 828), a Division Bench (Tottenham and Ghose, JJ.,) ruled that "what is and what is not an abwab must depend upon the circumstances of each particular case in which the question arises." It further held that where, by a kabulyat, dated 1869, a defendant, as holder of a mukarari tenure, agreed to pay a certain fixed sum as rent, and also certain sums designated tehwari and salami, they were not illegal cesses within the Full Bench ruling of Chultan Mahtan v. Tilakdhari Singh, not being uncertain and arbitrary in their character, but specific sums which the tenants agreed to pay to the landlords, and the payment of which, no less than the payment of the rent itself formed part of the consideration upon which the tenancy was created, and were in fact, part of the rent agreed to be paid, although not so described; they were, therefore, recoverable under Regulation V of 1812. Subsequently, the case of Chultan Mahtan v. Tilakdhari Singh, was appealed to their Lordships of the Privy Council, and the judgment of the High Court was affirmed (Tilakdhari Singh v. Chultan Mahtan, 17 Calc., 131; L. R., 16 I. A., 152). Their Lordships of the Privy Council said:— "The payments are described in the plaint as old usual abwabs; and they are also described as abwabs in the old zamindari accounts. It appears to their Lordships that the High Court was perfectly right in treating them as abwabs and not as part of the rent. Unquestionably they have been paid for a long time; how long does not appear. They are said to have been paid according to long-standing custom. Whether that means that they were payable at the time of the Permanent Settlement or not, is not plain. If they were payable at the time of the Permanent Settlement, they ought to have been consolidated with the rent under s. 54 of Reg. VIII of 1793. Not being so consolidated, they cannot now be recovered under s. 61 of the Regulation. If they were not payable at the time of the Permanent Settlement, they would come under the description of new abwabs in s. 55; and they would be in that case illegal." The subject was further considered in the case of Radha Prasad Singh v. Bal Kuar Koeri, (17 Calc., 726), and it was held that certain sums sued for under the head of sarak, neg and kharach were abwabs, and were therefore not recoverable, and that all additions to the actual rent are illegal and any agreement to pay them is void. In this case it was pointed out by Petheram, C. J., that the case of Padmanand Singh v. Baij Nath Singh, must be regarded as overruled by the Privy Council in Tilakdhari Singh v. Chultan Mahtan. The words "all stipulations and reservations for the payment of such" refer to both past and future stipulations (Jotindro Nath Tagore v. Chandra Nath Safui, 6 C. W. N., 360). Under sec. (2) cl. (4), of this Act, the landlord cannot now recover the abwabs which he could not recover under the old law (Apurna Charan Ghosh v. Karam Ali, 4 C. L. J., 527; 10 C. W. N., 527). In estimating the value of a property in an application under s. 311, abwabs should not be taken into account (Shashi Bhusan Sadhu v. Ahmed Hossen, 7 C. W. N., 439). A fixed amount mentioned in a lease as payable annually for collection charges in addition to rent, the total being described as the jama and forming the consideration of the lease is not an abwab, but is a part of the rent and recoverable as such (Radha Charan Rai v. Golak Chandra Ghosh, 31 Calc., 834; 8 C. W. N., 529).

Abwabs held illegal.—The following abwabs have expressly been held to be illegal; (1) Zabita batta, or customary levy (Radha Mohan Sarma v. Ganga Prasad Chakravarti, 7 S. D. A. Select Repts, 166). (2) Mihmani, guest money, and nazarana, presents (Madho Singh v. Bidyasund Singh, S. D. A., Repts., 1848, 442). (3) Bardana, batta, and kotwali tobacco (Chakan Sahu v. Rup Chand Pandi, S. D. A. Repts, 1848, 680); (4) Chanda, subscription, (Meliss v. Meghnath Thakur, S. D. A. Repts., 1852, 4); (5) Rasum K'azza, or Kazi's fees (Lakhi Debi Chaudhrai v. Ahta, S. D. A. Repts., 1852, 552); (6) Najai, a tax assessed upon the cultivators present, to make up for any deficiency arising from the death or disappearance of their neighbours (see Wilson's Glossary, p. 363), (Dhali Paramanik v. Anand Chandra Tolapatro, 5 W. R., Act X, 86); (7) A cess of so much gur on every maund manufactured (Sonam Sukal v. Ilahi Baksh, 7 W. R., 453); (8) A cess for grazing cattle on a jotedar's own jote, but within the samindar's estate (Bhaghirath Shikdar v. Ram Narain Mandar, 9 W. R., 300); (9) Rakumat, or miscellaneous items, (Arjun Sahu v. Anand Singh, 10 W. R., 257); (10) Parabi or festival cess (Kamala Kant Ghose v. Kanu Mahomed Mandal, 11 W. R., 395; 3 B. L. R., A. C., 44; contra, Jagadish Chandra Biswas v. Tarikulullah Sarkar, 24 W. R., 90); (11) Patwarian or patwari's fees (Burmah Chaudhri v. Srinand Singh, 12 W. R. 29); (12) Purvi bhika, a sum collected on the occasion of the annaprasan ceremony (the first eating of rice after birth) of the samindar's son (Nobin Chandra Rai v. Guru Gobind Sarmah, 14 W. R., 447); (13) Patwari's wage, sidha, or daily allowance, and pasbari's or watchman's wages (Mengar Mandar v. Hari Mohun Thakur, 23 W. R., 447); (14) Dastur, hajataluna, sonari, batta, mal, battu company, neg, or landlord's due, pansera, or harvest fee, bodhwara, or fee for the wages of village-watchmen, pohwi, or fee for the wages of the priest, nochka, or fee for the wages of village-establishments, mangan, a cess of 30 seers of the produce per plough, and sidha, or patwari's dues (Chultan Mahtan v. Tilakdhari Singh, 11 Calc., 175); (15) Sarak, reg, kharach and batta (Radha Prasad Singh v. Bal Kuar Koeri, 17 Calc., 726); (16) Bhet and bagar, presents and gratuitous labour, (S. A. No. 47 of 1893, decided by Norris and Banerjee, JJ., March 19th, 1894; Apurna Charan Ghose v. Karam Ali, 4 C. L. J., 527; 10 C. W. N., 527): (17) an annual payment in lieu of certain quantities of jack fruit, bamboos and fish, when stipulated for in a clause perfectly distinct from that relating to the payment of rent, which was payable quarterly (Krishna Chandra Sen v. Sushila Sundari Dasi, 26 Calc., 611; 3 C. W. N., 608); (18) an annual payment of ten rupees in default of delivery of a certain quantity of molasses (Raj Narain Mitra v. Panna Chand, 7 C. W. N. 203); (19) Puja kharch, (Narendra Kumar Ghose v. Gora Chand 33 Calc., 683).

Batta.—Batta would seem not to be an abwab, if it is merely an allowance for the exchange of sicca rupees into Company's rupees, which were first introduced by Act XVII of 1835 (see S. As. Nos., 1368 to 1371 of 1886 decided by Petheram, C. J., and Ghosh, J., April 13th, 1887, and S. A., No. 1397 of 1891, decided by Macpherson, J., May 13th 1892). By Act XIII of 1836 sicca rupees ceased to be legal tender, but were receivable at public treasuries subject to a charge of 1 p. c. for recoinage. If a tenancy has been created before 1836, batta is prima facie not an abwab; but if the creation of the tenancy is of subsequent date, batta is prima facie an abwab.

Cesses.—Road-cess and public works cesses are not abwabs, and a contract to pay more than the proportion payable by the tenant is legal (Nagendra Kumar Ghosh v. Gorachand 33 Calc., 683, Eastern Mortgage Co. v. Ganpat Singh, 9 C. W. N., xxiii; Ashutosh Dhar v. Amir Mollah, 3 C. L. J., 337).

Dak Cess.—Dak-cess is not an illegal cess, nor would it appear to be rent according to the definition of rent contained in section 3, sub-section (5), inasmuch as it is not paid for the use and occupation of land held by the tenant. It is a cess levied by Government on zamindars in consideration of the conveyance by Government of the dak. Tenants are not bound to pay it in consideration of their holding land under the zamindar. Zamindars can only collect dak-cess from their tenants provided the latter have agreed to pay it to them (sec. 12, Act VIII, B. C., of 1862). In Bissonath Sarkar v. Sarnomoyi (4 W. R., 6), it was ruled that a zamindar was entitled under Bengal Act VIII of 1862 to reimburse himself from the patnidar for dak charges, if under the old law he had been in the habit of paying them. But in other cases, it was held that it depended on the terms of their leases whether patnidars were liable to pay dak-cess or not. (See Saroda Sundari Debi v. Uma Charan Sarkar, 3 W. R., S. C., Ref., 17; Saroda Sundari Debi v. Tarini Charan Saha, 3. W. R., S. C., Ref., 19; Rakhal Das Mukhurji v. Sarnomayi, 6 W. R., 100; Rohini Kant Rai v. Tripura Sundari Dasi, 8 W. R., 45). Landlords cannot collect dak-cess as rent. A suit for dak-cess is one of the nature cognizable by a Court of Small Causes (Mahtab Chand v. Radha Binod Chaudhri, 8 W. R., 517; Erskine v. Trilochan Chaturji, 9 W. R., 518). In Watson v. Srikrishna Bhumik, (21 Calc., 132), however, it was held that dak-cess was to be regarded as rent for the purposes of section 135 of the Act. Dak-cess is not an abwab and is recoverable as part of the consideration for the tenancy, if there is a contract for the payment of such cess (Bijai Chand Mahtab v. Brahama Das Datta, 1 C. L. J., 101n). See note, sec. 3 (5) p. 31. Dak-cess has now been abolished by Act IV of 1907, the Repealing and Amending (Rates and Cesses) Act which repealed Bengal Act VIII of 1862.

Chaukidars' pay.—Where a patnidar was by the terms of his lease bound to pay half of the pay of the village chaukidars, and the stipulation had been entered into between parties competent to contract and had been made for valuable consideration, it was said that the amount the patnidar had agreed to pay was to be paid quite as much on account of the occupation of the land as that which was expressly called the rent, and was part of the ground rent quite as much as the latter. It was, therefore, not an abwab and was recoverable (Ahsanulla Khan v. Tirthabasini, 22 Calc., 680). See note, sec. 3 (5), p. 32.

Lessees are tenants and cannot contract to pay abwabs.—Lessees are tenants within the meaning of sec. 74 and cannot legally contract to pay abwabs, (S. A., 1632 of 1892, decided by Petheram, C. J., and Amir Ali, J., March 7th, 1894, and S. As., 195, 196, 221-223, 225, of 1893, decided by Amir Ali and Rampini, JJ., April 19th, 1894).

Res judicata.—When in a suit of rent, the rent claimed expressly includes an item which is objected to as an illegal cess, the mere fact that in a previous rent suit between the same parties regarding the same tenure, the defendant did not raise this plea, although he could have done so, would not in the absence of a judicial determination of the point in the previous suit, preclude him from raising it in the subsequent suit (Umesh Chandra Maitra v. Barada Das Maitra, 28 Calc., 17).

This section is controlled by section 179.—Section 179 of the Act which provides that nothing in this Act shall be deemed to prevent a proprietor or holder of a permanent tenure in a permanently settled area from granting a permanent mukarari lease, on any terms agreed on between him and his tenant is not controlled by section 74 (Ahsanulla Khan v. Tirthabasini, 22 Calc., 680.) A stipulation for the payment of an abwab in a permanent mukarari lease is valid; this section does not control section 179 (Krishna Chandra Sen v. Sushila Sundari Dasi, 26 Calc., 611 ; 3 C. W. N., 608).

75. Every tenant from whom, except under any special enactment for the time being in force, any sum of money or any portion of the produce of his land is exacted by his landlord in excess of the rent [or interest] lawfully payable, may, within six months from the date of the exaction, institute a suit to recover from the landlord, in addition to the amount or value of what is so exacted, such sum by way of penalty as the Court thinks fit, not exceeding two hundred rupees ; or when double the amount or value of what is so exacted exceeds two hundred rupees, not exceeding double that amount or value.

Extended to Orissa, (Not., Sep. 10th, 1891).

The words in brackets were inserted by s. 17, Act I, B. C., of 1907, as a consequential amendment on that made in section 67 regarding the levy of interest before the institution of a suit.

Under sec. 10, Act X of 1859, and sec. 11, Act VIII, B. C., of 1869, any under-tenant or raiyat from whom any sum was exacted in excess of the rent specified in his pattah or payable was entitled to recover damages not exceeding double the amount exacted or paid. For special enactments making demands other than rent recoverable as such, see note, sec. 3 (5) p. 29.

Exacted.—The word “exacted” in this section would seem to imply nothing more than “collected after demand” (see Ram Prasad Bhagat v. Ram Tahal Singh, Marsh., 655). Money collected under a proceeding prescribed by law, though in excess of the due amount, is not exacted (Chandra Moni Chaudhuria v. Debendra Nath Rai, Marsh., 426). Where the defendant had sub-let land to the plaintiff for the purpose of raising crops under a contract to share the produce between them, and where the plaintiff sought to recover the value of the share of the crops which the defendant had misappropriated, it was held that the suit was not for a sum exacted in excess of the rent (Gharibullah Paramanik v. Fakir Mohamed Kulu, 10 W. R., 203). Sums exacted by a tahsildar from tenants cannot be recovered by the landlord in a civil suit (Nabin Chandra Rai v. Guru Gobind Mazumdar, 25 W. R., 8).

No second appeal.—A suit under this section for a sum of money claimed as an excess payment of rent exacted from a tenant is one cognizable by a Court of Small Causes, and no second appeal will lie in such a suit (Ranga Rai v. Holloway, 4 C. W. N., 95).

CHAPTER IX.

MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS AS TO LANDLORDS AND TENANTS.Improvements.

Improvements.
Definition of "improvement."
76. (1) For the purposes of this Act, the term "improvement," used with reference to a raiyat's holding, shall mean any work which adds to the value of the holding, which is suitable to the holding and consistent with the purpose for which it was let, and which, if not executed on the holding, is either executed directly for its benefit, or is, after execution, made directly beneficial to it.

(2) Until the contrary is shown, the following shall be presumed to be improvements within the meaning of this section :—

- (a) the construction of wells, tanks, water-channels and other works for the storage, supply or distribution of water for the purposes of agriculture, or for the use of men and cattle employed in agriculture ;
- (b) the preparation of land for irrigation ;
- (c) the drainage, reclamation from rivers or other waters, or protection from floods, or from erosion or other damage by water, of land used for agricultural purposes, or waste-land which is culturable ;

- (d) the reclamation, clearance, enclosure or permanent improvement of land for agricultural purposes ;
- (e) the renewal or re-construction of any of the foregoing works, or alterations therein or additions thereto ; and
- (f) the erection of a suitable dwelling-house for the raiyat and his family, together with all necessary out-offices.

(3) But no work executed by the raiyat of a holding shall be deemed to be an improvement for the purposes of this Act if it substantially diminishes the value of his landlord's property.

This section is founded on, and its terms follow closely those of, sec. 4, Act XIX of 1883 (The Land Improvement Loans Act). In order to make the provisions of sect 76 (2) applicable to a tank excavated by a tenant it must be shown that the tank was excavated for the purpose of agriculture or for the use of men and cattle employed in agriculture (Govind Chandra Basu v. Kamizuddin, 9 C. W. N., ccxli). Under the old law it was held that every raiyat with a right to hold his land permanently, such as an occupancy-raiyat, could build a pukha house on the land or do with it what he liked, so long as he did not injure it to the detriment of his landlord (Niamatullah Ostagar v. Govind Charan Datta, 6 W. R., Act X 40). But see Jagat Chandra Rai v. Ishan Chandra Banurji, (24 W. R., 220), in which it was said that a raiyat with a right of occupancy in agricultural land could not convert it into a dwelling-house and appurtenances. There is nothing in section 76 of the Bengal Tenancy Act to indicate that a suitable dwelling-house of an occupancy-raiyat as described in that section, must be of a temporary description only. (Hari Kishor Barna v. Barada Kishor Acharjya, 31 Calc., 1014 ; 8 C. W. N., 754).

77. (1) Where a raiyat holds at fixed rates or has an occupancy-right in his holding, neither the raiyat nor his landlord shall, as such, be entitled to prevent the other from making an improvement in respect of the holding, except on the ground that he is willing to make it himself.

(2) If both the raiyat and his landlord wish to make the same improvement, the raiyat shall have the prior right to make it, unless it affects another holding or other holdings under the same landlord.

Collector to decide question as to right to make improvement, &c.

78. If a question arises between the raiyat and his landlord—

(a) as to the right to make an improvement, or

(b) as to whether a particular work is an improvement, the Collector may, on the application, of either party, decide the question, and his decision shall be final.

79. (1) A non-occupancy-raiyat shall be entitled

Right to make improvements in case of non-occupancy-holding.

to construct, maintain and repair a well for the irrigation of his holding, with all works incidental thereto, and to erect a suitable dwelling-house for himself and his family, with all necessary out-offices; but shall not, except as aforesaid and as next hereinafter provided, be entitled to make any other improvement in respect of his holding without his landlord's permission.

(2) A non-occupancy-raiyat who would, but for the want of his landlord's permission, be entitled to make an improvement in respect of his holding, may, if he desires that the improvement be made, deliver, or cause to be delivered, to his landlord a request in writing calling upon him to make the improvement within a reasonable time; and, if the landlord is unable or neglects to comply with that request, may make the improvement himself.

Limitation.—The period of limitation for a suit against a tenant for an act contrary to the provisions of the preceding sections of this Chapter is 2 years under art. 32, sch. II of the Limitation Act. But to bar a suit against a tenant for the improper excavation of a tank, it must be shown that the suit is brought more than 2 years after the landlord became aware of the excavation (Govind Chandra Basu v. Kamisuddin, 9 C. W. N., cxxlvi).

80. (1) A landlord may, by application to such Revenue-officer as the Local Government may appoint, register any improvement which he has lawfully made or which has been lawfully made at his expense or which he has assisted a tenant in making.

Registration of
provements.

(2) The application shall be in such form, shall contain such information, and shall be verified in such manner, by local inquiry or otherwise, as the Local Government, from time to time, by rule directs.

(3) The officer receiving the application may reject it if it has not been made within twelve months—

(a) in the case of improvements made before the commencement of this Act—from the commencement of this Act;

(b) in the case of improvements made after the commencement of this Act—from the date of the completion of the work.

Extended to Orissa, (Not., June 27th, 1892).

Enhancement of rent on the grounds of landlord's improvements.—One of the grounds on which the landlord of an occupancy holding can sue for enhancement of rent is that the productive powers of the land have increased by an improvement effected by or at the expense of the landlord during the currency of the present rent [sec. 30.(a)]; but no enhancement can be decreed on this ground unless the improvement has been registered in accordance with the Act [sec. 33 (1) (a)].

Government rules.—The Government rules framed under this section are to be found in rules 1 to 6, Chap. III of the Govt. rules, Appendix I.

81. (1) If any landlord or tenant of a holding desires that evidence relating to any improvement made in respect thereof be recorded, he may apply to a Revenue-officer, who shall thereupon, at a time and place of which notice shall be given to the parties, record the evidence, unless he considers that there are no reasonable grounds for making the application, or it is made to appear that the subject-matter thereof is under inquiry in a Civil Court.

(2) When any matter has been recorded under this section, the record thereof shall be admissible in evidence in every subsequent proceeding between the landlord and tenant or any persons claiming under them.

For the rule passed by the Local Government under this section, see rule 7, Chap. III of the Government rules, Appendix I.

82. (1) Every raiyat who is ejected from his holding shall be entitled to compensation for improvements which have been made in respect thereof in accordance with this Act by him, or by his predecessor in interest, and for which compensation has not already been paid.

(2) Whenever a Court makes a decree or order for the ejectment of a raiyat, it shall determine the amount of compensation (if any) due under this section to the raiyat for improvements, and shall make the decree or order of ejectment conditional on the payment of that amount to the raiyat.

(3) No compensation under this section for an improvement shall be claimable where the raiyat has made the improvement in pursuance of a contract or under a lease binding him, in consideration of some substantial advantage to be obtained by him, to make the improvement without compensation, and he has obtained that advantage.

(4) Improvements made by a raiyat between the 2nd day of March, 1883, and the commencement of this Act shall be deemed to have been made in accordance with this Act.

(5) The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, make rules requiring the Court to associate with itself, for the purpose of estimating the compensation to be awarded under this section for an improvement, such number of assessors, as the Local Government thinks fit, and determining the qualifications of those assessors and the mode of selecting them.

No tenant can contract himself out of his right to claim compensation for improvements [sec. 178 (1) (d)].

In a case, the cause of action in which arose in the Madras Presidency, it appeared that the land was demised on kanam for wet cultivation. The demisee changed the character of the holding, by making various improvements which were held to be inconsistent with the purpose for which the land was demised. On a finding that the landlord had stood by while the character of the holding was being changed and had thereby caused a belief that the change had his approval, it was held in second appeal that the demisee was entitled to compensation for his improvements on redemption of the kanam (Kunhammed v. Narayan Mussad, 12 Mad., 320).

The 2nd March, 1883, is the date on which leave to introduce the Bengal Tenancy Bill into Council was obtained.

No rules have yet been made by the Local Government under the provisions of sub-section (5).

83. (1) In estimating the compensation to be awarded under the last foregoing section for an improvement, regard shall be had—

Principle on which compensation is to be estimated.

- (a) to the amount by which the value, or the produce, of the holding, or the value of that produce, is increased by the improvement ;
- (b) to the condition of the improvement, and the probable duration of its effects ;
- (c) to the labour and capital required for the making of such an improvement ;
- (d) to any reduction or remission of rent or any other advantage given by the landlord to the raiyat in consideration of the improvement ; and
- (e) in the case of a reclamation or of the conversion of unirrigated into irrigated land, to the length of time during which the raiyat has had the benefit of the improvement at an unenhanced rent.

(2) When the amount of the compensation has been assessed, the Court may, if the landlord and raiyat agree, direct that, instead of being paid wholly in money, it shall be made wholly or partly in some other way.

Acquisition of land for building and other purposes.

Acquisition of land for building and other purposes.

Acquisition of land for building and other purposes.

84. A Civil Court may, on the application of the landlord of a holding, and on being satisfied that he is desirous of acquiring the holding or part thereof for some reasonable and sufficient purpose having relation to the good of the holding or of the estate in which it is comprised, including the use of the ground as building ground, or for any religious, educational or charitable purpose, and on being satisfied on the certificate of the Collector that the purpose is reasonable and sufficient, authorise the acquisition thereof by the landlord upon such conditions as the Court may think fit, and require the tenant to sell his interest in the whole or such part of the holding to the landlord upon such terms as may be approved by the Court, including full compensation to the tenant.

A person who is not the immediate landlord cannot make an application under this section (Narain Mahto v. Braja Bihari Singh, 9 C. W. N., 472).

Extension of this section to the Sonthal Parganas.—By Government notification, No. 771, L. R., dated Feby. 20th, 1897, published in the Calcutta Gazette of Feby. 24th, 1897, Part I, p. 281, the provisions of this section were extended to the Sonthal Parganas district from the date of the notification.

Collector's Certificate.—The Collector's certificate referred to in this section is not conclusive as to the reasonableness and sufficiency of the purpose for which the land is sought to be acquired, and the Civil Court's jurisdiction is not confined to giving effect to the Collector's certificate, but the Court is to hold a judicial enquiry to determine the reasonableness and sufficiency of the purpose and all matters coming within the section, and is competent to consider the grounds upon which the certificate was granted. Further, the appointment of a European Manager, and the necessity for erecting buildings for his comfort and convenience are insufficient grounds for authorising the compulsory acquisition of land under the section. The purpose for which the land is sought to be acquired must have a direct relation to the good of the holding, and objects which might have a remote or speculative bearing upon the good of the holding are foreign to the scope of the Act (Goghan Mollah v Ramashai Narain Mahto, 18 Calc., 271). The ground that by the acquisition the revenue would be increased and consequently it would be for the improvement of the estate is not reasonable and sufficient (Narain Mahto v Brajo Bihari Singh, 9 C. W. N., 472).

Appeal—There is no appeal against an order passed by the Civil Court under this section. Such an order is not a decree within the meaning of the definition in section 2 of the Civil Procedure Code, and no appeal is given against such an order either by sec. 588 of the Civil Procedure Code, or by any special provision of the Act (Goghan Mollah v Rameshar Narain Mahto, 18 Calc., 271, Piari Mohan Mukherji v Baroda Charan Chakravarti, 19 Calc., 485).

Sub-letting.

85 (1) If a raiyat sub-lets otherwise than by a registered instrument, the sub-lease shall not be valid against his landlord unless made with the landlord's consent.

Sub letting Restrictions on sub letting

(2) A sub-lease by a raiyat shall not be admitted to registration if it purports to create a term exceeding nine years.

(3) Where a raiyat has, without the consent of his landlord, granted a sub-lease by an instrument registered before the commencement of this Act, the sub-lease shall not be valid for more than nine years from the commencement of this Act.

Former law.—Under the former law a raiyat could sub-let his land and did not lose his right of occupancy by doing so, but his sub-lessee gained no such right (Kali Kishor Chaturji v Ram Charan Saha, 9 W. R., 344, Harun Chandra Pal v Mukta Sundari, 10 W. R., 113; 1 B. L. R., A. C., 81, Jauhar Ghazi v Gona Mandar, 12 W. R., 110, 13 B. L. R., 278 note; Khan Bahadur Mithomed v. Jainuddin, 12 W. R., 451). The mere fact of sub-letting did not make a raiyat a middle-man (Ram Mangal Ghosh v. Lakhi Nurain Shaha, 1 W. R., 71; Karu Lal Thakur v. Lachmipat Dugar, 7 W. R., 15; Durga Prasanno Ghosh v. Kali Das Datta, 9 C. L. R., 449). A raiyat having a right of occupancy could create a mukarari lease; but the terms of a lease granted by him to a third party would only be binding as between them both (Damri v. Bissessar Lal, 13 W. R., 291), unless the landlord of the lessor gave the lessee power to sub-let, in which case the sub-lessee obtained rights against both, of which he could not be deprived without his own consent (Nihalunissa v. Dhanu Lal Chaudhri, 13 W. R., 281). A lessee could not make an under-lease for a longer term than that of his own lease (Harish Chandra Rai v. Srikali Mukhurji, 22 W. R., 274; Surat Sundari Debi v. Binnv, 25 W. R., 347; 3 C. L. R., 140; L. R., 5 I. A., 164), and sub-lessees had no more right to use the land in contravention of the terms of the original lease than their lessor had (Monindra Chandra Sarkar v. Manirudin Biswas, 20 W. R., 230).

Present law.—All raiyats may now sub-let, and apparently a sub-lease, if registered and for a term not exceeding nine years, is valid against the raiyat's landlord, whether he consents to it or not. But if the sub-lease is executed by a non-occupancy raiyat, it may be rendered void by his death (Karim v. Sundar Bewa, 24 Calc., 207; 1 C. W. N., 89; affirmed by the majority of the Full Bench in Lakhan Narain Das v. Jainath Pandey, 5 C. L. J., 457; 34 Calc., 516). A sub-lease for a period of more than 9 years, which has been registered in contravention of sec. 86, cl. 2, is altogether void in spite of such registration (Sri Kant Mandal v. Saroda Kant Mandal, 26 Calc., 46). An under-raiyat's lease, if unregistered, is invalid, and a landlord purchasing the holding of the raiyat in execution of a decree for arrears of rent is entitled to khas possession and to eject the under-raiyat without following the procedure prescribed by sec. 167 (Piari Mohan Mukhurji v. Badal Chandra Bagdi, 5 C. W. N., 310). But this was dissented from in Amirulla Mahomed v. Nazir Mahomed, (3 C. L. J., 155), in which it was held that even in these circumstances an under-raiyat cannot be ejected without serving on him a notice to quit. See also Fazil v. Keramuddin, (6 C. W. N., 916). But the rule is different, if the under-raiyat is a plaintiff, and not a defendant resisting eviction. A plaintiff can only succeed on proof of title, and if an under-raiyat's lease is invalid, he has no title (Ramgati Mandal v. Shyama Charan Datta, 6 C. W. N., 919). A was a jotedar under Government. He let out a portion of his jote to one S, as a raiyat, and S sub-let a portion of his jote to the defendant, but not under a registered instrument nor with the consent of the landlord. Subsequently, S surrendered to the plaintiff the portion of his holding which he had sub-let to the defendant, and the plaintiff sued to recover khas possession : held, that the plaintiff was entitled to khas possession and no notice to quit was necessary (Badan Chandra Das v. Rajeswari Dehya, 1 C. L. J., 88*n*). A sub-lease registered before the commencement of the Act is not valid for more than 9 years against the raiyat's landlord, but is valid against the raiyat (Gopal Mandal v. Ishan Chandra Banurji, 29 Calc., 148 ; Madan Chandra Kapali v. Jaki Karikar, 6 C. W. N., 377. These two rulings were dissented from in Basaratulla Mandal v. Kasirunnissa, (11 C. W. N., 190), in which it was laid down by Geidt, J., that sec. 82, (2) was not enacted merely for the protection of the superior landlord, and that a sub-lease by a raiyat for a term of nine years is invalid, even against the raiyat. It would appear that under-raiyats may sub-let in their turn ; for though the terms of the present section do not expressly apply to under-raiyats, yet in sec. 4 (3) an under-raiyat is defined as a tenant holding either immediately or mediately, under a raiyat. As to the acquisition by under-raiyats of occupancy-rights in their holdings and as to the transferability of their rights, such matters would seem according to the Act to be regulated by custom or usage (see note to sec. 49, ante, p. 160). Other provisions of this Act relating to sub-letting are sec. 121, proviso (3), under which a landlord cannot distrain the produce of any part of a holding which the tenant has sub-let with the written consent of his landlord : section 136 (5), under which a landlord is not to be deemed to have consented to his tenant's sub-letting the holding, or any part thereof, merely because he has received an amount deposited by an inferior tenant to obtain the release of property from distraint ; and sec. 138, which provides that when land is sub-let and any conflict arises between the rights of a superior and an inferior landlord who distrain the same property, the right of the superior landlord shall prevail.

Under sec. 178, sub-section (3) clause (c), nothing contained in any contract made after the passing of this Act can take away the right of an occupancy-raiyat to sub-let subject to, and in accordance with, the provisions of this Act.

Registration rule under sub-section (2) :—The Registration department has framed the following rule with the view to the carrying out of the provisions of this sub-section :—"When a sub-lease executed by a raiyat, purporting to create a term exceeding nine years, is presented for registration, it shall be returned at once with a note to the following effect recorded on its back, viz. : 'Not admissible under sub-sec. 2, sec. 85 of the Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885).' The note shall be signed, sealed and dated by the registering officer." (See Registration Rules, Appendix IV, rule 4.)

Surrender and abandonment.

86. (1) A raiyat not bound by a lease or other agreement for a fixed period may, at the end of any agricultural year, surrender his holding.

(2) But, notwithstanding the surrender, the raiyat shall be liable to indemnify the landlord against any loss of the rent of the holding for the agricultural year next following the date of the surrender, unless he gives to his landlord, at least three months before he surrenders, notice of his intention to surrender.

(3) When a raiyat has surrendered his holding, the Court shall, in the following cases for the purposes of sub-section (2), presume, until the contrary is shown, that such notice was so given, namely :—

(a) if the raiyat takes a new holding in the same village from the same landlord during the agricultural year next following the surrender ;

(b) if the raiyat ceases, at least three months before the end of the agricultural year at the end of which the surrender is made, to reside in the village in which the surrendered holding is situate.

(4) The raiyat may, if he thinks fit, cause the notice to be served through the Civil Court within the jurisdiction of which the holding or any portion of it is situate.

(5) When a raiyat has surrendered his holding, the landlord may enter on the holding and either let it to another tenant or take it into cultivation himself.

(6) When a holding is subject to an incumbrance secured by a registered instrument, the surrender of the holding shall not be valid unless it is made with the consent of the landlord and the incumbrancer.

(7) Save as provided in the last foregoing subsection, nothing in this section shall affect any arrangement by which a raiyat and his landlord may arrange for a surrender of the whole or a part of the holding.

Former law.—Under sec. 19 of Act X of 1859 and sec. 20 of Act VIII, B. C., of 1869 any raiyat who desired to relinquish the land held or cultivated by him was at liberty to do so, provided he gave notice of his intention in writing in or before the month of Jeyt in districts where the Fash year prevailed, and in or before the month of Posh in districts where the Bengali year prevailed, of the year preceding that in which the relinquishment was to have effect. If he failed to give such notice and abandoned the land, and the land was not let to any one else, he continued liable for the rent. If the landlord or his agent refused to receive the notice, the raiyat could apply on plain paper to the Collector, who had then to serve the notice of relinquishment on the landlord. A verbal notice of relinquishment was therefore not sufficient (Banamali Ghosh v. Dilu Sardar, 24 W. R., 118), except in the case of an utbandi raiyat (Kenny v. Issar Chandra Poddar, W. R., Sp., No., 1864, Act X, 9). Mere proof of the giving of a notice of relinquishment without proof of actual relinquishment of the land did not relieve a raiyat of the liability to pay rent (Nobin Chandra Rai v. Lakhi Priya Debi, 1 W. R., 20), and mere relinquishment of the land would not so relieve him (Mahomed Asmal v. Chandi Lal Pandi, 7 W. R., 250). If, however, the landlord let the land to other persons, the raiyat could not be held liable for the rent, though he might not have given a notice of relinquishment (Mahomed Ghazi v. Sankar Lal, 11 W. R., 53). In one case it was said that where the tenant was found to have taken steps required by law in furtherance of his intended relinquishment, it was for the landlord to prove his continued possession. But where the tenant had not gone through the necessary steps, it was for him to prove that the landlord had taken possession of the land and had enjoyed the profits by holding it khas or letting it to others (Erskine v. Ram Kumar Rai, 8 W. R., 221). In one case, too, in which a member of a joint-family was registered as jotedar in the zamindar's serishtah, not as for himself only but as manager for the family, it was held that his relinquishment of the jote was not sufficient to authorize the zamindar to make arrangements with others (Baikant Nath Das v. Bisso Nath, 9 W. R., 268), and where a joint lease had been given to many persons with an entirety and equality of interest among the tenants, the resignation of some of the joint lessees did not necessarily operate to void the lease (Mohima Chandra Sen v. Pitambar Shah, 9 W. R., 147). It was only raiyats who could in this way relinquish their land. Patnidars could not throw up their patni; for the contract, though not indissoluble, could only be dissolved by an act of the Court after proper enquiry (Hira Lal Pal v. Nil Mani Pal, 20 W. R., 383), and in Judunath Ghosh v. Schoene, Kilburn & Co, 9 Calc., 671; 12 C. L. R., 343), it was laid down that a tenure under a dar-mu'arasi mukarari lease of land, which was not let for agricultural purposes, could not be put an end to by mere relinquishment on the part of the lessee, even after notice to the landlord. In this case it was further held by Field, J., that the principle laid down in Hira Lal Pal v. Nilmani Pal, that the patnidar could not of his own option, relinquish his tenure, was applicable to all intermediate tenures, other than farming leases, between the zamindar and cultivator of the soil. Though according to the strict terms of the old law, any raiyat could relinquish his land, it was held that a raiyat who had taken a lease in writing for a fixed period could not do so (Kashi Singh v. Onrueit, 5 W. R., Act X, 81), and a raiyat holding under a lease for a short time could give up the land at the end of the term without giving a notice of relinquishment to the landlord (Tilak Patak v. Mahabir Pundey, 15 W. R., 454). But a perpetual contract by a lessee for his heirs reciting that they should never relinquish the jote, was held not to bar their doing so in a legal manner (Gopal Lal Chaudhri v. Tarini Prasad Ghosh, 9 W. R., 89). When a mukaravidar resigned his tenure, the dar-mukararis created by him came to an end, but this did not affect raiyats holding rights of occupancy (Kailash Chandra Biswas v. Bireswari Dasi, 10 W. R., 408). But a tenant holding for a term and sub-letting his land could not by surrendering his own term to the landlord determine the interest of his under-tenant (Hira Mani v. Ganga Narain Rai, 10 W. R., 384). Part of a holding could not be surrendered (Sarodai Sundari Debi v. Muhomed Mandal, 5 W. R., Act X, 78; Anarullah v. Kailash Chandra Basu, 8 Calc., 118. But see contra, Habila Sarkar v. Durga Kant Mazumdar, 11 W. R., 456).

Present law.—According to sec. 178 (3) (c), nothing in any contract made between a landlord and tenant after the passing of this Act shall take away the right of a raiyat to surrender his holding under this section. The heirs of a deceased tenant having rights of occupancy and who has died intestate are liable for the rent unless they have surrendered the land or done something from which a surrender in the terms of this section can be presumed, and non-cultivation of the land does not necessarily amount to a surrender (Piari Mohan Mukhurji v. Kumaris Chandra Sarkar, 19 Calc., 790). See note to sec. 26, p. 110. There may be a valid surrender of an occupancy-holding without a written document (Abdur Rahman v. Ali Hafiz, 5 C. W. N., 351). See also Imambandi v. Kamleswari, (14 Calc., 109; L. R., 13 I. A., 160). Plaintiff, a jotedar under Government, let out a portion of his jote to S, as a raiyat. S sublet a portion of his holding to defendant, but not under a registered instrument nor with the consent of plaintiff. Subsequently, S surrendered to the plaintiff the portion of his holding which he had sub-let to the defendant. The plaintiff sued for khas possession and was held entitled to it, no notice to quit being necessary (Badan Chandra Das v. Rajeswari Debyn, 2 C. L. J., 570.) A relinquishment by one of several tenants of a joint occupancy holding does not enlarge the right of the other co-sharers or deprive the landlord of what would ordinarily belong to him (Piari Mohan Mandal v. Radhika Mohan Husra, 8 C. W. N., 315).

Notice of surrender. -- For the rule passed by the Local Government regarding the service of the notices of surrender referred to in sub-sections (2) and (4), see rule 9, Chap. V, of the Govt. rules, Appendix I. Personal service is not required (Khirod Chandra v. Hashan Ali, 6 C. W. N., xxviii).

Applications for service of notices of relinquishment exempt from Court-fees.—Under cl. (12), sec. 19, Act VII of 1870, applications for service of notices of relinquishment are exempt from Court-fees.

Sub-section (6).—This sub-section has been introduced to check collusive surrender in fraud of the rights of third parties. In the report of the Select Committee on the Bill it is said that "raiyaats not unfrequently sub-let the whole or a portion of their holdings in consideration of a large bonus for a term of years. To leave the interests of sub-lessees in such cases entirely at the mercy of the lessor in collusion with his landlord would do serious practical harm." (Selections from papers relating to the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, p. 386). The term "incumbrance" is defined in sec. 161, but for the purpose of Chap. XIV only, as "any lien, sub-tenancy, easement, or other right or interest created by the tenant on his tenure or holding or in limitation of his own interest therein, and not being a protected interest as defined in sec. 160. Where a raiyat surrenders his holding, the landlord is entitled to re-enter by ejecting the under-raiyat, unless he is protected by sec. 85 or sec. 86, cl. (6). In such a case no notice to quit is necessary (Nilkanta Chaki v. Ghatu, 4 C. W. N., 667).

87. (1) If a raiyat voluntarily abandons his residence without notice to his landlord and without arranging for payment of his rent as it falls due, and ceases to cultivate his holding either by himself or by some other person, the landlord may, at any time after the expiration of the agricultural year in which the raiyat so abandons and ceases to cultivate, enter on the holding and let it to another tenant or take it into cultivation himself.

(2) Before a landlord enters under this section, he shall file a notice in the prescribed form in the Collector's office stating that he has treated the holding as abandoned and is about to enter on it accordingly; and the Collector shall cause a notice to be published in such manner as the Local Government, by rule, directs.

(3) When a landlord enters under this section, the raiyat shall be entitled to institute a suit for recovery of possession of the land at any time not later than the expiration of two years, or, in the case of a non-occupancy raiyat, six months, from the date of the publication of the notice; and thereupon the Court may, on being satisfied that the raiyat did not voluntarily abandon his holding, order recovery of possession on such terms, if any, with respect to compensation to persons injured and payment of arrears of rent as to the Court may seem just.

(4) Where the whole or part of a holding has been sub-let by a registered instrument, the landlord shall, before entering under this section, on the holding, offer the whole holding to the sub-lessee for the remainder of the term of the sub-lease at the rent paid by the raiyat who has ceased to cultivate the holding, and on condition of the sub-lessee paying up all arrears due from that raiyat. If the sub-lessee refuses or neglects within a reasonable time to accept the offer, the landlord may avoid the sub-lease and may enter on the holding and let it to another tenant or cultivate it himself as provided in sub-sections (1) and (2).

Former law.—When a raiyat without giving notice goes away from the land he has occupied, and neither cultivates it nor pays rent, the landlord is justified in assuming that he has relinquished it; and the raiyat has no right to ask to be re-instated on the ground that he has never formally relinquished the land (Ram Chang v. Gora Chand Chang, 24 W. R., 344. See also Chandra Mani Nyabhushan v. Shambhu Chandra Chakravartti, W. R., Sp. No., 1864, 270; Manirudin v. Mahomed Ali, 6 W. R., 67; Harihar Mukhurji v. Jadonath Ghosh, 7 W. R., 114; Nadiar Chand Poddar v. Modhu Suddan De Poddar, 7 W. R., 153; Haro Das v. Gobind Bhattacharji, 12 W. R., 304; 3 B. L. R., App., 123; Mati Sunar v. Gundar Sunar, 20 W. R., 129; Boidinath Manjhi v. Aupurna Debi, 10 C. L. R., 15; Ghulam Ali Mandal v. Golap Sundari Dasi, 8 Calc., 612; 10 C. L. R., 499). But the non-cultivation of a small portion of an ancestral jote by the admitted holders for one year, owing to their minority, does not amount to relinquishment (Rudha Madhab Pal v. Kali Charan Pal, 18 W. R., 41).

Mere non-payment of rent is not evidence of abandonment, but non-payment of rent coupled with non-occupation of the land (Masyatullah v. Nurzahan, 9 Calc., 808; 12 C. L. R., 389), or with submergence of the land (Hemnath Datta v. Ashgar Sardar, 4 Calc., 894; see contra, Muzhar Rai v. Ramgat Singh, 18 All., 290), is evidence of an intention to abandon it. So, also, when a raiyat sells his holding, quits occupation and ceases to cultivate or hold the land, he may be regarded as having abandoned it, and the landlord may recover possession from the transferee (Narendra Narain Rai v. Ishan Chandra Sen, 22 W. R., 22; 13 B. L. R., 274; Ram Chandra Rai v. Bholanath Lashkar, 22 W. R., 200). Even when the right of occupancy is transferable, the raiyat cannot transfer different parts of it to different persons and in case of such transfer the landlord can treat the transferees as trespassers and eject them (Tirthanand Thakur v. Matil Lal Misra, 3 Calc., 774).

Present law.—When an occupancy-riyat has transferred his rights in the whole of his land, but remains on as sub-lessee of his transferee, he must be held to have abandoned the land, and the landlord can eject the transferee (Kalinath Chakravarti v. Upendra Chandra Chaudhri, 24 Calc., 212; 1 C. W. N., 163; Wilson v. Radha Dulari Koer, 2 C. W. N., 63. See Dwarkanath Misra v. Harish Chandra, 4 Calc., 925, and Sristidhar Biswas v. Madan Sardar, 9 Calc., 648). But this was dissented from in Madar Mandal v. Mahima Chandra Mazumdar, (33 Calc., 531), in which it was held that where a tenant having a non-transferable right of occupancy sold such right to a third person, obtained a lease from the purchaser and remained in possession of the land and was cultivating the same, the landlord was not entitled to khas possession against him. So, too, where the rent of the holding was paid by the transferees in the name of the riyat it was said that the mere fact that the riyat went away from the holding to reside elsewhere would not be sufficient to make out a case of abandonment, so as to entitle the landlord to re-enter. (Mathura Mandal v. Ganga Charan Gope, 33 Calc., 219; 10 C. W. N., 1033). A tenant does not lose his right in his holding by an unauthorised alienation, if he is still on the land (Nadhu Mandal v. Karak Mandal, 9 C. W. N., 56). When defendants 1 and 2 who had a non-transferable occupancy holding sold it to defendant 1 and took an under-lease of the same from the latter; held, that the landlord was entitled to get a decree for possession against defendant 1, but was not entitled to get khas possession against defendants 2 and 3, but only to receive rent from them (Dinanath Rai v. Krishna Bijai Saha, 9 C. W. N., 379). It is not the notice which terminates the tenancy, but the voluntary abandonment coupled with acts on the part of the landlord (not necessarily limited to the giving of notice) indicating that he considers the tenancy at an end, and it is for the Court in each case to determine whether the tenancy has terminated (Lal Mamud v. Arbullah, 1 C. W. N., 198). Section 87 does not apply to a case in which, though the landlord has not followed the procedure prescribed by the section, the plaintiff is only a mortgagee of a part of a non-transferable jote (Madan Mohan Ghosh v. Habi, 2 C. W. N., clxxxii). A trespasser has no right to resist a landlord's suit for possession on the ground that the notice required by sub-section (2) has not been given. This plea can only be raised by a tenant of the land. See note to sec. 25,—“Invalid transfer of whole or part of holding,” pp. 108, 109, and note to sec. 89,—“Sale or transfer of whole or part of a holding is not a ground of forfeiture,” pp. 273, 274.

The provisions of this section apply only to cases in which a landlord takes possession of an abandoned holding without bringing a suit. They are not exhaustive. *They do not prescribe the only mode in which a holding can be abandoned, and are not applicable to cases in which a landlord sues for possession of a holding on the ground that it has been abandoned. So, in Bhagaban Chandra Misri v. Bisseswari Debya, (3 C. W. N., 46), in which it was contended that the plaintiffs, who were the landlords of a holding, not having taken steps under sec. 87, were not entitled to khas possession of an abandoned holding, it was held that sec. 87 provides for certain steps to be taken by the landlord for his own protection against any subsequent action on the part of the tenant, when there is no person in actual occupation of the land, but that when the old tenant had abandoned the holding, a person who had admittedly acquired no interest under an auction-purchase of it had no title to remain on the land.

When a raiyat sold his non-transferable holding and was no longer in possession of it and paid no rent for it, and the landlord brought a suit for ejectment against both transferor and transferee, it was held that the landlord was entitled to a decree and no notice under sec. 87 was necessary (Samujan Rai v. Mahatan, 4 C. W. N., 493).

Notice of intention to re-enter and rule for its service.—

The form of notice to be given by the landlord under sub-section (2) is to be found in Schedule I to the Government rules under this Act (App I). The rule framed by Government for its publication is rule 10, Chap V of the Government rules, App. I. Personal service of the notice is not necessary (Khirod Chandra v. Hashan Ali, 6 C. W. N., xxviii).

Sub-section (3) Limitation.—The provisions of this sub-section will only apply when the landlord has entered on the land after giving the notice referred to in the preceding sub-section. In other cases, when the plaintiff is an occupancy raiyat, the rule of limitation laid down in art. 3, Schedule III, appended to this Act, will apply.

Sub-section (4).—This sub-section has been framed with the same view as sub-section (6) of the preceding section, viz., to protect sub-lessees from collusion between their lessor and the superior landlord. Even if a landlord thinks the raiyat has abandoned the land, he has no right to enter on land in possession of sub-lessees without the assistance of the law (Jamir Ghazi v. Gonai Mandal, 12 W. R., 110) If he does so dispossess the sub-lessees without the sanction of law, he commits trespass (Damri Shaikh v. Bissessar Lal, 13 W. R., 291).

Sub-division of tenancy.

88. A division of a tenure or holding, or distribution of the rent payable in respect thereof, shall not be binding on the landlord unless it is made with his [express] consent in writing, [or with that of his agent duly authorized in that behalf].

Sub-division of tenancy.

Division of tenancy not binding on landlord without his consent.

[Provided that, if there is proved to have been made in any landlord's rent-roll any entry showing that any tenure or holding has been divided, or that the rent payable in respect thereof has been distributed, such landlord may be presumed to have given his express consent in writing to such division or distribution.]

By section 3 of Act I, B. C., of 1903 (The Bengal Tenancy Validation Act) it is provided that "nothing in section 1 (see p. 80) shall be deemed to affect the provisions of section 88 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885."

The words and the proviso in brackets have been inserted in, and added to, the section by s. 18 of Act I, B. C., of 1907. In the Notes on Clauses to the Bill it was said that "the amendment will make it clear that the landlord is only bound by an express consent in writing given by himself or a duly authorised agent"

In the report of the Select Committee on the Bill it was pointed out that "unless their agents are expressly authorised in that behalf, it would be unfair to the landlords and detrimental to their interest to enact that recognition of the division or sub-division of a holding, and the acceptance of a proportionate share of rent by their agent is binding upon the landlord. A wide door would be opened to fraud, and it would be easy for tenants to secure recognition by bribes to the agent. We have therefore provided that there must be an express authorization for the exercise of this power by the agent."

As regards the proviso, in the Notes on Clauses it was said: "The ordinary practice is for the landlord to signify his consent to the division of a tenure or holding and distribution of the rent payable, by making the necessary alteration in his rent-roll, and it is accordingly provided that where such an alteration has been made, it may be presumed that the landlord has given his express consent to the division."

Former law and rulings.—The former law on the subject was contained in the proviso to sec. 27 of Act X of 1859 and to sec. 26 of Act VIII, B. C., of 1869 and was to the effect "that no samindar or inferior tenant shall be required to admit to registry or give effect to any division or distribution of the rent payable on account of any such tenure, nor shall any division or distribution of the rent be valid and binding without the consent in writing of the samindar or superior tenant." The terms of this proviso were given effect to in Watson & Co. v. Ram Sundar Pundi, (3 W. R., Act X, 165); Upendra Mohan Tagore v. Thanda Dasi (3 B.L.R., A. C., 349; 12 W. R., 263); Dashorathi Mahapatro v. Ram Krishna Jana, (9 Calc., 526). In Jadunath Sahana v. Jadab Chandra Thakur, (11 W. R., 294), it was said that a patni tuluk cannot be divided except by an act of the samindar or by an act recognized by him: the transfer of a portion in no way affects the existence of the patni in its entirety or the rights of the samindar. But in Har Mohan Mukhurji v. Gora Chand Mitra, (2 W. R., Act X, 25), it was held that a farmer of a Government khas mahal had power to assent to the division of a raiya holding within his farm into several distinct holdings, and in this case it does not appear that he gave his consent in writing. In Bharat Rai v. Ganga Narain Mahapatra, (14 W. R., 211), it was ruled that a samindar by accepting rent assents to the transfer of a tenure, whether sold in whole or in part only. A samindar may recognize the division of a holding either formally by actually dividing it into parts or impliedly by receiving rent from parties holding separately (Uma Charan Banurji v. Rajlaxhi, 25 W. R., 19). And in Nabo Krishna Mukhurji v. Sriram Rai, (15 W. R., 255), it was decided that no written consent was necessary, when a samindar had himself put up a tenure for sale in separate lots and had taken rent from two of the purchasers separately. But in Gaur Mohan Rai v. Anand Mandal, (22 W. R., 295), it was said that the fact of some of the joint occupiers of a joint-tenure paying portions of the rent due from all, corresponding with the shares for which the joint occupiers are liable, cannot prevent the samindars from suing them all, or making them all answerable for the joint debt. In Lalan Mani v. Sona Mani Debi, (22 W. R., 334), in which one suit for rent was brought against persons who alleged themselves to be the holders of separate tenures, it was said that the mere fact of their non-registration as such was immaterial, and the case was remanded and the lower Court directed to enquire whether the four tenures had been really one at the time of the former holder of them, and whether the zamindar had merely treated the defendants as representatives of the former holder and as payers of the component parts of the aggregate rental. "If the dakhilas show," it was said, "that the payment of separate rentals had been made as for separate tenures, that would be evidence of the holdings being separate. If the evidence shows that the amounts were paid as aliquot parts of the whole rental, that would go to show that the tenure was one." But in Tirthanand Thakur v. Mati Lal Misra, (3 Calc., 774), it was ruled that the existence of a custom in a particular district by which rights of occupancy are transferable will not justify the holder of such a right of occupancy in subdividing his tenure and transferring different parts of it to different persons; and in case of such transfer the zamindar is entitled to treat the transferees as trespassers and eject them. On the other hand, when tenants hold land by different agreements, the zamindar has no right without their consent to break up existing holdings and re-distribute lands so as to alter the nature and extent of the holdings (Rahimadin Akun v. Purno Chandra Rai, 22 W. R., 336).

Rulings under the present Act.—The sale of a portion of a holding does not bind a landlord, unless his consent in writing has been obtained (Ram Mayi Dasi v. Rupai Paramanik, 1 C. L. J., 41n.; 9 C. W. N., cxxiii). In Abhai Charan v. Sashi Bhusan Basu, (16 Calc., 155), it was held that dakhilas or rent-receipts showing that a tenant holds half the land at half the rent of the whole holding do not amount to the written consent required by this section. But the ruling in this case was dissented from in the Full Bench case of Piari Mohan Mukhurji v. Gopal Paik (2 C. W. N., 375; 25 Calc., 531), in which it was laid down that a receipt for rent granted by the landlord or his agent in the form prescribed by the Bengal Tenancy Act, containing a recital that a tenant's name is registered in the landlord's serishtu as a tenant of a portion of the original holding at a rent which is a portion of the original rent, amounts to a consent in writing by the landlord to a division of the holding and to a distribution of the rent payable in respect thereof within the meaning of section 88 of this Act; provided that, if the receipt has been granted by an agent he has been duly authorised by the landlord to grant such a receipt. (1) When the defendant held separately a share of a shikmi taluk under the plaintiff and transferred that share to a third party and served a notice of transfer under s. 12 on the landlord:—held, that the act of the defendant in making the transfer did not amount to a sub-division of the tenure (Kali Sundari Debi v. Dharani Kanta Lahiri, 10 C. W. N., 272 ; 33 Calc., 279 ; Baistab Charan Chaudhuri v. Akhil Chandra Chaudhuri, 11 C. W. N., 217).

(1) It was to set at rest doubts raised by this ruling that the new proviso to the section has been added by Act I, B. C., of 1907.

But where a holding is in occupation of several tenants at one entire rental, the fact that the landlord's tahsildar has accepted from the tenants proportionate parts of the rent does not bind the landlord in the absence of evidence to connect the landlord with the receipt of any proportionate rate of rent by the tahsildar (Beni Prasad Koeri v. Gobardhan Koeri, 6 C. W. N., 823). Receipts granted by the landlord's tahsildar to the tenants separately for their proportionate shares of the rent do not necessarily imply the landlord's recognition of the sub-division of a tenancy (Beni Prasad Koeri v. Ram Dahin Pandey, 1 C. L. J., 90 n ; 10 C. W. N., 216).

A receipt for rent granted by a landlord or his agent containing no specification of the total jama, no statement of the area, or of the portion of the holding separated and separately settled with the tenant, nor of the share separated, nor containing a recital that the tenant is registered in the landlord's serishta as a tenant of portion of the original holding at a rent, which was a portion of the original rent, does not amount to a consent in writing to a sub-division of the holding. An entry in a furd or account which appeared on the face of it to have been written by a servant of a tenant and exhibited payments of rent made in respect of six different tulugs by the tenant to the landlord, and which was signed and receipted by a sumarnavis of the said landlord, does not amount to a consent in writing on behalf of the landlord to a division of the tenure or distribution of the rent. (Jnanendra Mohan Chaudhuri v. Gopal Das Chaudhuri, 31 Calc., 1026 ; 8 C. W. N., 923). A division of a holding by way of mortgage is not binding against the landlord (S. A., No. 1894 of 1887, decided July 31st, 1888 ; Joynarain Tewari v. Baran Singh, 10 C. W. N., lxxxvii).

The consent referred to in this section must be the consent of the whole body of landlords. Co-sharer landlords cannot consent to the division of a tenure or holding or to a distribution of its rent (S. A., No. 28 of 1897, decided by Rampini and Henderson, JJ, July 7th, 1898).

There is nothing in this section to prevent a person who has purchased a share in a mukarari holding from bringing a suit for a declaration of his right to that share and for possession of the same, after setting aside a sale held in execution of a decree for rent, to which he was not made a party. Sections 17 and 18 recognize the transfer of a share of a holding and entitle the transferee to claim to be regarded as one of the tenants of the holding (Mahesh Chandra Ghosh v. Saroda Prasad Singh, 21 Calc., 433). A landlord is not entitled to enter upon land thereby because the tenant had transferred a portion of it, though still in possession of another portion; but he is entitled to a declaration that the transfer having been made without his written consent is not binding upon him (Gozaffar Hussain v. Dalgleish, 1 C. W. N., 162). The transfer of a portion of an occupancy holding is contrary to the spirit, if not the letter, of sec. 88; and the existence of a custom in a particular place by which such a holding is transferable is immaterial, and gives no right to the transferee as against the landlord (Kuldip Singh v. Gillanders Arbuthnot & Co, 26 Cal., 615; 4 C. W. N., 738). In a later case it was said that the decision in Kuldip Singh v. Gillanders Arbuthnot & Co. is no authority for the proposition that the purchaser of a portion of a jote gets no title (Ashok Bhuiyan v. Karim, 9 C. W. N. 843). But the transferee of a part of a tenure is jointly liable with his co-sharer for the whole rent; for although the privity between the parties may be one of estate only, it is in respect of the whole of the tenure, though the transfer was of a part, by reason of the indivisibility of the tenure without the landlord's consent (Jogemaya Dasi v. Girindra Nath Mukhurji, 4 C. W. N., 590). Where a dar-patnidar to the knowledge of his landlord, transferred a portion of the dar-patni to one person on one date, and the remainder to another person on a subsequent date; held, (Maclean C. J., dubitante) that after the second transfer the liability of dar-patnidar for rent ceased and the two transferees became jointly and severally liable to the landlord for the same: per Maclean C. J., that the act of the dar-patnidar in transferring the tenure piecemeal had the effect of dividing the tenure contrary to the provisions of sec. 88 (Kishori Raman Kapuria v. Ananta Ram Laha, 10 C. W. N., 270).

Ejectment.

Ejectment.

No ejectment except in execution of decree.

89. No tenant shall be ejected from his tenure or holding except in execution of a decree.

Former law.—The proviso to sec. 21 of Act X of 1859 and sec. 22 of Act VIII, B. C., of 1869 provided that no raiyat having a right of occupancy or holding under a pattah the term of which had not expired should be ejected otherwise than in execution of a decree or order under the provisions of the Act. The liability of the holder of a mukarari istimrari ijara to ejectment depended on the terms of his lease (Balaram Das v. Jagendra Nath Mallik, 19 W. R., 349). If a landlord ejected tenants of other classes otherwise than in accordance with the law, they could only recover possession by means of a possessory suit under sec.

15, Act XIV of 1859 (Janardan Acharji v. Haradhan Acharji, 9 W. R., 513; Nand Kishor Lal v. Sheo Dayal Upadhya, 11 W. R., 168; Arjun Datta Banik v. Ram Nath Karmokar, 21 W. R., 123).

Present law.—A tenant can now be ejected only on the grounds specified in sections 10, 18, 25, 44, 49 and 66 of this Act. See the notes to these sections. Under sec. 178, (1) (c) nothing in any contract made before or after the passing of this Act shall entitle a landlord to eject a tenant otherwise than in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

Service tenures.—Service tenures are excepted from the operation of this section (Makbul Hossain v. Amir, 25 Calc., 131).

A benamidar cannot sue for ejectment.—A mere benamidar cannot maintain a suit for ejectment, he having neither title to, nor possession of, the property (Issar Chandra Datta v. Gopal Chandra Das, 25 Calc., 98; 3 C. W. N., 20).

Notice to quit.—A notice to quit is not bad in law simply because of a small error in the statement in such notice of the area of the land, in consequence of which it included some land which the defendant was found not to hold under the plaintiff (Shama Charan Mitra v. Uma Charan Haldar, 25 Calc., 36; 2 C. W. N., 106). See also Woodfall's Law of Landlord and Tenant, Chap. VIII, sec 7, 14th edit., (p. 362). The subject of dispute in a case was a piece of homestead land, and it does not appear that the tenant was a raiyat. In a tenancy created by a kabuliyat with an annual rent reserved, a six months' notice to quit requiring the tenant to vacate the holding within, instead of on the expiry of, the last day of a year of the tenancy is a good notice in law, inasmuch as there was no appreciable interval between the expiry of the notice and the end of a year of a tenancy (Ismail Khan v. Jaigun, 27 Calc., 570; 4 C. W. N., 210). When a raiyat surrenders his tenancy, an under-raiyat who is not protected by sec. 85 or sec. 86 cl. (6), is not entitled to notice to quit, before the landlord can eject him (Nilkanta Chaki v. Ghatu, 4 C. W. N., 667).

The validity of a notice to quit may be questioned for the first time in the course of a second appeal in a suit (Gauri Sankar Shah v. Naja-bratt Hossain, 1 C. W. N., clxxix).

Suit against tenants as trespassers.—In a suit against certain tenants as trespassers, the Lower Appellate Court found that the defendants were not trespassers and gave the plaintiffs a decree for rent. It was held that the suit should have been dismissed, as the plaintiffs were not entitled to get any other relief than the particular relief they asked for (Kali Kishor Chaudhri v. Gopi Mohan Rai Chaudhri, 2 C. W. N., 166).

Sale or transfer of whole or part of a holding is not a ground of forfeiture.—The sale or transfer of the whole or part of a holding is not a ground of forfeiture, as long as the raiyat does not disclaim an interest in the holding and continues to pay the rent for it (Kabil Sardar v. Chandra Nath Nag Chaudhri, 20 Calc., 590; Bansi Das v. Jagdip Narain Chaudhri, 24 Calc., 152). The transfer by an occupancy-raiyat of a part of his holding does not entitle the landlord to recover possession by ejecting the transferee in the absence of evidence to show that by custom such transfer is allowed (Durga Prasad Sen v. Daula Ghazi, 1 C. W. N., 160). The transfer by a raiyat of a portion of his non-transferable raiyyati jote without his landlord's consent does not work a forfeiture, and the landlord is not entitled to khas possession (Gozaffar Hussain v. Dalgleish, 1 C. W. N., 172). Parting with the possession of a portion of a holding by a non-occupancy raiyat is not a ground of forfeiture (Chandra Mohan Mukhopadhyaya v. Bisseswar Chaturji, 1 C. W. N., 158). But when a tenant transfers his non-transferable holding, abandons possession, and ceases to pay rent for it, the landlord is entitled to eject the transferee (Wilson v. Radha Dulari Koer, 2 C. W. N., 63). So, too, when the raiyat transfers his holding, and ceases to pay rent for it, but accepts a new tenancy from the transferee, the landlord is entitled to eject the transferee (Kali Nath Chakravarti v. Upendra Chandra Chaudhri, 24 Calc., 212; 1 C. W. N., 163). Similarly, a landlord cannot eject a tenant simply because he has transferred a part of his holding, remaining in possession of the other parts (Pandab Nath v. Durga Charan Rai, 2 C. W. N., clv). But this has been doubted, and in Kissen Pretub Sahi v. Tripe, (1 C. W. N., cclxxix; 2 C. W. N., cliv), the question whether the transfer of a portion of a holding did not work a forfeiture, so far as that portion was concerned, when the tenant refused to pay rent for the portion sold by him, was referred to a Full Bench. As, however, it was found that there was no evidence that the tenant had refused to pay rent for the portion sold by him, it was held by the Full Bench that the question referred did not arise and it was not answered. See also note to sec. 25, pp. 108, 109 and the case of Rajani Kant Biswas v. Ekkari Das, (11 C. W. N., 811).

Denial of landlord's title no ground of forfeiture.—Denial of a landlord's title does not work a forfeiture or entitle the landlord to eject the tenant, either in the case of an occupancy-raiyat, (Debiruddin v. Abdur Rahim, 17 Calc., 196), a non-occupancy raiyat, (Chandra Mohan Mukhopadhyaya v. Bisseswar Chaturji, 1 C. W. N., 158), or an under-raiyat (Dhora Kairi v. Ram Jewan Kairi, 20 Calc., 101). But this rule does not apply to a case in which the land is found to belong to the plaintiff and in the course of which suit, as they had done in a previous one, the defendants deny that they are the plaintiff's tenants. In such circumstances they have no right to remain upon the land (Nil Madhub Basu v. Anant Ram Bagdi, 2 C. W. N., 755). This was followed in Faiz Dhali v. Aftabudin, 6 C. W. N., 575, in which it was said that the defendant was estopped by a matter of record from pleading that he was plaintiff's tenant. The correctness of both these decisions was doubted in Mallika Dasi v. Makham Lal Chaudhuri, (2 C. L. J., 389, 9 C. W. N., 928) in which it was laid down that the doctrine of forfeiture by disclaimer of landlords' title does not apply to raiyats' tenancies and the principle of estoppel cannot be applied to make the doctrine of forfeiture indirectly applicable to such tenancies (Mallika Dasi v. Makham Lal Chaudhuri, 2 C. L. J., 389; 9 C. W. N., 928). But in a still later case (Ramgati v. Pran Hari Sil, 3 C. L. J., 201,) the decisions in Nil Madhab Basu v. Anant Ram Bagdi and Faiz Dhali v. Aftabuddin, were adhered to. A denial of the landlord's title before the Bengal Tenancy Act was passed would operate as a forfeiture of the tenant's right, (Ananda Chandra Mandal v. Abraham Soleman, 4 C. W. N., 42), provided the denial of title took place prior to the institution of the suit (Nizamudin v. Mamtazudin, 28 Calc., 135; 5 C. W. N., 263). A denial of a right in a written statement does not give rise to a cause of action (Madan Mohan Shaha v. Rajabali, 28 Calc., 223; Mallika Dasi v. Makham Lal Chaudhuri, 2 C. L. J., 389; 9 C. W. N., 928). A denial of the landlord's title by the holder of a service tenure works a forfeiture of his tenancy (Ananda Moyi v. Lakshi Chandra, 3 C. L. J., 274; 33 Calc., 339). A suit was brought for ejectment on the ground of the tenant's denial of the existence of the relation of landlord and tenant between himself and the plaintiff. The defendant had in a previous suit denied that he was the plaintiff's tenant. The plaintiff in that suit adduced no evidence, and it was dismissed. In the present suit the defendant did not deny that he was the plaintiff's tenant: held, that the denial in the previous suit did not entitle the plaintiff to a decree in ejectment (Rahamatulla v. Jitalu Das, 11 C. W. N., c).

In a suit brought by the plaintiffs for ejectment against the defendant described as a trespasser, he repudiated the plaintiff's title and set up a title in himself. His plea was found to be fraudulent. Held, that he could not be allowed in second appeal to say he was a tenant, and that he was liable to ejectment as a trespasser without notice (Sujjud Ahmad Chaudhuri v. Ganga Churan Ghosh, 1 C. L. J., 116).

Now, by sec. 186 A, added to the Act by s. 57, Act I, B. C., of 1907, a tenant who denies his landlord's title is liable to have a decree for damages passed against him.

Remedies for illegal ejectment.—If a tenant is ejected otherwise than in accordance with this Act, he can bring a possessory suit under sec. 9 of the Specific Relief Act (I of 1877) within six months from the date of dispossession, but such a suit cannot be brought against Government. If he omits to do so, then, if an occupancy-raiyat, he can sue within two years for possession under art. 3, Schedule III of this Act, or within two years from the date of the publication of the landlord's notice of re-entry under sec. 87, in which case he is not entitled to recover merely on proof of illegal ejectment without reference to his title (Madan Mohan Ghosh v. Habi, 2 C. W. N., clxxii). If he is a non-occupancy raiyat, he can under the same section sue for recovery of possession within six months of the publication of this notice. In all other cases, the tenant can sue for recovery of possession within twelve years from the date of dispossession under art. 142, Act XV of 1877. Now, in Bengal under s. 61, Act I, B. C., 1907, every raiyat or under-raiyat, if dispossessed, must sue for recovery of possession within two years of the date of dispossession.

Effect of partial ejectment.—A landlord cannot eject a tenant from part of the subject of his tenancy and claim rent for the part remaining in his possession (Lalita Sundari v. Sarnamayi, 5 C. W. N., 353; Haro Kumari v. Purna Chandra Sarbogyia, 28 Calc., 188).

Court fees.—Under sec. 7, sub-sec. 11, Act VII of 1870, in a suit to recover the occupancy of land from which a tenant has been illegally ejected by the landlord, the amount of fee payable under the Act shall be computed according to the amount of the rent of the land to which the suit refers, payable for the year next before the date of presenting the plaint. Where in a suit for recovery of possession of an occupancy-holding, the plaintiff sued not only the landlord, but three persons whom the landlord had inducted into the land, held, that the suit did not come within the provisions of sec. 7, 11 (e), of the Court Fees Act, and that the Court fee should be computed on the market value of the property (Farzand Ali v. Lal Puri, 32 Calc., 268).

Measurements.

90. (1). Subject to the provisions of this section and any contract, a landlord may, by himself, or by any person authorized by him in this behalf, enter on and measure all land comprised in his estate or tenure, other than land exempt from the payment of revenue.

Measurements.
Landlord's right to measure land.

(2) A landlord shall not, without the consent of the tenant, or the written permission of the Collector, be entitled to measure land more than once in ten years, except in the following cases (namely):—

- (a) where the area of the tenure or holding is liable, by reason of alluvion or diluvion, to vary from year to year, and the rent payable depends on the area;
- (b) where the area under cultivation is liable to vary from year to year and the rent payable depends on the area under cultivation;
- (c) where the landlord is a purchaser otherwise than by voluntary transfer and not more than two years have elapsed since the date of his entry under the purchase.

(3) The ten years shall be computed from the date of the last measurement, whether made before or after the commencement of this Act.

Who may, and what lands a landlord may, measure.—Every landlord has a right under sec. 90 to sue for measurement (Matangini Dasi v. Ram Das Mallik, 7 C. W. N., 93). A landlord can measure all lands, rent-free or rent-paying, comprised in his estate or tenure, but not revenue-free land. Under the old law he could not measure revenue-free land, and apparently also not even rent free-land within the boundaries of his estate. See Prasanna Mayi Debi v. Chandra Nath Chaudhuri, 10 W. R., 361; Rang Lal Sahu v. Sridhar Dass, 11 W. R., 293; 3 B. L. R., App., 27; Ghulam Khejar v. Erskine, 11 W. R., 445; Khagendra Nath Mallik v. Kanti Ram Pal, 14 W. R., 368. He is not debarred from measuring merely because there are under-tenures, and that the land is not in the occupation of his immediate tenant (Ran Bahadur v. Maluram Tewari, 8 W. R., 149; Tweedie v. Ram Narain Das, 9 W. R., 151; Krishna Mati Debi v. Ram Nidhi Sarkar, 9 W. R. 331; contra, Dwarka Nath Chakravarti v. Bhowani Kishor Chakravarti, 8 W. R., 11).

One of two or more joint landlords cannot measure.—It is clear that under sec. 188 one of two or more joint landlords cannot measure. They must act together or by an agent authorized to act on behalf of all of them. See Matangini Dasi v. Ram Das Mallik, (7 C. W. N., 93) (in which case, the landlords were not joint landlords within the meaning of sec. 188), and note to sec. 188. A common manager appointed under sec. 95 can no doubt measure.

Under the old law (i. e., Act VI, B. C., of 1862 and Act VIII, B. C., of 1869) it was held in many cases that a part proprietor was not entitled to apply for measurement (Mahomed Bahadur Mazumdar v. Raj Krishna Singh, 15 W. R., 522; Muluk Chand Mandal v. Madhusudhan Bachaspati, 16 W. R., 126; Surendra Mohan Rai v. Bhagbat Charan Gangopadhyaya, 18 W. R., 332; Santiram Panja v. Baikant Paria, 19 W. R., 280; Piari Mohan Mukhurji v. Raj Krishna Mukhurji, 20 W. R., 385; Ishan Chandra Rai v. Basaruddin, 5 C. L. R., 132; Baba Chaudhry v. Abidudin Mahomed, 7 Calc., 69); but it was ultimately settled that he could do so, provided he made all the remaining proprietors parties to the proceeding (Abdul Husain v. Lal Chand Mahtan, 10 Calc., 36; 13 C. L. R., 323).

91. (1) Where a landlord desires to measure any land which he is entitled to measure under the last foregoing section, the Civil Court may, on the application of the landlord, make an order requiring the tenant to attend and point out the boundaries of the land.

Power for Court to order tenant to attend and point out boundaries.

(2) If the tenant refuses or neglects to comply with the order, a map or other record of the boundaries and measurements of the land prepared under the direction of the landlord at the time when the tenant was directed to attend, shall be presumed to be correct until the contrary is shown.

Sub-section (1). To what Court application should be made.—Under sec. 144 (2) the application for measurement must be made to the Civil Court which would have jurisdiction to entertain a suit for the possession of the tenure or holding in connection with which the application was brought. Under the former law, Act VI of 1869, B. C., a single suit to measure lands could be brought against several defendants, although their rights and tenures were different (Sashi Bhushan Banurji v. Nabo Kumar Chaturji, 8 W. R., 94).

Sub-section (1). Appeal.—Under the former law, an appeal lay from an order for measurement made under sec. 37, Act VIII, B. C., of 1869; for it was held that such an order was a “decree.” But this was because in section 37, the proceeding in which an order for measurement was passed was termed a “suit” (Brajendra Kumar Rai v. Krishna Kumar Ghosh, 7 Calc., 684). No such expression occurs in sec. 91. The proceeding under this section is not therefore a suit, and the order made in it not a decree, and consequently no appeal lies from such an order (Daya Ghazi v. Ram Lal Sukal, 2 C. W. N., 351).

Sub-section (2).—Under sec. 9 of Act VI of 1862, B. C., and sec. 37 of Act VIII., B. C., of 1869 if an under-tenant or raiyat, after the issue of an order enjoining his attendance, did not attend and point out the land, it was not competent to him to contest the correctness of the measurement made, or any of the proceedings held in his absence (see Alimudin v. Kali Krishna Tagore, 10 Calc., 895). But under the present Act, finality is not given to a measurement and it is open to a tenant to rebut the presumption of correctness which the Court is directed to make, if he fails to attend when directed to do so (Daya Ghazi v. Ram Lal Sukal, 2 C. W. N., 351).

92. (1) Every measurement of land made by order of a Civil Court, or of a Revenue-officer, in any suit or proceeding between a landlord and tenant, shall be made by the acre, unless the Court or Revenue-officer directs that it be made by any other specified standard.

(2) If the rights of the parties are regulated by any local measure other than the acre, the acre shall be converted into the local measure for the purposes of the suit or proceeding.

(3) The Local Government may, after local enquiry, make rules declaring for any local area the standard or standards of measurement locally in use in that area, and every declaration so made shall be presumed to be correct until the contrary is shown.

Local measures.--Under sec. 11 of Act VI, B. C., of 1862 and sec. 41, Act VIII, B. C., of 1869, measurements were to be made with the standard pole of the pargana. Now, measurements are to be made with the local measure by which the rights of the parties are regulated. If there is any dispute as to the nature and length of this local measure, the Civil Court will have to decide it. Sometimes, two standards of measurements are in use. In that case the local measure current in the locality or tuppeh in which the land is situated should be preferred (Bhagobati Charan Bhattacharji v. Tamirudin, 1 W. R., 224 ; Sarbanand Pandi v. Ruchia Pandi, 4 W. R., Act X, 32). Canungoe papers and settlement proceedings are good evidence in such disputes (Nand Dantput v. Tara Chand Prithibari, 2 W. R., Act X, 13).

Board of Revenue's instructions.—"The standard of measurement or laggi recorded in the Collectorate for the pargana or other local division in which the lands are situated shall be taken as the local standard of measurement under section 92 (1) of the Tenancy Act, unless another standard is set up by either of the parties, in which case the Settlement Officer will, after enquiry, decide what standard to adopt. If no standard is recorded in the Collectorate, the Settlement Officer must by enquiry, satisfy himself as to the local standard in use." (Board of Revenue's C. O., No. 16, April, 1893).

Managers.

Managers.
Power to call upon co-owners to show cause why they should not appoint a common manager.

93. When any dispute exists between co-owners of an estate or tenure as to the management thereof, and in consequence there has ensued, or is likely to ensue,

(a) inconvenience to the public, or

(b) injury to private rights,

the District Judge may, on the application in case (a) of the Collector, and in case (b) of any one having an interest in the estate or tenure, direct a notice to be served on all the co-owners, calling on them to show cause why they should not appoint a common manager :

Provided that a co-owner of an estate or tenure shall not be entitled to apply under this section unless he is actually in possession of the interest he claims, and, if he is a co-owner of an estate, unless his name and the extent of his interest are registered under the Land Registration Act, 1876.

VII (B.C.) of 1876. Extended to the districts of Cuttack Puri and Balasore (Not., Jan. 27th, 1906.)

Former law.—The state of the former law as to the appointment of managers in cases of disputes between co-owners and the reasons for the enactment of the following sections which are founded on the Bill framed by the Rent Commission, are described in the report of that body as follows :—“ In 1812 it was enacted that, inasmuch as inconvenience to the public and injury to private rights had been experienced in certain cases from disputes subsisting among the proprietors of joint undivided estates, whenever sufficient cause shall be shown by the Revenue authorities, or by any of the individuals holding an interest in such estates, for the interposition of the Court of Judicature, it shall be competent to the Zillah Judges to appoint a person duly qualified and under proper security to manage the estate, that is, to collect the rents and discharge the public revenue, and provide for the cultivation and future improvement of the estate (Reg. V. of 1812, sec. 26). The Judge was also competent, upon the representation of the Revenue authorities, or of any such person as aforesaid, to remove any manager so appointed (id, sec. 27). A subsequent Regulation (V of 1827) enacted that when the Zillah Court thought it just and proper under the provisions of that Regulation to provide for the administration or management of landed property, it should issue a precept to the Collector, directing him to hold the estate in attachment and appoint a person for the due care and management thereof, under good and adequate security for the faithful discharge of the trust in a sum proportionate to the extent thereof. The reference in Reg. V of 1827 to Regulation V of 1812 was repealed by Act XVI of 1874, so that it is not now competent to a District Judge to send a precept to the Collector, directing him to provide for the management of an estate belonging to a joint undivided family. The fragment of Regulation V of 1812 which is still in force is incomplete, and in consequence almost inoperative. Such being the present state of the law, a majority of us have thought that this fragment might well be repealed, and a complete set of effective provisions substituted therefor." (Rent Commission Report, Vol. I. paras. 135 and 136, p. 68). The sections of Reg. V of 1812 remaining in force are repealed by Schedule I of this Act.

Procedure prescribed in the case of a multifarious application.—In a case in which one application was made jointly by twelve of the co-sharers of a certain property under this section calling upon the four remaining sharers in the property to show cause why a common manager should not be appointed to certain property consisting of 243 estates or taluks, of which about 60 bore separate numbers on the Collector's Land Register, whilst other portions of the property were taluks and dependent tenures, howlahs and raiyyati holdings, and therefore, did not appear in the Collector's Register at all, it was laid down by the High Court, (1) that there need not be as many applications as there were estates or tenures mentioned in the application, but that, in the circumstances, the District Judge should call upon the applicants to state whether all of them were entitled in common to the various estates and tenures mentioned in the application, and, if not, to divide themselves into as many groups as there might be properties held by them in common, and in this latter case, it would be necessary that each group of shareholders should put in separate applications; (2) that if such separate applications would have to be put in and not otherwise, separate Court fees should be levied upon each application; and (3) that the notice in the case of tenures would be as provided by section 93 of the Act; it would be of the same character and to the same effect as in the case of estates (Fazal Ali Chaudhri v. Abdul Mazid Chaudhri, 14 Calc., 659).

Appeal.—An application under this section is not a suit within the meaning of sec. 143, as the operation of that section is confined to suits between landlord and tenant. A proceeding under section 93 is not between landlord and tenant, but a proceeding initiated by some third person, who does not fill either of these positions. Under these circumstances, an order rejecting an application under sec. 93 is not appealable (Hossain Baksh v. Mutukdhari Lal, 14 Calc., 312).

94. If the co-owners fail to show cause as aforesaid within one month after service of a notice under the last foregoing section, the District Judge may make an order directing them to appoint a common manager, and a copy of the order shall be served on any co-owner who did not appear before it was made.

Power to order them to appoint a manager if cause is not shown.

Extended to the districts of Cuttack, Puri and Balasore, (Not., Jany. 27th, 1906.

95. If the co-owners do not, within such period, not being less than one month after the making of an order under the last foregoing section, as the District Judge may fix in this behalf, or, where the order has been served as directed by that section, within a like period after such service, appoint a common manager and report the appointment for the information of the District Judge, the District Judge may, unless it is shown to his satisfaction that there is a prospect of a satisfactory arrangement being made within a reasonable time,—

Power to appoint manager if order is not obeyed.

(a) direct that the estate or tenure be managed by the Court of Wards in any case in which the Court of Wards consents to undertake the management thereof; or

(b) in any case appoint a manager.

Extended to the districts of Cuttack, Puri and Balasore (Not., January 27th., 1906.)

Rulings under this section.—On an application under section 93 being made to a District Judge, he by consent of parties directed the estate to be managed by the Court of Wards. The Court of Wards took over the estate, but subsequently refused to act, and the Board of Revenue directed that the estate should be released. The District Judge then issued notices to the co-sharers under sec. 93, calling on them to show cause why a common manager should not be appointed. The co-sharers appeared and objected, but one of them stated that he and the representative of certain minor co-sharers had agreed to appoint a private person manager of their estates. The District Judge, then, without holding any enquiry or taking evidence, passed an order purporting to be under sec. 95 of this Act appointing the private person common manager temporarily until the co-owners should take steps under sec. 99 to satisfy the Court that they were in a position to manage the estate properly. He subsequently passed two orders on two separate applications by two of the co-sharers for the release of the estate, refusing to release it, as he was not satisfied that the management would be conducted by the co-owners without injury to the rights of the minor co-sharers. It was held that the order of the Judge appointing the private person common manager, and his subsequent order refusing to release the estate were not legally made. They were, therefore, set aside (Ganodu Kanta Rai v. Probbabati Dasi, 20 Calc., 881.) A common manager cannot be appointed by consent of parties. The District Judge before he can make the order must find that there is a dispute likely to cause inconvenience to public or injury to private rights existing between the co-sharers (Kali Charan Ash v. Parbati Charan Ash, 4 C. L. J., 564). When a common manager has resigned, the District Judge cannot appoint a new common manager without recourse to the provisions of ss 93 and 94 (Dwarkanath Mitra v. Bunkutesh Lal Mitra, 10 C. W. N., 437). There is no provision in this Act authorising a District Judge, when an order, under sec. 95 of this Act appointing a common manager has been made, to institute an enquiry as to the existence of certain accounts and papers and to examine persons on oath in such a proceeding, and a person giving false evidence in such a proceeding does not commit an offence under sec. 193 or sec. 199, Penal Code (Abdul Mazid v. Krishna Lal Nag, 20 Calc., 724). A common manager was appointed under the provisions of this section with the consent of the co-owners. The share of one of the co-owners was then let out in izara to some of the other owners. After the izara had come to an end, he gave a patni lease of his share to a third person, who began to collect, or to attempt to collect, the rent due to him as patnidar. It was held that he was bound by the order appointing the common manager, as he took the patni, knowing that the property was in charge of a common manager, appointed by an order of the Court, an order which under clause (3) of section 98 would have the effect of preventing any of the co-owners from themselves realising the rents due to their respective shares, and the patnidar was in no better position than the shareholder from whom he obtained the patni (Jugal Chandra Chaudhri v. Golak Chandra Ghosh, 23 Calc., 522). *A person appointed to be manager of an estate under the provisions of this section must have his name registered under sec. 78 of the Land Registration Act before he can recover rent from the tenants of the estate of which he has been appointed manager (Makbul Ali Chaudhri v. Grish Chandra Kundu, 22 Calc., 634).

A common manager, appointed under this section has power to mortgage property with the permission of the District Judge. While the common management exists, the powers of the co-owners must^{*} be regarded as in abeyance, and therefore a mortgage created by a co-owner during the existence of the common management cannot in any way interfere with, or derogate from, the rights created under any transaction made by the common manager with respect to the joint properties (Amar Chandra Kundu v. Golak Chandra Chaudhri, 4 C. W. N., 769). A common manager is competent on behalf of the co-owners to sue for the recovery of possession of land (Sibo Sundari Ghosh v. Raj Mohan Guha, 8 C. W. N., 214).

96. The Local Government may nominate a person for any local area to manage all estates and tenures within that local area for which it may be necessary to appoint a manager under clause (b) of the last foregoing section ; and, when any person has been so nominated, no other person shall be appointed manager under that clause by the District Judge, unless in the case of any estate the Judge thinks fit to appoint one of the co-owners themselves as manager.

Extended to the districts of Cuttack, Puri and Balasore (Not., Jany. 27th, 1906).

97. In any case in which the Court of Wards undertakes under section 95 the management of an estate or tenure, so much of the provisions of the Court of Wards Act, 1879, as relates to the management of immoveable property shall apply to the management.

Extended to the districts of Cuttack, Puri and Balasore (Not., Jany. 27th, 1906).

98. (1) A manager appointed under section 95 may, if the District Judge thinks fit, be remunerated by a fixed salary or percentage of the money collected by him as manager, or partly in one way and partly in Power to nominate person to act in all cases under clause (b) of last section the other, as the District Judge, from time to time, directs.

(2) He shall give such security for the proper discharge of his duties as the District Judge directs.

(3) He shall, subject to the control of the District Judge, have, for the purposes of management, the same powers as the co-owners jointly might but for his appointment have exercised, and the co-owners shall not exercise any such power.

(4) He shall deal with and distribute the profits in accordance with the orders of the District Judge.

(5) He shall keep regular accounts, and allow the co-owners or any of them to inspect and take copies of those accounts.

(6) He shall pass his accounts at such period and in such form as the District Judge may direct.

(7) He may make any application which the proprietors could make under section 103.

(8) He shall be removable by the order of the District Judge, and not otherwise.

Extended to the districts of Cuttack, Puri and Balasore (Not., Jany. 27th, 1906).

The powers given by section 98 of the Bengal Tenancy Act to a manager of joint property appointed under section 93 "for the purposes of management" include the power to mortgage or to sell the property.

The restraint put upon the co-owners by section 98, sub-section (3) of the Act, whilst the estate is under management, is co-extensive with the power conferred on the manager : it does not extend to the exercise of individual rights.

Where one of the co-owners of an estate under management mortgaged his share, which in execution of a decree on the mortgage was purchased by the mortgagee : held, that the mortgagee thereby became a co-owner under the manager, and as such was entitled to the benefit of a decree for redemption in a suit on a mortgage of the estate by the manager. (Amar Chandra Kundu v. Shoshi Bhusan Roy, 31 Cal., 305 ; L. R., 31 I. A., 24 ; 8 C. W. N., 225).

99. When an estate or tenure has been placed under the management of the Court of Wards, or a manager has been appointed for the same under section 95, the District Judge may at any time direct that the management of it be restored to the co-owners, if he is satisfied that the management will be conducted by them without inconvenience to the public or injury to private rights.

Extended to the districts of Cuttack, Puri and Balasore (Not., Jany., 27th, 1906).

There would seem to be nothing to prevent a District Judge acting of his own motion under this section, without being moved to do so by any of the persons concerned, provided he is satisfied on the point referred to.

100. The High Court may, from time to time make rules defining the powers and duties of managers under the foregoing sections

Extended to the districts of Cuttack, Puri and Balasore (Not., Jany., 27th, 1906).

The High Court's rules under this section are printed in Appendix III.

CHAPTER X.

RECORD-OF-RIGHTS AND SETTLEMENT OF RENTS.

The whole of the provisions of the former Chapter X were extended to Orissa by Notification of Sept. 10th, 1891. The present Chapter X has been introduced by the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Act, III, B.C., of 1898, which has been extended to Orissa by Notification of Nov., 5th., 1898. It has been considerably modified by Act I, B. C., of 1907.

Modifications in this Chapter introduced by the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Act of 1898.—The provisions of the Chapter, as they originally stood in the Act, have been greatly modified by the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Act of 1898. The circumstances which led to the passing of this Amending Act are as follows. Very shortly after the commencement of the operation of Act VIII of 1885, very great difficulties were experienced in settling rents under Chapter X, more especially when its provisions were applied to the settlement of rents on a large scale. These difficulties were partly due to defects in the provisions of the Chapter itself, which did not allow of the publication of a draft record as a preliminary to the settlement of rent, but required rents to be settled before the publication of even a draft of the record. They were also partly due to the fact that while Revenue officers in settling rents and deciding disputes regarding entries in the record-of-rights were bound to adopt the cumbrous and lengthy procedure of the Civil Courts, the High Court in interpreting the provisions of the Chapter, held that Revenue officers in proceedings for the settlement of rent had no jurisdiction to decide questions concerning the civil rights of the parties, and that the decisions of Revenue officers in such matters had no finality and might be subsequently questioned and set aside by suits in the Civil Courts.

These difficulties attracted the attention of both Sir Charles Elliott and Sir Alex. Mackenzie, while holding the office of Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, and shortly after the commencement of the term of Government of the latter, viz., in May, 1896, he submitted to the Government of India two alternative bills to remedy these defects, according to the first of which "revenue officers were given a fairly free hand in settling rents and were relieved from the necessity of complying with the formalities of the Civil Procedure Code, and treating the case of each individual raiyat whose rent was altered as a separate suit. But the Civil Courts were to retain the ultimate jurisdiction in all matters of status, right and title." In the second Bill certain alterations were proposed tending "to simplify the procedure and at the same time to give to the decisions of the Revenue Officers that finality which the framers of the Tenancy Act intended them to have." The first of these Bills was approved by the Government of India. It was accordingly introduced into Council on the 3rd April, 1897.

At the time of the introduction of this Bill it was not intended to differentiate between the procedure for the settlement of rents in Government, and that in private, estates. But after the introduction of the Bill into Council certain representatives of the samindars objected to the proposed withdrawal of the jurisdiction of the Civil Courts in the settlement of rents in private estates. The Bill, as originally introduced, was therefore recast in the course of its progress through Council and the procedure for the settlement of rents in Government estates and other temporarily settled estates was made quite distinct and separate from that for the settlement of rents in permanently settled estates. The new system was extended only to the former (see Part II of this Chapter); while the existing law, with certain slight modifications designed to secure greater finality for the decisions of the settlement officers, was maintained in respect to the settlement of rents in estates of the latter class (see Part III of this Chapter). The following extract from the Statement of the Objects and Reasons for the Bill, while showing its aims and intention so far as they relate to this Chapter of the Act, explains what the system for recording rights and settling rents was under Chapter X, as originally passed, and what the system now is under the modifications introduced by the Amending Act as regards the settlement of rent where a settlement of land revenue is being or is about to be made—in other words, so far as Part II of this Chapter only is concerned.

"The aims and objects of this Bill", (so far as they relate to Chapter X), "are—(1) to clear up doubts and difficulties of procedure which have arisen in the course of experience in the working of Chapter X of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885; (2) to facilitate the settlement of rents when undertaken on a large scale, either for the purpose of settling land revenue or on the application of private individuals.

"As to point (1), the intention of the framers of the Tenancy Act, as explained in Council by Sir Steuart Bayley, when presenting the report of the Select Committee, clearly was that all disputes affecting the record of rights or fixation of rents were to be formally and finally decided by the Revenue Officer, subject only to appeal to the Special Judge, and to a second appeal to the High Court in certain specified cases. Entries in the record, which were not disputed up to the time of final publication of the record, were to be presumed to be correct till the contrary was proved. If a dispute as to any entry in, or omission from, the record arose, it was to be decided by the Revenue Officer, and his decision was to have the force and effect of a decree. So that every entry in the record as finally published was to have attached to it either (a) the presumption of correctness, or (b) the force and effect of a decree of a Civil Court. Objections might be made at any time during the publication of the draft record, which the Revenue Officer was to summarily hear and consider, and disputes raised at any time before the final publication of the record were to be heard and decided. The distinction between an objection and a dispute was not, however, clearly defined,⁽¹⁾ and the result has been that the Civil Courts have in some cases held that the Revenue Officer is bound to hear, as civil suits, trifling objections which can be adequately disposed of summarily, to the satisfaction of the parties, without the expense and delay entailed by the formal procedure of a civil suit.⁽¹⁾ On the other hand, where Revenue Officers have heard and decided disputes, following the procedure of the Civil Procedure Code, in which cases it was intended that their decisions should, subject to appeal to the Special Judge, be res judicata between the parties, the Civil Courts have in some cases held that their decisions, though not appealed against, were not res judicata, that no finality attached to them, and that it was open to the parties to re-open the questions decided in the ordinary Civil Courts.⁽²⁾

"Further, the Courts have held, where a survey is ordered to be made, and a record-of-rights prepared, of a particular estate or local area, that the Revenue Officer has no jurisdiction to hear and decide the dispute, ⁽³⁾ and that when a dispute arises as to whether land claimed rent free was properly so held or not, the Revenue Officer has no authority to hear and decide the dispute, ⁽⁴⁾ and again that when a dispute arises as between one landlord and another landlord, or one tenant and another tenant, regarding the ownership or occupation of land, the Revenue Officer has no authority to hear and decide the dispute. ⁽⁵⁾ It has, in short, been held the Revenue Officer can only hear and decide a dispute between a landlord and tenant, when the relationship of landlord and tenant is proved or admitted to exist.

"The effect of these decisions is to curtail to a very great extent the powers of the Revenue Officer to decide the disputes arising out of his proceedings, to leave gaps in the record-of-rights, and to drive the parties to litigation after the Revenue Officer has left the ground, even as regards matters which he has nominally decided.

"That this was not the intention of the framers of the Act is shown by the following extract from Sir Steuart Bayley's speech in Council, in presenting the Report of the Select Committee on the Tenancy Bill as passed :—

"Under the scheme, therefore, as sketched out in the original Bill, it will be observed (1) that the Revenue Officer, in recording rights, could not decide any dispute which might arise, and consequently his record could be of very little value; (2) that the Settlement Officer, though he could decide whatever disputes came before him, could only deal in a preliminary sort of way with a large class of disputes, which might afterwards be tried out by a regular suit in a Civil Court; (3) that, though no settlement can in the nature of things be undertaken without the previous preparation of a record-of-rights, the two processes were unconnected in the Bill, and were treated as essentially separate and distinct.

'I need not take you through the successive steps by which the procedure was altered, first in the Bill No. 11 of last year, a description of which will be found in paragraphs 71 to 77 of our preliminary report, and then in the Bill of this year, as explained in paragraph 42 of our final report. It will be sufficient if I explain to you the final result of our discussions as embodied in the Bill now before you. First, then, we have amalgamated the two processes. It was obvious that on a Revenue Officer beginning to record rights he would find himself face to face with numerous cases in which on one side or the other the status of the raiyat, the area of the holding, the amount of the rent payable, were the subject of dispute. Unless he could deal with these disputes his record would be of little value and it was obviously absurd to empower one officer to settle questions of status and area, and then to send in another to settle questions of rent.

'It seemed equally unreasonable to empower a Revenue Officer, with all the parties and witnesses before him, to decide disputes, and to allow the whole matter to be re-opened de novo and fought out from the very beginning in a Civil Court. At the same time we wished in no way to diminish the security which parties now have in the decision of their cases by the most competent Courts, and in the right of appeal to the highest Court in the country.

'What we have done, then, has been to give the Revenue Officer, in the first instance, power to settle all disputes that may come before him. Where no dispute arises, he will record what he finds, he will not alter rents, and his entries will only have a presumptive value in cases afterwards brought before the Courts; where a dispute arises, he will decide it on the same grounds by the same rules, and with the same procedure, as a Civil Court. * His decision will be liable to appeal, like that of the ordinary Civil Court, to a Special Judge, who may or may not be the Judge of the district, and will be subject to a further special appeal to the High Court. In appeal, the High Court may settle a new rent, but in so doing is to be guided by the other rents shown in the rent-roll. In other words, there can be no second appeal to the High Court merely on the ground that the rent has been pitched too high or too low, but if a second appeal is preferred, as it may be on the ground that the Special Judge, owing to some error on a point of law has, for example, found the holding to comprise more land or less land than it actually does comprise, or has given the raiyat a wrong status, and if the appellant succeeds, the High Court can, without altering the rate, reduce, or increase the rent, as the case may be.

‘The decision of the Revenue Officer in disputed cases, subject to these appeals, will have the effect of a judgment of the Civil Court, and will be res judicata, thus barring a fresh suit for enhancement for 15 years.’

‘It is clear that the decisions of the Civil Courts above referred to are not in accord with the intention of the framers of the Act expressed in the preceding extract, and it is thought that if the decisions of Revenue Officers are not, subject to appeal to the Special Judge, to have finality on all questions that come before them, it is desirable to relieve them altogether of the duty of deciding disputes as civil suits, and to confine them, in the first place, to the preparation of the record of existing facts, rents and status. This record will be prepared, after careful investigation, under such rules as the Local Government may prescribe. It will be published in draft, objections made to any entry in or omissions from it will be carefully considered and disposed of under such rules as may be prescribed by Government; then it will be finally published and the presumption of correctness will be attached to entries made in it. If the parties afterwards wish to dispute the correctness of any entry or omission, they can do so in the Civil Courts, restrictions on resort to the Courts being imposed only in the case where the entry relates to a rent settled.

‘As to the second object mentioned above, section 107 of the Act provides that in all proceedings for the settlement of rents under Chapter X, the Revenue Officer shall, subject to rules made by the Local Government, adopt the procedure laid down in the Code of Civil Procedure for the trial of suits. This implies that each individual case must (subject to modifications made by the Government rules for joinder of tenants holding under the same landlord in the same village) be dealt with separately, a separate record being made, and evidence being separately recorded in each case. When a settlement of rents is being made on a great scale, as is necessary when a settlement of revenue is being made of a large area or in a large private estate, it is apparent that to make the rent of each individual tenant the subject of a separate suit must involve great waste of time and money. If an enhancement or reduction of rent is claimed on the ground of rise or fall of prices since the rents were last fixed, it is obvious that the alteration in prices, if once established for a local area, would affect all tenants in that local area whose rents were last settled at the same time, and it would involve unnecessary waste of time and money to record the evidence over again and allow it to be disputed afresh in each individual case.

"It has always been recognised that Government officers, in settling rents for the purpose of ascertaining the assets on which revenue is to be based in temporarily-settled estates, should have more discretion in the matter of altering rents than was allowable to private individuals in suits in the Civil Courts. The Bengal Government, however, in 1885, with a view to showing that they claimed nothing in the way of enhanced rents in their own estates, or in estates under settlement of revenue, which they were not prepared to concede to private landlords, consented to have the same rules and the same procedure applied to their own estates as were proposed for fixation of rent in private estates; but apparently the difference was not sufficiently considered between the difficulties of a settlement of rents on a great scale and a settlement of rent of individual tenants by a Revenue Officer or Civil Court. In individual cases it is easy to follow the procedure of the Civil Procedure Code, but where hundreds of thousands of tenants' rents have to be settled, it is most difficult, if not impossible, to follow the Civil Procedure Code, and to complete the proceeding within a reasonable time at a reasonable expenditure."

"What is proposed is a procedure which will facilitate settlement of rents on a large scale without unnecessary expense, and without materially altering the substantive provisions of the Act regulating enhancement or reduction of rents."

The above extract, so far as it deals with the settlement of rents, applies only to settlements, when a settlement of land revenue is being or is about to be made. The details of the procedure to be adopted in such settlement are more fully explained in the commencement of Part II of this Chapter.

The Bill was on the 26th Feby, 1898, referred to a Select Committee, who presented their report on the 19th March, 1898. Certain trifling modifications were made on the Bill being considered in Council. It was passed on the 2nd April, 1898, and received the assent of the Governor-General on the 3rd May. It was first published in the Calcutta Gazette as Act III, B. C. of 1898 and came into force on the 2nd. November, 1898.

Part I.—Record of Rights.

101. (1) The Local Government may, in any case with the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council, and may, if it thinks fit, without such sanction in any of the cases next hereinafter mentioned, make an order directing that a survey be made

Record of rights.
Power to order survey and preparation of record-of-rights.

and a record-of-rights be prepared, by a Revenue Officer, in respect of the lands in [any] local area, [estate or tenure or part thereof.]

(2) The cases in which an order may be made under this section without the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council are the following, namely :—

(a) where the landlords [or tenants] or a large proportion of the landlords or of the tenants apply for such an order and deposit, or give security for such amount for the payment of expenses, as the Local Government directs ;

[(a) where—

(i) the landlord or tenants, or

(ii) a proportion of not less than one-half of the total number of landlords, or

(iii) a landlord, or a proportion of the landlords, whose interest, or the aggregate of whose interests, respectively, in the lands of the local area, estate or tenure or part thereof is not less than one-half of the total shares of all the landlords therein, or,

(iv) a proportion of not less than one-fourth of the total number of tenants, applies, or apply, for such an order, depositing, or giving security for, such amount for the payment of expenses as the Local Government directs ;]

(b) where the preparation of such a record is calculated to settle or avert a serious dispute existing or likely to arise between the tenants and their landlords generally ;

(c) where the local area, [estate or tenure or the part thereof] belongs to, or is managed by, the Government or the Court of Wards [or a Manager appointed by the District Judge under section 95 ;]

(d) where a settlement of land-revenue is being or is about to be made in respect of the local area, [estate or tenure or of the part thereof].

[Explanation 1.—The term “settlement of land revenue,” as used in clause (d), includes a settlement of rents in an estate or tenure which belongs to the Government.

Explanation 2.—A superior landlord may apply for an order under this section notwithstanding that his estate or part thereof is leased to a tenure-holder].

(3) A notification in the official Gazette of an order under this section shall be conclusive evidence that the order has been duly made.

[(4) The survey shall be made and the record-of-rights prepared in accordance with rules made in this behalf by the Local Government.]

Sub-section (1) has been extended to the Chota Nagpur division except Manbhum (Not., Feby. 9th, 1903), but the words “in any case with the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council, and may, if it thinks fit, without such sanction in any of the cases next hereinafter mentioned” have been omitted. Sub-sections (3) and (4) have been extended to the Chota Nagpur division except the district of Manbhum without modification (Not., Feby. 9th, 1903).

The words in light brackets in sub-sections (1), (2) (a), 2 (c), (2) (d), the explanations (1) and (2) and sub-section (4) of this section have been inserted and added by the Amending Act, III, B. C., of 1898.

The alternative clause (a) to sub-section (2) in heavy brackets and the words in heavy brackets “or a manager appointed by the District Judge under section 95,” added to clause (c), sub-section (2) have been inserted and added by Act I, B. C., of 1907.

Sub-section (2). Clause (a).—It has not yet been judicially determined what is meant by “a large proportion of the landlords or of the tenants” in this clause. It has, however, been ruled by Government, on the authority of the Advocate-General, that half the landlords is a large proportion of them within the meaning of cl. (a) of this section. (See Government of Bengal’s No. 2461-931 L. R., dated December 6th, 1886, to Secretary, Board of Revenue).

Alternative clause (a) in force in Bengal.—In the Notes on Clauses to the Bill of 1906 it was said :

“The words “a large proportion of the landlords or of the tenants” in section 101 (2) (a) are vague and have given rise to differences of interpretation. It is desirable that the proportion of landlords or tenants, who may apply for a survey and record-of-rights, should be more clearly defined ; one-fourth has been adopted as a reasonable proportion. It is always open to the Government to grant or refuse such an application if it should think fit, and the Government has also full discretion in regard to the apportionment of the costs of the operations under section 114. In the case of co-sharer landlords, either a fourth of the total number, or a co-sharer or co-sharers representing a fourth of the total interests, should be permitted to apply. There is sometimes difficulty in getting co-sharers to join in such applications, and it is thought equitable that a considerable minority, such as one-fourth, should be permitted to submit an application for the consideration of the Government.”

The Select Committee in their report observed :

“ We have raised the proportion of landlords which is to be requisite for a successful application to one-half. It is represented that it should not be in the power of the minority to involve the majority in the considerable expenses which a survey and preparation of a record-of-rights entail.”

Payment of expenses.—For the rules for the deposit of the costs of a survey and record-of-rights, see rules 1 to 20, Chap. 17, of the Board’s Survey and Settlement Manual, 1901, Part III, pp. 121 to 124.

Government will not publish the notification until the Board of Revenue has reported that the costs have been deposited, (G. O. No. 1799, dated 28th April, 1899).

Sub-section (2). Clause (c).—In the Notes on Clauses to the Bill of 1906 it is said :

“The addition to section 101 (2) (c) made by the clause will enable a survey and record-of-rights to be made in the case of an estate placed under a Manager appointed by the District Judge under section 95. The proper management of such estates will often be greatly facilitated by survey and the preparation of a record-of-rights. It seems reasonable that they should be placed on the same footing as estates taken over by the Court of Wards.”

Sub-section (2). Clause (d).—The words “or is about to be made” occurring in this clause were first introduced into the clause by Bengal Act V of 1894, s. 1, (now repealed) in order to legalize settlement operations in Orissa before the expiry of the period for which the land revenue of that province had been fixed.

Sub-section (2). Explanation 1.—This explanation is taken from s. 2, Act V, B. C., of 1894. Its object is to “make clear what was the intention of the present law, namely, that a settlement of rents in estates held direct by Government is included in the term settlement of revenue, and, therefore, that when a record-of-rights of such estates is prepared, a settlement of the rents of all tenants can be made.” (Statement of Objects and Reasons, Bill I, para. 23).

But, under the proviso to section 104, which was added by section 24, Act I, B. C., of 1907, it is not necessary to settle the rents of all tenants, when a record-of-rights is being prepared in an estate or tenure belonging to Government, if it does not appear expedient to the Local Government to do so.

Sub-section (2). Explanation 2.—The object of this explanation is explained in the Objects and Reasons for the Bill, para. 22, as follows :—

“Doubts have been raised whether, when a proprietor has leased his estate to a farmer temporarily, he can apply for a survey and record-of-rights or settlement of raiyats’ rents. The grounds of these doubts are that section 104 (2) of the Act speaks only of the landlord applying and that the farmer is the raiyat’s immediate landlord. It is desirable that a proprietor should not be debarred from obtaining a record-of-rights or settlement of rents merely because he has temporarily sub-let his estate. The explanations make it clear that he is not so debarred.”

The explanation, it may be added, was framed and introduced to meet a case which actually occurred, in which the tenants of an estate colluded with the temporary tenure-holder, paid him heavy salamies or bonuses, and induced him to reduce their rents to nominal amounts. Under the former law, the proprietor could in these circumstances do nothing, though he knew that on the expiry of the temporary tenure-holder’s lease, the reduced rents accepted by the tenure-holder would be binding (or practically so) upon him.

Sub-section (4). Processes of survey and record-of-rights.—The processes ordinarily to be comprised in a survey, record-of-rights and settlement of rents under this Chapter are enumerated in rule 3, Chap. VI, of the Govt. rules under this Act (Appendix I : see also the Board of Revenue’s Survey and Settlement Manual, Part I, rule 2, p. 1).

What the record-of-rights is to consist of and to contain. —

According to rule 8, Chap. VI of the Govt. rules under this Act, the record-of-rights to be published under sec. 103 A of this Chapter shall consist of the khewat (or abstract record-of-rights of proprietors and tenure-holder) and the khatian (or detailed record of each tenancy). Forms of these records taken from the Board of Revenue's Survey and Settlement Manual, Appendix G, are printed in the Appendix II to this book. Rules 9 and 10 of Chapter VI of the Govt. rules under the Act specify what each of the records is to contain. According to sec. 2 (2) of Act III, B. C., of 1895 (The Land Records Maintenance Act), by the term record-of-rights "shall be understood the settlement record of tenant-rights called the khatian or such new editions of such record as may be prepared under rules made under this Act, or such other corresponding record of tenant-rights as may be declared by the Board of Revenue to form the record-of-rights for any district or part of a district. A record-of-rights includes entries duly made in a register of mutations." But this definition applies only to proceedings under Act III, B. C., of 1895. It was framed with the view of excluding from the operation of that Act mutations of proprietary interests, which were considered to be sufficiently provided for by the Land Registration Act (VII, B. C., of 1876). Khewats were, therefore, excluded from the record-of-rights, as defined in Act III, B. C., of 1895.⁽¹⁾

When a settlement of land revenue is being or is about to be made under Part II of this Chapter, and a settlement rent roll is prepared, it is to be incorporated with the record-of-rights (sec. 104 F). But this has to be done before the record-of-rights is finally published (see sec. 103 A). When a settlement of land revenue is not being or is not about to be made, and rents are settled under Part III of this Chapter, then, the Revenue-Officer is to note in the record-of-rights all rents settled by him under sec. 105 and all disputes decided by him under sec. 106 (sec. 107). This has to be done after the final publication of the record-of-rights. The record-of-rights published, whether in draft or finally, contains, when a settlement of land revenue is not being or is not about to be made, only entries of rents recorded as payable at the time the record-of-rights is being prepared.

(1) This Act is of very limited application. At present it has only been made applicable to the thanas of Hajipur in the district of Murshidpur and Bettiah in the district of Champaran (see Govt. Not., No., 5807, L. R., dated 9th Dec., 1895) and to pargana Sujamutha in thanas Bhagwanpur and Nandigram in the district of Midnapur (see Govt. Not., No., 4609 L. R., dated 21st, Nov., 1896. Rules and forms under the Act were published with Govt. Not., No., 5806, L. R., dated 9th Dec. 1895 (the Calcutta Gazette, Dec. 11th, 1895, Part I, p. 1170). These rules have been amended on the 9th Dec. 1895 and modified by Govt. Notifications, No. 4055, L. R., of 18th, Oct., 1896, No., 312 L. R., of 23rd, Feb., 1907, and 1087, L. R., dated 15th April, 1897.

102. When an order is made under section 101, the particulars to be recorded shall be specified in the order, and may include, either without or in addition to other particulars, some or all of the following, namely :—

- (a) the name of each tenant [or occupant] ;
- (b) the class to which [each tenant] belongs, that is to say, whether he is a tenure-holder, raiyat holding at fixed rates, [settled raiyat], occupancy-raiyat, non-occupancy raiyat or under-raiyat, and if he is a tenure-holder, whether he is a permanent tenure-holder or not, and whether his rent is liable to enhancement during the continuance of his tenure ;
- (c) the situation [and] quantity and [one or more of the] boundaries of the land held by] each tenant or occupier] ;
- (d) the name of [each tenant's] landlord ;
- [(dd) the name of each proprietor in the local area or estate ;]
- (e) the rent payable [at the time the record-of-rights is being prepared] ;
- (f) the mode in which that rent has been fixed—whether by contract, by order of a Court, or otherwise ;
- (g) if the rent is a gradually increasing rent, the time at which, and the steps by which, it increases ;

[(gg) the rights and obligations of each tenant and landlord in respect of—

(i) the use by tenants of water for agricultural purposes, whether obtained from a river, jhil, tank or well or any other source of supply, and

(h) the special conditions and incidents, if any, of the tenancy ;

[(i) any right of way or other easement attaching to the land for which a record-of-rights is being prepared ;]

[(j) if the land is claimed to be held rent-free—whether or not rent is actually paid, and, if not paid, whether or not the occupant is entitled to hold the land without payment of rent, and if so entitled, under what authority.]

The first sentence of this section has been extended to the Chota Nagpore division except the district of Manbhum (Not, Feby. 9th, 1903), but the words “and may include” to the end of the section have not been so extended.

The words in light brackets in this section have been added by the Amending Act of 1898.

Clauses (dd), (gg) and (i) have been added and the former clause (i) has been re-lettered (j) by sec. 20, Act I, B. C., of 1907. And it is further provided that clause (gg) shall be deemed to have been so inserted from the commencement of the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Act, 1898.

Clause (b).—The enumeration of tenants in this clause, as it originally stood, was defective, as it did not include “settled raiyats.” The term “occupancy-raiyat,” used in the Act, does not cover “settled raiyats.” See notes to secs. 4 and 20, pp. 49, 90.

Clause (c).—“One or more of the boundaries” is substituted for ‘boundaries’ i. e., all the boundaries. It is sometimes unnecessary to encumber the record with all the four boundaries of all the fields, and, in such cases, it adds unnecessarily to the expense to do so.” (Statement of Objects and Reasons, para 23).

Clause (dd).—In the Select Committee’s report on the Bill of 1906 it is said: “It is important that the record should show the name of each proprietor. It was probably contemplated that clause (d) of section 102 would be sufficient, but it does not cover the case of an owner who has no tenants.”

Clause (e).—“The words ‘at the time the records-of-rights is being prepared’ have been added to make clear the meaning of the law, as doubts have been raised whether ‘the rent payable’ means the rent payable in future or in the past, or at the time the record is being prepared.”—(1d).

Clause (gg).—In the Notes on Clauses of the Bill of 1906, it is said :

“It has been the practice in most surveys and records-of-rights made within recent years to include among the particulars entered in the record-of-rights, a record of the rights and obligations of landlords and tenants with regard to the use of water for agricultural purposes. Conflicting opinions have been given by the legal advisers of the Government as to whether such a record can be made under the present section 102. Such records have been found useful in areas in which irrigation is a matter of importance; this clause therefore, is intended to authorise the making of such records in future, and also to place beyond doubt the validity of those which have already been made.”

This last sentence refers to the provision that this clause shall be deemed to have been inserted in the Act from the commencement of the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Act 1898.

Clause (i).—In the report of the Select Committee on the Bill of 1906 it is said :

“It has been brought to our notice that doubts have been expressed regarding the authority of the Revenue officer, making a record-of-rights under Chapter X of the Act, to include in such record entries relating to rights of way or other easements. Such matters, though not special conditions or incidents of a tenancy, may materially affect its value, and we consider that it is advisable that they should be included in the record-of-rights.”

The new clause counteracts the ruling of the High Court in the case of Haro Mohan Chauramani v. Pran Nath Miller, (27 Calc., 364.) where it was held that the existence of a right of way was not one of the conditions or incidents of a tenancy, and that a Settlement Officer had no jurisdiction to make an entry in respect of an alleged right of way in a record-of-rights.

Clause (j).—This clause “is added to make it quite clear that the Revenue Officer has authority to ascertain and record whether land is held rent-free or not. He had this authority under the old law of settlement.”—(Id.) But in Rudha Kishor Manikya v. Durga Nath Bhattacharjya, (32 Calc., 162.) decided under Chapter X before it was altered by the addition of this clause, it was held that the words “every settlement of rent or decision of a dispute by a revenue officer” are applicable only to those cases which a Revenue Officer has jurisdiction to try, and are not applicable to a decision of a Settlement Officer as to the validity of a lakheraj title under section 104 of the Act. The proceedings of the Revenue Officer under this clause will be of a summary and not of a judicial character. Any one interested who wishes to call in question the correctness of the particular record by the Revenue Officer may raise an “objection” before him (sec. 103A).

Remedies of persons affected by settlement proceedings. When the particular recorded under this clause is followed by an entry in, or an omission from a settlement rent roll, which is only prepared when a settlement of land revenue is being, or is about to be made, any one aggrieved by such entry or omission may, before the final publication of the settlement rent roll,

- (1) raise an “objection” before the Revenue Officer (sec. 104 E), and
- (2) appeal against his decision to the Superior Revenue authority prescribed by Government to hear such appeals (sec. 104 G).

After the settlement rent roll has been incorporated with the record-of-rights, and the latter has been finally published, any person aggrieved by an entry in, or an omission from it, may also

- (3) institute a suit in the Civil Court under section 104 H, or
- (4) institute a declaratory suit under sec. 111 A.

When the particular recorded under this clause is recorded in the course of a settlement in which a settlement of land revenue is not being, or is not about to be, made, then either the landlord or the occupant of the land concerning which the particular is recorded may

- (1) within two months of the date of the certificate of the final publication of the record-of-rights, apply for a settlement of a fair and equitable rent for the land in the course of which certain issues may be framed and decided (secs. 105 and 105A),
- (2) appeal against the Revenue-Officer's settlement of the rent or decision of the issues decided under section 105A to the Special Judge, [sec. 109 A (2)],
- (3) within three months from the date of the certificate of final publication institute a suit before the Revenue-Officer in respect of any matter other than the settlement of the rent or an issue raised under sec. 105A (sec. 106),
- (4) appeal against his decision to the Special Judge [sec. 109 A (2)], and
- (5) present a second appeal against the Special Judge's decision to the High Court [sec. 109 A (3)].

[102A. The Local Government may, for the purpose of settling or averting disputes existing or likely to arise between landlords, tenants, proprietors, or persons belonging to any of these classes regarding the use or passage of water, make an order directing that a survey be made, and a record-of-rights be prepared, by a Revenue-officer, in order to ascertain and record the rights and obligations of each tenant and landlord in any local area, estate or tenure or part thereof, in respect of—

- (a) the use by tenants of water for agricultural purposes, whether obtained from a river, jhil, tank, or well or any other source of supply ; and
- (b) the repair and maintenance of appliances for securing a supply of water for the cultivation of the land held by each tenant, whether or not such appliances be situated within the boundaries of such land.]

Power to order survey and preparation of record-of-rights as to water.

This section has been inserted in the Act by s. 21, Act I, B. C., 1907. In the Notes on Clauses of the Bill of 1906 it is said :

“The object of this clause is to give the Local Government power to make a record of the rights and obligations of landlord and tenant in regard to the use of water for agricultural purposes, independently of a general record-of-rights under section 101, when such a course appears necessary for the purpose of settling or averting disputes.”

The Select Committee in their report point out that the new section will apply to disputes between all classes of persons, not only as to the use of water, but also as to the passage of water through lands not benefited by it.

103. On the application of [one or more of the] proprietors or tenure-holders, [or of a large proportion of the raiyats, of an estate or tenure,] and on [the applicant or applicants] depositing or giving security for the required amount for expenses, a Revenue Officer may, subject to and in accordance with rules made in this behalf by the Local Government, ascertain and record all or any of the particulars specified in section 102 with respect to the estate or tenure or any part thereof.

Power for Revenue-officer to record particulars on application of proprietor or tenure-holder [or large proportion of raiyats.]

Effect of this section —Under section 101 (2) (a) the landlord, or tenants, or a large proportion of either, may apply for an order for a survey and record-of-rights, but before such an order can be made the sanction of the Local Government is required. Under this section one or more of the proprietors or tenure-holders or a large proportion of the raiyats may apply for the ascertainment and record of the particulars specified in sec 102, and no sanction of the Local Government is required before such an application can be granted. The application should be made to the Collector of the district. (See rules 45-58, Chap. VI of the Govt. rules under the Tenancy Act). In explanation of the introduction of the words “one or more” into this section, in the Statement of Objects and Reasons of the Bill, para 24, it is said :—

“Under the section as it stands in the Act, all the proprietors or tenure-holders must apply, but there seems to be no reason why an obstructive co-sharer should have power to prevent other co-sharers from obtaining a survey and record-of-rights, if they wish to do so, and are willing to deposit or give security for the expenses." *

The insertion of the words "one or more" in this section may be of advantage to purchasers of fractional shares in estates or tenures. Under the section, as it formerly was worded, they were often unable to derive any benefit from their purchases in consequence of the provisions of sec. 188 of this Act, which require all joint landlords to act collectively or by a common agent.

The Board of Revenue in their Cir. No. 2 of October, 1899, have directed that no action on applications under this section is to be taken unless and until the necessary deposits have been made for carrying on the work in connection therewith.

It has been held by the High Court that proceedings under sec. 103 of the former Chap. X of the Act are suits, and that, therefore, the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure apply to them (Achha Mian v. Durga Charan Laha, 25 Calc. 146 ; 2 C. W. N., 137). Sections 104—108 of the Bengal Tenancy Act (before the amendment of 1898) apply to proceedings taken under section 103 in the same way as to proceedings taken under section 101.

On an application under section 103, a Revenue Officer is competent to make a survey and prepare a record-of-rights without any order of the Government under section 101. (Dharani Kant Lahiri v. Gaber Ali Khan, 30 Calc. 339 ; 7 C. W. N., 33).

The particulars specified in section 102, when recorded and compiled under s. 103, amount to a "Record-of-rights," and proceedings taken by a Revenue Officer after making a record of the particulars under s. 103, including those under s. 105, are therefore not void for want of jurisdiction. In this case it was observed by Pargiter, J., that the difference between s. 103 of the old Chapter and the present section is that under the former the Revenue Officer was to record the particulars specified in s. 102. The present section gives an applicant the right to select what particulars he may wish to have recorded. If the applicant asks that all or almost all the particulars mentioned in s. 102 be recorded, the record would constitute a "record-of-rights ;" but if only the particulars mentioned in clauses (a) and (c) of s. 102 be recorded, they not involving any rights, the record could hardly be called a "record-of-rights" (Sudhendu Narain Acharjee v. Govinda Nath Sarkar, 32 Calc., 518 ; 9 C. W. N., 504 ; 1 C. L. J., 239).

103A. (1) When a [draft] record-of-rights has been [prepared], the Revenue Officer shall publish the draft in the prescribed manner and for the prescribed period, and shall receive and consider any objections which may be made to any entry therein, [or to any omission therefrom], during the period of publication.

Preliminary publication, amendment and final publication of record-
of-rights.

(2) [When such objections have been considered and disposed of according to such rules as the Local Government may prescribe, and (if a settlement of land revenue is being or is about to be made) the Settlement Rent Roll has been incorporated with the record under section 104F, sub-section (3)], the Revenue Officer shall finally frame the record, and shall cause it to be finally published in the prescribed manner; and the publication shall be conclusive evidence that the record has been duly made under this Chapter.

(3) [Separate draft or final records may be published under sub-section (1) or sub-section (2) for different local areas, estates, tenures or parts thereof.]

This section has been extended to the Chota Nagpur Division, except the district of Manbhum (Not., Feb. 9th, 1903), but the words in sub-section (2) "and (if a settlement of land revenue is being or is about to be made) the Settlement Rent Roll has been incorporated with the record under section 104 F, sub-section (3)" have been omitted.

The provisions of this section are founded on those of section 105 of Act VIII of 1885. The words in brackets have been added by the Amending Act of 1898.

An order striking off a petition of objection under sec. 103 A for default is not a judicial order, nor does it operate as res judicata (Nasarulla Miah v. Amiruddi, 3 C. L. J., 133).

If there is no settlement of rent under Chap. X, the entry in the record-of-rights, if it was duly published, would be only prima facie evidence in favour of the landlord—which may be rebutted for the tenant (Ashutosh Nath Rai v. Ishan Chandra Dey, 9 C. W. N., cclxxix). The presumption in favour of the accuracy of an undisputed entry as to the rate of rent is sufficiently rebutted by the decree in a contested rent inter partes showing a different rate (Ghaneshyam Misser v. Padmanand Singh, 32 Calc., 336 ;⁽¹⁾ 1 C. L. J., 134 ; 9 C. W. N., 610) and when in a certain khewat it is stated that certain persons are joint-holders of a tenure, this is rebutted when it is shown that for 60 years the tenants had separately held possession of their separate plots on payment of separate rents (Raj Narain Mitra v. Anant Tarai, 10 C. W. N., 908).

When there has been no settlement of rent and no final publication of the record-of-rights, an order under sec. 103 A disallowing an objection under sec. 103 A is not a final order or an order having a judicial effect. A suit brought to obtain a declaration that certain entries in such record are incorrect is not, therefore, barred either under art. 14, Sch. II of the Limitation Act or sec. 104 H, read with sec. 111 of this Act (Mahabir Prasad Sahu v. Kewal Kissen Singh, 2 C. L. J., 22n ; Ram Ghulam Singh v. Bishnu Pragash Singh, 11 C. W. N., 48.)

When a Revenue Officer disposes of an objection summarily without adopting the procedure laid down in the Code of Civil Procedure for the trial of suits, his order will not be open to appeal or second appeal, nor will it have the effect of res judicata. (Kurban Ali v. Jaffar Ali, 28 Calc., 471 ; 5 C. W. N., 798). Though a survey khata may not be evidence under sec. 103 B, it may be evidence of the conduct of the parties at the time of the survey and so admissible (Kalitara Chaudhrai v. Haru Kishor Rai, 1 C. L. J., 8 n). But under section 103 B, as amended by Act I, B. C., of 1907, every entry in a finally published record-of-rights is evidence of the matter referred to in such entry.

The rules prescribed by Government for the preliminary and final publication under this section of the record-of-rights are to be found in rules 20 and 35 of the revised Chap. VI of the Government rules under the Act. Objections made under this section are to be disposed of in accordance with rule 21.

Court Fees.—In exercise of the powers conferred by section 35 of the Court Fees Act, 1870 (VII of 1870), the Governor General in Council is pleased to remit the fees chargeable under the said Act on certified copies of entries in a record-of-rights furnished, in accordance with any rules for the time being in force under the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885 (VIII of 1885), after the final publication of such record-of-rights under sec. 103 A (2) of that Act (vide India Government Not., No. 4634

(1) This decision reviews the previous decision in the same case reported at 6 C. W. N., 914.

Exc., dated Simla the 18th August 1905)—Rev. Cir. Nov., 1905. For the rules referred to, see rule 43, Chapter VI of the Government rules in Appendix I.

103 B. [A certificate, signed by the Revenue Officer, stating that a record-of-rights has been finally published under this Chapter shall be conclusive evidence of such publication and] every entry in a record-of-rights [so published] shall be presumed to be correct until the contrary is proved.

Presumption as to correctness of record-of-rights.

Extended to the Chota Nagpur Division except the district of Manbhum (Not., Feb. 9th, 1903).

This is founded on sec. 109, sub-sec. (2), of Chap. X, as originally framed. The words in brackets have been introduced by the Amending Act of 1898.

The presumption is applicable to a suit instituted before the publication of the record-of-rights in which the entry is contained (Macdonald v. Babu Lal Purbi, 4 C. L. J., 519).

Where the record of rights does not show that there has been a settlement of rent under Chapter X of the Bengal Tenancy Act, the entry of the rent payable in the record is only prima facie evidence in favour of the landlord and is liable to be rebutted. But where a rent has been settled and duly entered in the record, such entry of the rent will have the force of a decree. (Abdur Rashid v. Jogesh Chandra Rai, 10 C. W. N., cxxviii; 3 C. L. J., 94 n).

New Section 103B.—The following section has been substituted in Bengal for the above section by sec 22, Act I, B. C., of 1907.

[103 B.] (1) In any suit or other proceeding in which a record-of-rights prepared and published under this Chapter, or a duly certified copy thereof or extract therefrom, is produced, such record-of-rights shall be presumed to have been finally published, unless such publication is expressly denied; and a certificate signed by the Revenue-officer, or by the Collector of any district in which the local area, estate or tenure or part thereof to which the record-of-rights relates, is wholly or partly situate, stating that a record-of-rights has been finally published under this Chapter, shall be conclusive evidence of such publication.

Presumption as to final publication and correctness of record-of-rights.

(2) The Local Government may, by notification, declare, with regard to any specified area, that a record-of-rights has been finally published for every village included in such area, and such notification shall be conclusive evidence of such publication.

(3) Every entry in a record-of-rights so published shall be evidence of the matter referred to in such entry, and shall be presumed to be correct until it is proved by evidence to be incorrect.]

In the Notes on Clauses of the Bill of 1906, it is said with reference to this new section 103B :

“This clause modifies the present section 103B, with the object of defining more clearly the weight to be attached to the entries in a finally published record-of-rights and to facilitate the proof of final publication. At present, difficulties are sometimes raised in the Appellate Courts owing to the certificate of final publication not having been produced in the Original Court, because the due publication of the record was not disputed there. There may also be difficulty in furnishing the necessary certificate, if it is called for, after the settlement operations have been concluded and the Revenue Officer has left the district. It is therefore proposed that the record-of-rights shall be presumed to have been finally published, unless this is expressly denied, and that a certificate signed by the Revenue Officer or by the Collector of the district, stating that the record-of-rights has been finally published, shall be conclusive evidence of such publication. It is also proposed to make the provisions of the section applicable to all suits and proceedings in which the record-of-rights may be produced.

Sub-section (2) of the proposed new section 103B, will obviate the necessity of producing a certificate regarding the final publication in every case in which there is a dispute.”

Part II.—Settlement of Rents, preparation of Settlement Rent Roll and decision of disputes [disposal of objections] in cases where a settlement of land revenue is being or is about to be made.

The words in heavy brackets in the heading of this part have been substituted in Bengal for "decision of disputes" by sec. 23, Act I, B. C., 1907.

Present procedure for settlement of rents in Government and temporarily settled estates.—The procedure now to be followed under Part II of this Chapter and the reasons for modifying the former provisions of the Act are explained in the Statement of Objects and Reasons for the Bill to amend the Tenancy Act (paras 12 and 13) as follows :—

"An important change is proposed in procedure, namely, to transfer the control and supervision of Revenue Officers, when preparing the record-of-rights and fixing the amount of the rents, to the Revenue authorities in the first instance. This is subject, however, to the proviso that entries relating to possession, status, title, etc., in the record-of-rights may be called in question in the Civil Courts, as they are to have only presumptive correctness, and that entries of rent settled, in the Settlement Rent Roll, may be also called in question in the Courts on certain specified grounds noted. If the Civil Court finds that any such entry is incorrect, it shall itself specify what correction is to be made, and shall not refer the matter back to the Revenue Officer. The Bill, therefore, enlarges, rather than curtails, the powers of the Civil Courts. Questions of status, title, etc., which under the Act were intended to be finally decided by the Revenue Officer, subject to appeal to the Special Judge, are now to be explicitly left for final decision to the Civil Courts. As to questions of rent settled, there was under the Act an appeal from the Revenue Officer to the Special Judge, but no appeal from the Special Judge to the High Court. The Bill transfers the right of appeal on these questions, in the first instance, from the Revenue Officer to the confirming Revenue authorities, but even as regards rents settled does not altogether exclude resort to the Civil Courts, for it gives them jurisdiction, which they had not under the Act, in a large class of cases.

"On the question of settling rents the Select Committee reporting on the Tenancy Bill, as passed, said—

"The questions whether a rent is open to settlement, and, if so, the amount at which it should be settled, are of a complex nature depending on two very different sets of considerations. They depend, in the first place, on issues relating to such matters as the existence of the tenancy, the extent of the land, the status of the tenant, the conditions under which he holds, etc., and possibly involving points of law which could not satisfactorily be decided without the security afforded by an ultimate appeal to the highest judicial authority. They depend, in the second place, on considerations of an economical nature, such as the state of prices prevailing at different periods, the effect of improvements, and so forth, which it is universally admitted cannot be adequately dealt with, either in the first instance or on appeal except after local enquiry and by persons possessed of special technical knowledge. The problem before us has been how best to provide for the separation of these two elements, so that each may be dealt with, and finally dealt with, by those most competent to deal with it.'

'If for the reasons given above it is desirable to withdraw the judicial procedure and appeal to the Special Judge, so far as proceedings before the Revenue Officers for the decision of disputes are concerned, it is manifestly more so in the matter of settling rents, which as the Select Committee remarked, 'it is universally admitted cannot be adequately dealt with either in the first instance or on appeal except after local enquiry by persons possessed of special technical knowledge.' The Revenue authorities are the best judges of economic facts, as the Select Committee held, and all that is now proposed is to restore to them their proper jurisdiction, while reserving all questions of right and title for the Courts. Provision is at the same time made for giving to the settlements of rents and decisions of disputes hitherto made by Revenue Officers under the law as it stands, that finality which, subject to appeal to the Special Judge, it was intended by the framers of the Act that they should have.

The Hon'ble Mr. Finucane in introducing into Council the Bill to amend the Bengal Tenancy Act made the following observations on the subject :

"The principal changes in procedure proposed in Chapter X of the Tenancy Act are these two :—(1) Under the Act revenue officers were intended and empowered to decide all disputes that came before them at any time up to the final publication of the records, in the same way, and following with slight modifications the same procedure, as the Civil Courts, whether such disputes related to possession, right, title, status or any other question that might arise from an entry made or proposed to be made in or an omission from, the record. Their decisions were to have the force and effect of decrees of the Civil Courts, and were to be subject to appeal only to a Special Judge appointed by Government for the purpose, and from him to the High Court ; but it was not intended that the correctness of their orders on any dispute so decided should be liable to be questioned in the ordinary Munsifs' Courts. Now, it is proposed that revenue officers shall not finally decide any questions of the kind, nor are their orders to have the force and effect of decrees of the Civil Courts. When a dispute is raised on any of the classes of questions just mentioned, Revenue officers will endeavour to ascertain to the best of their ability the true state of things, and after hearing what the parties concerned have to say, (1) they will pass a summary order directing that entry to be made in the record which appears to them to be the proper one. These entries will be presumed to be correct, but any one who is dissatisfied with them can contest their correctness in the ordinary Civil Courts having jurisdiction to entertain a suit for recovery of rent of the land which forms the subject-matter of the dispute.

(1) This now applies only to "objections" under sec. 103 A.

"I will explain later on why this change is proposed. Here I merely note the fact.

"(2) The second great change proposed in the procedure prescribed in Chapter X is in the method and agency for the determination of fair rents. Under the present law, Revenue Officers are bound to settle rents, as in the case of decision of disputes, on the same principles, in the same way, and following the same procedure as the Civil Courts; their final orders or decisions fixing fair rents are appealable to the Special Judge, but no second appeal, as regards the question whether the rent is pitched too high or too low, lies to the High Court against an order of a Revenue Officer fixing a fair rent.

"Under the Bill it is proposed that the orders of Revenue Officers fixing fair rents shall not be appealable to the Special Judge, but to the superior Revenue authorities and that the finding of the Revenue authorities as to what the amount of the fair rent is, shall be final, except in certain specified classes of cases, in which it is left open to the parties to contest in the Civil Court the orders of the Revenue authorities even as to the amount of a fair rent settled, but only on certain specified grounds.

"If I have succeeded in making these two points clear, it will be manifest in the first place that the Bill not only does not curtail the powers of the ordinary Civil Courts, but, on the contrary, that it actually enlarges the powers of these Courts, that it transfers to them from the Revenue Officers the decision of all disputes involving questions of possession, status, right, and title, and allows an appeal to the High Court on every point on which an appeal now lies to that Court, and that all it does is to alter the procedure for settlement of rent and to transfer the right of appeal on questions of fixing rents from the Special Judge to the Revenue authorities. It is true it allows no resort to the ordinary Munsiffs' Courts or to the High Court as to the amount of a rent settled, except on certain specified grounds, but neither does the present law.

"I now proceed to state reasons why the first of the changes mentioned above, namely, the transference of the decision of disputes to the Civil Courts, is proposed. The framers of the Act of 1885 thought that on a Revenue officer beginning a record-of-rights, he would find himself face to face with numerous cases in which, on the one side or the other, the status of the raiyat, the area of the holding, the amount of the rent payable, were the subject of dispute. Unless he could deal with these disputes, the record would, they thought, be of little value, and it was in their opinion, obviously absurd to empower one officer to settle the question of status and area, and then to send another to settle the question of rent. It appeared to them equally unreasonable to empower a Revenue officer, with all the parties and witnesses before him, to decide disputes and then to allow the whole matter to be re-opened from the very beginning in a Civil Court.

"The natural result of such a course must, it was supposed, be to leave behind the Revenue officer a crop of litigation for the Civil Courts to deal with after the Revenue officer had left. Hence the Select Committee on the Tenancy Bill empowered the Revenue officers to decide all disputes that might arise out of their own proceedings, instead of leaving them over for the decision of the Civil Courts.

"It will be asked, why it is now proposed to depart from the conclusion then come to in this respect? The answer is—firstly, that the officers themselves have, in recent years, declared that the burden of deciding questions of possession, status, right and title, following the procedure of the Civil Procedure Code, is too heavy for them, and have begged to be relieved of it : and, secondly, that the High Court have declared that the class of officers employed on survey and settlement proceedings are unfit for the work of deciding questions of status, right and title.

"In one of their judgments⁽¹⁾ the Hon'ble Judges of the High Court expressed the opinion that the Legislature could not have intended to transfer civil suits as to rights in land between tenant and tenant to the Revenue Officer, and in another⁽²⁾ they declared that they did not think that the Legislature contemplated the formidable result that officers, such as those entrusted with the duty of preparing records of right, should be permitted to enquire into disputes as to the titles to land of indefinite extent.

"It will be shown presently that the intention of the Legislature in reality was that Revenue officers should enquire into and decide all disputes coming before them. But however that may be, the proposals now made in this respect are in accordance with the views of the Hon'ble Judges as enunciated in the decisions to which I have referred, and as they are also in accordance with the wishes of the Revenue officers concerned, it is hoped that they will meet with general approval.

"The sole objection to this part of the Government proposals is in this, that, as the authors of the Tenancy Act feared, the Revenue officers will leave after them disputes which they have raised but not finally settled, and as these disputes will, if the parties wish to have them decided at all, have to be decided by the Civil Courts, the suitors, especially those of the poorer classes, may find the cost of litigation in the Civil Courts much higher and the results not more satisfactory than the decisions of the Revenue officers have been. This is no doubt a serious risk ; but the difficulties put in the way of Revenue officers by the decisions of the superior Civil Courts are so great that some change in the law is considered clearly necessary, and no more satisfactory solution of the problem has in the opinion of Government been suggested than that now proposed in the Bill.

(1) Pandit Sirdar v. Meajan, 21 Calc., 878.

(2) Bidhu Mukhi Debi v. Bhagmou Chandra Rai, 19 Calc., 648

“For these reasons then it is proposed that Revenue Officers shall be relieved altogether of the duty of deciding disputes. They will in preparing records-of-right confine themselves to ascertaining and recording, to the best of their ability, existing facts of possession and status. Presumptive evidential value of correctness will be given to the entries made by them in their records, and it will be open to the parties concerned to question the correctness of these entries in the Civil Courts.

“I now come to the reasons for the second important change proposed, namely, that in the procedure, method and agency for settling rents. The method of settling rents prescribed in the Tenancy Act is briefly this—the existing rents are presumed to be fair, and any one who wants to alter them has to show, by legal evidence, the grounds of the proposed alteration. The present Act provides that in all proceedings of settlement of rents under Chapter X the Revenue Officer shall, subject to rules made by the Local Government, adopt the procedure laid down in the Code of Civil Procedure for the trial of suits, and their orders fixing fair rents are appealable to the Special Judge. This implies that each individual case must, (subject to joinder of tenants holding under the same landlord in the same village), be dealt with separately, a separate record being separately recorded in each individual case. Now, when settlements of revenue are being made on a large scale, as they are in Orissa and Chittagong, and rents have consequently to be settled for all the tenants of an entire Division containing hundreds of thousands of holdings, it must be manifestly impossible to treat the settlement of rent in the case of each individual tenant judicially and as a separate civil suit, if the proceedings are to be completed within a reasonable limit of time and at a reasonable expenditure of money. Moreover, it is not necessary for the ends of justice to treat each individual tenant's case separately. When, for example, a rise or fall in the prices since the rents were last fixed has been established to the satisfaction of the Court or the Revenue Officer, and an alteration in the rents generally is sought on the ground of rise or fall in prices since the rents were last fixed, it would obviously involve great waste of time and money to record the evidence on the point of alteration in prices over and over in each separate case. The same remark applies to a prevailing rate. If a prevailing rate is once established for a village or local area, it should not be necessary to record all the evidence in support of it over and over again in each individual tenant's case. But it is necessary to do this if the judicial procedure is to be followed in the settlement of rents. To meet these and other difficulties, it is now proposed to dispense with the judicial procedure altogether in the settlement of fair rents by Revenue officers, and to substitute more elastic methods of settling rents under the supervision and control of the Superior Revenue authorities whose findings will be liable to be contested in the Civil Courts on certain specified grounds and on those grounds only.

"Nobody who has not travelled through Bengal, Bihar and Orissa, and studied on the ground the existing land-tenures, can fully comprehend the immense variety and complication of rent systems that prevail in these Provinces.

"In Chittagong, on the one side, small plots of permanently-settled and temporarily-settled lands measuring a half an acre or less—plots of what are known as long-term and short-term taluks, itmams, dar-itmams, and various other tenures of the kind, not to speak of plots embraced in ordinary occupancy and non-occupancy raiyats' holdings—are all interspersed like squares on a chessboard in the same village. The same person is often proprietor, and having created a tenure under himself in favour of another person, then becomes an occupancy-tenant under the tenure-holder of his own creation in land of which he is also proprietor.

"In Backerganj there are no less than 13 different grades of intermediate tenure-holders between the proprietor and the actual cultivator, and the same person often holds shares as proprietor and again as tenure-holder under another tenure-holder and as occupancy-raiyat under yet another, all in the same plot of land. To give a concrete example. In a particular estate in that district one Kamiruddin has a small plot of land. He holds a fractional share, represented by $\frac{7021}{12288}$ of that plot as an occupancy-raiyat under a howladar, a share, represented by $\frac{1175}{8072}$, under another howladar as tenant at fixed rates, $\frac{105}{8072}$ as occupancy-raiyat under the same howladar, and $\frac{147}{12288}$ as under-raiyat.

"Again, in Chota Nagpur, in another direction, rent is assessed not by an acreage rate, but by guesswork according to the number of ploughs the tenant may have or the quantity of seed sown by him. In Bihar, in another direction the system of tenures is comparatively simple and is analogous to that prevailing in the neighbouring districts of the North-Western Provinces; but even there proprietary interests are extremely complicated, and a proprietor has been known to hold the one-millionth part of an estate, the Government revenue of the whole estate being one anna.

"How is it possible for a Judicial Officer sitting in a Court with no experience of these things to understand these complications of tenures or to fairly assess the rents that they ought to pay?

"But even if an officer sitting in Court could understand the intricacies of tenures, still the assessment of fair rents on a large scale under the procrustean rules of judicial procedure would be extremely difficult.

"As Sir John Shore wrote more than 100 years ago: 'The infinite varieties of soil and further variations of value from local circumstances are absolutely beyond the investigation and almost the comprehension not merely of a Collector, but of anybody who has not made it the business of his life.'

"Sir Charles Elliott wrote 80 years later, when he was Settlement Officer in the Central Provinces : 'The art of fixing rent is an almost lost one. If you ask any zamindar why such a field pays such a rent, the most intelligent of them can give you no answer but that his fathers fixed it so.'

"Now, such being the complications of tenures and such being the difficulties in the way of settling rents, on a great scale, it is considered by Government that the best agency for overcoming these difficulties is that of Revenue Officers, who can go on the ground, see the land for themselves, observe and ascertain the facts on the land, and consult the people concerned in their villages. It is thought that the hard-and-fast rules of the Law of Evidence and of the Civil Procedure Code are not suited to proceedings of this kind. It follows that it is not desirable to tie Revenue Officers down by the Civil Procedure Code or prescribe any one method of settling rents, and to insist that Revenue Officers shall follow that method only.

"A good Settlement Officer who is tactful and sympathetic will make a good settlement without any law. He will consult the people concerned, be guided largely by what they think, and generally carry them with him. He will recognise the facts that the people who have lived on the land all their lives know very much more than he can of its capabilities, that the present rent is the result of the past history of the holding and of the haggling of all the ages, and he will not, if he is wise, ignore that history or attempt to raise or lower all rents to one dead level according to his own preconceived notions of the fitness of things. The landlords and rai-yats are generally reasonable when brought together in their villages, surrounded by their neighbours and restrained by the public opinion of their fellows. Hence, it is deemed to be a matter of cardinal importance that officers settling rents should be free to consult the people in their villages, to note what they say, and themselves to observe facts on the spot and make use of the knowledge thus acquired in coming to a conclusion as to what a fair rent would be. But this the Law of Evidence and the Civil Procedure Code do not allow them to do.

"Again, an inexperienced Revenue Officer may, under the present law, do great mischief either by excessive enhancements or reductions of rent. The superior Revenue authorities have no real control over him under the law as it stands, and his decisions, however manifestly wrong, can only be reversed by a regular appeal to the Special Judge, which appeal can only be made within 30 days of the passing of his order, and when made may take a very long time to decide. Moreover, as I have already indicated, if each and every landlord and tenant in a vast estate or local area under settlement of rents were to contest the Revenue Officer's orders or proposals for settling fair rents, and to fight out every case as a civil suit, as they are entitled to do under the present law, it is clear that the proceedings would be interminable, and the expense intolerable. Happily the rai-yats and landlords have not fought out every case. They have generally accepted reasonable proposals ; but, admitting this to be the rule, there have been exceptions where the tenants kept aloof and rents were settled behind their backs, which were manifestly unfair. These rents were not appealed against to the Special Judge within the period of limitation. They became binding on the parties, and the Revenue authorities had no legal power to alter them. The law ought not to be based on the assumption that recourse to it will not be generally needed, and that people will always be moderate and reasonable.

"For all these reasons it is proposed to transfer the control of Revenue Officers in settling rents to the Revenue authorities, who are not to be tied down by the rules of judicial procedure, and it is also proposed to make the method of settling rents more elastic than it now is." (1) (Proceedings of the Bengal Council, 3rd April, 1897, pp. 147-156).

Settlement of rents, and preparation of Settlement Rent Roll, when to be undertaken by Revenue Officer.

104. In every case in which a settlement of land-revenue is being or is about to be made, the Revenue Officer shall, after publication of the draft of the record-of-rights under section 103 A, subsection (1),—

- (a) settle fair and equitable rents for tenants of every class,
- (b) notwithstanding anything contained in section 192, settle a fair and equitable rent for any land in respect of which he has recorded, in pursuance of clause (i) [clause (j)] of section 102, that the occupant is not entitled to hold it without payment of rent, and
- (c) prepare a Settlement Rent Roll.

[Provided that the Revenue-officer shall not settle the rents of tenants of every class in an estate or tenure belonging to the Government, if it does not appear to the Local Government to be expedient that he should do so.]

(1). This was the original plan, but it was subsequently modified.

The words in heavy brackets have been inserted in this section as a consequential amendment to the amendment made by Act I, B. C., of 1907 in sec. 102 and the proviso has been added by sec. 21, Act I, B. C., of 1907.

Modifications made by this section.—This section is founded on a portion of section 104 of the former Chapter X, which ran as follows :—

“In any case under section 101, sub-section (2), clause (d), (1) the officer shall settle a fair and equitable rent in respect of the land held by the tenant.

In settling rents under this section, the officer shall presume, until the contrary is proved, that the existing rent is fair and equitable, and shall have regard to the rules laid down in this Act for the guidance of the Civil Court in increasing or reducing rents, as the case may be.”

The extent of the modifications made by this section will be seen on comparing the provisions of the two sections. It is to be noted that that the last clause of the former section 104, cited above has not been reproduced in the present section. In settling rents under this section, then, the Revenue officer is no longer bound to presume the existing rent to be fair and equitable, nor is he under any of the restrictions imposed by this Act on the enhancement or reduction of rent, except as provided in section 104 A (1) (d). Under the proviso to sec. 104C, however, he is not bound to apply the rates specified in a Table of Rates in any particular case in which he may consider it unfair and inequitable to do so, and according to the last clause of sec. 104D he shall, in settling rents in accordance with the Table of Rates, “so far as may be, have regard to the general principles of this Act regulating the enhancement or reduction of rents.”

Section 192 referred to in clause (b) of the section gives power to a Revenue officer when land revenue is being for the first time assessed on, or a fresh settlement of land revenue is being made of, a temporarily settled area, on the application of either the landlord or the tenant (or, in areas in which Act I, B. C., of 1907 is in force, of his own motion), to set aside leases to hold land rent-free or at a particular rent and to assess rent upon the land, but requires him to fix a fair and equitable rent in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

Duty of Revenue Officer.—The Revenue Officer is bound under this section to settle fair and equitable rents for all classes of tenants. It would, therefore, seem to be his duty to settle the rents of under-*rai*yats as well as the rents of other classes of tenants. Where some sort of a tenancy is admitted, the Settlement Officer has jurisdiction to settle rent under sec. 104.

(1) i.e., when a settlement of revenue is being or is to be made.)

Effect of Settlement of Rent.—A settlement of rent under sec. 104 (2) for the purposes of land revenue has under sec. 107 the force of a final decree of a Civil Court and as such operates as res judicata upon the question of rent payable by the tenant both as to its nature and amount (Brahmanand Mahapatra v. Arjun Raut, 1 C. L. J., 310; Durga Charan Laha v. Hatim Mandal, 29 Calc., 252; 6 C. W. N., 238. These rulings refer to Chapter X as it stood before the Amendment Act of 1898. Under the present Chapter X, section 107 does not apply to rents settled under part II. Section 104 J. deals with the finality of such rents.

Proviso.—It has been held that Explanation 1 to section 101 (2) (d), read with section 104 (a), renders it necessary to settle fair and equitable rents for tenants of every class, whenever a survey and record-of-rights is made in respect of a Government estate or tenure. This course is ordinarily adopted, but it is sometimes found inconvenient. By the proviso it is accordingly enacted that in Bengal it shall not be necessary to settle the rents of tenants of every class in a Government estate or tenure, when it does not appear to the Government to be expedient to do so.

Procedure for settlement of rents and preparation of Settlement Rent Roll under this part.

- (a) if in any case the landlord and tenant agree between themselves as to the amount of the rent fairly and equitably payable, the Revenue Officer shall satisfy himself that the rent so agreed upon is fair and equitable, and if he is so satisfied, but not otherwise, it may be settled and recorded as the fair and equitable rent;
- (b) the Revenue Officer may himself propose what he deems to be the fair and equitable rent, and if the amount so proposed is accepted, either orally or in writing by the tenant, and if the landlord, after notice to attend, raises no objection, the rent so proposed may be settled and recorded as the fair and equitable rent;

(c) if the circumstances are, in the opinion of the Revenue Officer, such as to make it practicable to prepare a Table of Rates showing for any local area, estate, tenure or village or part thereof, or for each class of land in any local area, estate, tenure or village or part thereof, the rate or rates of rent fairly and equitably payable by tenureholders and raiyats and under-raiyats of each class, he may frame a Table of Rates and settle and record all or any of the rents on the basis of such rates in the manner hereinafter described :

(d) the Revenue Officer may settle all or any of the rents by maintaining the existing rentals recorded in the record-of-rights as published under section 103A, sub-section (1), or by enhancing or reducing such rentals: Provided that in making any such settlement regard shall be had to the principles laid down in sections 6 to 9 (both inclusive), 27 to 36 (both inclusive), 38, 39, 43, 50, to 52 (both inclusive), 180 and 191.

(2) The Settlement Rent Roll shall show the name of each landlord and of each tenant whose rent has been settled, and the amount of each such tenant's rent payable for the area shown against his name.

The provisions of this and of the following sections of Part II of this Chapter were introduced into the Chapter by the Amending Act of 1898.

Objects and Reasons of this section.—The reasons for introducing this section are as follows :—

“The endless variety of local conditions in a vast Province like Bengal, containing, as it does, in one place or another, every form of land-tenure known in India, from the primitive system of Chota Nagpur and Angul, analogous to that of the Central Provinces, on one side, to the Bihar system, analogous to that of the North Western Provinces, in another, to the highly complex and intricate system prevailing in Chittagong and Backergunge in a third direction, and to the raiwtwari system prevailing in Government estates, analogous to the Madras and Bombay systems, in other directions, is so great, that no one system of settling rents will work well in all parts of the province alike.

“Hence, it is thought desirable to make the method of settling rents more elastic than it is at present, and this has been provided for in the new section 104A inserted in the Bill. That section enables the Revenue Officer to settle rents by compromise, with the assent of the parties, when satisfied that the rents agreed upon are fair and equitable, or to propose rents which, if accepted, may be settled as fair, or to frame a Table of Rates where the conditions are such as to render this practicable, and to apply the rates to areas resulting from survey, or to maintain the existing rents, or to enhance or reduce them on the grounds specified in the Tenancy Act.

“The system of framing Tables of Rates was abandoned when the Tenancy Act was being passed, because it was thought to be generally impracticable : but it was admitted at the time that there were some areas in which it was practicable to frame Tables of Rates. It is believed that this is the case in parts of Orissa, to which province the Tenancy Act was not extended when passed. The provisions of the Bill for framing Tables of Rates follow to a large extent the proposals of the Rent Commission and those of the Bill of 1884.” (Statement of Objects and Reasons appended to the Bill to amend the Tenancy Act, paras, 9, 10 and 11).

Table of Rates.

- (a) the class or several classes of land for which, having regard to the nature of the soil, situation, means of irrigation, and other like considerations, it is in the opinion of the Revenue Officer necessary or practicable to fix a rate or different rates of rent ; and

(b) the rate or rates of rent fairly and equitably payable by tenants holding land of each such class whose rent is liable to alteration.

(2) When the Revenue Officer has prepared the Table of Rates he shall publish it in the local area, estate, tenure or village to which it relates, in the vernacular language prevailing in the district, and in the prescribed manner.

(3) Any person objecting to any entry in the Table of Rates may present a petition to the Revenue Officer within a period of one month after such publication, and the Revenue Officer shall consider any such objection and may alter or amend the Table.

(4) If no objection is made within the said period of one month, or, where objections are made, after they have been disposed of, the Revenue Officer shall submit his proceedings to the Revenue authority empowered by rule made by the Local Government to confirm the Tables and Rent Rolls prepared under this Part (hereinafter called the "confirming authority"), with a full statement of the grounds of his proposals, and shall forward any petitions of objection which he may have received.

(5) The confirming authority may confirm a Table submitted under sub-section (4), or may disallow the same, or may amend the same in any manner which appears to it proper, and may allow in whole or in part any objection forwarded therewith or subsequently made, or may return the case for further enquiry.

(6) When a Table of Rates has been confirmed by the confirming authority, the order confirming it shall be conclusive evidence that the proceedings for the preparation of the Table have been duly conducted in accordance with this Act; and it may be presumed that the rates shown in the Table for tenants of each class, for each class of land, are the fair and equitable rates payable for land of that class within the area to which the Table applies.

104C. When a Table of Rates has been confirmed under section 104B, sub-section (5), the Revenue Officer may settle all or any of the rents and prepare the Settlement Rent Roll on the basis of the rates shown in the Table, by calculating the rental of each tenure or each holding of a raiyat or under-raiyat on the area of such tenure or holding at the said rates :

Provided that the Revenue Officer shall not be bound to apply the said rates in any particular case in which he may consider it unfair or inequitable to do so.

104D. In framing a Table of Rates under section 104B, and in settling rents under section 104C, the Revenue Officer shall be guided by such rules as the Local Government may make in this behalf, and shall, so far as may be, and subject to the proviso to the said section 104C, have regard to the general principles of this Act regulating the enhancement or reduction of rents.

Rules and principles to be followed in framing Table of Rates and settling rents in accordance therewith.

The rules regarding the preparation of Tables of Rates and Settlement Rent Rolls are contained in Section VII, Chapter VI of the Government Rules reproduced in Appendix I. Under rule 23, Tables of Rates are not ordinarily to be prepared, when it is found that the tenants hold their lands at lump rentals, and no rates actually exist, or when the rates are so numerous and varied, and are so little dependent on the class of soil, that no table of existing rates can be prepared.

104E. (1) When a Settlement Rent Roll for a local area, estate, tenure, or village or part thereof has been prepared, the Revenue Officer shall cause a draft of it to be published in the prescribed manner and for the prescribed period, and shall receive and consider any objections made to any entry therein, or omission therefrom, during the period of publication, and shall dispose of such objections according to such rules as the Local Government may prescribe.

Preliminary publication and amendment of Settlement Rent Roll.

(2) The Revenue Officer may, of his own motion or on the application of any party aggrieved, at any time before a Settlement Rent Roll is submitted to the confirming authority under section 104F, revise any rent entered therein :

Provided that no such entry shall be revised until reasonable notice has been given to the parties concerned to appear and be heard in the matter.

104F. (1) When all objections have been disposed of under section 104E, the Revenue Officer shall submit the Settlement Rent Roll to the confirming authority, with a full statement of the grounds of his proposals and a summary of the objections (if any) which he has received.

(2) The confirming authority may sanction the Settlement Rent Roll, with or without amendment, or may return it for revision :

Provided that no entry shall be amended, or omission supplied, until reasonable notice has been given to the parties concerned to appear and be heard in the matter.

(3) After sanction by the confirming authority, the Revenue Officer shall finally frame the Settlement Rent Roll, and shall incorporate it with the record-of-rights published in draft under section 103A.

104G. (1) An appeal, if presented within two months from the date of the order appealed against, shall lie from every order passed by a Revenue Officer prior to the final publication of the record-of-rights on any objection made under section 104B, sub-section (3), or section 104E ; and such appeal shall lie to such superior Revenue authority as the Local Government may by rule prescribe.

Appeal to, and revision by, superior Revenue authorities.

(2) The Board of Revenue may, in any case under this Part, on application or of its own motion, direct the revision of any record-of-rights, or any portion of a record-of-rights, at any time within two years from the date of the certificate of final publication, but not so as to affect any order passed by a Civil Court under section 104H :

Provided that no such direction shall be made until reasonable notice has been given to the parties concerned to appear and be heard in the matter.

Sub-section (2) of this section has been extended to the Chota Nagpur Division, except the district of Manbhum (Not., Feb. 9th, 1903,) but for the word "Part" read "Chapter" and the words "but not so as to affect any order passed by a Civil Court under section 104H" are omitted.

Board of Revenue's Instructions as to period of revision.

"From certain cases that have recently come before the Board, it appears that misconception exists as to the period during which settlement records are open to revision by the Board under section 104 G (2) of the Bengal Tenancy Act. The Legal Remembrancer has advised (Bd.'s Progs. Coll. 10, file 21 of 1902) that section 104 G (2) must be so construed as to give the Board the power of revision in a case where an application has been made by the party within two years from the date of the certificate of final publication. This view is based on judicial rulings, which have affirmed that parties should not suffer where a procedure to which they are entitled to have recourse in a suit becomes technically barred by limitation through no fault of theirs but an act or omission of the Court. Applications, or recommendations, of local officers for revision of a record-of-rights by the Board in exercise of its powers under the section cited should be forwarded without avoidable delay." (Board's Cir. No. 3, Nov., 1906).

104H. (1) Any person aggrieved by an entry of a rent settled in a Settlement Rent Roll prepared under sections 104A to 104F and incorporated in a record-of-rights finally published under section 103A, or by an omission to settle a rent for entry in such Settlement Rent Roll, may institute a suit in the Civil Court which would have jurisdiction to entertain a suit for the possession of the land to which the entry relates or in respect of which the omission was made.

(2) Such suit must be instituted within six months from the date of the certificate of final publication of the record-of-rights, or, if an appeal has been presented to a Revenue authority under section 104G, then, within six months from the date of the disposal of such appeal.

(3) Such suit may be instituted on any of the following grounds, and on no others, namely :

- (a) that the land is not liable to the payment of rent ;
- (b) that the land, although entered in the record-of-rights as being held rent-free, is liable to the payment of rent ;
- (c) that the relation of landlord and tenant does not exist ;
- (d) that land has been wrongly recorded as part of a particular estate or tenancy, or wrongly omitted from the lands of an estate or tenancy ;
- (e) that the tenant belongs to a class different from that to which he is shown in the record-of-rights as belonging ;
- (f) that the Revenue Officer has not postponed the operation of the settled rent under the provisions of section 110, clause (a), or has wrongly fixed the date from which it is to take effect under that clause ;
- (g) that the special conditions and incidents of the tenancy have not been recorded or have [or any right of way or other easement attaching to the land which is the subject of the tenancy have not, or has not, been recorded or have, or has,] been wrongly recorded.

The Secretary of State for India in Council shall not be made a defendant in any such suit unless the Government is landlord or tenant of the land to which the aforesaid entry relates or in respect of which the aforesaid omission was made.

(4) If it appears to the Court that the entry of rent settled is incorrect, it shall, in case (a) or case (c) mentioned in sub-section (3), declare that no rent is payable, and shall in any other case settle a fair rent; and in any case referred to in clause (f) or clause (g) of the said sub-section (3), the Court may declare the date from which the rent settled is to take effect, or pass such order relating to the entry as it may think fit.

(5) When the Court has declared under sub-section (4) that no rent is payable, the entry to the contrary effect in the record-of-rights shall be deemed to be cancelled.

(6) In settling a fair rent under sub-section (4) the Court shall be guided by the rents of the other tenures or holdings of the same class comprised in the same Settlement Rent Roll, as settled under sections 104A to 104F.

(7) Any rent settled by the Court under sub-section (4) shall be deemed to have been duly settled in place of the rent entered in the Settlement Rent Roll.

(8) Save as provided in this section, no suit shall be brought in any Civil Court in respect of the settlement of any rent or the omission to settle any rent under sections 104A to 104F.

(9) When a Civil Court has passed final orders or a decree under this section it shall notify the same to the Collector of the district.

The words in heavy brackets in sub-section (3), clause (g) have been substituted by s. 25, Act I, B. C. 1907, for the words "have not been recorded or have."

Sub-section (2).—The period of limitation laid down in this sub-section only applies to cases in which a Settlement Officer settles or omits to settle rent (Abhin Das v. Balunki Pal, 11 C. W. N., ccxix).

Sub-section (3).—This sub-section has been framed with reference to High Court rulings under the former Chapter X, in which it was decided that Revenue Officers in settlement proceedings had no jurisdiction to decide finally and conclusively on such questions relating to a tenant's status as are detailed in the provisions of this sub-section. These rulings are referred to in detail in the note to sec. 106, p. 339. The entries in the record-of-rights concerning such matters and all matters not affecting the determination of the rent, when a settlement of land revenue is being or is about to be made, have now only the presumption of correctness attaching to them. They can be called in question in the Civil Courts, which have now when settling such matters the duty cast upon them of correcting the entries in the record-of-rights (see sub-secs. 4, 5, 6, 7 and 9). In all matters relating to the determination of the tenant's rent and its enhancement or reduction, which are not affected by such questions as are specified in this sub-section, but in these only, the Revenue authorities have absolute and final jurisdiction.

This section has been designed mainly to safeguard the Government revenue and to attach reasonable finality to the fixation of the rental assets upon which the assessment of revenue is fixed. It does not bar a suit against the recorded tenant for rent due (Nasarulla Mia v. Amiruddi, 3 C. L. J., 133).

Sub-section (3), clause (g).—The amendment introduced in clause (g) of sub-section (3) is consequential on the amendment introducing the new clause (i) in s. 102 (see p. 300). The Select Committee in their report on the Bill of 1906 said :

"We think that, for the purposes of section 104 H, the record of easements should be on the same footing as the record of special conditions and incidents of the tenancy, and that this is one of the grounds on which a suit should be allowed to be instituted in the Civil Court regarding an entry in a Settlement Rent-roll prepared under Part II of Chapter X."

Sub-section (8).—Save as provided in this section, no suit shall be brought in a Civil Court for the alteration of any entry of a rent settled under secs. 104A to 104F. But any one dissatisfied with an entry in, or an omission from, a record-of-rights prepared under this Part of the Chapter, which concerns a right of which he is in possession, may sue for a declaration of his right under the provisions of the Specific Relief Act (I of 1877). (See also sec. 111 A.)

104J. Subject to the provisions of section 104H, all rents settled under sections 104A to 104F, and entered in a record-of-rights finally published under section 103A, or settled under section 104G, shall be deemed to have been correctly settled and to be fair and equitable rents within the meaning of this Act.

Rules.—For the procedure under Part II of this Chapter, see rules 22 to 34 of Chap. VI of the Government rules under this Act (App. I)

Part III.—Settlement of Rents and decision of disputes in cases where a settlement of land revenue is not being or is not about to be made.

105. (1) When, [in any case in which a settlement of land-revenue is not being made or is not about to be made], either the landlord or the tenant applies, [within two months from the date of the certificate of the final publication of the record-of-rights under section 103A, sub-section (2)], for a settlement of rent, the Revenue Officer shall settle a fair and equitable rent in respect of the land held by the tenant.

Settlement of rents by Revenue Officer in cases where a settlement of land-revenue is not being or is not about to be made.

[Explanation.—A superior landlord may apply for a settlement of rent notwithstanding that his estate or tenure or part thereof has been temporarily leased.]

(2) When, in any case in which a settlement of land-revenue is not being made or is not about to be made, the Revenue Officer has recorded, in pursuance of clause (i) [clause (j)] of section 102, that the occupant of any land claimed to be held rent-free is not entitled to hold it without payment of rent, and either the landlord or the occupant applies, within two months from the date of the certificate of the final publication of the record-of-rights under section 103A, sub-section (2), for a settlement of rent, the Revenue Officer shall settle a fair and equitable rent for the land.

(3) Every application under sub-section (1) or sub-section (2) shall, notwithstanding VII of 1870, anything contained in the Court-fees Act, 1870, bear such stamp as the Government of India may, from time to time, prescribe by notification in the Gazette of India.

(4) In settling rents under this section, the Revenue officer shall presume, until the contrary is proved, that the existing rent is fair and equitable, and shall have regard to the rules laid down in this Act for the guidance of the Civil Court in increasing or reducing rents, as the case may be.

[(5) The Revenue Officer may in any case under this section propose to the parties such rents as he considers fair and equitable; and the rents so proposed, if accepted orally or in writing by the parties, may be recorded as the fair rents, and shall be deemed to have been duly settled under this Act.

(6) Where the parties agree among themselves, by compromise or otherwise, as to the amount of the fair rent, the Revenue Officer shall satisfy himself that the amount agreed upon is fair and equitable, and, if so satisfied, but not otherwise, he shall record the amount so agreed upon as the fair and equitable rent. If not so satisfied, he shall himself settle a fair and equitable rent as provided in sub-sections (4) and (5).]

This section and the following sections of Part III apply only to settlements in permanently settled estates and to the preparation of a record-of-rights in temporarily settled estates ordered under section 101 (1) or section 101 (2) (a) (b) or (c) when a settlement of land revenue is not being, or is not about to be made. The words and clauses within light brackets have been added by the Amending Act of 1898. The words in heavy brackets in sub-section (2) have been inserted by s. 24, Act I, B. C., of 1907, as a consequential amendment on the amendment made by that Act in s. 102.

Sub-section (1). Omission of provision for settlement of rent of excess land by Revenue Officer of his own motion.—The corresponding sub-sections of sec. 104 of the Act, as originally framed, on which this section is founded, were as follows :—

“(1) When, in any proceeding under this Chapter, it does not appear that the tenant is holding land in excess of, or less than, that for which he is paying rent, and neither the landlord nor the tenant applies for a settlement of rent, the officer shall record the rent payable by the tenant, and the land in respect of which the rent is payable.

(2) When it appears that a tenant is holding land in excess of, or less than, that for which he is paying rent, or either the landlord or the tenant applies for a settlement of rent, or in any case under section 101, sub-section (2), clause (b), the officer shall settle a fair and equitable rent in respect of the land held by the tenant.”

The reasons for modifying these sub-sections as above are thus explained in the Objects and Reasons for the Bill (para 25) :—

“The Revenue Officer will not be bound, as at present, of his own motion, to settle a fair rent, when it appears that the tenant is holding land in excess of or less than that for which he is paying rent. It has been ruled by the High Court that it must so appear on legal evidence, and therefore the provisions of the present law requiring the Revenue Officer to settle rent in private estates of his own motion, when, it appears to him that the tenant is holding more or less land than he is paying rent for, is inoperative, unless application is made and evidence produced."

The case referred to in this extract is that of Gauri Patro v. Reily, (20 Calc., 579). In another case (Secretary of State v. Kajimudin, 23 Calc., 257) it was said that a Settlement officer has no power to settle rents suo motu under sec. 104 (2), when it does not appear on the face of his proceedings that the lands held by the tenants are in excess of that for which they were paying rent, and when in such circumstances he had settled rents, his proceedings were held to be of an executive and not of a judicial character. But in a later stage of the same case (26 Calc., 617) it was held that, given the circumstance of an increase or a decrease in the area of the land for which a tenant is paying rent, it is competent to the Revenue Officer under sec. 104 (2) to settle a fair and equitable rent in respect of the whole of the land of the tenant, including the excess area, and the Revenue Officer can in such a case enhance the rent under the provisions of the Act, e. g., on the ground of the rise in prices of the food crops, and so forth.

Sub-section (1). Joint landlords.—The provisions of section 188 are apparently applicable to applications for the settlement of rents under this section made by landlords. They must, therefore, apply collectively or by common agent.

Sub-section (1) Explanation.—This explanation is similar to explanation 2 to sec. 101 (2). See the note to that section, p. 297.

Sub-section (2).—While the entry made by a Revenue Officer in the record-of-rights with regard to land claimed to be rent free under sec. 102 (i) is only a summary one, the entry of the rent settled made under this section is a formal and, subject to the provisions of secs 108 and 109A, a binding one (sec. 107). See note to sec. 103, p. 305. In Upadhyaya Thakur v. Persidh Singh, 23 Calc., 723) it has been ruled that proceedings under sec. 104 (2) of the old Chap. X for the settlement of rents are not suits—and probably, notwithstanding the finality now given to a Revenue Officer's decisions in proceedings under this section (sec. 107), they are also, strictly speaking, not to be regarded as suits. They are instituted by an application, and the provisions of the Court Fees Act, 1870, applicable to suits, do not apply to them. Not being suits, the provisions of sec. 373, Civ. Pro. Code are not applicable to them (Janardan Misra v. Barclay, 5 C. W. N., cxi).

Sub-section (4).—This sub-section is reproduced unaltered from the old section 104, and makes it clear that under this part of the Chapter the Revenue Officer is bound to adhere strictly to the provisions of this Act relating to the enhancement or reduction of rents. He has not in such settlement the same freedom of action in relation to these provisions as he has in settling rents in Government and temporarily settled estates (sec. 104A). He is bound to presume that the existing rent is fair and equitable until the contrary is proved [sub-section (4) of this section].

Sub-sections (5) and (6).—These sub-sections correspond to sub-sections (b) and (a) of section 104A. See p. 319.

Rules.—The rules for the settlement of fair rents on the application of the parties under this section are to be found in rules 36 to 41 of the revised Chap. VI of the Government rules under the Tenancy Act. Rule 39 allows any number of tenants occupying land under the same landlord in the same village to make a joint application for the settlement of rents, or to be joined as defendants in the same proceeding on a similar application by the landlord. This is founded on rule 25 of the old rules under the former Chapter, which was alluded to in Upadhyaya Thakur v. Persidh Singh, (23 Calc., 723) as not being ultra vires.

Court Fees.—In all proceedings for the settlement of rents under Part III, Chapter X, and in all proceedings under section 106 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, the fees on processes issued by the Settlement officer are subject to the Rules framed by the High Court under section 2 of the Court Fees Act VII of 1870. (Rev. Cir. 2nd March 1904).

Decision of questions arising during the course of settlement of rents under this Part.

[105A.] Where, in any proceedings for the settlement of rents under this Part, any of the following issues arise :—

- (a) whether the land is, or is not, liable to the payment of rent ;
- (b) whether the land, although entered in the record-of-rights as being held rent-free, is liable to the payment of rent ;
- (c) whether the relation of landlord and tenant exists ;
- (d) whether the land has been wrongly recorded as part of a particular estate or tenancy, or wrongly omitted from the lands of an estate or tenancy ;

(e) whether the tenant belongs to a class different from that to which he is shown in the record-of-rights as belonging ;

(f) whether the special conditions and incidents of the tenancy or any right-of-way or other easement attaching to the land have not, or has not, been recorded or have, or has, been wrongly recorded, the Revenue-officer shall try and decide such issue and settle the rent under section 105 accordingly :

Provided that the Revenue-officer shall not try any issue under this section, which has been, or is already, directly and substantially in issue between the same parties, or between parties under whom they or any of them claim, and has been tried and decided, or is already being tried, by a Revenue-officer in a suit instituted before him under section 106.]

This section was introduced by s. 26 of Act I, B. C., 1907, on the recommendation of the Select Committee who in their report, observed as follows :

“ In cases where rents are settled under Part II of Chapter X of the Bengal Tenancy Act in Government and temporarily-settled estates, section 104H allows any person aggrieved by an entry of a settled rent to file a suit in the Civil Court, on certain grounds, within six months from the date of the certificate of final publication or from the date of disposal of an appeal under section 104G. There is, however, no corresponding provision in regard to cases in which rents are settled under section 105 in private estates.

The result is that litigation in connection with the settlement of rents under section 105 in private estates is unduly prolonged, especially in cases falling under section 105 (2), where the Revenue-Officer settles a rent for holdings for which no rent has hitherto been paid, but which the occupant is not entitled to hold without payment of rent. It frequently happens that long after such a rent has been settled, and when the landlord proceeds to realise it, the tenant files a suit in the Civil Court to have it declared that he is entitled to hold the land rent-free. The dispute is thus re-opened. The High Court have held that the Settlement-Officer, under section 105, has only to settle a fair and equitable rent for the holding ; and that if any dispute is raised in proceedings under section 105, as to the liability of the land to pay rent, proceedings under section 105 must be stayed, and the parties told to file a suit under section 106. This, however, only provides for a small minority of the cases. It usually happens that when the case under section 105 comes up for trial, the time allowed for filing suits under section 106 has expired. Or the tenant may refrain from raising the question in the proceedings under section 105, wait till the landlord attempts to realize the settled rent from him, and then raise the matter in the Civil Court.

We are agreed that it is necessary to take some action which will prevent proceedings from being protracted in this way. It has been suggested that this might be effected by enacting some provision similar to section 104H in Part II of Chapter X of the Act, which allows the entries of rent entered in a Settlement Rent-Roll to be contested in the Civil Courts on certain grounds within six months of the date of the certificate of final publication. But the majority of us are of opinion that this would only afford a partial remedy, and there is no real analogy between a settlement of rents under Part II and under Part III of Chapter X. In settling rents under Part II in connection with a settlement of land revenue, the Revenue-Officer is subject entirely to the control of the Revenue authorities, and appeals against the rent settled lie exclusively to the Revenue authorities. There is therefore good reason for allowing certain matters to be referred to the Civil Courts as under section 104H. But in proceedings under Part III of Chapter X for the settlement of rents in private estates, the Revenue-Officer acts judicially. Under section 107, he is required to adopt the procedure for the trial of suits ; and under section 109A the appeal against his decision lies to the Special Judge and the High Court.

The majority of us are, therefore, of opinion that there is no reason why finality should not be given to the decisions of Revenue Officers under Part III of Chapter X, subject to appeal to the Special Judge and the High Court. It was the expressly declared intention of the framers of the Amendment Act of 1898 that the proceedings of the Revenue-Officers and the Special Judge should be final. The present clause merely gives effect to that intention. The High Court have held that, under the law as it stands, finality attaches only to the rent settled under section 105, and not to incidental matters raised in the course of these rent settlement proceedings. But in order that a fair rent may be settled, it is essential that such matters should be decided. The Revenue-Officer would have the power to decide them finally, subject to appeal to the Special Judge, if they were raised in suits under section 106, and the majority of us can see no valid reason why the same Revenue-Officer should not be given power to decide them finally, subject to appeal, if they are raised in proceedings under section 105. We consider that any other course would lead to considerable confusion and practical inconvenience, as it would enable the same matters to be raised simultaneously in the subordinate Civil Courts and before the Special Judge and the High Court. For these reasons, the majority of us are in favour of the proposed clause."

The proviso was added in order to prevent the same issues being tried simultaneously in proceedings under section 105 and in suits under section 106. Sub-section (3) of section 111B provides for the stay of proceedings under section 105, when an issue, pending the decision of which a fair suit cannot be settled, has been raised in a suit under section 106.

106. In proceedings under this Part, a suit may be instituted before a Revenue-officer at any time within three months from the date of the certificate of the final publication of the record-of-rights under sub-section (2) of section 103A of this Act, by presenting a plaint on stamped paper for the decision of any dispute regarding any entry which a Revenue-officer has made in, or any omission which the said officer has made from, the record, whether such dispute be between landlord and tenant or between landlords of the same or of neighbouring estates, or between tenant and tenant, or as to whether the relationship of landlord and tenant exists, or as to whether land held rent-free is properly so held, or as to any other matter, and the Revenue-officer shall hear and decide the dispute :

Provided that the Revenue-officer may, subject to such rules as the Local Government may prescribe in this behalf, transfer any particular case or class of cases to a competent Civil Court for trial.

[Provided also that in any suit under this section the Revenue-officer shall not try any issue which has been, or is already, directly and substantially in issue between the same parties, or between parties under whom they or any of them claim, in proceedings for the settlement of rents under this Part, where such issue has been tried and decided, or is already being tried, by a Revenue-officer under section 105A.]

Former section 106.—This section as originally framed in Act VIII of 1885, ran as follows :—

“If at any time before the final publication of the record under the last foregoing section a dispute arises as to the correctness of any entry (not being an entry of a rent settled under this Chapter), or as the propriety of any omission which the Revenue-Officer proposes to make or has made therein or therefrom, the Revenue-Officer shall hear and decide the dispute.

The following section was substituted for it by Act III, B. C., of 1898 on the 2nd November, 1898.

106. If in any case under this Part, a dispute arises at any time within two months from the date of the certificate of the final publication of the record-of-rights under section 103A, sub-section (2), regarding any entry which the Revenue Officer has made in, or any omission made from, the record, whether such dispute be between landlord and tenant, or between landlords of the same or of the neighbouring estates, or between tenant and tenant, or as to whether the relationship of landlord and tenant exists, or as to whether land held rent free is properly so held, or as to any other matter, a suit may be instituted before the Revenue Officer, by prosecuting a plaint on stamped paper, for the decision of the dispute, and the Revenue Officer shall then hear and decide the dispute :

Provided that the Revenue Officer may, subject to such rules as the Local Government may proscribe in this behalf, transfer any particular case or class of cases to a competent Civil Court for trial.

The present section was substituted by Act I of 1903 on the 19th February, 1903. The object of the section as stated in the Statement of the Objects of the Bill is to indicate clearly the period of limitation for the institution of suits under section 106 of the Bengal Tenancy Act.

Second proviso.—The second proviso within brackets was added to the section by s. 27, Act I., B. C., 1907, and is intended to prevent Revenue Officers dealing simultaneously with the same issues in proceedings under ss. 105A and 106.

Distinction between "objections" and "disputes."—The distinction between "objections" under sec. 105 and "disputes" under sec. 106 of the former Act was pointed out in the cases of (Gopi Nath Masant v. Adoito Naik, 21 Calc., 776; Anand Lal Paria v. Shib Chandra Mukhurji, 22 Calc., 477; and Secretary of State v. Kajimudin, 23 Calc., 257); and it was ruled that an "objection" could be made during the pendency of the publication of the draft record-of-rights, but a "dispute" could be raised only after the preparation of the draft record and before its final publication. See contra, Durgu Charan Laskar v. Hari Charan Das, (21 Calc., 521). But, in the Full Bench case of Dengu Kazi v. Nobin Kessori Chaudhurani, (24 Calc., 462; 1 C. W. N., 294), it was decided that a "dispute" can arise at any time, i. e., both before and after the publication of the draft record, and even before an entry in the record is made, and that the decision of a dispute so arising is a decision under sec. 106 of the former Chapter X of the Act, and therefore, subject to appeal, and second appeal. In this case the rulings in Gopi Nath Masant v. Adoito Naik and Anand Lal Paria v. Shib Chandra Mukhurji, so far as they lay down a contrary rule, were overruled. "Objections" are now clearly distinguished from "disputes." The former are of two kinds, viz., (1) objections to entries in, or omissions from, the record-of-rights. These may be preferred and are to be disposed of before the final publication of the record (sec. 103A); and (2) objections to the settlement rent roll (104E). Such objections can only be preferred when a settlement of revenue is being or about to be made. They, too, must be made and disposed of before the final publication of the record-of-rights. And a Revenue Officer's decision in them will not be open to appeal or second appeal, nor will it have the effect of res judicata (Kurban Ali v. Jaser Ali, 28 Calc., 471). "Disputes" can only be raised under this section, i. e., in settlements where no settlement of land revenue is being or is about to be made. They cannot arise until after the final publication of the record.

To what matters disputes may relate.—The provisions of clause 2 of this section have been passed with reference to certain rulings of the High Court under Chapter X of the Act, as it originally stood, in which it was held that a Revenue Officer in settlement proceedings had no jurisdiction to decide (1) disputes between owners of neighbouring estates as to the title to any land (Narendra Nath Chaudhri v. Sri Nath Sandel, 19 Calc., 641); (2) disputes regarding the boundaries between conterminous estates (Bidhumukhi Debi v. Bhagwan Chandra Rai, 19 Calc., 643); (3) disputes as to which of two persons claiming to be tenant should be recorded (Pandit Sardar v. Meajan, 21 Calc., 378); (4) disputes as to whether land held rent-free is properly so held (Padmanand Singh v. Bajo, 20 Calc., 577; Secretary of State v. Netai Singh, 21 Calc., 38; Karim Khan v. Brajo Nath Das, 22 Calc., 244), and (5) a dispute as to a right of way between two neighbouring tenants (Haro Mohan Rai v. Pran Nath Mitra, 27 Calc., 364; 4 C. W. N., 127). In Gokkul Sahu v. Jadu Nandan Rai, (17 Calc., 721), it was ruled that the defendants according to their own case being tenants within the meaning of the Act, the Revenue Officer had jurisdiction to decide whether land held by them was rent-paying or rent-free. This was followed in Jaipal Dhobi v. Palakdhari Das, (2 C. W. N., 491) in which the question at issue was whether certain land was zerait land of the landlord or part of the occupancy-holding of the tenant. In Gokkul Sahu v. Jadu Nandan Rai, it was doubted whether the Revenue Officer would have had jurisdiction, if the relation of landlord and tenant had not existed between the parties. Now, under the terms of the present section the Revenue Officer has jurisdiction to decide all disputes relating to the matters referred to in para 1 of the section as well as to "any other matter." These words, however, would not seem to be intended to include questions relating to rents settled under sec. 105. The Revenue Officer's decision of a dispute arising under this section will have the force and effect of a decree of a Civil Court in a suit between the parties, and, subject to revision under sec. 108 and appeal under sec. 109A, shall be final (sec. 107), and not liable to be set aside by a suit in a Civil Court (sec. 109). An order of a Special Judge as to the length of the standard of measurement to be used in measuring certain lands is not a decision in a case under sec. 106 (Narahari Jana v. Hari Charan Paramanik, 26 Calc., 556).

Cases under this section are suits.—From clause 1 of this section it will be seen that a case under this section is a suit to be instituted by a plaint on "stamped paper," by which expression is probably meant that it shall be liable to Court fee duty under the provisions of the Court Fees Act (VII of 1870).

In Petu Ghorai v. Ram Khehwan Lal, (18 Calc., 667), it was ruled that "disputes" under sec. 106 of the former Chap. X were suits. This was doubted in Upadhyaya Thakur v. Persidh Singh, (23 Calc., 729), and the Legislature has apparently framed the section in such terms as to place the matter beyond all question. See also rule 42 of the revised Chap. VI of the Government rules under the Act (App. 1.).

Res Judicata in settlement cases.—A question between landlord and tenant heard and decided by a Revenue Officer under sec. 106 of the former Chap. X is res judicata between the same parties in a subsequent suit (Gokkul Sahu v. Jadu Nandan Rai, 17 Calc., 721 ; Jaipal Dhobi v. Palakdhari Das, 2 C. W. N., 491). And this rule applies in the case of questions both of the status and of the fair and equitable rent of a tenant (Durga Charan Laha v. Hatem Mandal, 6 C. W. N. 238.) An order made by a Revenue Officer, determining the rent payable for a holding has the force of a decree, and when not set aside by appeal or otherwise, cannot be questioned in a Civil Court (Ram Autar Singh v. Sanoman Singh, 27 Calc, 167). A settlement of rent under sec. 104 (2) for the purposes of land revenue has under sec. 107 the force of a final decree of a Civil Court and as such operates as res judicata upon the question of rent payable by the tenant both as to its nature and amount (Brahmanand Mahapatra v. Arjun Raut, 1 C. L. J. 310). The defendants were recorded in the khatian of a cadastral survey as intermediate tenure-holders. The plaintiff did not avail himself of the remedy prescribed by sec. 106. He subsequently took a settlement from Government and sued to avoid the defendants' tenures; held, he was bound to recognise intermediate tenure-holders mentioned in the settlement papers (Raghunath Puri v. Pitambar Gajendra, 5 C.L.J., 67). But an order of a Settlement Officer disposing of an objection under sec. 105 of the former Chapter X has not the effect of res judicata, estopping the trial of the same matters in the Civil Court (Secretary of State v. Kajimudin, 23 Calc., 257). An order striking off a petition of objection under sec. 103 A for default is not a judicial order; nor does it operate as res judicata in a subsequent suit for rent brought by the objector against the recorded tenant (Nazarulla Mia v. Amiruddi, 3 C. L. J., 133; Kurban Ali v. Jafar Ali, 28 Calc., 471). The proceedings referred to in sec. 107 mean contested proceedings in which there is an adjudication on disputed points. The decision of a Revenue Officer in an uncontested proceeding has not the effect of a decree under that section. Section 109 (now 103 B) lays down a rule of evidence. It does not override the rules of res judicata (Padmanand Singh v. Ghanashyam Misra, 1 C.L.J., 134; 32 Calc., 336; 9 C.W.N., 610).

In a suit in which the plaintiff had initiated proceedings under sec. 106 against the landlord and certain persons who claimed to be tenants of the land to have their (i. e., the plaintiffs') names recorded as tenants in the settlement proceedings, it was held by the Settlement Officer that they were the tenants. The persons claiming to be 'rival tenants, appealed to the Special Judge, but' the landlord did not appeal. The Special Judge reversed the Settlement Officer's decision; the plaintiffs then sued in the Civil Court for a declaratory decree of their rights as tenants. It was ruled that the Special Judge's decision did not operate as res judicata, as it merely decided the question as between tenant and tenant (Jaggannath Ramanuji Das v. Chandra Kumar Basu, 5 C. W. N., 421).

When there is a total denial of the relation of landlord and tenant by one of the parties, a Revenue Officer has jurisdiction in a proceeding under section 103 of the Bengal Tenancy Act to decide that question, but his decision, although it may have the force of a decree, cannot operate as res judicata in a subsequent suit in ejectment and for declaration of title brought in a Civil Court. (Dharani Kant Lahiri v. Gaber Ali Khan, 7 C. W. N., 33; 30 Calc., 339) In the conclusion of the judgment in this case it was said: "There is no provision in the Bengal Tenancy Act which has the effect of making such a decision" (i.e., the decision of a Revenue officer) "final for all purposes, irrespectively of the provisions of sec. 13, C. P. C. Sec. 107 does indeed provide that a decision in a proceeding under sec. 106 shall have the force of a decree; but it does not necessarily follow that it shall in all cases operate as res judicata, for an ordinary decree of a Civil Court has not that effect, except on certain conditions which are set forth in sec. 13, C. P. C." In Gokul Mander v. Padmanand Singh, (29 Calc., 707; L. R., 29 I. A., 196), their Lordships of the Privy Council, with reference to a contention raised as to whether a decision in previous proceedings under the Bengal Tenancy Act that the defendant was a tenure-holder was res judicata in a suit for ejectment in the Civil Court, where the first Court had held it was not res judicata, but the High Court had not decided the point, observed, without deciding the question, that under s. 13, C. P. C., a decree in a previous suit cannot be pleaded as res judicata, unless the Judge by whom it was made, had jurisdiction to try and decide, not only the particular matter in issue, but also the subsequent suit itself, in which the issue is subsequently raised. An order of a Settlement Officer made under sec. 105, Chap., X before it was amended by the Amending Act of 1898, is a summary order, and has not the force of a decree, and so there can be no res judicata. When the order of the Settlement Officer is ultra vires because he settled rent which he had no power to do under the old sec. 105, art. 14, Sched. II of the Limitation Act has no application (Abhin Das v. Balunki Pal, 11 C. W. N., ccxix.)

107. In all proceedings for the settlement of rents under this Part, and in all proceedings under section 106, [in all proceedings under section 105, section 105A and section 106] the Revenue Officer shall, subject to rules made by the Local Government under this Act, adopt the procedure laid down in the Code of Civil Procedure for the trial of suits ; and his decision in every such proceeding shall have the force [and effect of a decree of a Civil Court in a suit between the parties, and, subject to the provisions of sections 108 and 109A, shall be final.

(2) A note of all rents settled and of all decisions of disputes by the Revenue Officer under section 105 or section 106 shall be made by him in the record-of-rights finally published under section 103A, sub-section (2), and such note shall be considered as part of the record.]

[(2) A note of all rents settled under section 105 and of all decisions of issues or disputes under section 105A or section 106, and of all rents commuted under section 40 by a Revenue-Officer appointed by the designation of Settlement Officer or Assistant Settlement Officer, shall be made in the record-of-rights finally published under sub-section (2), of section 103A, and such note shall be considered as part of the record.]

The words in heavy brackets in the beginning of sub-section (1) have been substituted for the words preceding them by s. 28, Act I, B. C. 1907. The words in light brackets in the end of sub-section (1) and in sub-section (2) have been added by Act III, B. C., of 1898. The words added to the end of sub-section (1) are intended to have the effect of making all rents settled by a Revenue Officer on an application under sec. 105, and any disputes decided by him under sec. 106, res judicata and not liable to be set aside by any further suit in a Civil Court (see sec. 109). But see note pp. 340—342. The new sub-section (2) in heavy brackets has been substituted for sub-section (2) by s. 28, Act I, B. C., of 1907. It provides for the entry, in the record, of rents commuted by a Settlement Officer under section 40.

Government notification regarding local enquiries.—"Under section 392 of Act XIV of 1882, the Civil Procedure Code, and section 107 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, VIII of 1885, the Lieutenant Governor is pleased to make the following rule as to the persons to whom commissions shall be issued by Revenue Officers empowered under Chapter X of the Bengal Tenancy Act.

Whenever under the provisions of section 107 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, VIII of 1885, and Chapter XXV of the Civil Procedure Code, Act XIV of 1882, a Revenue Officer directs that a local enquiry be held in the course of proceedings for the settlement of rents, the commission shall be issued to such person not below the rank of a Sub-Deputy Collector or Revenue Officer invested with powers under Chapter X of the Bengal Tenancy Act as the officer directing the enquiry shall appoint for this purpose." (Government notification No. 5073 L. R., dated Nov. 28th 1895, published in the Calcutta Gazette of December 4th, 1895, Part I. 1146).

108. Any Revenue Officer specially empowered by the Local Government in this behalf, may, on application or of his own motion, within twelve months from the making of any order or decision under section 105, [section 105A], section 106 or section 107, revise the same, whether it was made by himself or by any other Revenue Officer, but not so as to affect any order passed or decree made under section 109A :

Provided that no such order or decision shall be so revised if an appeal from it is pending under section 109A or until reasonable notice has been given to the parties concerned to appear and be heard in the matter.

The word and figures "section 105A" were added by section 29, Act I, B. C., of 1907 as a consequential amendment.

“[108A. Any Revenue-officer specially empowered by the Local Government in this behalf, may, on application or of his own motion, within twelve months from the date of the certificate of the final publication of the record-of-rights under sub-section (2) of section 143A, correct any entry in such record-of-rights which he is satisfied has been made owing to a bona-fide mistake :

Revision by Revenue Officer.
Correction by Revenue Officer of mistakes in record-of-rights.

Provided that no such correction shall be made if an appeal affecting such entry is pending under section 109A, or until reasonable notice has been given to the parties concerned to appear and be heard in the matter.]

This section has been added to the Act by s. 30, Act I, B. C. 1907. The Select Committee in their report on the Bill of 1905 say :

"It has been pointed out to us that, under the law as it stands, the Revenue Officer has no power to correct errors in the settlement record after final publication, unless they are made the subject of a dispute under section 106. In the millions of entries which find place in a settlement record, some clerical errors are bound to creep in, and it seems desirable to have a cheap and ready means of correcting them. We propose therefore that any Revenue Officer specially empowered in this behalf by the Local Government should be able to correct bona fide mistakes, after giving due notice to all the parties concerned."

109. Subject to the provisions of section 109A a Civil Court shall not entertain any application or suit concerning any matter which is or has already been the subject of an application made or suit instituted under section 105, section 106, section 107 or section 108. [suit instituted or proceedings taken under sections 105 to 108 (both inclusive).]

Bar to jurisdiction of Civil Courts.

The words, figures and brackets within heavy brackets at the end of the section have by s. 31, Act I, B.C. 1907 been substituted for the words ~~and figures~~ "or suit instituted under section 105, section 106, section 107, or section 108." The Select Committee in their report on the Bill of 1906 say :—"An amendment of section 109 has been rendered necessary owing to the new section 105A, which it is proposed to insert in the Bill. The words "suit" and "application" do not cover all questions which may arise in the course of proceedings for the settlement of suits."

This section supplements the provisions of sec. 107. It makes it clear that where a settlement of land revenue is not being or is not about to be made, if applications or suits have been made or instituted under this part of the Chapter, the Civil Courts cannot entertain any applications or suits relating to the same matter.

But this will not prevent their entertaining a suit in which persons recorded as tenants in a record-of-rights are sued as trespassers for possession and mesne profits (Trailokyanath Basu v. Macleod, 28 Calc., 28)

Limitation.—The period of limitation for such a suit is either 1 year under art. 14, Sch. II, of the Limitation Act or 6 years under art. 120 and a tenant after the expiry of the period of limitation cannot bring a suit for the alteration of his rent under the guise of a suit for the amendment of a certificate under the Public Demands Recovery Act (Ashutosh Nath Rai v. Abdul, 28 Calc., 676). Art. 14 of Sch. II of the Limitation Act does not apply to such a suit (Agin Bindh Upadhyay v. Mohan Bikram Shu, 30 Calc., 27 : Ram Ghulam Singh v. Bishnu Prakash Narain Singh, 11 C. W. N., 48).

109A. (1) The Local Government shall appoint one or more persons to be a Special Judge or Special Judges for the purpose of hearing appeals from the decisions of Revenue Officers under [sections 105 to 108 (both inclusive)].

Appeals from decisions of Revenue Officers.

(2) An appeal shall lie to the Special Judge from the decisions of a Revenue Officer under [sections 105 to 108] [A] (both inclusive), and the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure relating to appeals shall, as nearly as may be, apply to all such appeals.

(3) Subject to the provisions of Chapter XLII of the Code of Civil Procedure, an appeal shall lie to the High Court from the decision of a Special Judge in any case under [this section (not being a decision settling a rent)] as if he were a Court subordinate to the High Court within the meaning of the first section of that Chapter :

Provided that, if in a second appeal the High Court alters the decision of the Special Judge in respect of any of the particulars with reference to which the rent of any tenure or holding has been settled, the Court may settle a new rent for the tenure or holding, but in so doing shall be guided by the rents of the other tenures or holdings of the same class comprised in the same record as ascertained under section 102 [or settled under section 105 or section 108].

This section does not differ materially from section 108 of the former Chap. X. The words in light brackets have been added by Act III, B. C., of 1898, but make only verbal alterations in the terms of the section. The letter A in heavy brackets after the figures 108 in sub-section (2) has been inserted by s. 32, Act I B. C. 1907, as a consequential amendment. The Select Committee in their report say :

"The addition to this clause allows an appeal to the Special Judge against an order of a Revenue-Officer correcting an error in the settlement record under section 108A, which we propose to insert in the Act. It is not likely that the right of appeal will often be exercised in such cases, but it seems advisable to provide some safeguard against a possible improper use of his powers by the Revenue-Officer."

First appeal.—There is no appeal to the Special Judge from an order of a Settlement Officer finding that the standard of measurement to be used in measuring the lands of a village is a pole of 7 feet 9 inches (Nurahari Jana v. Hari Charan Paramanik, 26 Calc., 556). There would seem to be no appeal from an order of a Settlement Officer disposing of an "objection" under sec. 105 of the former Chap. X, as his order under that section is not a "decision" within the meaning of sec. 108 (2).

There is no appeal from an order of remand by a Special Judge (Mathur Chandra Mazumdar v. Tara Sankar Ghosh, 7 C. W. N., 440).

Second appeals.—Under the former Chapter X it has been held that no second appeal lies against, nor can the High Court interfere under sec. 622 of the Civil Procedure Code with, the order of a Special Judge in regard to the settlement of rents (Shewbarat Koer v. Nirpat Rai, 16 Calc., 596 ; Kirat Narain v. Palakdhari Pandey, 17 Calc., 326 ; Achha Mian v. Durgu Charan Laha, 25 Calc., 146 ; 2 C. W. N., 137). No second appeal relating to such a matter will lie under the terms of the present section. (Ram Bishen Raut v. Rajaram, 33 Calc., 832). The words "a decision settling a rent" in section 109A of the Bengal Tenancy Act do not mean and include any decision upon the question what is or what ought to be the rent. They mean only a decision settling a fair and equitable rent in place of the existing rent, and the words do not include a decision determining what the existing rent is.

A second appeal lies to the High Court, from a decision of a Special Judge reversing or affirming the decision of a Settlement Officer, who decided under section 106 of the Bengal Tenancy Act what was the rent payable by the plaintiff, it not being "a decision settling a rent" within the meaning of section 109A of the Bengal Tenancy Act. (Ramani Prasad Narain v. Adaiya Gossain, 31 Calc., 380).

But the contrary was held in a subsequent case in which it was laid down that the words "not being a decision settling a rent" refer not only to a decision by which existing rents are varied, but also to one by which existing rents are maintained. When, therefore, a Special Judge on appeal from a decision of a Settlement Officer on an application by a landlord under sec. 105 (1) decided that no case had been made out for an enhancement of rent; held, that this is a decision "settling a rent," and consequently no second appeal lies (Rameswar Singh v. Bhaneswar Jha, 4 C. L. J., 138; 33 Calc., 837).

It was also held under the former Chap. X, that no second appeal lay from an order of a Special Judge dismissing an appeal on the ground that there was no appeal to him in a case of a boundary dispute which had been tried and decided by a Settlement Officer acting as a Survey Officer under Part V of the Bengal Survey Act, V, B. C., of 1875 (Irshad Ali Chaudhri v. Kanta Prasad Hazari, 21 Calc., 935). But a second appeal lies from the decision of a Special Judge on questions with regard to the prevailing standard of measurement, area of lands in the possession of tenants and the liability of tenants to pay rent on account of any excess land (Mathura Mohan Lahiri v. Uma Sundari Debi, 25 Calc., 34). The rule laid down in this case cannot apply when there has been no measurement, when the Settlement Officer has done nothing but settle the length of the measure to be used in measuring the lands of the village, and when the order of the Special Judge is only to the effect that no appeal lay to him from this order of the Settlement Officer (Narahari Jana v. Hari Charan Paramanik, 26 Calc., 556).

In Dengu Kazi v. Nobin Kissori Chaudhrani, (24 Calc., 462; 1 C. W. N., 294) it has been laid down that, whenever under the former Chap. X "a dispute" arises, whether before or after the publication of the draft record, as to the correctness of an entry which the Revenue Officer proposes to make or has made in the record that he is preparing, his decision of such a dispute is a decision in a proceeding under sec. 106, and a second appeal from the decision of the Special Judge in appeal from such a decision lies to the High Court under sec. 108 (3). When the decision of the Judge does not settle a fair and equitable rent, but merely proceeds on the ground that there was no excess land, and therefore no rent to be settled, a second appeal lies (Rajkumar Pratap Sahay v. Ram Lal Singh, 5 C. L. J., 538). A second appeal lies in a proceeding under s. 106. No second appeal lies in a proceeding under s. 105. If, however, such matters are not kept separate, a second appeal is maintainable in respect of the matters coming under s. 106 (Kali Kishore Pal v. Gopi Mohan Rai, 5 C. L. J., 34n).

Court-fee duty on second appeals.—In Petu Ghorai v. Ram Khelawan Lal, (18 Calc., 667), it was decided that the Court-fee payable on a memorandum of appeal presented to the High Court under sec. 108, sub-sec. (3) was Rs. 10, as prescribed by art. 17, clause vi of Schedule II of the Court-Fees Act. But in the Full Bench case of Upadhyaya Thakur v. Persidh Singh, (23 Calc., 723) this decision was set aside and it was held that the proceedings in a case of settlement of rents did not constitute a suit, and that the Court-fee duty was only 8 as under art. 1, clause (b), para 2, Sched. II of the Court-Fees Act (VII of 1870).

High Court's powers of revision under Court's Charter.—In Upadhyaya Thakur v. Persidh Singh, (23 Calc., 723) it was ruled that the Court of a Special Judge is a Court subordinate to the High Court, and that, therefore, the High Court has power to interfere under sec. 15 of the Court's Charter with his orders in cases in which no second appeal lies.

Part IV.—Supplemental Provisions.

[109B. (1) In framing a record-of-rights, and in deciding disputes, under this Chapter, the Revenue-officer shall give effect to any lawful agreement or compromise made or entered into by any landlord and his tenant, but he shall not give effect to any agreement or compromise the terms of which, if they were embodied in a contract, could not be enforced under this Act.

Power of Revenue-officer to give effect to agreement or compromise.

(2) Where any agreement or compromise has been made for the purpose of settling a dispute as to the rent payable, the Revenue-officer shall, in order to ascertain whether the effect of such agreement or compromise would be to enhance the rent in a manner, or to an extent, not allowed by section 29 in the case of a contract, record evidence as to the rent which was legally payable immediately before the period in respect of which the dispute arose.

(3) Where the terms of any agreement or compromise are such as might unfairly or inequitably affect the rights of third parties, the Revenue-officer shall not give effect to such agreement or compromise, unless and until he is satisfied by evidence that the statements made by the parties thereto are correct.

Illustration.—A, a proprietor, agrees that B, his tenant, shall be recorded as an occupancy-raiyat; this affects the rights of the tenants of B. The Revenue-Officer must, under sub-section (3), inquire whether B is a tenure-holder or a raiyat, as defined in section 5. If he finds on the evidence that B is a raiyat, he may give effect to the agreement, but shall not do so if he finds that B is a tenure-holder].

Added to the Act by s. 33, Act I, B. C. 1907.

This is one of the most debated clauses of the Bill of 1906. It was at first proposed to provide that it should not be compulsory for Revenue Officers in proceedings under Chapter X to give effect to illegal and unfair or inequitable compromises and to make it obligatory on them to disregard compromises which contravene the provisions of section 29. The Select Committee in their report say :

“ We have made considerable modifications mainly in consequence of the criticisms which have been directed against the words “unfair and inequitable,” which were used in the clause as originally drafted. It has been represented, we think rightly, that such words are too vague to afford any proper guidance to the Courts and Revenue Officers dealing with agreements or compromises. We consider that it will be best to provide specifically that no effect shall be given to any provisions, embodied in a compromise or agreement filed before a Court or Revenue Officer, which, if embodied in a contract between landlord and tenant, could not be enforced under the Act. We further consider it desirable to provide for the case of agreements or compromises, purporting to be made in settlement of a dispute, or affecting the rights of third parties."

[109C. (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in section 109B, if, in any case, while the record is being prepared, the landlord and tenant agree as to the rent which shall be recorded as payable for the tenure or holding, a Revenue-officer specially empowered in this behalf by the Local Government may, if he is satisfied that the rent agreed upon is fair and equitable, but not otherwise, settle such rent as a fair and equitable rent, although the terms of the agreement are such that, if they were embodied in a contract, they could not be enforced under this Act; and the provisions of section 113 shall apply to a rent so settled.

(2) A landlord or tenant may appeal to the Special Judge appointed under section 109A on the ground that the rent settled by the Revenue-officer, under sub-section (1), as a fair and equitable rent, was not agreed to by such landlord or tenant, and on no other ground.

(3) The Board of Revenue may, on application made, or of its own motion in proceedings undertaken, within one year from the date of the order, under sub-section (1), settling a rent as a fair and equitable rent, direct the revision of the rent so settled :

Provided that no such direction shall be made until reasonable notice has been given to the parties concerned to appear and be heard in the matter.]

The Select Committee on the Bill of 1906 with reference to this section observe :

" While the majority of us consider it essential that the Revenue Officer should not be compelled to give effect to provisions in an agreement or compromise, which could not be enforced if embodied in a contract, we consider that some discretion should be allowed in dealing with rents, which, though technically illegal, are such as might be settled as fair and equitable. We understand that at present officers of the Settlement Department are allowed, with the sanction of the Board of Revenue, to disregard technical illegalities in respect of rents, which though they contravene the provisions of section 29 are fair and equitable and are agreed to by the landlord and tenant. It is clearly inadvisable that in such cases, the parties should be forced into litigation regarding rents, which, though technically illegal, would be settled as fair and equitable by any Court, and we consider it desirable to regularise the present practice. We therefore propose that where, in the course of the framing of the record, the parties agree upon a rent, a Revenue-Officer specially empowered in this behalf by the Local Government may, if he finds such rent to be fair and equitable, settle it as such, even though it may not be the rent legally payable. We provide for an appeal to the Special Judge on the ground that the parties did not agree to such a rent, and we also propose to give the Board of Revenue power to revise any rent settled under the section within one year of the date of the order settling the rent. We believe that the section as drafted will be useful as saving the parties from unnecessary litigation in regard to rents, by giving the Revenue-Officer power, under certain safeguards, to settle a rent, to which the only objection which can be taken, is that, if fixed by a contract, it could not legally be recovered. A Revenue-Officer in framing the record usually has opportunities of judging of the fairness and equity of the rents claimed and admitted, and it is not necessary in all cases to confine him to the record of the rent legally payable."

[109D. A note of all rents settled and of all decisions of disputes, on revision or appeal under section 108, section 109A, or sub-section (2) or sub-section (3) of section 109C, shall be made in the record-of-rights finally published under sub-section (2) of section 103A, and such note shall be considered as part of the record.]

Note of decisions on record.

Added to the Act by s. 33, Act I, B. C., 1907.

Regarding this section the following appears in the Notes on Clauses of the Bill of 1906 :

“This clause is intended to rectify what was apparently an oversight in the Amendment Act of 1898. Under section 107, (2), the Revenue Officer is required to make in the record-of-rights a note of all rents settled under section 105 and of all decisions of disputes under section 106, and this note is declared to be a part of the record. There is no corresponding provision as to the entry of orders passed regarding such rents or disputes, on revision under section 108, or on appeal under section 109A. It is clearly advisable that a note of such revisional or appellate orders should be made in the record, in order to make the record complete. The clause provides for this being done. As appeals are frequently not decided till after the Settlement Officer has left the district, the proposed section abstains from prescribing by what officer the note of the revisional or appellate decision shall be made. The Government or the Board of Revenue will have power to prescribe this by rules made under the Act or by executive order.”

110. When a rent is settled by a Revenue Officer under this Chapter, it shall take effect from the beginning of the agricultural year next after the date of the decision fixing the rent or (if a settlement of land-revenue is being or is about to be made) the date of final publication of the Settlement Rent Roll :

Date from which settled rent takes effect

Provided as follows ;—

- (a) if the land is comprised in an area, estate or tenure in respect of which a settlement of land-revenue is being or is about to be made, the rent settled shall, subject to the provisions of sections 191 and 192, take effect from the expiration of the period of the current settlement, or from such other date after the expiration of that period as may be fixed by the Revenue Officer ;
- (b) if the land is not comprised in an area, estate or tenure as aforesaid, and if the existing rent has been fixed by a contract binding between the parties for an unexpired term of years, the rent settled shall take effect from the expiration of that term, or from such other date after the expiration of that term as may be fixed by the Revenue Officer.

The first clause of this section is founded on sec. 110 of Chap. X, as it originally stood. The provisos are taken with slight modifications from s. 2, Act V, B. C., of 1894, now repealed. With reference to these provisos, in the Statement of Objects and Reasons for the Bill, para 26, it is said :—

“The justice and expediency of these provisos will be manifest. When a general settlement of rents is being made in a private estate, if the existing rent of particular tenants was settled by contract legally binding on the parties, the term of which has to run for a few years, there is no reason why a fair rent should not be settled for such tenants, while the Revenue Officer is on the spot, on the application of the parties, to take effect from the expiration of the term, or from a later date fixed by the Revenue Officer. The same remark applies to settlement of rents for purposes of settlement of revenue. The existing rents having been ordinarily fixed for the period of settlement of revenue, there is no reason why they should be altered during the currency of that period, though proceedings for the preparation of a record-of-rights and the settlement of rents may have to be undertaken, for the purposes of settlement of revenue, a few years in advance of the expiration of the term of the current settlement of revenue.”

111. When an order has been made under section 101, directing the preparation of a record-of-rights, then, subject to the provisions of section 104H, a Civil Court shall not,—

Stay of proceedings in Civil Court during preparation of record-of-rights.

- (a) where a settlement of land-revenue is being or is about to be made—until after the final publication of the record-of-rights, and
- (b) where a settlement of land-revenue is not being made or is not about to be made—until three months after the final publication of the record-of-rights, entertain [any application made under section 158, or] any suit or application for the alteration of the rent or the determination of the status of any tenant in the area to which the record-of-rights applies.

Extended to the Chota Nagpur Division, except the district of Manbhum (Not., Feb. 9th, 1903) but the words "subject to the provisions of section 104H" have been omitted. The words in heavy brackets were inserted by s. 34, Act I, B. C., 1907.

Effect of this section.—This section is practically the same as sub-section (1) of section 111, as originally framed. The jurisdiction of the Civil Court is not ousted in cases of other classes than those referred to in this section ; so that when a tenant has agreed to pay additional rent at a stipulated rate for excess land found on measurement to be in his possession, a suit for arrears at this rate is not barred under the provisions of this section ; for such a suit is not a suit for alteration of the rent but one for arrears of rent, and it does not become a suit for alteration of rent merely because subsequently to the accrual of the arrears there have been settlement proceedings, and land measured in connection therewith (Ramjan Ali v. Amjad Ali, 20 Calc., 903). But this section does not give the Civil Courts power to interfere, save as provided in sec. 104 H, in regard to rents settled under Part II or under sec. 105, Part III, of this Chapter, or in matters which have already formed the subject of "dispute" between the parties (sec. 106), and with regard to which the Revenue Officer's decision are final (secs. 107 and 109).

This section does not bar a suit brought against persons recorded as tenants in the record-of-rights, when they are sued as trespassers for possession and mesne profits. What is barred by s. 111 is the entertainment by a Civil Court of any suit or application for the determination of the status of any tenant in the area to which the record-of-rights applies until three months after the final publication of the record-of-rights (Trailokhyo Nath Basu v. Macleod, 28 Calc., 28 ; Rajaram Singh v. Sheo Prasad Rai, 3 C. L. J., 63 n). See also Hanuman Jha v. Rameshwar Singh, (10 C. W. N., cclxviii).

Where the plaintiff alleges that the defendant took land from him agreeing to pay a fair rent therefor, but failed to come to any arrangement, the plaintiff can sue in the Civil Court for determination of the fair rent. There is nothing in the Bengal Tenancy Act to bar the trial of such a suit (Durgadas Rakhit v. Madhab Chandra Palmal, 1 C. L. J., 78*n*).

Change made by Act I, B. C., of 1907.—With regard to the alteration in the section made by 34, Act I, B. C., 1907, the Select Committee in their report on the Bill say :

“We have inserted this clause in order to prevent an inquiry by a Civil Court into questions of rent and status simultaneously with the preparation of a record-of-rights by a Revenue-Officer. It seems to us to be inadvisable that two authorities should be engaged in the same inquiry at the same time.”

111A. No suit shall be brought in any Civil Court in respect of any order directing the preparation of a record-of-rights under this Chapter, or in respect of the framing, publication, signing or attestation of such a record or of any part of it, or, save as provided in section 104H, for the alteration of any entry in such a record of a rent settled under sections 104A to 104F :

Limitation of jurisdiction of Civil Courts in matters, other than rent, relating to record-of-rights.

Provided that any person who is dissatisfied with any entry in, or omission from, a record-of rights framed in pursuance of an order made under section 101, sub-section (2), clause (d), which concerns a right of which he is in possession, may institute a suit for declaration of his right under Chapter VI of the Specific Relief Act, 1877.

I of 1877.

Extended to the Chota Nagpur Division, except the district of Manbhum (Not., Feb. 9th, 1903), but the words “or, save as provided in section 104H, for the alteration of any entry in such a record of a rent settled under sections 104A to 104F,” and the words in the proviso “framed in pursuance of an order made under section 101, sub-section (2), clause (d)” have been omitted.

Clause 1 of this section is taken from sec. 158 (2), clauses iv to vi, of the Punjab Land Revenue Act, (XVII of 1887). The proviso is founded on sec. 45 of the same Act.

The first part of sec. 111A prohibits suits which seek to take undue advantage of mere technical defects in the procedure leading up to or involved in settlement proceedings. The section further prohibits the alteration of rent once settled except to the extent allowed by sec. 104H, and the proviso in virtue of which suits of a declaratory nature may be brought, cannot be read as prohibiting suits for the recovery of arrears of rent (Nasarulla Mia v. Amiruddi, 3 C. L. J., 133). See also Ram Ghulam Singh v. Bishu Prakash Narain Singh, (11 C. W. N., 48).

[111B.] (1) Where a record of-rights has been prepared and finally published in respect of the land in any area in which a settlement of land revenue is not being made, or is not about to be made, no application or suit affecting such land or any tenant thereof shall, within three months from the date of the certificate of final publication of such record-of-rights, be made or instituted in any Civil Court for the decision of any of the following issues, namely :—

in which certain issues arise.

- (a) whether the land is or is not liable to the payment of rent ;
- (b) whether the relation of landlord and tenant exists :
- (c) whether the land is part of a particular estate or tenancy ; or
- (d) whether there is any special condition or incident of the tenancy, or whether any right-of-way or other easement attaches to the land

(2) If, before the final publication of the record-of-rights in such area, a suit involving the decision of any of the issues mentioned in sub-section (1) has been instituted in a Civil Court, the Revenue-officer shall not entertain any suit under section 106 involving the decision of the same issue.

(3) Where, in the course of settling fair rents under section 105, the Revenue-officer finds that, by reason of a suit for the decision of any of the issues mentioned in sub-section (1) having been instituted in a Civil Court before the final publication of the record-of-rights or before a Revenue officer under section 106, he is unable to settle a fair rent until such issue is decided, the Revenue-officer shall stay the proceedings, for the settlement of a fair rent pending a final decision on the issue.

And, after the issue has been finally decided, he shall settle a fair rent, as if the record-of-rights had been framed in accordance with such decision.

(4) Where the making of an application or institution of a suit has been delayed owing to the operation of sub-section (1), the period of three months therein mentioned shall be excluded in computing the period of limitation prescribed for such suit or application.]

This section was introduced into the Act by sec. 35, Act I., B.C., 1907. Its object was to meet certain practical difficulties which had arisen owing to suits regarding the same subject matter being filed simultaneously in the Civil Courts and before the settlement authorities. The Honourable Babu Jogendra Nath Mukharji in explaining the section in Council spoke as follows :

"It is necessary to explain the reasons which necessitated this amendment, and some slight history as regards the process of framing records is necessary to be placed before Hon'ble Members. Those Hon'ble Members who are not very familiar with the proceedings under Chapter X of the Bengal Tenancy Act, in a permanently-settled area, do not probably know that there are several stages through which the record-of-rights is taken. The first stage is the demarcation of the boundary of villages; then comes the stage when officers of subordinate rank fill in different columns tentatively, and then the next year the attestation stage comes, that is, an officer of superior rank verifies the entries in the record-of-rights and decides any matter necessary for him to decide in order to retain the record as far as possible at that stage in a correct way; then the preliminary publication of records takes place, and after that objections are invited and considered by the Settlement Officers. After the decision of objections under section 103A of the Bengal Tenancy Act, the final record is framed and published and very often at this stage, when a person who has preferred an objection in respect of an entry in the record-of-rights, finds that his objection has been lost, he files a suit in the Civil Court.

"When the final publication takes place, the zamindar, or rather anybody who has benefited by the record, comes in and files an application under section 105 for settlement of a fair rent, and generally it is the zamindar who does so. When an application like that is put in, various questions are raised by the party against whom that application is preferred; the objections may be on the ground that the man who has been entered as a tenant is not really the tenant, that he holds his land rent-free or it may be that the status which has been recorded has not been correctly recorded, that is, that he is not a tenure-holder but a raiya and so forth.

"Section 105A, which has been accepted by Hon'ble Members to-day, provides for contingencies of settling fair rents under section 105; because unless and until those questions are decided a Revenue-Officer cannot settle a fair rent, for it may be that the land is really rent-free, not rent-paying. In such a case, it will be a pure waste of time for a Revenue-Officer to settle a fair rent and then to unsettle it, after it is decided that the land is not rent-paying. The whole of his labour is lost in that case. I need not go into the history of this section 105A, which has been accepted to-day; it will suffice for me to say that, if that section had not been adopted, matters would have been made considerably difficult. That is one stage of the case.

"The tenant, it may be, after an application under section 105 has been filed—this has to be filed within two months after the date of certificate of final publication—and before he gets a summons in the case or before he is called upon to appear and put in his written statement, may go to the Civil Court or to the Revenue Court under section 106 and file a suit. Provision has been made covering this contingency, and the freedom of choice of the plaintiffs as to the venue of their suits at this stage has been left untouched.⁽¹⁾ There is, however, no provision in the Bengal Tenancy Act providing against a contingency like the one contemplated by this new section 111B.

"I have already submitted that, before final publication of the record and after the decision of an objection under section 103A, a person may go to the Civil Court and file a suit. But what is the Settlement Officer, under these circumstances, to do, for instance, when there is an application under section 105 pending before him? Up to this time, parallel cases have been going on simultaneously in the Civil Court as well as in the Settlement department. The Revenue-Officer may now sometimes say that he had the first seisin of the case, and the Civil Court therefore has no jurisdiction to try the issues that have arisen before him at that time; the Civil Court saying, on the other hand, we are a Civil Court and there is no authority by which we can be divested of jurisdiction. In this way, considerable difficulty has ensued, and the difficulty has been experienced not only by the landlord but by the raiyat as well. In order to prevent this double mode of procedure, this section 111B has been proposed.

(1) i. e., the provisos added to sections 105A and 106 by Act I, B. C., of 1907.

“Three months after the final publication of the record, I may repeat, is the period during which a person can file a suit under section 106 of the Bengal Tenancy Act; so that by the provision contained in the proposed section 111B, time is given to a party to elect whether he should go to the Civil Court or to the Revenue Court as plaintiff. The issues covered by this section are the following, namely :—Whether the land is or is not liable to payment of rent; whether the relation of landlord and tenant exists; whether the land is part of a particular estate or tenancy, and whether there is any special condition or incident of or whether a right of way or easement attaches to the land comprising the tenancy? Now, these are questions which very generally crop up in connection with the decision of cases under section 105, and it may be questioned why is it that the wording of this section is somewhat different from the wording of section 105A; as it will be seen that there are four classes of issues contemplated by this section 111B, whereas there are more than four classes of issues contemplated by section 105A? Evidently, it was intended that the nature of the questions or issues intended to be dealt with should be the same in both these sections.

“It will be remembered, however, that section 105A was worded with reference to the record as finally framed, and because the consideration of any issue mentioned in section 105A has to proceed upon the record as framed. Therefore, the wording of section 105A is slightly different from the wording of section 111B, so far as the classes of issues mentioned in each of these sections is concerned; but it will be seen that practically every question that comes up in section 105A comes also in section 111B, when coupled with section 111, which forms a complement to it. The wording is different, because of the fact that the wording of one section is directed to the record itself; whereas the other is independent of any such basis. I, therefore, submit that the matter of section 111B, together with that of section 111 and the matter of section 105A, are practically identical in point of the questions which they are intended to cover. Then we go on to the second clause :—

“If, before the final publication of the record-of-rights in such area, a suit for the decision of any of the issues mentioned in sub-section (1) has been instituted in a Civil Court, the Revenue-officer shall not entertain any suit under section 106 involving the decision of the same issue.'

"This is a matter, the principle of which has already been accepted by the acceptance of the two amendments adopted by the Council, in the shape of the two provisos added to sections 105A and 106; and it is only with a view to prevent simultaneous suits in a Civil Court, and before the section 106 Officer, that this clause (2) is proposed.

"The third clause where, in the course of settling fair rents under section 105, the Revenue-Officer finds that, by reason of a suit involving the decision of any of the issues mentioned in sub-section (1) having been instituted in a Civil Court, before the final publication of the record-of-rights or before a Revenue-Officer under section 106, he is unable to settle a fair rent until such issue is decided, the Revenue-Officer shall stay the proceedings for the settlement of a fair rent, pending a final decision on the issue; and, after the issue has been finally decided, he shall settle a fair rent as if the record-of-rights had been framed in accordance with such decision. This is in exact consonance with existing practice. Where there is a parallel suit before the Civil Court the Revenue-Officer while proceeding under section 105 or 106 is at sea and he does not know which way to turn; and this clause lays down the procedure for him.

"The last clause (4), where the making of an application or the institution of a suit has been delayed owing to the operation of sub-section (1), the period of three months therein mentioned shall be excluded in computing the period of limitation proscribed for such suit or application.

"This is a necessary clause; because when a plaintiff is stopped from filing a civil suit, it may be he loses his right to bring a suit in the Civil Court upon the expiry of the period of three months during which such suits are stopped. I have already submitted to the Council that the reason why the filing of civil suits is forbidden for three months after the final publication of records, is, to give time for election to the party concerned, and therefore it is right and proper that the period of limitation should operate in his favour during this period of three months. That is the object of clause (4).

"I think I have now briefly explained the object of section 111B, and I hope Hon'ble Members will agree with me in thinking that this is a very necessary section. Great difficulties have been experienced for want of a definite procedure which would control parallel suits or stop parallel suits in the settlement and the Civil Courts, and the proposed section 111B is calculated to give relief not only to the officers of Government concerned but to the general body of both landlords and tenants. With these words I recommend this section."

In answer to an objection that the section did not provide for a suit instituted in the Civil Court after the expiry of three months from the date of the certificate of final publication but before the decision of a similar suit instituted under section 106, the Hon'ble Babu Jogendra Nath Mukharji pointed out that this was already covered by section 109, under which the Civil Court is debarred from entertaining any suit concerning any matter which is or has already been the subject of a suit instituted under section 106.

112. (1) The Local Government, with the previous sanction of the Governor-General in Council, may, on being satisfied that the exercise of the powers hereinafter mentioned is necessary in the interests of public order or of the local welfare ; invest a Revenue officer, acting under this Chapter, [or that any landlord is demanding rents which have been illegally enhanced above those entered as payable in a record-of-rights prepared under this Chapter, invest a Revenue-officer] with the following powers or either of them, namely ;—

Power to authorise special settlement in special cases.

- (a) power to settle all rents ;
- (b) power, when settling rents, to reduce rents if, in the opinion of the officer, the maintenance of existing rents would on any ground, whether specified in this Act or not, be unfair or inequitable.

(2) The powers given under this section may be made exerciseable within a specified area either generally or with reference to specified cases or classes of cases.

[(2a) A settlement of rents under this section shall be made in the manner provided by sections 104 to 104J (both inclusive).]

(3) When the Local Government takes any action under this section, the settlement-record prepared by the Revenue Officer shall not take effect until it has been finally confirmed by the Governor-General in Council, [and the revision, by direction of the Board of Revenue under sub-section (2) of section 104G, of a record-of rights, or any portion of a record-of-rights, prepared under this section, shall be subject to a like confirmation by the Governor General in Council.]

The words and sub-section in brackets have been added by s. 36, Act I, B. C., 1907. The words in brackets in sub-section (1) have been substituted for the words "invest a Revenue Officer acting under this Chapter."

Object of this section—This section provides a special procedure intended to be resorted to only in exceptional circumstances in which the operation of the ordinary law is likely to prove insufficient. Sir Steuart Bayley in introducing the Bill into Council explained that this section was intended to take the place of Sir R. Temple's Agrarian Outrage Act (VI, B. C., of 1876), which had effect for only three years. "It seems desirable," Sir Steuart Bayley added, "that, in exceptional cases, in which it may be necessary to have recourse to this procedure, the Government should have the power of going to the root of the dispute, and should be able to put the whole relations of landlord and tenant on a stable footing for a reasonable period."

Object of alterations made by Act I, B. C., 1907. In the Notes on Clauses in the Bill of 1906, it was said :

"This clause is intended to give effect to one of the main objects of the Bill, viz., to enable Government to take steps to reduce rents, in cases where these have been illegally enhanced, so as to be oppressive to the cultivators of the soil. It is possible that the Government has power to take such action under section 112, as it stands at present, but that section was incorporated in the Tenancy Act under a guarantee that it would be used only in cases of agrarian disturbance. Experience has shown, however, that certain landlords have been able to force illegal and oppressive rents on their tenantry, without creating any immediate agrarian disturbance. In such cases the Government proposes in future, to take action to reduce the excessive rents before any actual disturbance arises."

The Select Committee in their report on the Bill say :—

"Though it is probable that the Local Government would be justified in taking action under section 112, as it now stands, in cases where a landlord is demanding rents which have been illegally enhanced above those entered as payable in a record-of-rights, we think it advisable to remove all doubts on the point. We consider that the change in the clause as now redrafted is a more convenient way of emphasizing the fact. We consider that any revision of the record-of-rights by the Board of Revenue should be subject to confirmation by the Governor-General in Council, and have added sub-clause (3) accordingly."

The provisions of section 112 have never so far been put into force, one of the reasons apparently being that the section, as it stood before amendment contained no provision for a procedure which would render its working practicable. The special powers could only be conferred on "a Revenue Officer acting under this Chapter," and in permanently settled areas, rents could only be settled under Chapter X on the application of landlords or tenants under section 105. It was considered unlikely that any such application would be made in areas to which the section might be applied. The amendments made enable any Revenue Officer to be invested with powers under the section. In settling rents, the procedure laid down in Part II of Chapter X will be followed, and the Revenue Officer will be able under section 104 to settle rents of his own motion for tenants of every class.

113. (1) When the rent of a tenure or holding is settled under this Chapter, it shall not, except on the ground of a landlord's improvement or of a subsequent alteration in the area of the tenure or holding, be enhanced in the case of a tenure or an occupancy holding [or the holding of an under-raiyat having occupancy rights], for fifteen years, and, in the case of a non-occupancy holding [or the holding of an under-raiyat not having occupancy rights], for five years; [and no such rent shall be reduced within the periods aforesaid save on the ground of alteration in the area of the holding or on the ground specified in the section 38, clause (a)].

(2) The said periods of fifteen years and five years shall be counted from the date [on which the rent settled takes effect under this Chapter].

The words in brackets have been added by the Amending Act of 1898.

Modifications in the section and reasons for them.—In the Statement of Objects and Reasons for Bill to amend the Tenancy Act, para. 27, it is said :—

“Section 113 of the Act provides that a rent settled shall not be enhanced in the case of an occupancy-raiyat for 15 years, and of a non-occupancy raiyat for five years, but there is nothing to prevent its being reduced within these periods respectively. The intention was to fix rents for the periods named, and it is obvious that the considerations in favour of preventing enhancements during these periods apply with equal force to reductions of rents settled. The section has been amended so as to make it clear that reductions of the rents settled will not be permitted during these periods except on the ground of diminution of area or that specified in section 38 (a) of the Act.”

A further modification made by this section relates to the position of under-raiyats. It will be observed that the parcels of land held by them are now referred to as “holdings,” though in section 3 (9) “holding” is defined as a “parcel or parcels of land held by a raiyat.” Again, formerly under-raiyats were in no way protected from repeated enhancements of rent, that is to say, their rents could be enhanced year after year until the maximum allowed by sec. 48 was reached. Now, the same protection as regards the period which must elapse after rents have been settled under this Chapter before any enhancement can be made, as is given to raiyats, has been conferred on under-raiyats.

114. [(1) When the preparation of a record-of-rights has been directed or undertaken under this Chapter], in any case except where a settlement of land-revenue is being or is about to be made, the expenses incurred by the Government in carrying out the provisions of this Chapter in any local area, [estate, tenure or part thereof (including expenses that may be incurred from time to time in the maintenance [at any time, whether before or after the preparation of the record-of-rights, in the maintenance, repair or restoration] of boundary marks and other survey marks erected for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this Chapter)], or such part of those expenses as the Local Government may direct, shall be defrayed by the landlords, tenants and occupants of land in that local area, estate, tenure or part in such proportions [and in such instalments (if any)], as the Local Government, having regard to all the circumstances, may determine.

[(2) The estimated amount of the expenses likely to be incurred for the maintenance, repair or restoration of boundary-marks for a period not exceeding fifteen years, or such part of such amount as the Local Government may direct, may be recovered in advance in the same manner as if such expenses had been already incurred] ;

(3) The portion of the aforesaid expenses which any person [is liable to pay] shall be recoverable by the Government as if it were an arrear of [land-] revenue due [in respect of the said local area, estate, tenure or part].

[(4) The cost of preparing copies of survey maps and records-of-rights under this Chapter for distribution to landlords and tenants shall be deemed to be part of the expenses incurred in carrying out the provisions of this Chapter.]

[Explanation.—The word 'tenure' in this section includes all revenue-free and rent-free tenures and holdings within a local area, estate or tenure.]

Extended to the Chota Nagpur division except the district of Manbhum, (Not., Feby. 9th, 1903) but the words "in any case except where a settlement of land-revenue is being or is about to be made" have been omitted.

The words in light brackets have been added by the Amending Act of 1898.

By section 37, Act I, B. C., 1907, the words "by the Government" in sub-section (1) have been repealed ; the words in heavy brackets "at any time whether before or after the preparation of the record-of-rights, in the maintenance, repair or restoration" have been substituted for the words "from time to time in the maintenance ;" after the word "proportions" the words and brackets "and in such instalments (if any)" in sub-section (1) have been inserted ; the present sub-section (2) has been renumbered (3) ; and sub-section (4) has been added.

Reasons for modifications made by Act III, B. C, 1898.—In the Statement of Objects and Reasons of the Bill to amend the Tenancy Act, para. 28, it is said :—

"A somewhat important change in this section is proposed. As the section now stands, the proportion of the cost of a survey and record-of-rights to be defrayed by each individual landlord or tenant must be recovered from him as an arrear of land-revenue under the Public Demands Recovery Act. It is practically impossible to carry out the provisions of the section as it stands. In Behar, where there are small estates and a great number of co-sharer proprietors, the amount recoverable from each individual co-sharer is sometimes less than one anna. To issue a separate certificate against each one of the individual co-sharer landlords, under such circumstances, would only subject them to unnecessary expense, while endangering the realization of the costs of the proceedings. It is, therefore, proposed to hold the whole estate or tenure, in case of proprietors and tenure-holders, liable for the proprietors and tenure-holders' shares of the costs respectively. Since doubts have been expressed as to whether the Revenue Officer has authority to record the names of holders of revenue free or rent free lands, and, therefore, whether the holders of such lands are, under section 114, liable for any part of the costs of a survey and record-of-rights of the local area or estate in which they may be included, it is expressly provided that such lands are tenures for the purposes of this section, and, therefore, liable for their share of the costs, as they are also declared to be so liable under the alternative procedure for recovery of costs contained in Part III of Bengal Act III of 1895.

It is further provided that the expenses incurred in the future in the maintenance of boundary marks and other survey marks erected in the course of preparing a record-of-rights, etc., shall be recoverable in the manner specified in section 114."

Reasons for modifications made by Act I, B. C., 1907.—In the Notes on Clauses to the Bill of 1906, it is said :

"When a survey and record-of-rights are undertaken on the application of landlords and tenants, the costs are usually met in the first instance from deposits made by the applicants, and not from Government funds. In such cases, it is often equitable to recover a share of the expenses from the other landlords and tenants concerned, who also benefit by the preparation of the record-of-rights. The proposed omission " (i. e., of the words " by the Government " in sub-section (1)) " will make clear the legality of this course.

In the course of survey and settlement operations, permanent boundary marks are erected at all points where the boundaries of three villages meet. Arrangements are made for the repair and restoration of these marks from time to time as may be necessary, after the completion of the original survey proceedings. Such marks, if properly maintained, are of great utility in preventing boundary disputes from arising, and are, in fact, a valuable adjunct to the record-of-rights. It is therefore proposed to take power to recover in advance the estimated cost of the maintenance, repair and restoration of these boundary marks for a period of fifteen years together with the cost of the preparation of the record-of-rights. The cost of maintaining the boundary marks for fifteen years will be an insignificant addition to the cost of the preparation of the record-of-rights, and it will be more convenient both to the Government and to the landlords and tenants to collect both sums simultaneously, than to have a separate proceeding for the recovery of the cost of maintenance of boundary marks. The period of fifteen years has been fixed, because this is the time for which the rents of tenures and occupancy holdings settled under Chapter X have effect under section 113.

After the preparation of a record-of-rights, it is usual to distribute copies of it, together with copies of the village maps to the landlords and tenants. No proceedings under Chapter X can be considered complete without this. In order to remove all doubt, it is proposed to provide that the cost of the preparation of these copies shall be deemed to be part of the expenses incurred in carrying out the provisions of the Chapter."

The words " in such instalments (if any) " were added by the Select Committee to legalize the present practice of the Government of recovering costs by instalments.

Procedure for recovery of expenses.—For the rules for the apportionment and recovery of costs under this section, see rules 4 to 17 Chap. 17, Part III, of the Board's Survey and Settlement Manual, 1901, pp. 122—124. A further procedure for the recovery of the expenses of a survey and of the preparation of a record-of-rights is provided in Act III, B. C. of 1895. (The Land Records Maintenance Act) Part III, ss. 28—32 and 36 (1) (c).

Principles regulating apportionment and realization of costs.—In Government order No. 1305 L. R. dated 30th March, 1899, relating to the survey of the Madhupur estate in Cuttack, it is stated that " the principles which guided the Government in the apportionment and realization of costs of survey and record-of-rights are—

I.—That the costs cannot be recovered from either landlord or tenant if they have been incurred for the purposes of a settlement of land revenue [section 114 of the Bengal Tenancy Act and section 28 of Act III (B. C.) 1895].

II.—That in apportioning the costs in permanently-settled estates it should be considered who is responsible for the state of things which necessitated the survey and record-of-rights.

III.—That the apportionment between landlords and tenants should be made with due regard to the benefits received by the parties from the survey and record-of-rights."

115. When the particulars mentioned in section 102, clause (b), have been recorded under this Chapter in respect of any tenancy, the presumption under section 50 shall not thereafter apply to that tenancy.

Presumption as to fixity of rent not to apply where record-of-rights has been prepared.

No change has been made in this section. The presumption referred to is that which arises under section 50 in favour of a tenure-holder or raiyat who proves that he has held at an unvaried rent or rate of rent for twenty years, that he has held at that rent or rate of rent from the time of the Permanent Settlement.

The provision in this section against the presumption as to fixed rent has no application in a suit brought by a tenant for the purpose of contesting the correctness of the decision of a Revenue officer in regard to the entry as to the status of a raiyat in a record-of-rights. In such a suit the tenant is entitled to the benefit of the presumption (Secretary of State v. Kajimudin, 26 Calc., 617).

[115A.] In the demarcation of village boundaries for the purpose of making a survey and preparing a record-of-rights under this Chapter, a Revenue-officer shall, so far as is possible, and subject to the provisions of the Bengal Survey Act, 1875, preserve, as the unit of survey and record, the area contained within the exterior boundaries of the village maps of the revenue survey, if any ;

Demarcation of village boundaries.

and, where village maps prepared at a previous revenue survey exist, he shall not, without the sanction of the Board of Revenue, adopt any other area as such unit.]

This section has been added by s 38, Act I, B. C., 1907. See note to sec. (3) (10), p. 35.

Remaining sections of Act III, B. C., 1898.

The following three sections (8, 9 and 11) of the Act III, B. C., of 1898, (extended to Orissa, Not. Nov. 5, 1898), do not modify the provisions of Chapter X, but are closely connected with it. They are therefore, printed here.

8. All records published under section 105, of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, before the commencement of this Act, whether in draft or final form, shall be deemed to have been duly published.

Validation of publication of past records.
VIII of 1885.

“This section is inserted in order to settle technical doubts which have been expressed as to the sufficiency, from a purely legal point of view, of the methods in which in some cases records have been published.” (Statement of Objects and Reasons, para 29).

9. (1) Every settlement of rent or decision of a dispute by a Revenue Officer under section 104 or section 106 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, before the commencement of this Act, in respect of which no appeal has, before the commencement of this Act, been preferred to the Special Judge appointed under section 108 of the Act, shall have the force and effect of a decree of a Civil Court in a suit between the parties and shall be final :

Effect of settlements of rent and decisions by Revenue Officers made before commencement of this Act.
VIII of 1885.

Provided that an appeal shall lie to the District Judge from any such settlement or decision which was made or given within thirty days before the commencement of this Act, if the appeal be presented within thirty days from the date of such settlement or decision.

(2) The provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure relating to appeals shall, as nearly as may be, apply to all such appeals.

XIV of 1882.

This section is founded on sec. 107 of the former Chapter X and has been “introduced in order to make it quite clear that a decision of a dispute or a settlement of a rent, by a Revenue Officer under Chapter X of the Tenancy Act, before the passing of this Bill, is to have the force and effect of a decree of a Civil Court in a suit between the parties. This was the intention of the law, and it is in pursuance of that intention the proceedings for decisions of disputes and settlement of rents have hitherto been carried on.” (Statement of Objects and Reasons, para 30).

The effect of sec. 9 of Act III of 1898, B.C., is to make final the decisions of a Revenue Officer made under sec. 106 of Act VIII of 1885 before the commencement of the amending Act, only in regard to disputes which could be decided by the Revenue Officer under sec. 106, Act VIII of 1885. A question of title between rival purchasers of a tenure could not be dealt with and determined under sec. 106, Act VIII of 1885, before its amendment by Act III of 1898, B. C. A decision on such a question before the commencement of the amending Act does not prevent the question from being now litigated in the Civil Court (Donay Das v. Keshub Pruhti, 8 C. W. N., 741). In a proceeding under Chap. X before the passing of Act III, B. C., of 1898, the settlement authorities found that the lands claimed by the tenants as their rent-free lands were not rent-free, and they accordingly assessed them with rent; held, that by s. 9, Act III, B. C., of 1898, the Civil Court is precluded from adjudicating on the same matter (Nabin Chandra Chakravarti v. Radha Kishor Manikya, 11 C. W. N., 859). “When the Settlement Officer or Assistant Settlement Officer who has passed a decree has left the district on transfer or at the close of the operations, any Revenue Officer (see the term defined in section 3 (17) of the Bengal Tenancy Act and also the Notification cited under Rule 3, page 3 above) who would have had jurisdiction to try the suit in which the decree was passed, or who is in charge of the records of the case, can execute it (vide section 649 of the Civil Procedure Code, and the ruling in Indian Law Reports, 6 Calc. 513).” Rev. Cir. Sep. 1904.

11. Bengal Act V of 1894, (an Act to remove doubts which have arisen in connection with the re-settlement of land-revenue in temporarily-settled areas, and to amend the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885) is hereby repealed.

Repeal of Bengal Act V, 1894.

Act V of 1894, B. C., introduced trifling modifications in secs. 101 and 110 of the former Chap. X. It was passed with the view of facilitating settlement operations in Orissa. It is no longer necessary, and has accordingly been repealed.

Inspection of settlement records.—The Board of Revenue have issued the following circular on the subject of the custody, inspection and grant of copies of settlement proceedings :—

“The original settlement records of private and wards’ estates surveyed and settled under Chapter X of the Bengal Tenancy Act are to be made over to the Collectorate records-rooms of the districts in which the estates are situated. These records are public documents, and the rules for their custody are the same as those which apply to the custody of other public documents. If parties concerned with the survey and settlements proceedings desire to inspect the records and take copies of them, the rules in Section VIII are applicable to these as to all other records.” (Bd’s. C. O., No. 6, May, 1890).

In Rule 7, Chapter VI, of the Government Rules under this Act are specified the documents which form the Settlement Records in proceedings under Chapter X of the Act.

Court, Process, and Copying Fees in Surveys and Settlements.—The Board of Revenue have prescribed the following rules for the levy of Court, Process and Copying fees in Surveys and Settlements. (See Board’s Circular No. 13 of February 1899, and Survey and Settlement Mandal, 1901, Part I, Chap. 3).

“Court-fees.

1. When a survey and record-of-rights are undertaken with a view to the settlement of land revenue, applications or petitions to a Revenue Officer making a settlement of land revenue, relating to matters connected with the assessment of land or the ascertainment of rights thereto, or interest therein, if presented before the final confirmation of the settlement under section 104F (3), are not chargeable with any fee [section 19 (ix) of the Court Fees Act of 1870].

Court-fees remitted in settlements of land revenue.

2. In the case of proceedings under Chapter X of the Bengal Tenancy Act as amended by Act III (B. C.) of 1898, when a settlement of land revenue is not being, or about to be, made, a Revenue Officer is a Revenue Officer within the meaning of Schedule II, clause 1 (b) of the Court Fees Act, and applications or petitions filed before him, unless they are exempted under the several notifications contained in Rule 3 below, must be stamped with a Court-fee of eight annas :

Definition of Revenue Officer and Revenue Court.

- (i) Provided that, as when trying a suit instituted for the decision of a dispute under section 106, a Revenue Officer acts as a Civil Court, plaints in such cases shall be stamped according to the nature of the subject-matter in dispute in accordance with article 1 of Schedule I or articles 5 and 17 of Schedule II of the Court Fees Act, and all applications and petitions made in the trial of such suits shall be stamped as required in the cases of applications or petitions to a Civil Court under Schedule II of the Act.
- (ii) Provided that applications for settlement of rents under section 105, Bengal Tenancy Act, must be stamped in accordance with Rule 3 (ii) below.

3. In exercise of the powers conferred by section 35 of the Court Fees Act, VII of 1870, and section 105, sub-section (3) of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, as amended by the Bengal Tenancy (Amendment) Act, 1898, the Government of India by Notifications Nos. 321 S. R., and 322 S. R., dated the 19th January 1899, have made the following rules :—

- (i) Fees chargeable on applications or petitions of objection referring to any entry made, or proposed to be made, in a draft record-of-rights prepared under Chapter X of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885 (VIII of 1885), as amended by the Bengal Tenancy Act (Amendment) Act, 1898 (Bengal Act III of 1898) are remitted :

Provided that such applications or petitions are presented before the publication of such draft record under section 103A, sub-section (1), of the said Act.

- (ii) When a record-of-rights is being prepared under Chapter X of the said Act, and an application is made under section 105 thereof for a settlement of rent, such application shall bear a stamp of eight annas for each tenant making, or joining or joined in, the application.

NOTE.—The word “tenant” in clause (ii) means a tenancy, which may be held by several tenants as co-sharers, and a Court fee of eight annas is payable in respect of each such tenancy included in an application for settlement of rent under this section.

4. Appeals presented under section 104G (1) to a superior Revenue Authority and applications for revision presented under section 108 will bear a Court-fee of eight annas under Schedule II 1 (b) of the Court Fees Act, if the superior Revenue Authority is of lower standing than a Commissioner of a Division. If the authority is a Commissioner of a Division or the Director of the Department of Land Records, or if an application for revision is made to the Board under section 104G (2), the fee will be one rupee under Schedule II, 1 (c) of the Court Fees Act.

Process-fees.

5. Process-fees are not to be charged on general notices addressed to the raiyats and landlords in a body. The cost of issuing such notices forms part of the general expenses of survey and settlement, to be recovered under section 114 of the Act.

Process fees on general notices remitted.

6. Process-fees are to be charged on special notices which it is found necessary to address to individuals in consequence of their failure to attend to general notices.

Fees to be charged on special notices

7. But where it is necessary to issue a notice to a particular individual owing to the discovery of errors in the records, and not because of any neglect on his part. Process-fees should not be charged.

Except to correct errors.

8. Process-fees, either paid in advance by, or recovered from, parties, are to be paid or expended in stamps, which will be attached to the applications for process or to the processes.

Process-fees to be credited to cost of settlement.

Scale of Process-fees payable.

9. When a Survey and Settlement Officer is acting as a Revenue Officer under Rule 2, above, the scale of Process-fees he may realise is given in Rule I, Chapter VII of the Tenancy Act Rules and Chapter VIII of the Board's Rules, 1896, which are summarised below :—

Scale of Process-fees.

- (a) For each executive revenue process, whether directed to one or more persons, where such persons reside in the same village—12 annas.
- (b) When process issues against persons in different villages, a separate fee must be charged for service in each village.
- (c) In addition to the above fee, the actual charge to be incurred, if it is necessary to travel by railway or boat or to cross ferries, must be levied. If the peon carries more than one process, the sum leviable as above is to be charged in equal shares upon all the processes carried.
- (d) If a peon is detained for more than 24 hours at the place of service on the request of the person at whose instance process was issued, such person must pay then and there demurrage at the rate of five annas per day.

10. (i) In all proceedings for the settlement of rents under Part III, Chapter X, and in all proceedings under section 106 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, the fees on processes issued by the Settlement Officer are subject to the rules framed by the High Court under section 2 of the Court Fees Act VII of 1870. The scale of fees leviable under Act VII of 1870 is given in pages 64 et seq. of the General Rules and Circular Orders of the High Court (Civil), 1891, which are summarised below :—

Scale of Process-fees in proceedings under section 106 and suits under section 106 of the Bengal Tenancy Act.

IN CASES WHEN THE SUBJECT-MATTER IS VALUED—

	Rs. A. P.	Rs. A. P.	Rs. A. P.
(1) In every case in which personal or substituted service is required on parties to the suit or on others when not more than four persons are to be served with the same documents, one fee ...	2 0 0	1 0 0	0 8 0
(2) When such persons are more than four in number, the fee above-mentioned and an additional fee for every such person in excess of four ...	0 8 0	0 4 0	0 4 0

NOTE.—In cases where the claim does not exceed Rs. 50 and personal or substituted service of any process is required on persons who are not parties, the fee is 4 annas.

In districts where travelling except by boat is impracticable, the fee may be enhanced by 25 per cent., or 12½ per cent., according to the discretion of the Court.

(ii) Such fees are remitted when the proceedings are being held in camp in or near the village and service by process peons is unnecessary.

Mode of recovery.

11. In the case of special notices issued by Survey Officers or Revenue Officers under the Bengal Survey Act, or which correspond with those which the Collector has power to issue under the Survey Act, the fees for those notices are to be recovered under the Certificate Act, I (B.C.) of 1895. [In this connection see sec. 57 of Act V (B.C.) of 1875].

Recovery of Process-fees by Certificate Procedure.

12. Process fees levied under rule 6 of this Chapter can be recovered under the Certificate Act. The cost of processes issued by a Settlement Officer as a Revenue Court should, in the first instance, be paid by the party applying for the issue of the process, and if the suit is instituted on behalf of Government, then it should be paid by Government. Ultimately the cost in these cases should be added to the amount of the decree and recovered from the losing party under section 252 of the Civil Procedure Code.

Recovery of Process-fees before Courts.

Copying fees.

13. When copies of judicial decisions are applied for, the Rules of the High Court relating to Copying-fees should be followed. See General Rules and Circulars of the High Court (Civil) 1891, pages 128-132. In other proceedings where applications are made for copies of documents to which the applicant is not entitled free of charge, the rules of the Board in section VIII of the Records Manual, 1895, page 24, should be adhered to.

14. Except for purposes of litigation and on payment of fees for certified copies, no copies of survey and settlement records are to be given in the field season, i. e., from the 1st November to 1st May. Such facilities as are possible are to be given by Survey and Settlement Officers to parties interested to inspect records under proper supervision, and take copies for themselves, when no interference to work is caused.

No copies to be given during the field season.

15. During the recess months copies, certified or uncertified, as required, are to be given on payment of Copying-fees subject to rule 13. If a document copied is in an incomplete state, it is to be marked with a stamp 'incomplete' and a date should be added to this stamp by the ministerial officer in charge of the copying office."

Copies of papers before completion of record.

Exemption of Court-fees on copies of entries in a record-of-rights issued after final publication.—"In exercise of the powers conferred by section 35 of the Court Fees Act, 1870 (VII of 1870), the Governor-General in Council is pleased to remit the fees chargeable under the said Act, on certified copies of entries in a record-of-rights furnished, in accordance with any rules for the time being in force under the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885 (VIII of 1885), after the final publication of such record-of-rights under section 103A (2) of that Act." (vide India Government Notification No. 4334—Exc., dated Simla, the 18th August, 1905.)

CHAPTER XI.

[NON-ACCRUAL OF OCCUPANCY AND NON-OCCUPANCY RIGHTS, AND] RECORD OF PROPRIETORS' PRIVATE LANDS.

116. Nothing in Chapter V shall confer a right of occupancy in, and nothing in Chapter VI shall apply to [lands acquired under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, for the Government or for any Local Authority or for a Railway Company, or lands belonging to the Government within a Cantonment, while such lands remain the property of the Government, or of any Local Authority or Railway Company, or to] a proprietor's private lands known in Bengal as khámár, nij or nij-jot, and in Behar as zirát, nij, sir or kamat, where any such land is held under a lease for a term of years or under a lease from year to year.

The whole of Chapter XI has been extended to the districts of Cuttack, Puri and Balasore (Not., August, 21st, 1906.)

The words in brackets in the heading to the Chapter and in this section were inserted by ss. 39 and 40, Act I, B. C., 1907.

Former law.—Section 6 of Act X of 1859 and of Act VIII, B. C. of 1869 similarly provided that rights of occupancy should not accrue in "khamar, nij-jote or sir land belonging to the proprietor of the estate or tenure and let by him on a lease for a term or year by year." Rights of occupancy could, therefore, be acquired in nij-jote land not so let (Gaur Hari Singh v. Bihari Raut, 3 B. L. R., App., 138; 12 W. R., 278; Ashraf v. Ram Kishor Ghosh, 23 W. R., 288). But if kamat land was let for a term, the raiyat could not gain occupancy-rights merely because on the expiration of that term the land was tacitly let to him from year to year for a long period (Bhagwan Bhagat v. Jag Mohan Rai, 20 W. R., 308). A landlord seeking to obtain an enhanced rate of rent on account of nij-jote land held by a tenant without a right of occupancy has no right to obtain a judicial assessment of the rent. His right is to make his own terms with the tenant or to turn him out. This he can do by serving the tenant with a reasonable notice to quit, unless he agrees to pay the rent required, and, if the tenant continues in occupation, he must be taken by implication to have agreed to pay the said rent (Janu Mandar v. Brajo Singh, 22 W. R., 548). The right to nij-jote lands necessarily passes on a sale to the auction-purchaser (Jai Datta Jha v. Bayiram Singh, 7 W. R., 40). A zamindar occupying his own lands as nij-jote cannot, when the zamindari passes into other hands, claim them on the ground that he is a raiyat with a right of occupancy (Reed v. Srikrishna Singh, 15 W. R., 430). A zamindar claiming certain land as sirat land, and failing to prove this plea, is yet entitled to a decree for possession, when the defendants are unable to prove that they have rights of occupancy, or even that they are tenants of the plaintiff (Batai Ahir v. Bhagabatti Kuar, 11 C. L. R., 476).

Present law.—The right to have khamar land belongs only to proprietors. Tenure-holders or ijarudars have, as such, no such right. Proprietors cannot now add to the area of their khamar land, and all land is to be presumed to be raiyati, (in which occupancy-rights can accrue) till the contrary is proved [sec. 120 (2) and (3)]. Tenants of khamar land have neither the rights of occupancy nor of non-occupancy *raiya*s. But with the exception of the provisions of Chaps. V and VI, the other provisions of the Act, so far as they are applicable, will apply to them.

The object of this section is to exclude the proprietor's private lands from the operations of Chaps. V and VI, provided the proprietor has taken the precaution indicated by the concluding words of the sections, i. e., "when any such land is held under a lease for a term of years or under a lease from year to year." These words mean held by any one, whether tikkadar or raiyat, to whom the proprietor has let it out, or by a raiyat under the tikkadar. A person brought upon the land by a lessee for a term under the proprietor ceases to have any right in the land upon the expiry of his landlord's lease (Sheo Nandan Rai v. Ajodh Rai, 26 Calc., 546 ; 3 C. W. N., 336).

In Brahmanand Mahapatra v. Arjun Raut, (1 C. L. J., 310), decided before the issue of Govt. notification of the 21st August 1906 extending the provisions of this Chapter to Orissa, it was held that secs. 20 and 21 having been extended to Orissa, and not sec. 116, occupancy rights could be acquired in nij-jote lands. Since the issue of the Govt. notification above referred to this ruling no longer applies.

The acquisition of occupancy or non-occupancy rights by a tenant in an alleged kamat or zirat land cannot be prevented, unless the landlord proves that when the holding was first created, it was held under a lease for a term or from year to year. If it was not so initially let out, the execution of a kabuliat for a term by the tenant during the continuance of the tenancy, does not affect his status, or bar the application of the provisions of Chaps. V and VI (Masudan Singh v. Gudar Nath Pandey, 1 C. L. J., 456).

Object of alteration made in this section.—In the Notes on Clauses of the Bill of 1906, it was explained that the object of the alteration made in the heading of the Chapter and in sec. 116 was to bar the accrual of occupancy and non-occupancy rights in lands acquired under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, and the Cantonments Act, 1889, so long as they are the property of the Government or the local body or Railway Company for which they were acquired. It often happens that such lands are temporarily not required by the Government or the local body or Railway Company, but under the present law, if they are temporarily sub-let to agricultural tenants, occupancy and non-occupancy rights accrue, and these have to be re-acquired on payment of compensation, when the lands are again required for public purposes. This consideration often deters the Government, local bodies and Railway Companies from temporarily sub-letting such lands, where this course might be followed with advantage. In either case, whether the lands are temporarily sub-let (the occupancy and non-occupancy rights being subsequently re-acquired when the land is again required for public purposes), or whether the lands are allowed to remain unlet from fear of this contingency, an unnecessary waste of public money occurs, and it is justifiable on this account to apply these special provisions to such lands.

117. The Local Government may, from time to time, make an order directing a Revenue-officer to make a survey and record of all the lands in a specified local area which are a proprietor's private lands within the meaning of the last foregoing section.

Power for Government to order survey and record of proprietor's private lands.

Survey and Settlement by Government.—The Select Committee in their report on the Bengal Tenancy Act Bill observed as follows :

"In dealing with the difficult question of khamar or zirat land, we have provided two alternative methods of procedure:—(a) that of survey and registration of such land by a Revenue Officer, by order of the Local Government; (b) that of enquiry on the application of the individual landlord or tenant concerned. The former procedure would apply to large areas where the question is important, the latter to disputes about particular plots of land." (Selections from Papers relating to the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, p. 239).

Section 117 contains the provisions relating to the former of these methods of procedure and section 118, those relating to the latter.

118. In the case of any land alleged to be a proprietor's private land, on the application of the proprietor or of any tenant of the land, and on his depositing the required amount for expenses, a Revenue-officer may, subject to, and in accordance with, rules made in this behalf by the Local Government, ascertain and record whether the land is or is not a proprietor's private land.

See note to preceding section. The rules framed by Government under this section are to be found in Chap. IV, rules 1–4, of the Govt. rules under this Act (see Appendix I).

119. When a Revenue-officer proceeds under either of the two last foregoing sections the provisions of [sections 103A, 103B, 106, 107, 108, 109 and 109A] shall apply.

The words and figures in brackets were substituted for "sections 105 to 109, both inclusive," in this section by sec. 10 of the Amending Act of 1898, so as to bring the provisions of this section into consonance with those of Chapter X, as now amended.

120. (1) The Revenue-officer shall record as a proprietor's private land—

Rules for determination of proprietor's private land.

(a) land which is proved to have been cultivated as khamar, zirat, sir, nij, nij-jot or kamat

by the proprietor himself with his own stock or by his own servants or by hired labour for twelve continuous years immediately before the passing of this Act, and
(b) cultivated land which is recognized by village usage as proprietor's khamar, zirat, sir, nij, nij-jot or kamat.

(2) In determining whether any other land ought to be recorded as a proprietor's private land, the officer shall have regard to local custom, and to the question whether the land was before the second day of March, 1883, specifically let as proprietor's private land, and to any other evidence that may be produced; but shall presume that land is not a proprietor's private land until the contrary is shown.

[(2a) Notwithstanding anything contained in any agreement or compromise, or in any decree which is proved to his satisfaction to have been obtained by collusion or fraud, a Revenue-officer shall not record any land as a proprietor's private land, unless it is proved to be such by satisfactory evidence of the nature described in sub-section (1) or sub-section (2).]

(3) If any question arises in a Civil Court as to whether land is or is not a proprietor's private land, the Court shall have regard to the rules laid down in this section for the guidance of Revenue-officers.

The new sub-section (2a) has been inserted by s. 41, Act. I, B. C., 1907.

March 2nd, 1883, is the date on which leave to introduce the Bengal Tenancy Act Bill into Council was obtained. The mere fact of certain land having been taken as zirat by the defendant would not give to that fact any evidentiary value, when the letting was not before this date (Sher Bahadur Shahu v. Mackenzie, 7 C. W. N., 400). With reference to the burden of proof as to land being sir, see Hari Das v. Ghansham

Narain, (6 All., 286), in which it is said that the onus lies on the person who alleges it to be sir.

When the plaintiff claimed possession of certain lands, as zirat lands, and the Court holding that the plaintiff as regards most of the lands had failed to prove them to be zirat, it was decided that the plaintiff could claim a decree unless the defendants proved a tenancy entitling them to retain possession (Nursing Narain Singh v. Dharam Thakur 9 C. W. N., 144).

Meaning of "any other evidence that may be produced."—
 "Under sub-section 2 of this section the law allows three matters to be taken into consideration in determining whether the land should be recorded as the proprietor's private land. The first is local custom; the second is whether the land was, before the second day of March, 1883, specifically let as the proprietor's private land; and the third is 'any other evidence that may be produced.' It seems to us that in enacting the sub-section, the legislature had before it the attempts which might be expected on the part of landlords to frustrate the intention of the legislature, as asserted in the draft Bill laid before the Council for consideration, to extend the occupancy-rights of tenants before the measures then declared to be in contemplation became law; and, therefore, the particular date and day of March, 1883, the date on which the draft Bill was published in the Gazette, and leave was obtained to introduce the Bill into the Council, was declared to be the latest date on which there should be free action on the part of the samindars to assert their private rights so as to prevent the accrual of special tenant rights. It was accordingly declared that it was a material point, in the consideration of such a matter as is now raised in appeal before us, whether the particular lands were before the 2nd day of March, 1883, specifically let, as the proprietor's private lands. From this we may take it that it was intended that regard should be had to any declarations made before that date by the landlord, and communicated to the tenants, in respect to the reservation of the proprietor's right over the land. In this view, we think that the following words in the sub-section 'any other evidence that may be produced' must mean any other evidence tending in the same direction, that may be produced to show the assertion of any title on the part of the proprietor, and communicated to the tenant before that date" (Nilmani Chakravartti v. Baikantho Nath Bera, 17 Calc., 466).

Object of new sub-section (2a).— The object of the new sub-section is explained in the Report of the Select Committee on the Bill of 1906, as follows :

"This clause in the main reasserts the principle already accepted in clause 24⁽¹⁾ that agreements or compromises made before a Revenue-Officer should not be held to affect the rights of third parties. But in regard to the record of proprietor's private land, the majority of us consider it necessary to go further and to provide that the Revenue-Officer shall not be bound to record land as proprietor's private land, because it has been declared to be so in a decree which has been obtained ex-parte or by collusion or fraud. The question whether land is proprietor's private land affects not merely the parties to a particular suit, viz., the landlord and the tenant for the time being, but also all future occupants of the land, and it is necessary to safeguard their interests as far as possible. It would be easy for a landlord to obtain an ex-parte or collusive decree, declaring certain land to be proprietor's private land, by suing a non-existent or fictitious defendant who had no concern with the land. We consider, therefore, that in framing a record-of-rights regarding such land, the Revenue-officer should not be bound by decrees of the nature referred to, but should be required to satisfy himself by independent evidence as to the real nature of the land."

The provision relating to ex parte decrees was omitted during the passage of the Bill through Council.

DISTRRAINT.

121. Where an arrear of rent is due to the landlord of a raiyat or under-raiyat, and has not been due for more than a year, and no security has been accepted therefor by the landlord, the landlord may, in addition to any other remedy to which he is entitled by law, present an application to the Civil Court requesting the Court to recover the arrear by distraining, while in the possession of the cultivator, --

Cases in which an application for distraint may be made.

- (a) any crops or other products of the earth standing or ungathered on the holding ;
- (b) any crops or other products of the earth which have been grown on the holding and have been reaped or gathered and are deposited on the holding, or on a threshing-floor or place for treading out grain, or the like, whether in the fields or within a homestead :

Provided that an application shall not be made under this section—

- (1) by a proprietor or manager as defined under the Land Registration Act, 1876, or a mortgagee of such a proprietor or manager, un-

(1) By Act XX of 1885, the operation of this Chapter was postponed to February 1st, 1886.

less his name and the extent of his interest in the land in respect of which the arrear is due have been registered under the provisions of that Act ; or

- (2) for the recovery of any sum in excess of the rent payable for the holding in the preceding agricultural year, unless that sum is payable under a written contract or in consequence of a proceeding under this Act or an enactment hereby repealed ; or
- (3) in respect of the produce of any part of the holding which the tenant has sub-let with the written consent of the landlord.

Law of distraint.—According to the Rent Law Commissioners, distraint is “an offset of English law,” which was “originally introduced into this country by Regulation XXII of 1793, which empowered certain specified landlords to distrain and sell the crops and products of the earth of every description, the grain, cattle, and all other personal property (whether found in the house or on the premises of the defaulter or of any other person) belonging to the tenants. This continued to be the law until 1859, when the power of distraint was limited to the produce of the land on account of which the rent is due.” (Rent Law Commissioners’ Report, vol. I, p. 6). The Rent Commission proposed to abolish the law of distraint altogether ; but to this strong objections were urged and this Chapter is, therefore, the result of compromise. The Select Committee in their report on the Bill described the present procedure as follows :—“The modified power of distraint, which it is now proposed to allow, can be used by any landlord of a raiyat or under-raiyat for the recovery of an arrear of rent which has not been due for more than a year. It extends, as a rule, to all the produce of the holding, including what may have been grown by, and be the property of, a sub-lessee of the tenant. The landlord cannot himself interfere with the produce to be distrained, but must apply to the Civil Court to distrain it. The Court after a brief examination of the case will depute an officer to distrain and sell the produce, and nothing will stay the sale, except the payment into Court of the amount of the demand. Any sum paid into Court will be retained for a month, with a view to the possibility of the owner of the distrained property claiming compensation as for a wrongful distraint, and on the expiration of that period it will be paid to the landlord." (Selections from papers relating to the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, p. 203). Under proviso (3) to this section the produce belonging to a sub-lessee cannot be distrained, if the tenant has sub-let with the written consent of the landlord. The property distrained must be in the possession of the cultivator. So, under the old law it was held that a landlord could not distrain crops for arrears due, not from the tenant, but from another person not in possession, and who had not cultivated the crops (Mohini Dasi v. Ram Kumar Karmokar, W. R., Sp. No., 1864, Act X, 77).

What crops may be distrained.—"The term produce of land" (in sec. 115 of Act X of 1859) "is to be construed as equivalent to that which can be gathered and stored, crops of the nature of cereal, or grass or fruit crops, and it does not apply to the trees from which the crops, if fruit-crops, are gathered. . . . 'Trees, shrubs and plants growing in a nursery ground cannot be distrained for rent'—Selwyn's N. P., 669 (1) The provisions of Act X appear to us also to refer only to such produce of the land as becomes ripe and is cut, gathered and stored" (Sheo Prasad Tewari v. Molima Bibi, 1 All. Rep., 53).

Who may distrain.—Joint landlords cannot distrain except collectively or through a common agent (sec. 188). This was also the law under Act X of 1859 (sec. 112) and Act VIII, B. C., of 1869 (sec. 68). Applications or acts in, before, or to, any Court or authority required or authorized by this Act to be done by a landlord may be made or done by an agent empowered in this behalf by a written authority under the hand of the landlord (sec. 117).

122. (1) Every application under the last foregoing section shall specify—

Form of application.

(a) the holding in respect of which the arrear is claimed, and the boundaries thereof, or such other particulars as may suffice for its identification ;

(b) the name of the tenant ;

(c) the period in respect of which the arrear is claimed ;

- (d) the amount of the arrear, with the interest, if any, claimed thereon, and, when an amount in excess of the rent payable by the tenant in the last preceding agricultural year is claimed, the contract or proceeding, as the case may be, under which that amount is payable ;
 - (e) the nature and approximate value of the produce to be distrained ;
 - (f) the place where it is to be found, or such other particulars as may suffice for its identification ; and
 - (g) if it is standing or ungathered, the time at which it is likely to be cut or gathered.
- (2) The application shall be signed and verified in the manner prescribed by the Code of Civil Procedure for the signing and verification of complaints.

A landlord can apply for distraint for the purpose of recovering the arrear of rent of the holding due for the preceding agricultural year, together with interest thereon at the rate of 12 p. c. per annum, but not for the recovery of damages, nor can he by an application apply for distraint for the rent of more than one holding (Sheobarat Singh v. Naurangdeo Narain Singh, 28 Calc., 364).

Court-fee duty on application.—Every application for distraint is subject to a Court-fee duty of eight annas. (Act VII of 1870, Sched. II, art. 1, cl.(b), para. 2.)

123. (1) The applicant shall, at the time of filing an application under the foregoing sections, file in Court such documentary evidence (if any) as he may consider necessary for the purposes of the application.

Procedure on receipt of application.

(2) the Court may, if it thinks fit, examine the applicant, and shall, with as little delay as possible, admit the application or reject it, or permit the applicant to furnish additional evidence in support of it.

(3) Where a Court cannot forthwith admit or reject an application under sub-section (2), it may, if it thinks fit, make an order prohibiting the removal of the produce specified in the application pending the execution of an order for distraining the same or the rejection of the application.

(4) When an order for distraining any produce is made under this section at a considerable time before the produce is likely to be cut or gathered, the Court may suspend the execution of the order for such time as it thinks fit, and may, if it thinks fit, make a further order prohibiting the removal of the produce pending the execution of the order for distraint.

By an addition made by s. 16, Act I, B. C., 1907, to s. 69 of the Act it has been provided that an order made by a Collector under s. 69 for appraisalment shall not prevent the execution of any order passed by the Court for the distraint of the tenants' crops ; see note, p. 226.

The High Court have passed the following rules with reference to the provisions of this section :—

"All applications to distrain shall be presented and heard in open Court. The examination mentioned in section 123, sub-section (2), shall be on oath or affirmation.

A copy of every such application, to be furnished by the applicant, shall be given to the officer appointed to make the distraint, and a copy of notice under section 141, to be similarly furnished by the applicant, shall be given to the officer placed in charge of the distrained property."

124. If an application is admitted under the last foregoing section, the Court shall depute an officer to distrain the produce specified therein, or such portion of that produce as it thinks fit; and the officer shall proceed to the place where the produce is, and distrain the produce by taking charge of it himself or placing some other person in charge of it in his behalf, and publishing a notification of the distraint in accordance with rules to that effect to be made by the High Court :

Provided that produce which from its nature does not admit of being stored shall not be distrained under this section at any time less than twenty days before the time when it would be fit for reaping or gathering.

125. (1) The distraining officer shall, at the time of making the distraint, serve on the defaulter a written demand for the arrear due, and the costs incurred in making the distraint, with an account exhibiting the grounds on which the distraint is made.

Service of demand and account.

(2) Where the distraining officer has reason to believe that a person other than the defaulter is the owner of the property distrained, he shall serve copies of the demand and account on that person likewise. .

(3) The demand and account shall, if practicable, be served personally; but if a person on whom they are to be served absconds or conceals himself, or cannot otherwise be found, the officer shall affix copies of the demand and account on a conspicuous part of the outside of the house in which he usually resides. .

126. (1) A distraint under this Chapter shall not prevent any person from reaping, gathering or storing any produce, or doing any other act necessary for its due preservation.

Right to reap, &c., produce.

(2) If the person entitled to do so fails to do so at the proper time, the distraining officer shall cause any standing crops or ungathered products distrained to be reaped or gathered when ripe, and stored in such granaries or other places as are commonly used for the purpose, or in some other convenient place in the neighbourhood, or shall do whatever else may be necessary for the due preservation of the same.

(3) In either case the distrained property shall remain in charge of the distraining officer, or of some other person appointed by him in this behalf.

127. (1) Unless the demand, with all costs of the distraint, be immediately satisfied, the distraining officer shall issue a proclamation specifying the particulars of the property distrained, and the demand for which it is distrained, and notifying that he will, at a place and on a day specified, not being less than three or more than seven days after the time of making the distraint, sell the distrained property by public auction :

Sale proclamation to be issued unless demand is satisfied.

Provided that when the crops or products distrained from their nature admit of being stored, but have not yet been stored, the day of the sale shall be so fixed as to admit of their being made ready for storing before its arrival.

(2) The proclamation shall be stuck up on a conspicuous place in the village in which the land is situate for which the arrears of rent are claimed.

128. The sale shall be held at the place where the distrained property is, or at the nearest place of public resort if the distraining officer is of opinion that it is likely to sell there to better advantage.

129. (1) Crops or products which from their nature admit of being stored shall not be sold before they are reaped or gathered and are ready for storing.

When produce may be sold standing.

(2) Crops or products which from their nature do not admit of being stored may be sold before they are reaped or gathered, and the purchaser shall be entitled to enter on the land by himself, or by any person appointed by him in this behalf, and do all that is necessary for the purpose of tending and reaping or gathering them.

130. The property shall be sold by public auction, in one or more lots as the officer holding the sale may think advisable; and if the demand, with the costs of distraint and sale, is satisfied by the sale of a portion of the property, the distraint shall be immediately withdrawn with respect to the remainder.

Manner of sale.

131. If, on the property being put up for sale, a fair price (in the estimation of the officer holding the sale) is not offered for it, and if the owner of the property, or a person authorized to act in his behalf, applies to have the sale postponed till the next day, or (if a market is held at the place of sale) the next market-day, the sale shall be postponed until that day, and shall be then completed, whatever price may be offered for the property.

Postponement of sale.

132. The price of every lot shall be paid at the time of sale, or as soon thereafter as the officer holding the sale directs, and in default of such payment the property shall be put up again and sold.

133. When the purchase-money has been paid in full, the officer holding the sale shall give the purchaser a certificate describing the property purchased by him and the price paid.

Certificate to be given to purchaser.

134. (1) From the proceeds of every sale of distressed property under this Chapter, the officer holding the sale shall pay the costs of the distraint and sale, calculated on a scale of charges prescribed by rules to be made, from time to time, by the Local Government in this behalf.

Proceeds of sale how to be applied.

(2) The remainder shall be applied to the discharge of the arrear for which the distress was made, with interest thereon up to the day of sale ; and the surplus (if any) shall be paid to the person whose property has been sold.

135. Officers holding sales of property under this Act, and all persons employed by, or subordinate to, such officers, are prohibited from purchasing, either directly or indirectly, any property sold by such officers.

Certain persons may not purchase.

Persons contravening the terms of this section are amenable to the provisions of sec. 185, Indian Penal Code.

136. (1) If at any time after a distraint has been made under this Chapter, and before the sale of the distressed property, the defaulter, or the owner of the distressed property, where he is not the defaulter, deposits in the Court issuing the order of distraint, or in the hands of the distraining officer, the amount specified in the demand served under section 125, with all costs which may have been incurred after the service of the demand, the Court or officer, as the case may be, shall grant a receipt for the same, and the distraint shall forthwith be withdrawn.

(2) When the distraining officer receives the deposit, he shall forthwith pay it into the Court.

(3) A receipt granted under this section to an owner of distrained property not being the defaulter, shall afford a full protection to him against any subsequent claim for the arrears of rent on account of which the distraint was made.

(4) After the expiration of one month from the date of a deposit being made under this section, the Court shall pay therefrom to the applicant for distraint the amount due to him, unless in the meanwhile the owner of the property distrained has instituted a suit against the applicant contesting the legality of the distraint and claiming compensation in respect of the same.

(5) A landlord shall not be deemed to have consented to his tenant's sub-letting the holding or any part thereof merely by reason of his having received an amount deposited under this section by an inferior tenant.

137. (1) When an inferior tenant, on his property being lawfully distrained under this Chapter for the default of a superior tenant, makes any payment under the last foregoing section, he shall be entitled to deduct the amount of that payment from any rent payable by him to his immediate landlord, and that landlord, if he is not the defaulter, shall in like manner be entitled to deduct the amount so deducted from any rent payable by him to his immediate landlord, and so on until the defaulter is reached.

(2) Nothing in this section shall affect the right of an inferior tenant making a payment under the last foregoing section to institute a suit for the recovery from the defaulter of any portion of the amount paid which he has not deducted under this section.

138. When land is sub-let, and any conflict arises under this Chapter between the rights of a superior and of an inferior landlord who distrain the same property, the right of the superior landlord shall prevail.

Conflict between rights of superior and inferior landlords.

139. When any conflict arises between an order for distraint issued under this Chapter and an order issued by a Civil Court for the attachment or sale of the property which is the subject of the distraint, the order for distraint shall prevail; but, if the property is sold under that order, the surplus proceeds of the sale shall not be paid under section 134 to the owner of the property without the sanction of the Court by which the order of attachment or sale was issued.

D distraint of property which is under attachment.

140. No appeal shall lie from any order passed by a Civil Court under this Chapter; but any person whose property is distrained on an application made under section 121, in any case in which such an application is not permitted by that section, may institute a suit against the applicant for the recovery of compensation.

Suit for compensation for wrongful distraint.

Suits for compensation for wrongful distraint.—A suit for illegal distraint under this section is maintainable only on the ground that the distraint was made in violation of the provisions of section 121 of the Act. A tenant cannot deny the right of a registered proprietor to distraint and plead payment of rent to a third person whose name is not registered (Hanuman Ahir v. Govindo Kuar, 1 C. W. N., 318). But a landlord whose tenant's crops have been wrongfully distrained by a stranger may sue to set aside such wrongful distraint (Haro Narain v. Sudha Krishio, 4 Calc., 890; 4 C. L. R., 32). Before a tenant can obtain any decree for damages on the ground of illegal distraint, he must prove what loss he has actually sustained (Ujan Dewan v. Prannath Mandal, 8 W. R., 220). In a suit for recovery of damages for illegal distraint on the ground that the landlord had distrained the plaintiff's crop alleging his rent to be more than it really was, the onus is on the plaintiff to prove the annual rent payable by him (Chandra Kant Mukhurji v. Hem Lal Mandal, 1 C. W. N., 463). In a suit in which the plaintiff sued to recover the amount paid by him to obtain the release of his crops, which the defendant had illegally distrained as the crops of a third person, and in which the facts were found to be as alleged by the plaintiff, it was objected that the plaintiff's brother had an interest in the holdings. The plaintiff's brother was then added as a co-plaintiff, but after the period of limitation. A decree was accordingly given to the plaintiff for half the amount of his claim. On appeal to the High Court, it was urged (1) that under the provisions of sec. 140, the suit was not maintainable, because the distraint had been made on an application under sec. 121, which was permitted by that section; (2) that the whole of the claim ought to have been held to have been barred by limitation. The decree was, however, sustained. "We think there is nothing in sec. 140," it was said, "to exclude an action of this kind in a case like that before us in which the landlord is found to have abused his power of distraint by distraining the crops which belong to the tenant on the pretence that they belong to another person in collusion with himself. There has been an invasion of the rights of the tenant, for which he is entitled to a remedy, and if the case is not one of the kind contemplated by sec. 140, he is not deprived, by the provisions of that section of the ordinary right of action which any person who suffers from a tortious act has against the tort-feasor." On the point of limitation it was held that there was nothing to prevent the plaintiff from suing alone for compensation for the illegal distraint, as far as he was injuriously affected by it, and in this view his claim, which was certainly brought in time, was not barred by the subsequent addition of his brother as a co-plaintiff (Jagdeo Singh v. Padarath Ahir, 25 Calc., 285).

Limitation.—The period of limitation for a suit for compensation is one year from the date of the wrongful seizure. Art. 28 or art. 29 and not art. 2, Sch. II of the Limitation Act (XV of 1877) applies (Jagat-jiban Nanda Rui v. Sarat Chandra Ghosh, 7 C. W. N., 728). But see Tarini Charan Basu v. Sambunath Pandey, (3 W. R., Act X, 139)

The defendants under fraudulent and fictitious proceedings of distraint between a fictitious landlord and a fictitious tenant, seized standing crops belonging to the plaintiff: held, that a suit for damages for the crops so seized is governed by art. 36, Sch. II of the Limitation Act the period accordingly being two years (Hari Charan Fadikar v. Hari Kar, 32 Calc., 459).

The distraint is effected by the Act of the distraining officer when taking charge. Limitation runs from that date, and the period is one year under art. 28, Sched. II of the Limitation Act (Kali Charan Shaha v. Kismat Mellah, 11 C. W. N., lxxvi.)

Jurisdiction of Small Cause Court when excluded.—Under art. 35 (j), Sched. II of the Provincial Small Cause Court Act, (IX of 1887), the jurisdiction of the Small Cause Court is excluded in suits “for compensation for illegal, improper or excessive distress or attachment.” See Haidar Ali v. Jafar Ali, (1 Calc., 183). In an unreported case (Madhu Sudan Das v. Annada Prasad De, Rule No. 1349 of 1886), in which the plaintiff sued his landlord for damages in consequence of the superior landlord having distrained and sold the produce of six bighas of land, belonging to, and cultivated by, the plaintiff, the High Court, (Petheram, C. J., and Beverley, J.), on the 3rd December, 1886, passed the following judgment :—

“Order No. 1575 of 1886.—This rule was obtained to set aside the judgment of the Small Cause Court of Serampore on the ground that the Small Cause Court had no jurisdiction to try the suit. That is the only point which could be taken. The question which arises upon that is what the nature of the suit is. It is an action brought by a tenant against his landlord, joining several other persons as pro forma defendants, but, as a matter of fact, the judgment is against the landlord only to recover damages from him, because the crops of his tenant have been distrained and sold in satisfaction of the rent due by his landlord to the superior landlord of the same property and which he had left unpaid. The first question which is sought to be argued is whether such a suit will lie, and, if it will, whether it is a suit on contract. I am clearly of opinion that the suit will lie, and that it is a suit on contract. When a person is in possession of land which he holds as a tenant to another and for which he is liable to pay rent, if he under-lets that land to a tenant, the law will imply a contract that he will pay his own rent and not leave the tenant's goods to be distrained to satisfy the rent which he ought to pay; if he does not do that, and the tenant's goods are seized and sold, he commits a breach of his contract to pay up his own rent, and therefore the tenant is entitled to sue him upon that contract and to recover damages. That is what has happened in this case, and therefore it seems to me that the case comes within sec. 6 of Act XI of 1865, which provides that all suits for damages shall be cognizable by the Small Cause Court. It is contended that they must be damages for breach of contract, but even upon that contention this is a suit for damages for breach of contract, and therefore comes not only within the provisions of the Small Cause Court Act, but within the admitted provisions of that Act. Under these circumstances, we think that the Small Cause Court had jurisdiction to try the case, and that this rule must be discharged."

A suit to establish a right to a standing crop is an ordinary civil suit and not one of a Small Cause Court nature (Dakhyani Debi v. Dalgovind Chaudhri, 21 Calc., 430). A suit to recover money paid to redeem crops which had been distrained for rents due from persons other than the plaintiffs, and also for damages sustained on account of the distraint is, so far as the claim relates to damages, a suit coming under clause (j) art. 35 of Sched. II of the Provincial Small Cause Court Act (IX of 1887) and is therefore not entirely a suit of the nature of a Small Cause suit, and a second appeal is not barred by sec. 586 in such a suit (Dewan Rai v. Sundar Tewari, 24 Calc., 163).

Landlord's liability for acts of agent.—A landlord is not liable for compensation when his agent, who is not authorized in that behalf, makes an illegal distraint (Ramjoy Mandal v. Kali Mohan Rai, Marsh., 282). But he is liable if the agent acts under his authority, or he subsequently ratifies his acts (Shama Sundari Debi v. Mallyat Mandal, 11 W. R., 101).

Criminal penalties for illegal interference with produce :— Under sec. 186 of this Act any person who otherwise than in accordance with this Act (a) distrains or attempts to distrain the produce of a tenant's holding; (b) resists a distraint or forcibly or clandestinely removes distrained property; or (c) without the consent of the tenant prevents or attempts to prevent the reaping, gathering, storing, removing or otherwise dealing with any produce of a holding shall be deemed to have committed criminal trespass under sec. 447, Indian Penal Code, and any one abetting him shall be deemed to have abetted the commission of criminal trespass.

141. (1) When the Local Government is of opinion that in any local area or in any class of cases it would, by reason of the character of the cultivation or the habits of the cultivators, be impracticable for a landlord to realize his rent by an application under this Chapter to the Civil Court, it may, from time to time, by order, authorize the landlord to distrain, by himself or his agent, any produce for the distraint of which he would be entitled to apply under this Chapter to the Civil Court :

Provided that every person distraining any produce under such authorization shall proceed in the manner prescribed by section 124, and shall forthwith give notice, in such form as the High Court may, by rule, prescribe, to the Civil Court having jurisdiction to entertain an application for distraining the produce, and that Court shall, with no avoidable delay, depute an officer to take charge of the produce distrained.

(2) When an officer of the Court has taken charge of any distrained produce under this section, the proceedings shall thereafter be conducted in all respects as if he had distrained it under section 124.

(3) The Local Government may at any time rescind any order made by it under this section.

142. The High Court may, from time to time, make rules consistent with this Act for regulating the procedure in all cases under this Chapter.

CHAPTER XIII.

JUDICIAL PROCEDURE.

143. (1) The High Court may, from time to time, with the approval of the Governor-General in Council, make rules consistent with this Act, declaring that any portions of the Code of the Civil Procedure shall not apply to suits between landlord and tenant as such or to any specified classes of such suits, or shall apply to them subject to modifications specified in the rules.

Power to modify Civil Procedure Code in its application to landlord and tenant suits.

XIV of 1882.

(2) Subject to any rules so made, and subject also to the other provisions of this Act, the Code of Civil Procedure shall apply to all such suits.

XIV of 1882.

Application of Civil Procedure Code.—No rules have been made by the High Court under this section declaring any portions of the Civil Procedure Code inapplicable to suits between landlord and tenant. But under sec. 148 (a) considerable portions of the Civil Procedure Code do not apply to suits for the recovery of rent.

Suits for arrears of rent must include all rent due at the time of institution.—Under sec. 43 of Act XIV of 1882 a plaintiff is now bound to sue for all rent due at the time of the institution of his suit. He cannot sue for the rent of one year, and then sue later on for the arrears of earlier years, (see illustration to sec. 43), or for the arrears of later years, if the rent of these years was due at the time of the institution of his suit (Tarak Chandra Mukhurji v. Panchu Mohini Debya, 6 Calc., 791; 8 C. L. R., 297; Madhu Prakash Singh v. Murli Manohar, 5 All., 406; Nurain Kumari v. Raghu Mahapatro, 12 Calc., 50; Alagu v. Abdula, 8 Mad., 147; Balaji Sitaram Naik Salgavkar v. Bhikaji Soyare Prabhu Kanolekar, 8 Bom., 154; Chandi Charan Tara/dar v. Jogendro Chandra Chaudhri, 1 C. W. N., cxx; Ahsanulla Khan v. Tirthabashini, 22 Calc., 691. See also Sheo Shankar Sahai v. Hridai Narain, 9 Calc., 143; and Madan Mohan Lal v. Sheo Shankar Sahai, 12 Calc., 482). The two last cited reports relate to the same case, in which damages were claimed. The High Court followed the principle of Tarak Chandra Mukhurji v. Panchu Mohini Debya, and on appeal to the Privy Council its decision was affirmed. But the dismissal of a suit for enhancement of rent is under sec. 43, C. P. C., no bar to a subsequent suit for rent at the rate originally fixed (Sadarudin Ahmad v. Beni Madhub Rai, 15 Calc., 145. See also Khedarunnissa v. Budhi, 13 W.R., 317, and Sura Sundari Debi v. Ghulam Ali, 19 W. R., 142; 15 B. L. R., 125, note). The case of Sadarudin Ahmad v. Beni Madhub Rai is a Full Bench one and overrules Kanak Chandra Mukhurji v. Guru Das Biswas, (9 Calc., 919; 12 C. L. R., 599).

Deposit of rent under s. 61 must be treated as equivalent to part payment. Notice of deposit under s. 63 does not give a fresh and independent cause of action in respect of the balance then due. In a suit for such balance, the landlord is obliged under s. 43, C. P. C., to include a claim for all arrears due at the time of institution (Atul Krishna Ghosh v. Nripendra Narain Ghosh, 1 C. L. J., 114).

A, a landlord took proceedings against a tenant B for recovery of the rent of the year 1305 by appraisalment of the crops under ss. 69 and 70, and realised his dues by execution. B then sued to set aside the proceedings as being without jurisdiction and obtained a decree for restitution. Meanwhile, A had sued for and obtained a decree for 1306. After being compelled to make restitution, A sued for the rents of 1305, and 1307: held, that the claim for 1305 was barred, as it had not been included in the claim for 1306 (Abdulla v. Har Kishen Singh, 2 C. L. J., 490).

Statutory disabilities in suits for rent.—As already pointed out in the note to sec. 60, p. 198, proprietors, managers and mortgagees of estates or revenue-free properties cannot under sec. 78, Act VII, B. C., of 1876 recover rent due to them, unless their names have been registered under the Act, if objection be raised to their claims on this ground. (1) Under sec. 19, Act IX of 1880, B. C., (The Cess Act) holders of estates or tenures in respect of which notices of valuation or re-valuation have been issued, are absolutely precluded from suing for or recovering rent for any land or tenure situate in estates or tenures in respect of which no returns have been lodged, and bhaoli land must be included in such returns (Jagmohun Tewari v. Finch, 9 Calc., 62; 11 C. L. R., 100). Further, under sec. 20 of the Act, every holder of an estate or tenure in respect of which a return has been made under the Cess Act is precluded from suing for or recovering (a) any rent whatsoever for any land, holding, or tenure forming part of the estate or tenure to which such return relates, but which has not been mentioned in such return, unless it be proved that the holding or tenure, for the rent of which the rent is claimed, was created subsequently to the lodging of such return; and (b) rent at a higher rate than is mentioned in such return for any land, tenure, or holding included in such return, unless it be proved that the rent of such land has been lawfully enhanced subsequently to the lodging of such return.

But it is not required that the whole of the rent which is payable by a particular tenant should be entered against that person's name. Section 20 (a) only requires that all the lands for which rent is payable should be entered in the return (Gauri Saran Mahto v. Mahamed Latif Hussai, 4 C. L. J., 82 n).

Before holders of estates or tenures can recover road-cess, which is included in the term "rent" in sections 53 to 68 and 72 to 75 [sec. 3 (5)], for rent-free lands, they may be called on to prove the issue of the notices of the preparation of the valuation rolls, no presumption of their due service arising in their favour (Ahsanullah Khan v. Trilochan Bagchi, 13 Calc., 197; Rash Bihari Mukhurji v. Pitambari Chaudhrani, 15 Calc., 237). But this rule does not apply to the recovery of road-cess for rent-paying lands (Bhagwati Kauri Chaudhurani v. Chaturpat Singh, 2 C. W. N., 406).

In a suit for enhancing the rent payable by certain fractional shareholders in a taluk, the zamindar put in as evidence several road-cess returns which had been filed on behalf of another fractional shareholder and which showed that the tenants were receiving from sub-tenants considerably higher rent than they were paying to the zamindar: held, that these returns, though not conclusive, yet prima facie showed that the existing rent was not fair and equitable and that the onus lay on the tenants to rebut the presumption raised by the returns by producing the collection papers (Hem Chandra Chaudhuri v. Kali Prasanna Chaudhuri, 8 C. W. N., 1).

Succession Certificate Act.—Under section 4 (2) of the Succession Certificate Act (VII of 1889) arrears of rent payable in respect of land used for agricultural purposes which accrued in the time of a deceased landlord may be sued for without a certificate having been taken out under the provisions of that Act. See note, p. 73.

Interpleader suit.—Under sec. 474, Civil Procedure Code, tenants cannot sue their landlords for the purpose of compelling them to interplead with any persons other than persons making claim through such landlords. A tenant therefore cannot bring a suit to have it determined which of two defendants, both of whom claim rent from him, is his landlord. (Koilash Chandra Datta v. Goluk Chandra Poddar, 2 C. W. N., 61).

Failure of plaintiff to prove alleged rate of rent.—When in a suit for arrears of rent at certain alleged rates, the plaintiff fails to prove the rates of rent alleged by him, it is not the duty of the Court to ascertain what were the proper rates payable, unless asked to do so. (Rash Dhari Gop v. Khakon Singh, 24 Calc., 433.) In this case it was pointed out that Pannu Singh v. Nirghin Singh, (7 Calc., 298) does not really lay down the contrary, though according to the head-note of the report it does.

Denial of landlord's title.—No tenant of immoveable property, or person claiming through such tenant, shall, during the continuance of the tenancy, be permitted to deny that the landlord of such tenant had at the beginning of the tenancy, a title to such immoveable property; and no person who came upon immoveable property by the license of the person in possession thereof shall be permitted to deny that such person had a title to such possession at the time when such license was given. (Sec. 116, Act I of 1872 : Jai Narain Basu v. Kadambini Dasi, 7 B. L. R., 723, note; Bhairo Singh v. Lilanand Singh, 21 W. R., 153; Sonamani Bibi v. Dhan Munshi, 1 C. W. N., xxiv). Although a tenant may not, during the continuance of the tenancy, deny that his landlord had a title at the beginning of such tenancy, he may show that such title has expired (Annu v. Ramakishna Sastri, 2 Mad., 226; Burn & Co. v. Bisho Mayi Dasi, 14 W. R., 85; Mohan Muhtu v. Shamsul Hoda, 21 W. R., 5), as by a sale to him by the landlord, (Vedu v. Nilkanth, 22 Bom., 428), or has been defeated by a title paramount (Gopanand Jha v. Gobind Prasad, 12 W. R., 109). The words "at the beginning of the tenancy" in sec. 116, Act I of 1872, only apply to cases in which tenants are put into possession of the tenancy by the person to whom they have attorned, and not to cases in which the tenants have previously been in possession; consequently, when A, a raiyat, being in possession of a certain holding, executed a kabulyat regarding this holding in favour of B (who claimed the land, in which the holding was included, under a derivative title from the last owner), and paid rent to B thereunder, it was held that A was not estopped by sec. 116 of the Evidence Act from disputing B's title (Lal Mahomed v. Kalonas, 11 Calc., 519; Brajanath Chaudhri v. Lal Miah Manipuri, 14 W. R., 391; Jesingbhai v. Hataji, 4 Bom., 79). But when a tenant denied execution of a kabulyat sued on by the plaintiff, pleaded that it was forged and denied payment of rent under it, and failed to establish these pleas, it was held that he was not entitled to prove that the plaintiff was not his landlord, though he had not been inducted into the land by him (Ketu Das v. Surendra Nath Sinha, 7 C. W. N., 596). One who pays rent to another, believing him to be the landlord's representative, is not estopped from afterwards showing the want of title in that other (Beni Madhub Ghosh v. Thakurdas Mandal, B. L. R., F. B., 588; 6 W. R., Act X, 71; Gauri Das v. Jagannath Rai, 7 W. R., 25).

A tenant is not prevented from questioning the title of the alleged assignee of his admitted landlord (Tilleshari Kuar v. Asmedh Kuar, 24 W. R., 101). A executed a kabulyat for a term of years to B, as zamindar. B gave a patni of the zamindari to C. C instituted a suit for arrears of rent under the lease against A, the lessee. A admitted the execution of the lease to B, but denied that B was his real lessor and beneficially entitled to the rent, and alleged that he was only a benamidar for a third party. It was held that A was competent to deny his lessor's title as stated in the lease, and by parol evidence to prove a different title to that recited in it (Donzelle v. Kedarnath Chakrabarti, 7 B. L. R., 720; 16 W. R., 186; 20 W. R., 352; Indrabatti Koer v. Mahbub Ali, 24 W. R. 44). A mere benamidar cannot maintain a suit for ejectment, having neither title to, nor possession of, the property (Issar Chandra Datta v. Gopal Chandra Das, 25 Calc., 91).

Possession of a tenant not adverse to landlord.—The possession of a tenant is not adverse to his landlord (Shristidhar Mazumdar v. Kali Kant, 1 W. R., 171; Watson v. Sarat Sundari Debi, 7 W. R., 395; Davis v. Abdul Hamid, 8 W. R., 55; Grish Chandra Rai v. Bhagwan Chandra Rai, 13 W. R., 191; Lashu Khan v. Wise, 18 W. R., 443; Duli Chand v. Sham Bihari Singh, 24 W. R., 113; Haradhan Rai v. Haladhar Chandra Chaudhri, 25 W. R., 56; Raj Kishor Sarma Chakravarti v. Girija Kant Lahiri, 25 W. R., 66), as long as there is no dispute or conflicting claim (Ram Chandra Singh v. Madho Kumari, 12 Calc., 484). So long as the relation of landlord and tenant exists, the mere omission of the tenant to pay his rent does not constitute an adverse possession so as to make limitation applicable (Trailokhya Tarini Dasi v. Mohima Chandra Matak, 7 W. R., 400; Rango Lal Mandal v. Abdul Ghaffur, 4 Calc., 314; 3 C. L. R., 119; Poresk Nath Rai v. Kashi Chandra Talukdar, 4 Calc., 661; Dadoba v. Krishna, 7 Bom., 34; Tatia v. Shadashiv, 7 Bom., 40; Tiruchurna Perumal Nadan v. Sanguvini, 3 Mad., 118; Premasukh Das v. Bhupia, 2 All., 517). See also note, p. 25. When A holds under B's tenants, his possession is not adverse to B (Bangsaraj Bhukta v. Megh Lal Puri, 20 W. R., 398). The mere non-payment of rent does not constitute an adverse holding, but if a tenant openly sets up an adverse title and holds adversely, limitation runs (Haronath Rai v. Jogendra Chandra Rai, 6 W. R., 218), (as when an intermediate holder sets up a mukarari title, (Najimudin Hossein v. Lloyd, 15 W. R., 231), from the time when the landlord had notice of the adverse title so set up (Gaura Kumari v. Bengal Coal Co., 13 W. R., 129; 12 B. L. R., 282; Gaura Kumari v. Saru Kumari, 19 W. R., 252; Pitambar v. Nilmani Singh Deo, 3 Calc., 793; Gopalrao v. Mahadevrao 21 Bom, 394; Dalmar Puri v. Bipin Behari Mitra, 18 Calc., 526); and a trespasser, merely by alleging tenancy in his written statement, does not preclude himself from setting up the defence of the law of limitation (Dina Mani Debi v. Durga Prasad Mazumdar, 21 W. R. 70; 12 B. L. R., 274). A wife during the prolonged absence of her husband, who was erroneously supposed to be dead, acting in excess of the limited powers of a wife in possession of her absent husband's property, made a maurasi grant of a portion of her husband's estate. The grantee entered into and remained in possession for upwards of twelve years. It was held that the position of the grantee was not that of a lessee and that his possession, (although in its inception an act of trespass against the husband), having continued for upwards of twelve years, had perfected his title to the lands (Bijai Chandra Banurji v. Kali Prasanno Mukhurji, 4 Calc., 327). It is open to a defendant to plead tenancy and limitation in the alternative (Keamuddin v. Hari Mohan Mandal, 7 C. W. N., 294). A tenant cannot acquire an easement by prescription in other lands of his lessor (Mani Chandra Chakravartti v. Baikantha Nath Biswas, 9 C. W. N., 856). When there is a current lease, and the tenant is dispossessed by a third party, time does not commence to run against the landlord until the expiration of the lease. But when the lease has expired and the tenant is holding over with the landlord's consent, and the possession of such third party is adequate in continuity, in publicity and in extent so as to show that it is possession adverse to the landlord, the latter is not precluded from determining the tenancy and suing the trespasser in ejectment and his right to sue will be barred after 12 years of such possession (Kishwar Nath Sahi v. Kali Sankar Sahai, 10 C. W. N., 343).

The landlord need sue only his recognized tenant.—Under the former law, the landlord was only bound to sue his registered tenant for the rent (Hari Charan Basu v. Meherunissa, 7 W. R., 318; Forbes v. Pratap Singh, 7 W. R., 409; Sadhan Chandra Basu v. Guru Charan Basu, 15 W. R., 99; Sadai Purira v. Baistab Purira, 15 W. R., 261; Dwarka Nath Mittra v. Nobango Manjari Dasi, 7 C. L. R., 233; Bichitra Nanda Rai v. Bihari Lal, 5 C. L. J., 89) Mere cognizance or supposed cognizance by the landlord of the purchase of a tenure is not sufficient to cure the defect of non-registration (Sarkies v.

Kali Kumar Rai, W. R., Sp. No., 1864, Act X, 98). But if he has recognized a new tenant by accepting rent from him (Nabo Kumar Ghosh v. Krishna Chandra Banurji, W. R., Sp. No., 1864, Act X, 112 ; Mritanjai Sarkar v. Gopal Chandra Sarkar, 10 W. R., 466 ; 2 B. L. R., A. C., 131 ; Bharat Rai v. Ganga Narain Mahapatro, 14 W. R., 211 ; Dhanpat Singh Rai v. Vilait Ali, 15 W. R., 211 ; Anund Mayi Dasi v. Mohendro Narain Das, 15 W. R., 264 ; Allender v. Dwarkanath Rai, 15 W. R., 321), that is, not in the name of the old tenant (Rasomai Purkhait v. Srinath Maira, 7 C. W. N., 133) or in other ways (Miah Jan v. Karuna Mayi Debi, 8 B. L. R., A. C., 1), as by allowing sums paid into the Collectorate to be carried to his credit (Ram Govind Rai v. Dashubhoja Debi, 18 W. R. 195), or by selling his raiyat's right and interest in the tenure (Prasanno Mayi Dasi v. Bhobo Tarini Dasi, 10 W. R., 494), he cannot resile and sue his old tenant. He can recognise him to what extent he pleases (Gonesh Das v. Ram Pratab Singh, 5 C. W. N., clxxv). If a holding has been let to more than one raiyat, they must all be sued (Rup Narain Singh v. Juggo Singh, 10 W. R., 304). The unregistered transferee of a transferable tenure cannot be treated by the landlord as a trespasser, and is entitled as against the landlord who has evicted him, to be restored to khas possession (Nobin Krishna Mukhurji v. Shib Prasad Putak, 8 W. R., 96). Under the present law, though there is now no registration in the landlord's serishtah, a landlord is only bound to sue his recognized tenant, and is not bound to recognize transferees of tenures and raiyati holdings at fixed rates, unless the procedure prescribed by secs 12 to 18 has been strictly complied with, or of occupancy-holdings, transferable by custom or local usage unless notice of the transfers has been given as provided in section 73. When a landlord has obtained a decree for rent against his registered tenant, a transferee of the holding, who acquired an interest in it after the decree, cannot maintain a suit to set aside the decree, except on the ground of fraud, nor is he entitled to a refund of the money paid in satisfaction of the decree (Judu Nandan Tewari v. Tirbhuban Tewari, 1 C. W. N., clxiv).

Though the landlord sues only the recorded tenant for the rent, this does not relieve the unrecorded tenants of their equitable liability of paying their share of the rent to the recorded tenant who has been obliged to pay the whole. Even when one of the unrecorded co-tenants has sold away his interest before the date of suit, this will not relieve him of his liability, even when he has derived no advantage from the payment made, if he was a co-tenant at the time when the liability for the rent arose (Govinda Chandra Chakravartti v. Rasant Kumar Chakravartti, 3 C. W. N., 384).

A landlord cannot sue his tenants for the rent of a holding, and also the zarpeshgi-dars from the tenants for the same rent on the ground that the zarpeshgi-dars are in occupation of a portion of the holding (Rama Das v. Thakur Das, 1 C. L. J., 136).

Because a person is the sole recorded tenant in the landlord's serishta, he is not therefore alone entitled to sue third parties for damages done to the tenure, if the persons are also interested and have a right to the same (Ishwar Chandra Santra v. Satish Chandra Giri, 30 Calc., 207 ; 7 C. W. N., 126).

The onus of proof that rent decrees have been obtained against the sole recorded tenant is on the plaintiff landlord (Baikunth Nath Rai v. Debendra Nath Sahi, 11 C. W. N., 676).

The landlord may sue the real tenant.—A decree for arrears of rent may be given against the real lessees in possession, although no previous realisation of rent directly from them is established, and no written agreement is shewn to have been executed by them in their own names, another party being the ostensible holder of the lease and not denying liability (Jadunath Pal v. Prosanna Nath Datta, 9 W. R., 71 ; Bipin Bihari Chaudhri v. Ram Chandra Rai, 14 W. R., 12 ; 5 B. L. R., 234 ; Ram Tarak Ghosh v. Biressar Banurji, 6 W. R., Act X, 32 ; Jirabatunnissa v. Ram Chandra Das, 6 W. R., Act X, 36). A mortgagee in possession may be sued for the rent (Macnaghten v. Bhikari Singh, 2 C. L. R., 323). If a zamindar sues an agent for rent due from an estate, this is no bar to the zamindar's afterwards suing the principal for rent, subsequently accrued due. But he cannot in the same suit sue both the principal and the agent : he must elect which of them he will proceed against (Prasanna Kumar Pal v. Kailash Chandra Pal, 8 W. R., 428). A landlord cannot hold both the nominal and the real lessees liable for rent, but must make his election (Kamyab v. Umda Begum, W. R., Sp. No., 1864, Act X, 88 ; Hira Lal Bakshi v. Raj Kishor Macumdar, W. R., Sp. No. F. B., 58).

No decree for arrears of rent can be made against any person other than the actual tenant, or some one who may be security for him. Consequently, there can be no decree for arrears of rent against persons holding subordinate interests in a jagir tenure, which have been created by the jagirdar (Pratap Udai Nath v. Pradhan Mokunda Singh, 25 Calc., 399 ; 2 C. W. N., 96).

Admissions by co-tenants.—An admission by one raiyat as to the rate at which he holds is not evidence to prove the rate at which another raiyat holds (Narahari Mohant v. Naraini Dasi, W. R., Sp. No., F. B., 23). When two persons were sued for rent as joint tenants, and one of them admitted the correctness of the plaintiff's claim, it was held that the admission of the one could not bind the other, and that as they had been sued on the allegation that they held the holding jointly, a separate decree for half the amount admitted could not be made against the tenant who had made the admission (Chandureshwar Narain Prasad v. Chuni Ahir, 9 C. L. R., 359). The admission of a co-sharer tenant as to a particular person being the landlord of the holding is no evidence against the other co-tenants (Kali Kishor Chaudhri v. Gopi Mohan Rai, 1 C. W. N., cliv). But in a suit between a samindar and his ijaradars for rent, a person who was one of several jotedars in the mahal was called as a witness for the samindar, and admitted the fact that an arrangement existed whereby he and his co-jotedars had agreed to pay rent to the samindar direct. This suit was decided in favour of the samindar. The ijaradars then brought a suit against the jotedars, amongst whom was the witness above mentioned, to recover the sum which the jotedars ought to have paid to the samindar direct, and which the ijaradars had been decreed to pay. The jotedars disclaimed all liability to pay rent to the ijaradars. In this suit the evidence given by the jotedar in the samindar's suit was received on behalf of the plaintiff against all the defendants and it was held that the evidence was admissible (Kausulliah Sunduri Dasi v. Mukta Sunduri Dasi, 11 Calc., 588). In this case it was said that "where there are several co-contractors or persons engaged in one common business or dealing, a statement made by one of them with reference to any transaction which forms part of their joint business, has always been held admissible as evidence against the others." A decree obtained against one co-tenant, who was the registered tenant, and who was allowed by the other to represent him in the tenancy, the dakhilas being issued in his name only, was held admissible against the other tenant on the ground of equitable estoppel (Mati Lal v. Nripendra Nath Rai, 2 C. W. N., 172). Where one of several joint tenants has executed a kabulyat for the rent of the entire tenure, and the other tenants have not acquiesced in it and are not bound by it, the tenant executing the kabulyat is not liable for any rent in excess of his share (Ram Taran Chaturji v. Asmatullah, 6 C. W. N., 111). In a suit for ejectment from certain homestead land, a written statement filed on behalf of some co-sharer defendants was held admissible as evidence against other co-sharer defendants (Girija Prasanna Mukherji v. Jadu Nath Karmokar, 10 C. W. N., cxxxvi). But a decree obtained by a co-sharer landlord is not admissible as evidence as to the rate of rent in a suit brought by another co-sharer (Abdul Ali v. Raj Chandra Das, 10 C. W. N., 1084).

Set-off.—In a suit for arrears of rent a claim for abatement may be made by way of set-off, and it is competent to the Court to adjudicate on such a plea. See notes to secs. 38 and 52, pp. 139 and 181. A liquidated sum due on a bond is capable according to law, even without an agreement to that effect, of being set off against sums due for rent (Watson & Co. v. Brajo Sundari Debi, 16 W. R., 225). In a suit brought by one of the co-sharers in an estate for money alleged to be due in respect of her share as arrears of rent, where the claim was admitted, it was held that the defendant, was not entitled to set-off, under sec. 121 Act VIII of 1859, the plaintiff's share of the Government revenue of the estate which had been paid by the defendant for the period for which the arrears of rent were alleged to be due. It was said that, to admit of a set-off, there must be such a connection between the claim and counter-claim that the truth and completeness of the one cannot be judged of or measured without reference to, and a consideration of, the other, and that in this case there was no such connection between the claim of the plaintiff and the counter-claim of the defendant, as would entitle the defendant, as a matter of equity, apart from legislative enactment, to a set-off (Hossaina Bibi v. Smith, 22 W. R., 15 ; 13 B. L. R., 440). In suit by a zamindar for arrears of rent the defendant alleged that his tenure had been placed under the management of the Collector, and had so remained for a number of years, and that the Collector, from money realized by him as manager, had, in addition to satisfying all other claims of the plaintiff paid the rents accruing not only during the period of his management, but up to, and inclusive of, the year, the arrears of rent for which were claimed in the suit. The lower Court refused to consider the defendant's plea, on the ground that it was in the nature of a set-off, and that not being a debt due from the plaintiff to the defendant, it was not such a set-off as could be allowed by the Court. It was, however, held that the plaintiff's plea was a plea of payment merely and not in the nature of set-off (Kunja Bihari Singh v. Nil Muni Singh, 4 C. L. R., 296). A darpatnidar has been held entitled to set-off against the patni rent sums paid by him to save the patni from sale under Reg VIII of 1819 (Nawo Gopal Sarkar v. Srinath Bando-padhya, 8 Cal., 877 ; Lalit Mohun Sahu v. Srinibas Sen, 13 Cal., 331). In a suit by a zamindar against the wife of the Nawab Nazim of Bengal for the rent of a patni for the years 1284 and 1285, it appeared that the defendant had paid the revenue for 1284 to Government, and it was contended that the moneys paid for revenue were payments made to the plaintiff so as to entitle him under secs. 59 and 61 of the Contract Act to appropriate them in discharge of the rent of 1283, which was barred by limitation. But it was held that these payments were properly the subject of set-off as money paid to the use of the plaintiff, and that they could not be appropriated under the Contract Act to the rent of 1283 (Rukmini Ballabh Rai v. Jamania Begam, 9 Cal., 914 ; 12 C. L. R., 534). Though the provisions of sec. 111, C. P. C., allow only of an ascertained sum being set off against the plaintiff's claim in a suit for the recovery of money, they do not take away from parties any right to set-off, legal or equitable, which they would have independently of that Code (Bhagbat Panda v. Ramdeb Panda, 11 Calc., 557), provided the cross-demand raised by the defence arises out of the same transaction as, and is connected in its nature with, the plaintiff's suit (Chisholm v. Gopal Chandra Sarma, 16 Calc., 711).

A defendant is entitled to set off the amount of a decree obtained by him against the plaintiff, although the decree has not been executed (Bharat Prasad Sahi v. Rameshwar Koer, 30 Calc., 1066), but not a decree for costs obtained by him in a suit brought against him by the benamidar of his landlord and in which his landlord was a pro forma defendant (Tilak Chandra Rai v. Jasoda Kumar Rai, 11 C. W. N., 215). Where the defendant in a suit for rent claimed a deduction for road cess payable by the plaintiff, and which had been paid by him, held that the payment was not a part payment of the rents sued for, but an antecedent debt and was in the nature of a set-off, and Court fees must be paid for the same (Guise v. Ananta Ram Rathi, 10 C. W. N., 199).

Burden of proof.—Under sec. 109, Act I of 1872, when the question is whether persons are landlord and tenant and it has been shown that they have been acting as such, the burden of proving that they have ceased to stand to each other in those relations respectively is on the person who affirms it. (See Mohan Mahto v. Shamsul Huda, 21 W. R., 5; Rango Lal Mandal v. Abdul Chaffur, 4 Calc., 314; 3 C. L. R., 119; Parbati Dasi v. Ram Chand Bhattacharji, 3 C. L. R., 576; and Bama Charan Chaudhuri v. Administrator General, 6 C. L. J., 72). When it has not been so shown, and no tenancy is admitted, the burden of proving an alleged tenancy is on the party asserting it to exist (Ram Mani v. Alimuddin, 20 W. R., 374; Batai Ahir v. Bhagabatti Kuar, 11 C. L. R., 476). The onus of proving the proper rate is upon the plaintiff, and not upon the defendant (Samira Khatun v. Gopal Lal Tagore, 1 W. R., 58; Kholu Mandal v. Piru Sarkar, 6 W. R., Act X, 18; Ashraf v. Ram Kishor Ghosh, 23 W. R., 288). The fact that a tenant some time ago gave a kabulyat for a limited period at a particular rate of rent is not sufficient to throw upon the defendant the onus of proving what the present rent is, without any evidence on the part of the landlord that the rent specified in the kabulyat had ever been realized from him (Makunda Chandra Sarma v. Aspan Ali, 2 C. W. N., 47). In a suit to recover arrears of rent at enhanced rates, the onus of proving both the quantity and the rates is upon the plaintiff and not upon the defendant (Ghulam Ali v. Gopal Lal Tagor, 1 W. R., 56). It lies on the plaintiff to make out distinctly the different grounds on which he rests his right to enhance, viz., excess of area, increase of productiveness apart from the tenant's agency, and increase in the value of produce (Ghulam Ali v. Gopal Lal Thakur 9 W. R., 65; Pulin Bihari Sen v. Watson & Co., 9 W. R., 190; Doma Rai v. Melon, 20 W. R., 416), and he must prove that the present rate is not fair and equitable (Hills v. Jendur Mandal, 1 W. R., 3). In a suit to recover arrears of rent from the defendants, who, as thikudars of the plaintiff's share in a certain mauzah, had been in possession from 1262 to 1281 without having paid any rent, the plaintiff, who claimed a bhaoli rent at the rate of 9 annas of the crop, proved that in the mauzah in question the raiyats paid rent at that rate, and it was held that under the particular circumstances the onus was on the defendants, who alleged that the proper rate was 8 annas to prove their allegation (Lochan Chaudhri v. Anup Singh, 8 C. L. R., 426). In a suit for enhancement where the defendant replies that the land in question does not belong to the plaintiff's estate, the onus is on the plaintiff (who seeks to dispute the previously existing arrangement) to prove his right to do so (Mahomed Ali v. Radha Raman Mandal, 4 W. R., Act X, 18). In a suit for enhancement, in which it was contended that the land constituted a grant created before 1790, it was decided that the onus was on the plaintiff to show that the land was included in the zamindari at the time of the permanent settlement and was, therefore, liable to enhancement (Ahsanullah v. Bassarat Ali Chaudhri, 10 Calc., 920). In a suit for enhancement when the defendant pleads that rent had been assessed on lands covered by hedges and ditches and forming boundaries between fields, and that according to custom such land was not liable to pay rent at all, the onus is on the defendant to prove the custom (Haro Chaudhri v. Jayeshar Nandi, 6 W. R., Act X, 46). When a defendant claims abatement of rent on the ground of diluvion the onus is on him (Savi v. Abhai Nath Basu, 2 W. R., Act X, 28). So, also, when he pleads remission of rent (Banwari Lal v. Furlong, 9 W. R., 239). In a suit for rent by a share-holder, when the defendant contends that he is not bound to pay otherwise than by entirety to the person entitled to the whole rent, the onus is on the plaintiff to show that he is entitled to sue for a fractional portion (Lalun v. Hemraj Singh, 20 W. R., 76). The onus of proving land to be sir, or proprietor's private land, lies on the person who alleges it to be so (Hari Das v. Ghansham Narain, 6 All., 286; sec. 120 (2)). Where a raiyat holds land of considerable extent under a zamindar and alleges that one or two plots occupied by him are held under a different title, the onus is on him to prove his allegation (Ram Kumar Rai v. Bijai Govind Baral, 7 W. R., 535). In a suit for the recovery of damages for illegal distraint on the ground that the landlords had distrainted the plaintiff's crop, alleging his rent to be more than it really was, it was held that the onus was on the plaintiff to prove the annual rent payable by him (Chandra Kant Mukhurji v. Hem Lal Mandal, 1 C. W. N., 463). In suits for arrears of rent, when the defendant pleads that the land is lakhiraj or rent free, and in suits in which the plaintiff seeks for a decree that land is rent-paying, the onus is on the plaintiff to prove that the land is rent-paying (Gumini Kazi v. Harihar Mukhurji, W. R., Sp. No., F. B., 115; Matangini Debi v. Mahomed, W. R., Sp. No., 1864, Act X, 30; Moti Lal Aduk v. Jadupati Das, 2 W. R., Act X, 44; Gangadhar Singh v. Bimola Dasi, 5 W. R., Act X, 37; Mahomed Azzar Ali v. Nasir Mahomed, 3 B. L. R., A. C., 304; Mritanjai Chakravartti v. Barada Kanta Rai, 6 W. R., Act X, 18; Jagesshori Debi v. Gadadhar Banurji, 6 W. R., Act X, 21; Shib Narain Rai v. Chidam Das, 6 W. R., Act X, 45; Ram Kumar Ghosal v. Debi Prasad Chatturji, 6 W. R., Act X, 87; Dhanmani Debi v. Sattrughan Scl, 6 W. R., Act X, 100; Bissessar Chakravartti v. Umacharan Rai, 7 W. R., 44; Parsidh Narain Singh v. Bissessar Dyal Singh, 7 W. R., 148; Pradhan Gopal Singh v. Bhup Rai, 9 W. R., 570; Raj Kishor Mukhurji v. Harihar Mukhurji, 10 W. R., 117; Prem Chand Barik v. Brajanath Kundu, 10 W. R., 204; Ambika Charan Mandal v. Ram Dhan, 11 W. R., 35; Man Mohun De v. Sri Ram Rai, 14 W. R., 285; Sridhar Nandi v. Braja Nath Kundu, 14 W. R., 286; 2 B. L. R., 211; Harihar Mukhurji v. Madhub Chandra, 8 B. L. R., 566; 14 Moo. I. A., 152; Hemangini Debi v. Jatindra Mohan Ghosh, 10 C. W. N., clxiv; Arfannissa v. Piari Mohan Mukhurji, 1 Calc., 378; Milan v. Mahomed Ali, 10 C. W. N., 434). But in Guru Prasad Rai v. Jaggabandhu Mazumdar (W. R., Sp. No., F. B., 15) it was said that the defendant having by giving a kabuliat for a portion of the land in dispute acknowledged himself to be the plaintiff's raiyat as to that portion, it lay on him to prove his plea of his not being the plaintiff's raiyat as to the rest, and in Satto Charan Ghosal v. Mahesh Chandra Mitra, (3 W. R., 178), that in a suit not for resumption, but for assessment at enhanced rates, in which the defendant admits that the main portion of the lands in dispute is rent-paying, but does not separate the rent-free lands, the plaintiff is not bound to prove that the lands are rent-paying until the defendant points out their precise situation. In Ashrafunnissa v. Mohan Deb Rai (5 W. R., Act X, 48), it was laid down that some prima facie proof of an ostensible rent-free holding and not a bare allegation by the defendant to this effect is necessary to bar a plaintiff in a suit for enhanced rent, where the defendant admits a tenancy for one portion of the land for which rent is sought. In Nihal Chandra Mistri v. Hari Prasad Mandal, (8 W. R., 183), it was ruled that where there is prima facie evidence that a tenant holds part of the land sought to be enhanced as paying rent and part as rent-free, the onus is shifted from the raiyat to the landlord. The same rule was laid down in Hira Ram Bhattacharji v. Ashraf Ali (9 W. R., 103) and in Sashi Bhushan Bakshi v. Mahomed Matain (4 C. L. J., 548) it was decided that when a purchaser at a patni sale proves his purchase and on his applying for possession is resisted by persons holding lands within the ambit of the patni tenure, who set up the defence that the lands held by them are lakhiraj, it is for them to prove that the lands have been held not under the patni tenure but as lakhiraj; so that according to these cases it would seem as if the onus lay in the first instance on the defendant. In another case, Shamdan Ali v. Mathuranath Datta, (14 W. R., 226), in which the defendant pleaded that certain lands, though lying within the ambit of the zamindari, did not form part of it, but were lakhiraj, it was held that the onus lay on the defendant to show the alleged independent title; failing to do so, the prima facie title made out by the plaintiff ought to prevail. Again, in Newaz Bandopadhyaya v. Kali Prasanno Ghosh, (6 Calc., 543; 8 C. L. R., 6), it was ruled that in a suit for enhancement of rent, when the tenant pleads that a portion of the land of which the rent is sought to be enhanced is held by him rent-free, the onus is on the tenant to prove prima facie that such portion of the land is so held by him; if he be successful in this, the onus is then shifted upon the landlord to rebut such prima facie evidence. Then, in Akbar Ali v. Bhyea Lal Jha, (6 Calc., 666; 7 C. L. R., 497) it was decided that the burden of proof is on the landlord, when the land is held by a person not a tenant of the plaintiff for other land, or when such land is occupied as a separate parcel or holding, or otherwise in such a manner as to be entirely distinct from other lands held by the same person as a tenant under the plaintiff. When the land is occupied by a tenant of the zamindar and is not distinguished in the manner described above from the rest of the land, as to which tenancy is admitted, the burden of proof is on the tenant. But in Bacharam Mandal v. Piari Mohan Banurji, (9 Calc., 813; 12 C. L. R., 475), it was said that in suits for resumption of lands alleged by the defendant to be rent-free, the burden of proof is in the first instance on the plaintiff to show that the lands are rent-paying. This he can do by proof of receipt of rent, or that its proceeds were taken into account at the permanent settlement, or by other sufficient means. The fact that the land in dispute is surrounded by other lands held by the defendant, for which rent is paid is evidence to show that the land forms part of his tenure and is not his lakhiraj holding, but no decree can be passed adversely to the defendant on it, unless it be held to establish a prima facie case in favour of the plaintiff. This was followed in Narendro Narain Rai v. Bishan Chandra Das, (12 Calc., 182), in which it was decided that in a suit for resumption of lands, when the defendants allege that the lands are lakhiraj, the onus is on the plaintiff in the first instance to show that the lands are mal, or rent-paying, and that if he fails to make out such a prima facie case, the suit should be dismissed.

In a suit by a landlord for khas possession of land in defendant's possession, the defendant set up and proved an intermediate tenure. Held, that it was on the plaintiffs to prove that the parcel of land sought to be resumed was outside such tenure (Rajendra Kumar Basu v. Mohima Chandra Ghosh, 3 C. W. N., 763). See also Hridai Krishna v. Nobin Chandra Sen, (12 C. L. R., 457); and Mohima Chandra Mazumdar v. Mohesh Chandra Neogi, (16 Calc., 479).

In a suit to recover possession of certain land described as khas khamar, of which plaintiffs had been forcibly dispossessed, defendants claimed to hold the land by way of permanent jote for 40 years, and contended that the plaintiffs had no right except to receive rents. Held, that as the defendants admitted the ownership to be with the plaintiffs, and prayed to be allowed to hold possession under the jote-tenancy, the burden of proof lay with the defendants (Hari Mohan Poddar v. Gharibullah Mallik, 22 W. R., 417). But when the tenant had been in long and peaceable possession of land as part of an admitted tenure, it was held that in a suit for ejectment it lay on the landlord to prove that the land was his khas land (Nanda Lal Goswami v. Jajireswar Halder 6 C. W. N., 105). In a suit for ejectment from certain homestead land, it was held that it lay on the defendant who alleged the land to be agricultural, or part of an agricultural holding to prove this plea (Ginija Prasanna Mukhurji v. Jadu Nath Karmakar, 10 C. W. N., cxxxvi).

Jamabandies, Chittas, Collection papers and Road Cess returns.—Jamabandi papers can never be treated as independent evidence of any contested fact (Chamarni Bibi v. Ainullah Sardar, 9 W. R., 451). Jamabandi papers can only be used as corroborative evidence of the same value as that which is attached to books of account (Gajju Koer v. Ali Ahmad, 14 W. R., 474; 6 B. L. R., App., 62). Jamabandi papers for the years in respect of which rent is claimed, prepared by the officers of the person claiming the rent, cannot be evidence of his right to that which is set forth, though the evidence of the patwari as to the amount collected in former years, corroborated by the jamabandies of those years, would be conclusive (Dhanukdhari Sahi v. Toomey, 20 W. R., 142). But the jamabandi papers of a former patwari are valueless without the personal testimony of the patwari (Bhagwan Datta Jha v. Shes Mangal Singh, 22 W. R., 256). Jamabandi papers filed by a proprietor in batwara proceedings to which the tenant is not necessarily a party cannot be used as evidence against such tenant in a suit for arrears of rent (Kishor Das v. Parsan Mahtun, 20 W. R., 171). A purchaser of a khas mahal cannot sue for enhanced rent upon a jamabandi to the terms of which the tenant has not consented (Inayatullah Miah v. Nubo Kumar Sarkar, 20 W. R., 207 ; Reazudin Mahomed v. McAlpine, 22 W. R., 540). Where tenants, who were aimadars, voluntarily signed a jamabandi drawn up under sec. 9, Reg. VII of 1822, specifying the amounts of rent payable by them, it was held to be evidence against them (Watson v. Mohendra Nath Pal, 23 W. R., 436). A jamabandi prepared by a Deputy Collector, while engaged in the settlement of land under Reg. VII of 1822, is a public document within the meaning of sec. 74 of the Evidence Act. It is not necessary to show that at the time when such document was prepared, a raiyat affected by its provisions was a consenting party to the terms specified (Taru Patur v. Abinash Chandra Datta, 4 Calc., 79). In a subsequent case, Akshai Kumar Datta v. Shama Charan Patitanda, (16 Calc., 586), however, a doubt was expressed whether a jamabandi drawn up under Reg. VII of 1822 was a public document, and it was ruled that to make the enhanced rent stated in such a jamabandi binding upon a tenant, there must be either an assent to that enhancement, or else a compliance with the provisions of the rent law with reference to enhancement of rent in force at the time of such enhancement.

Certified copies of survey measurement chittas, field-books and maps are admissible in evidence (Gopinath Singh v. Anandmayi Debi, 8 W. R., 167). Whatever may be the value of chittas in questions between the sumindar and his tenants, they cannot be received as evidence of boundary against a rival proprietor without further account, introduction or verification (Ekkauri Singh v. Hira Lal Sil, 11 W. R., P. C., 2 ; 2 B. L. R., P. C., 4). But they may be evidence in such cases, if proved to be genuine and attested (Sudakhina Chaudhrani v. Raj Mohan Basu, 3 B. L. R., A. C., 377). When chittas were produced by the plaintiff as evidence of certain lands being rent-paying, it was held that they were sufficiently attested by the deposition of the village gumastha that they were the chittas of the village when he was gumastha, and that he had been present when, with their assistance, the measurement of the lands of the village had been tested (Debi Prasad Chaturji v. Ram Kumar Ghosal, 10 W. R., 443). Chittas not duly proved are not legal evidence, though admitted by the lower Court without objection from the opposite party (Izzatullah Khan v. Ram Charan Ganguli, 12 W. R., 39). Chittas and maps made in contemplation of resumption proceedings in the presence of both parties and signed by the parties are legal evidence (Sham Chand Ghosh v. Ramkrishna Behra, 19 W. R., 309). Batwarah chittas are no evidence between raiyats in a suit for possession of a jote (Gopal Chandra Saha v. Maghab Chandra Saha, 21 W. R., 29). When a chitta describes certain land as a taluk, this, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, implies a permanent interest (Krishna Chandra Gupta v. Safdar Ali, 22 W. R., 326). Chittas produced from the Collectorate, when there is nothing to show that they are the record of measurements made by any Government officer, are not public documents (Nityanand Rai v. Abdur Rahim, 7 Calc., 76). Chittas made by Government for its own use are nothing more than documents prepared for the information of the Collector, and are, without the resumption proceedings, not evidence for the purpose of proving that the lands are or are not of a particular character or tenure (Ram Chandra Sahu v. Bansidhar Nuik, 9 Calc., 741. See also Janmajai Mallik v. Dwarkanath Mahanti, 5 Calc., 287; 4 C. L. R., 574; Dwarkanath Misra v. Tarita Mayi Debi, 14 Calc., 120; Girindra Chandra Ganguli v. Rajendro Nath Chaturji, 1 C. W. N., 530; and contra, Mahomed Fedai v. Oziudin, 10 W. R. 340; Taraknath Mukhurji v. Mohendra Nath Ghosh, 13 W. R., 56; Mochiram Manjhi v. Bissambhar Rai, 24 W. R., 410).

Jaibaki papers, brought from the possession of the plaintiff, cannot be used against a defendant without showing that he has in some way agreed to them (Baidyonath Purui v. v. Rassik Lal Mitra, 9 W. R., 274).

Jama-wasil-bakies, or collection papers, are not evidence by themselves. The mere production of such papers is not enough. But coupled with other evidence, they often afford a very useful guide to the truth (Roshan Bibi v. Hari Krishna Nath, 8 Calc., 926). Jama-wasil-bakies are not independent evidence of the amount of rent mentioned therein, but it is perfectly right that a person who has prepared such jama-wasil-baki papers on receiving payment of the rent should refresh his memory from such papers when giving evidence as to the amount of rent payable (Akhil Chandra Chaudhri v. Nayu, 10 Calc., 248). Collection papers are no evidence per se and can only be used when they are produced by a person who has collected rent under them, and who merely uses them for the purpose of refreshing his memory (Mahomed Mahmud v. Safur Ali, 11 Calc., 407. See also Gobindo Chandra Addi v. Aulo Bibi, 1 W. R., 49; Allyat Chinaman v. Jagat Chandra, 5 W. R., 242; Khiru Mani Dasi v. Bijai Gobind Baral, 7 W. R., 533; Ram Lal Chakravartti v. Tara Sundari Barmanya, 8 W. R., 280; Sheo Sahai Rai v. Gudar Rai, 8 W. R., 328; Newazi v. Lloyd, 8 W. R. 464; Shib Prasad v. Promotho Nath Ghosh, 10 W. R., 193; Bijai Gobind Baral v. Bhiku Rai, 10 W. R., 291; Mohima Chandra Chakravartti v. Purno Chandra Banurji, 11 W. R., 165; Belact Khan v. Rash Bihuri Mukhurji, 22 W. R., 549; Sar-nomayi v. Johar Mahomed Nasyo, 10 C. L. R., 545).

Entries in books of account are admissible in evidence not only for refreshing the witness's memory, but also as corroborative evidence of the story he tells (Rhoy Hong Kong v. Ramanathan Chetty, 6 C. W. N., 401).

Under sec. 95, Act IX, B. C., of 1880, road-cess returns are admissible in evidence against the person by or on behalf of whom they have been filed, but are not admissible in his favour. Road-cess papers are not admissible against a tenant either as substantive or corroborative evidence of the amount of rent payable by him (Mahomed Mahmud v. Safar Ali, 11 Calc., 409), or against another share-holder (Nasiran v. Gauri Sankar Singh, 22 W. R., 192). See Daitari Mahanti v. Jagat-bandhu Mahanti, (23 W. R., 293). The statements made by deceased tenants in cess returns filed by them regarding assets of the tenancy are not admissible in evidence (Hem Chandra Chaudhuri v. Kali Prasanna Bhaduri, 26 Calc., 832).

Kabulyats.—A contemporaneous oral agreement cannot under sec. 92 of the Evidence Act be proved to show that the rent is less than what is stated in a registered kabulyat (Radha Raman Chaudhuri v. Bhawani Prasad Bhumik, 6 C. W. N., 60). Oral evidence is not admissible for the purpose of contradicting a statement made in a registered kabulyat as to the amount of rent, but evidence is admissible to show that the kabulyat was never intended to be acted on, or that there was a waiver of some of its terms (Beni Madhab Gorani v. Lal Mati Dasi, 6 C. W. N., 242). Mere non-payment of rent, though for nearly fifty years, would not affect the landlord's right to rent, where the tenant gave a kabulyat in favour of the landlord or his predecessor in title. In such a case, it is for the tenant to show that the contract has been determined, or was never intended to be acted on. (Bama-charan Chaudhuri v. Administrator General, 6 C. L. J., 72).

Thak maps.—In a suit in which one of the issues was whether certain land was mal or lakhiraj, the thak map was admitted as relevant evidence, as it was necessary to show in such map the lands claimed as lakhiraj (Raj Kumar Pal v. Basanta Kumar Guha, 7 C. W. N., 612).

Entries in Thakbast maps are evidence on which a Court may act (Abdul Hamid v. Kiran Chandra Rai, 7 C. W. N., 849).

Effect of ex-parte and unexecuted decrees.—The early rulings as to the effect of ex parte and unexecuted decrees for rent are conflicting. In Kali Kant Rai v. Ashrafunnissa, (2 W. R., 326) it was ruled that in a suit for enhancement ex parte summary decrees for rent are not satisfactory proof that a variation has taken place in the amount of the rent paid. In Ram Sundar Tewari v. Srinath Dewasi, (10 W. R., 215; 14 B. L. R., 371), it was said that a rent decree, not having been executed within the period allowed by law for execution, was no decree and no evidence against the fact of an intervenor having actually received the rents bona fide. A previous rent decree may be admissible in evidence, but unless followed up by evidence that it has been executed, or that the defendant against whom it was obtained paid the money and satisfied the decree, it is worthless (Bishan Prakash Singh v. Rattan Gir, 20 W. R., 3). A decree for rent at a certain rate is not conclusive proof that the land was held for the years to which the decree relates at that rate until it has been executed (Beni Madhab Banurji v. Bhagbat Pal, 20 W. R., 466). Where a suit is tried ex parte, and no issues of fact are raised beyond the general issue involved in the claim, the decree considered as evidence is only evidence that the amount decreed was at the time due from the plaintiff to the defendant (Goya Prasad Aubasti v. Turini Kant Lahiri, 23 W. R., 149). A decree obtained ex parte, is not final within the meaning of expl. 4, sec. 13 of Act X of 1887. Such a decree is not conclusive evidence of the amount of rent payable by the same defendant in another suit for subsequent rent of the same property (Nil Mani Singh v. Hira Lal Das, 7 Calc., 23; 8 C. L. R., 257). This was followed in a suit for arrears of rent of a half share of land, in which the plaintiffs relied upon an ex parte decree for rent at a certain rate, which they had obtained in 1869 against the tenants of this share. It did not appear that the ex parte decree had been executed. It was accordingly held that it was open to the defendants to dispute the rate of rent claimed, and that the plaintiffs were bound to prove that they were entitled to recover it (Bhagirath Patoni v. Ram Lochan Deb, 8 Calc., 275). An ex parte decree obtained against the registered tenant is not admissible as evidence against an unregistered transferee not a party to it (Ram Narain Rai v. Ram Kumar Chandra, 11 Calc., 562). On the other hand, in Chandra Kumar Datta v. Jai Chandra Datta, (19 W. R., 213), it was said that a defendant who omits to defend a suit and allows an ex parte decree to be passed against him cannot afterwards object to the decree as no evidence. And in Ram Sundari Devi v. Ram Prasad Sadhu, (8 W. R., 288), and Durga Charan Chaturji v. Daya Mayi Dasi (20 W. R., 243), (which were both rent-suits), it was declared that decrees do not become ineffectual because they have not been executed. Then, in a later case decided by a Full Bench, it was held that an ex parte decree for rent is admissible as evidence of the rate of rent in a subsequent suit between the same parties, even though it has become inoperative from not having been executed within the period of limitation (Bir Chandra Manikya v. Ram Krishna Shaha, 23 W. R., 128; 14 B. L. R., 370). In a subsequent stage of the same case, it was ruled that a decree obtained ex parte is in the absence of fraud or irregularity as binding for all purposes as a decree in a contested suit. Such a decree is admissible in evidence, even though the period for executing it has expired (Bir Chandra Manik v. Harish Chandra Das, 3 Calc., 383). See also Mahomed Kana v. Ran Mahomed, (24 W. R., 254). In Jagadamba Dasi v. Tarakant Banurji (6 C. L. R., 121), their Lordships of the Privy Council held that the effect of an appeal decided by them ex parte, could not on that ground be disputed. And in Hansa Koer v. Sheo Gobind Raut, (24 W. R., 431); it was held that an ex parte decree is admissible in evidence quantum valeat, even against a person who was no party to it. This conflict of rulings was considered in the Full Bench case of Madhu Sudan Shaha Mandal v. Brac, (16 Calc., 300). In this case, four questions were referred by the referring Bench for the decision of the Full Bench, (1) whether an ex parte decree for rent operates so as to render the rate of rent res judicata between the parties? (2) whether it so operates, if the rate of rent alleged by the plaintiff is recited in the decree, without any express declaration that the rate of rent so alleged has been proved? (3) whether it so operates, if the rate of rent alleged is expressly declared by the decree to have been proved? (4) whether an ex parte decree operates so as to render any question decided by the decree res judicata in the absence of proof that such decree has been executed? The Full Bench answered the first three questions in the negative. It was said:—"The mere statement of an alleged rate of rent in the plaint in a rent suit in which an ex parte decree is made, is not a statement as to which it must be held that an issue within the meaning of sec 13 of the Code of Civil Procedure was raised between the parties so that the defendant is concluded by the decree. Neither a recital in the decree of the rate alleged by the plaintiff nor a declaration in it as to the rate of rent which the Court considers to be proved would operate in such a case as to make that matter a res judicata; assuming, of course, that no such declaration were asked for in the plaint as part of the substantive relief claimed, the defendant having a proper opportunity of meeting the case." The fourth question propounded by the referring Bench was not answered. In the case of Madhu Manjari Chaudhurani v. Jhumar Bibi, (1 C. W. N., 120), it was held that an ex parte decree for arrears of rent which has been duly executed is some evidence as to the rate of rent. See also Mati Lal v. Nripendra Nath Rai, (2 C. W. N., 172). It is good evidence, so long as it is unreversed (Aturannissa v. Golabdi, 2 C. L. J., 98 n). But an ex parte decree which has never been executed is no evidence as to the rate of rent (Ram Chandra Datta v. Haro Gobindo Bhattacharji, 1 C. W. N., cxxviii).

A suit lies to set aside on the ground of fraud an ex parte decree for rent obtained under Act X of 1859 (Gopini Baisnabi v. Gopal Krishna Jana, 1 C. L. J., 101*n*).

The new section 153 A added to the Act by s. 47, Act I, B. C., 1907, deals with the procedure to be followed before ex parte decrees for rent can be set aside.

Res judicata.—The decision of an issue in a Revenue Court cannot make the matter raised in that issue res judicata in a subsequent suit in the Civil Court; for the two Courts are not of concurrent jurisdiction (Edan v. Bechan, 8 W. R., 175). Thus, the decision of a Revenue Court as to the genuineness of a mukarari pattah, coming collaterally in issue before it, does not bar a subsequent suit relating to the pattah in the Civil Court (Junessar Das v. Gulzari Lal, 11 W. R., 216; Chandra Kumar Mandal v. Namni Khanum, 19 W. R., 322). So, a decision in a suit under Act X of 1859 that certain land is not lakhiraj, is not conclusive in a subsequent suit between the same parties in the Civil Court (Hari Sankar Mukhurji v. Krishna Patro, 24 W. R., 154; 15 B. L. R., 238), and a judgment in a suit before a Deputy Collector, which decides only questions of rent pronounced by a Court not having jurisdiction to decide the questions of title to the property itself cannot be regarded as amounting to res judicata in a subsequent suit brought to decide the question of title to that property (Khettra Krishna Mitra v. Dinendra Narain Rai, 3 C. W. N., 202). Whether decisions in suits under Act VIII, B. C., of 1869 and under the Bengal Tenancy Act operate as res judicata or not depends on the provisions of sec. 13 of the Code of Civil Procedure. Accordingly, if the causes of action in the two suits are different, there can be no res judicata. Thus, a suit for khas possession is no bar to a later suit for rent of the same lands (Bhagwan Das v. Sheo Narain Singh, 23 W. R., 253). If the parties in the subsequent suit are not the same as, or do not claim under, the parties in the previous suit, there is no res judicata (Wahid Ali v. Nath Turaho, 24 W. R., 128; Brajo Bihari Mitra v. Kedar Nath Mazumdar, 12 Calc., 580). This latter case was decided by a Full Bench, and in the argument in it various conflicting decisions on the point are noticed. See also the Full Bench case of Alimudin Biswas v. Kafiludin, 2 C. W. N., cxlvii. But in Dwarka Nath Rai v. Ram Chandra Aich, (26 Calc., 428; 3 C. W. N., 266), also decided by a Full Bench, it was ruled that a decision in a suit for rent brought by a plaintiff against a person who is alleged to have been his tenant in respect of certain land does not operate as res judicata in a subsequent suit brought by the same plaintiff for establishment of his title to the land, not only against the alleged tenant but also against the person whose title as landlord the tenant defendant had set up in the rent suit.

In Gopal Das v. Gopi Nath Sarkar (12 C. L. R., 38) it was held that a suit for rent in which the sole defendant denied the plaintiff's title, alleging that B and A were his landlords, having been dismissed on the ground that the plaintiff had failed to prove his title, another suit brought by the plaintiff against A, B and C for possession was barred under sec. 13 Civ. Pro. Code. This decision was dissented from in the references to a Full Bench in both Alimudin Biswas v. Kafludin, and Dwarka Nath Rai v. Ram Chandra Aich, but in neither case was it expressly overruled. A decree obtained in a previous suit for rent by an ijaradar does not operate against the tenant on the question whether the relation of landlord and tenant exists in a subsequent suit for rent brought by the superior landlord (Balaram Mandal v. Kartik Chandra Rai, 4 C. W. N., 161). If the question for consideration in the subsequent suit is not the same as in the previous suit, the former suit is no bar to the latter (Gopi Mohan Mazumdar v. Hills, 3 Calc., 789). So, too, if the matter in issue in the former suit has not been heard and finally decided (Brindaban Chandra Sarkar v. Dhananjai Laskar, 4 C. L. R., 443; Raghu Nath Mandal v. Jagat Bandhu Basu, 8 C. L. R., 393; Nil Madhub Sarkar v. Brajo Nath Singh, 21 Calc., 236). Accordingly, a previous decision in a suit for rent does not operate as res judicata in a subsequent suit where the amount of rent subsequently accrued due is in issue (Jotindro Mohan Tagore v. Shambhu Chandra Bhuttacharjea, 4 C. W. N., 43) though it may give rise to a presumption under sec 51, that the rents for subsequent years remained the same (Beni Prasad Koeri v. Raj Kumar Ghosh, 6 C. W. N., 589). But if the parties in the two suits are the same and the self-same title is substantially in issue in both suits, the second suit is barred (Mohima Chandra Mazumdar v. Asradha Dasia, 21 W. R. 207; Gobind Chandra Kundu v. Tarak Chandra Basu, 3 Calc., 145; 1 C. L. R., 35; Bimalu Sundari Chaudhrani v. Panchanan Chaudhri, 3 Calc., 705). There is nothing in sec. 13 of the Code of Civil Procedure to indicate that the judgment in the two suits must be open to appeal in the same way in order that the decision upon any issue in the earlier suit may bar the trial of the same issue in the later one. So, a decision of an issue in a suit in which no second appeal lies to the High Court bars the trial of the same in a subsequent suit in which such second appeal is allowed (Rai Charan Ghosh v. Kumud Mohan Dutta, 25 Calc., 571; 2 C. W. N., 297). If the matter at issue in the second suit was directly and substantially at issue in the first suit and was heard and finally determined, the matter is res judicata (Naba Durga Dasi v. Faiz Baksh Chaudhuri, 1 Calc., 202; 24 W. R., 403; Man Mohini Debi v. Binod Bihari Saha, 25 W. R., 10; Bassan Lal Sukal v. Chandi Das, 4 C. L. R., 1; Niamat Khan v. Phadu Baidia, 6 Calc., 319; 7 C. L. R., 227; Kartik Chandra Pal v. Sridhar Mandal, 12 Calc., 563; Radha Madhub Haldar v. Monohar Mukhurji, 15 Calc., 756; L. R., 15 I. A., 97). So, when in previous suit brought by the predecessor in title of the plaintiff against the defendants for rent, one of the questions raised was whether the land, in respect of which rent was claimed was mal or lakhiraj, and that question was decided in favour of the defendants, and in a subsequent suit by the plaintiff against the same defendants for khas possession of certain land the defence was that the land in dispute was their lakhiraj land, and that the judgment in the previous suit operated as res judicata, it was held that, though the previous suit was one for rent, yet the issue upon the question whether the land was mal or lakhiraj was raised directly in the suit and, therefore, the subsequent suit was barred (Kasiswar Mukhopadhyaya v. Mohendro Nath Bhandari, 25 Calc., 136). A brought a suit for rent of the year 1305. The defendant pleaded that the rent had been reduced. It was found that the abatement pleaded was not established. A then sued for the rents of 1306 to 1309. The same plea of abatement was raised: held, that the question was res judicata (Sita Nath v. Tarach Nath, 3 C. L. J., 26n). But the decision of a question of title in a rent suit does not operate as res judicata in a subsequent suit for title, when such question of title was raised only incidentally in the rent suit (Srihari Banerji v. Khatish Chandra Rai, 24 Calc., 569; 1 C. W. N., 509; Alimudin Biswas v. Kafiludin, 2 C. W. N., cxlvii; Nityanand Sarker v. Ram Narain Das, 6 C. W. N., 66; Haranath Chakravartti v. Kamini Kumar Chakravartti, 3 C. L. J., 25n). If the matter at issue in a subsequent suit ought to have been, but was not raised in a previous suit, it is res judicata (Dinamayi Debi v. Anango Mayi, 4 C. L. R., 599; Ghursobhit Ahir v. Ram Datta Singh, 5 Calc., 923; 6 C. L. R., 537; Bhatirab Dyal Sahu v. Sahadeb Poddar, 1 C. W. N., cxi). But in Kailash Mandal v. Burodu Sundari Das, (24 Calc., 711; 1 C. W. N., 565) a defendant was held entitled to raise the plea of benami notwithstanding that it was not raised in the previous suit, and in Umesh Chandra Maitra v. Burodu Das Maitra, (28 Calc., 17) it was said that when in a suit for rent, the rent claimed expressly includes an item which is objected to as an illegal cess, the mere fact that in a previous rent suit between the same parties regarding the same tenure the defendant did not raise the same plea, although he could have done so, would not in the absence of a judicial determination of the point in the previous suit, preclude him from raising the plea in the subsequent suit. Where in a previous suit it had been wrongly held that a permanent lessee was not liable to pay cesses, which he had agreed in his kabulyat to pay, it was held that the claim for cesses in a subsequent suit was barred by the rule of res judicata (Padmanand Singh v. Radha Singh, 9 C. W. N., 469). In Pannu Singh v. Nirghin Singh, (7 Calc., 298 : 8 C. L. R., 310), the plaintiff sued for arrears of rent for the year 1282 at the rate of Rs. 2-8 per bigha. The defendant alleged that the rate was only fifteen annas per bigha. The Judge found that the plaintiff had not proved that the rate of rent was Rs. 2-8 per bigha, and, without finding that the proper rate was fifteen annas, gave the plaintiff a decree for that amount. The plaintiff brought a subsequent suit for arrears of rent for the year 1283, when it was decided by the Court of first instance and by the lower Appellate Court that he could only recover arrears of rent at the rate of fifteen annas. It was held, however, that they were wrong, for the Judge in the previous suit did not determine the question as to what was the proper rent due by the defendant, so his decision did not make the matter res judicata. But in a later case, Jeo Lall Singh v. Sarfan (11 C. L. R., 483), the facts of which were very similar, this case was distinguished. In this later case, the plaintiff having in a previous suit for rent failed to prove the amount of rent claimed by him, the Court in trying the issue, "what is the proper amount of rent payable to the plaintiff," gave the plaintiff a decree for the amount admitted by the defendant, that amount being less than that claimed by the plaintiff. The plaintiff then sued the defendant for the rent of a subsequent year, and he claimed at the same rate as he had claimed in the previous suit. It was held that the decree in the former suit was res judicata as to the proper rate payable by the defendant, as in the former case the Judge had come to a decisive finding as to what was the proper amount of rent payable. In Hari Bihari Bhagat v. Pargan Ahir, (19 Calc., 659), it was said that whether in these circumstances the former decision acted as res judicata or not, would depend on whether in the previous suit all that had been determined was that the plaintiff should recover from the defendants as rent for the period in question the sum admitted by them to be due, or whether what was decided was that the sum admitted by the defendant was the proper amount of rent payable for the land in suit for the year or years in question. The decision in this case was followed in Bakshi v. Nizamudin (20 Calc., 505) in which approval was expressed of the rule said to be therein laid down, viz., that where in a rent suit a Judge tries the question and gives judgment on the question, "what is the yearly rent," and makes that the foundation of his judgment, that becomes res judicata between the parties. See also Bhuban Mohan Sen v. Durga Nand Das, (2 C. W. N, ccciii). When in a previous suit a particular stipulation contained in a kabulyat has been held to be valid, it is not open to a Court subsequently to try the issue whether that particular stipulation is valid or not (Bishnu Priya Chaudhurani v. Bhaba Sundari Debya, 28 Calc., 318). When there has been no actual adjudication as to the rate of rent, but a decree given at the rate admitted by the defendant, the decision may be taken to determine the rent claimed in that suit and to give rise to a presumption under sec. 51 that the rent in subsequent years remained the same (Beni Prasad Koer v. Raj Kumar Chobe, 6 C. W. N., cxx; Kali Rai v. Pratap Narain, 5 C. L. J., 92). A decision in a suit where the rate of rent is not in issue does not operate as res judicata as regards the rate in a subsequent suit (Balaram Mundal v. Kartik Chandra Rai, 4 C. W. N., 161). Whether an issue as to the rate of rent generally is a direct or an indirect issue in a suit for arrears of rent must be determined with reference to the frame of such suit (Rajendra Nath Ghose v. Tarangini Dasi, 1 C. L. J., 248). Where the decision whether certain lands were included in the defendant's jama, was not necessary for the decision of the suit, it cannot be res judicata in a subsequent suit brought by the plaintiff against the defendant to establish his title to these lands and for khas possession (Sahadeb Dhali v. Ram Rudra Haldar, 10 C. W. N., 820). In Rash Dhuri Gop v. Khakon Singh, (24 Calc., 433), it has been ruled that in a suit for arrears of rent, when the plaintiff fails to prove that the defendant holds at the rate alleged, it is not the duty of the Court to ascertain what is a fair rate, unless asked to do so and it was pointed out that the case of Pannu Singh v. Nirghin Singh, (7 Calc., 298) does not lay down that it is bound to do so. Previous decrees for cesses at a certain rate obtained by a landlord against a tenant do not operate as res judicata in a subsequent suit for cesses claimed at a higher rate, although they are admissible as evidence in the suit and may raise a presumption against the tenant (Ricketts v. Rameswar Mulia, 28 Calc., 109).

In a previous suit for rent against a permanent tenure-holder in a permanently settled area, it was held, following a ruling of the High Court, that the plaintiff could recover interest on the arrears only at the rate of 12 p. c. p. a., The ruling referred to was subsequently overruled by a Full Bench: held, that the case must be decided by the law as it stood when judgment was pronounced, that the plaintiff could recover at the higher rate mentioned in the defendant's kabulyat, and that the decision in the previous suit was not res judicata (Alimunnissa Chaudhurani v. Shamu Charan Rai, 32 Calc., 749; 9 C. W. N., 466; 1 C. L. J., 176).

Jurisdiction in proceedings under Act.

local limits of the jurisdiction of the Civil Court which would have jurisdiction to entertain a suit for the possession of the tenure or holding in connection with which the suit is brought.

(2) When under this Act a Civil Court is authorized to make an order on the application of a landlord or a tenant, the application shall be made to the Court which would have jurisdiction to entertain a suit for the possession of the tenure or holding in connection with which the application is brought.

Venue of suit for rent of fishery.—Under this section it has been held that a suit for the rent of a jalkar or fishery can be brought in the Court where a suit for possession of the fishery will lie (Shibu Haldar v. Golap Sundari Dasi, 1 C. W. N. lxxxvii). A suit for recovery of rent due on a tenure for a sum not exceeding Rs. 1000 is cognizable in a Munsif's Court, although a suit for recovery of possession of the tenure, the value of which is Rs. 4500, lies in a Subordinate Judge's Court (Fazlur Rahim v. Dwarka Nath Chaudhuri, 7 C. W. N., 402; 30 Calc., 453). A suit for the rent of a fishery is entertainable in ordinary Civil Courts, which have jurisdiction in rent suits (Shib Prasad Chaudhuri v. Vakai Pali, 33 Calc., 601).

Jurisdiction of Small Cause Court.—Suits for recovery of rent, other than house-rent, are excluded from the jurisdiction of the Small Cause Court under art. (8), Sched. II, Act IX of 1887. A Mofussil Small Cause Court has, therefore, now no jurisdiction to entertain a suit for arrears of rent of home-stand or bastu land (Uma Churn Mandal v. Bijari Bewah, 15 Calc., 174). But a suit between landlord and tenant for the recovery by the tenant of excess payments taken by the landlord in respect of the rent of the holding is a suit of the nature cognizable by the Court of Small Causes, and therefore, no second appeal lies where the amount claimed is below Rs. 500. All that section 144 does is to determine the venue, but it has no bearing on the question of the nature of the suit (Ranga Rai v. Holloway, 26 Calc., 842; 4 C. W. N., 95). See also Ganesh Hathi v. Mehta Vyankatram, (8 Bom., 188). A suit brought by an assignee of a landlord for recovery of arrears assigned after they fell due is excepted from the cognizance of the Court of Small Causes (Prish Chandra Busu v. Nasim Kazi, 27 Calc., 827; 4 C. W. N., 357). See note to sec. 3, cl. (5), ante, pp. 28, 29.

145. Every naib or gumashta of a landlord empowered in this behalf by a written authority under the hand of the landlord shall, for the purposes of every such suit or application, be deemed to be the recognized agent of the landlord within the meaning of the Code of Civil Procedure, notwithstanding that the landlord may reside within the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court in which the suit is to be instituted or is pending, or in which the application is made.

This section should be read in connection with sec. 187 (1), which empowers an agent to represent a landlord in proceedings in Court in every way, unless the Court otherwise directs.

Stamp duty.—The written authority referred to in this section must be stamped as a power of attorney under art. 50, Sched. I, Act I of 1879. The explanation to this article provides that for the purposes of this number more persons than one when belonging to the same firm shall be deemed to be one person. The Madras High Court have held under this article that a document given to one person by thirty-six persons jointly interested in a certain sum of money authorizing him to receive payment thereof is subject to a stamp duty of one rupee under art. 50 (b). But the Calcutta High Court have held that when an instrument contains a several power of attorney conferred by two or more persons, it requires a separate stamp for each power (In the matter of Jai Krishna Mukhurji, No. 1504 of 1885, decided 10th December, 1885, (See Board's Circular, Dec., 1885, p. 108).

A Court in which a suit for arrears of rent is brought on behalf of one person, through the agency of another, is entitled to inquire as to the agent's authority: if that is not proved, the suit fails (Nam Narain Singh v. Raghu Nath Sahai, 19 Calc., 678).

A Naib or Gumashta cannot sue in his own name.—Any application or act in, or to, any Court, required or authorised by law to be made or done by a party to a suit or appeal may, except when otherwise provided, be made or done by recognized agent (sec 36, Act XIV of 1882). But a recognized agent cannot institute or defend a suit or appear in his own name (Mokha Hurakraj Joshi v. Bissesswar Das, 5 B. L. R., App., 11; 13 W. R., 344). So, a gumashta must institute a suit in the name and on behalf of his master (Madhu Sudan Singh v.

Moran & Co., 11 W. R. 43). He cannot sue in his own name, and can only conduct the suit for his employer like any other agent (Kunjo Bihari Rai v. Purna Chaturji, 9 Calc. 450 ; 12 C. L. R., 55).

A Naib or Gumastha cannot grant leases.—It does not fall within the ordinary scope of the duties of a mofussil naib to grant leases or pattaks. It is requisite in such cases that express authority should be proved to make the grants valid (Golak Mani Debi v. Asimudin, 1 W. R. 56 ; Uma Tara v. Pina Bibi, 2 W. R., 115 ; Panchanan Basu v. Piari Mohun Deb, 2 W. R. 225 ; Kali Kumar Das v. Anis, 3 W. R., Act X, 1 ; Annada Prasad Banurji v. Chandra Sikhar Deb, 7 W. R. 394 ; Abilak Rai v. Dalial Rai, 3 Calc., 557).

A Gumastha cannot consent to the transfer of a holding.—The purchaser of a raiyati holding is bound to communicate with the zamindar and obtain his consent to the transfer ; without this being done, a gumastha's receipts of rent are not binding on the zamindar (Bhujohari Banik v. Aka Ghulam Ali, 16 W. R., 97).

Limitation—A suit for an account by a landlord against his agent on the basis of a registered agreement is governed not by the 3 years rule laid down in art. 89, but by the 6 years rule laid down in art. 116. The time runs from the date when the contract to render accounts is broken. If under the contract the account has to be rendered at the end of every year, the plaintiff is not entitled to accounts for more than 6 years. If the agent does not hold under registered agreement, the case would be governed by art. 115, (Motilal Basu v. Amin Chand Chatteropadhyay, 1 C. L. J. 211).

A landlord's agent cannot retain illegal cesses collected by him—A landlord's agent is liable to pay to the landlord any sums collected from the tenants as kharcha or illegal cesses, and a suit by a landlord for recovery of such sums is maintainable (Nagendra Bala Dasi v. Gurudayal Mukherji, 7 C. W N., 535).

146. The particulars referred to in section 58 of the Code of Civil Procedure shall, in the case of such suits, instead of being entered in the register of civil suits prescribed by that section, be entered in a special register to be kept by each Civil Court, in such form as the Local Government may, from time to time, prescribe in this behalf.

Special register of suits.

XIV of 1882.

Form of Register.—The Local Government has directed that the special register to be kept by each Civil Court, under the provisions of this section, shall be in the form prescribed by sec. 58, Act XIV of 1882, and numbered as 116 in the 4th schedule annexed to that Act (Notification dated the 20th February, 1886, published in the Calcutta Gazette of March 3rd, 1886, Part I, p. 142).

Special Register of rent suits for statistical purposes only.—The provision in Act VIII of 1869, B. C., directing suits instituted under that Act to be entered in a separate register was for statistical purposes, and not for the purpose of separating into parts the jurisdiction exercised by one Court, so as to render a suit brought under that Act liable to be struck off in order that a fresh suit might be brought under Act VIII of 1859 in the same Court and on the same cause of action, even supposing that the suit was not really a suit for rent, and that the consideration stipulated to be paid for the defendant's occupation of the land was charity and not rent (Jallaluddin v. Burne, 18 W. R., 99). The mere fact of a suit having by some mistake of the office been registered in the book of rent suits does not conclude the plaintiff or render his suit liable to dismissal (Ramnarain Mitra v. Nobin Chandra Murdadarash, 18 W. R., 208). There should be no question in the mind of a Court as to which side of the Court is to entertain the suit, or under what Act it is to be tried. It was one of the purposes of the legislature, when it removed the cognizance of a certain class of actions from the Collector's Court to the Munsif's Court that there should no longer be any question in any case whether the suitor had invoked the exercise of the right jurisdiction, and whether the Court was competent to do complete justice between the parties. It is the plain duty of a Court when a suit is brought before it to entertain it and to endeavour to try the matter in question between the parties upon the whole merits (Puriag Datta Rai v. Feku Rai, 19 W. R., 160). Two causes of action, one by plaintiff as purchaser of arrears of rent, and the other for rent due, were held to be properly joined in one suit cognizable by the Civil Court without any such distinction as that of different sides of the Court (Bhagwan Sahai v. Sangessar Chaudhri, 19 W. R., 431). A Civil Court has jurisdiction to try a suit for possession whether it be brought under Act VIII, B. C., of 1869, or as a regular civil suit (Gobind Mahtun v. Ram Khelawan Singh, 22 W. R., 478).

any rent of his holding, the landlord shall not institute another suit against him for the recovery of any rent of that holding until after* three months from the date of the institution of the previous suit.

Object of the section.—The object of the section, according to the Select Committee, was “to prevent raiyats being harassed by successive suits for rents when by agreement or custom a larger number of instalments than four may be established.” (Selections from papers relating to Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, p. 385).

* [147A. (1) The provisions of section 375 of the Code of Civil Procedure shall not apply to any suit between landlord and tenant as such.

Compromise of suits between landlord and tenant.

(2) If any suit between landlord and tenant as such is adjusted wholly or in part by any lawful agreement or compromise, or if the defendant satisfies the plaintiff in respect to the whole or any part of the matter of the suit, the Court shall pass a decree in accordance with such agreement, compromise or satisfaction, so far as it relates to the suit :

Provided that no decree shall be passed in accordance with any agreement, or compromise the terms of which, if they were embodied in a contract, could not be enforced under this Act.

(3) Where any agreement or compromise has been made for the purpose of settling a dispute as to the rent payable, the Court shall, in order to ascertain whether the effect of such agreement or compromise would be to enhance the rent in a manner, or to an extent, not allowed by section 29 in the case of a contract, record evidence as to the rent which was legally payable immediately before the period in respect of which the dispute arose.

(4) Where the terms of any agreement or compromise are such as might unfairly or inequitably affect the rights of third parties, the Court shall not pass a decree in accordance with such agreement or compromise, unless and until it is satisfied by evidence, that the statements made by the parties thereto are correct.

Illustration.—A, a proprietor, agrees that B, his tenant, shall be recorded as an occupancy-riyat; this affects the rights of the tenants of B. The Court must, under sub-section (4), inquire whether B is a tenure-holder or a riyat as defined in section 5. If the Court finds on the evidence that B is a riyat, it may pass a decree in accordance with the agreement, but shall not do so if it finds that B is a tenure-holder.

(5) A decree passed in accordance with any lawful agreement, compromise or satisfaction shall be final so far as it relates to so much of the subject-matter of the suit as is dealt with by such agreement, compromise or satisfaction.]

This section was added by sec. 42, Act I, B. C., 1907. Its object is explained in the Notes on Clauses of the Bill of 1906, as follows :

“The proposed section 147A is intended to give to Civil Courts the same power to disregard illegal and inequitable compromises regarding rent and other matters in suits between landlord and tenant as such, as it is proposed to confer upon Revenue Officers engaged in the preparation of the record-of-rights. Section 375 of the Code of Civil Procedure governs compromises filed in suits under the present law, and there is reason to believe that decrees have been passed giving effect to compromises containing illegal and inequitable provisions, and in particular that the provisions of section 29 regarding the limits of enhancement of rent by contract between landlord and tenant have frequently been nullified in this way.”

See note to sec. 109 B, p. 350.

[147B. In all areas for which a record-of-rights has been prepared and finally published under sub-section (2) of section 103A, a Civil Court shall, in all suits between landlord and tenant as such, have regard to the entries in such record-of rights relating to the subject-matter in dispute which may be produced before it, unless such entries have been proved by evidence to be incorrect ; and when a Civil Court passes a decree at variance with such entries, it shall record its reasons for so doing.]

Regard to be paid by Civil Courts to entries in record-of-rights.

This section was added by sec. 42, Act I, B. C., 1907. In the Notes on Clauses of the Bill it was said :

"The proposed section 147B is intended to define more clearly the force to be attached to entries in the record-of-rights in proceedings and suits between landlord and tenant as such. Under the present Act, (section 103B), such entries are presumed to be correct until the contrary is proved. But cases have occurred which indicate that it is doubtful whether the Courts pay sufficient attention to this presumption. It is proposed therefore to provide that the Courts shall have regard to the entries in the record-of-rights, unless such entries have been proved by evidence to be incorrect, and that when a Court passes a decree at variance with such entries, it shall record its reasons for so doing."

The expression "subject-matter in dispute" was introduced into the section by the Select Committee on the Bill of 1906, as they considered "that the Court should have regard to entries in the record-of-rights which may be produced before it, and which are relevant to any matter in dispute between the landlord and tenant."

Procedure in rent suits. 148. The following rules shall apply to suits for the recovery of rent :—

(a) sections 121 to 127 (both inclusive), 129, 305 and 320 to 326 (both inclusive) of the XIV of 1882. Code of Civil Procedure shall not apply to any such suit :

(b) the plaint shall contain, in addition to the XIV of 1882. particulars specified in section 50 of the Code, of Civil Procedure, a statement of the situation, designation, extent and boundaries of the land held by the tenant ; or, where the plaintiff is unable to give the extent or boundaries, in lieu thereof a description sufficient for identification : *

[(b1) where the suit is for the rent of land situated within an area for which a record-of-rights has been prepared and finally published, the plaint shall further contain a list of the survey plots comprised in the tenancy and a statement of the rental of the tenancy according to the record-of-rights, unless the Court is satisfied, for reasons to be recorded in writing, that the plaintiff was prevented by any sufficient cause from furnishing such list or statement :

Provided that, in all cases in which the Court admits a plaint which does not contain such statement, the Court shall, and in any other case in which it sees fit the Court may, require the Collector to supply, without payment of fee a verified or certified copy of, or extract from, the record-of-rights relating to the tenancy ;

(b2) where an alteration has been made in the area of the tenancy, since the record-of-rights was prepared and finally published, the plaint shall further contain a statement of the rental of the original tenancy according to the record-of-rights, together with a statement showing how the amount of rent claimed in the suit has been computed.]

(c) the summons shall be for the final disposal of the suit, unless the Court is of opinion that the summons should be for the settlement of issues only ;

- (d) the service of the summons may, if the High Court by rule, either generally, or specially for any local area, so directs, be effected, either in addition to, or in substitution for, any other mode of service, by forwarding the summons by post in a letter addressed to the defendant and registered under Part III of the Indian Post Office Act, 1866 ;⁽¹⁾

when a summons is so forwarded in a letter, and it is proved that the letter was duly posted and registered, the Court may presume that the summons has been duly served ;

- (e) a written statement shall not be filed without the leave of the Court ;

- (f) the rules for recording the evidence of witnesses prescribed by section 189 of the Code of Civil Procedure shall apply, whether an appeal is allowed or not ;

- [(ff) when any account-books, rent-rolls, collection-papers, measurement-papers or maps have been produced by the landlord before any Court, and have been admitted in evidence in a suit pending therein, copies of, or extracts from, such documents, certified by a duly authorized officer of such Court to be true copies or extracts, may, with the permission of the Court, be substituted on the record for the originals, which may then be returned to the landlord ; and thereafter copies and extracts, so certified, may be admitted in evidence in any other suit instituted in the same or any other Court, unless the Court before which they are produced sees fit to require the production of the originals ;]

(g) the Court may, when passing the decree, order on the oral application of the decree-holder the execution thereof, unless it is a decree for ejectment for arrears ;

(h) notwithstanding anything contained in section 232 of the Code of Civil Procedure, an application for the execution of a decree for arrears obtained by a landlord shall not be made by an assignee of the decree unless the landlord's interest in the land has become and is vested in him.

Extended to the Chota Nagpur Division except the district of Manbhum (Not., Feb. 9th, 1903) but for section 50 of the Code of Civil Procedure in cl. (b), read sections 46 and 47 of the Chota Nagpur Landlord and Tenant Procedure Act : see Appendix V.

Clause (a) Sections of Civil Procedure Code inapplicable.

—Sections 121 to 127 of the Civil Procedure Code relate to the examination of parties by interrogatories. Section 129 gives a Court power to order discovery of documents. Section 305 empowers a Court to postpone a sale to enable the defendant to raise the amount of the decree by mortgage, lease or private sale of the property. Sections 320 to 326 relate to the transfer to the Collector for execution of decrees relating to immoveable property which the Local Government with the sanction of the Governor-General in Council may effect by notification in the official Gazette. From this clause as well as from sec. 143, it would appear that the provisions of the Civil Procedure Code relating to execution, including those of sec. 244, are applicable to decrees obtained under this Act. The transferee of a portion of a holding is a representative of the judgment-debtor within the meaning of s. 244, C. P. C. (Bachhu Lal Sahu v. Bishu Nath Jha, 11 C. W. N., cxii).

The provisions of sec. 244 apply to proceedings in execution of decrees under Act VIII of 1869, B. C., but not under Act X of 1859 (Brajo Gopal Sarkar v. Basirunnissa Bibi, 15 Calc., 179).

Clause (b).—Extent and boundaries of land to be specified in plaint—The provisions of this clause are imperative; yet, in suits for the recovery of rent, the extent and boundaries of the land held by the tenant would not seem to be material, except when the amount of rent recoverable depends on the area of the land and the rent is to be calculated at so much per bigha. Such particulars would seem as a general rule to be required only in suits for the recovery of possession (Mahomed Ismail v. Dhandur Kishor Narain, 25 W. R., 39). If either the landlord or the tenant desires to have the situation, quantity and boundaries of the subject of the tenancy determined, this can always be effected by an application under sec. 158. It has, however, been held that “in a suit for arrears of rent, where the plaintiff claims a certain rent as payable in respect of certain lands mentioned in the plaint, and the defendant denies the occupation of these lands at the rents alleged by the plaintiff, but admits that he holds other lands at different rents, the proper issue to be tried is whether the defendant holds the lands set forth in the plaint at the rent specified. A simple issue as to whether the defendant holds the jums set forth in the plaint under the plaintiff is not sufficient (Bhaichal Nasyo v. Shamnayisi Mahomed, 1 C. W. N., 152), and in Rash Dhuri Gop v. Khokan Singh, (24 Calc., 435), it has been said that “from sec. 148 (b) of the Bengal Tenancy Act it would seem to be necessary that in a suit for the recovery of rent the land in respect of which that rent is payable should be clearly defined.” In a later case (Pizaruddin Laskar v. Ambica Charan Mitra, 5 C. W. N., 121), however, it was laid down that in a rent suit it is not absolutely necessary to give the extent and boundaries of the lands in respect of which rent is claimed, and that where there is difficulty in giving these particulars, it would be enough if a description sufficient for identification is given. In this suit, the Lower Appellate Court had decreed the suit without deciding the question of the area of the lands, and leaving that question open, and it was held that its decision was correct and did not contravene the provisions of this clause. See also Durga Charan Laha v. Kala Chand Biswas, (7 C. W. N., 615). There is no provision in the

Civ. Pro. Code authorising the dismissal of a suit on the ground that land in dispute as described in the plaint cannot be identified (Jaladhar Mandal v. Kinu Mandal, 1 C. W. N., clxxxix. See also Kazim v. Danesh, 1 C. W. N., 574; Krishnaya Navada v. Panchu, 17 Mad., 187). But in Murari Mohan Deb v. Amrileswari Debi, (1 C. L. J., 27n), it was held that the plaint did not comply with the provisions of this clause, that the description given therein was not sufficient for the identification of the lands, and that the suit must be dismissed.

New clauses (b₁) and (b₂).—The Select Committee in their report on the Bill of 1906 say with reference to these clauses :—

“We are of opinion that it is necessary to require the Court to record reasons when it dispenses with a statement in the plaint. Unless this is done, some landlords will file plaints not containing the required particulars, and to save themselves trouble, Munsiffs will continue to decree according to the claims without reference to the record-of-rights. If the Munsiff is required to record his reasons for dispensing with the statement of the rental according to the record, he will insist on such particulars being furnished wherever possible.

We consider that in addition to a statement of the rental of a tenancy, the plaint should show the survey-plot numbers comprised in the holding. The Court should not be allowed to have any excuse for not referring to the entries in the record-of-rights. Where a plaintiff, for a good and sufficient reason, fails to produce a statement of the rental or a list of survey-plot numbers, the Court should be obliged to call for a copy of the record from the Collector. We think that delay will be prevented and corruption of the amla checked if in all cases the record-of-rights is supplied by the Collector direct to the Court. No fees should be charged in any case for the copies.

We have thought it necessary to make it quite clear that a statement of rental and of survey plots in the plaint will be necessary, in cases where, since the record was finally published, a holding has been divided during partition proceedings, or amalgamated with another holding, or in other ways treated so as to obscure its identity.”

Clause (c).—The summons.—The provisions of this clause show that ordinarily issues need not be framed in rent suits. High Court Circular, No. 372 of the 4th February, 1871, issued under the provisions of Act VIII, (B. C), of 1869, directs that no suit for arrears of rent is to be proceeded with ex parte until the expiry of 14 days from the date of the service of the summons. (High Court's Circular Orders, Civil, Chap. I, p. 53).

Clause (d).—Service of summons by post.—The High Court has not yet framed any rule for the service of the summons by post. The latter part of this clause is in accordance with the rulings in the cases of Lutf Ali Miah v. Piari Mahan Rai (16 W. R., 223), and Jogendra Chandra Ghosh v. Dwarkanath Karmokar, (15 Calc., 681), in which it was laid down that a person refusing a registered letter sent by post cannot afterwards plead ignorance of its contents.

Clause (e).—Court-fees on written statements.—A written statement filed by a defendant in a civil suit at the first hearing does not require a Court-fee stamp (Cherag Ali v. Kudir Mahomed, 12 C. L. R., 367; Nagu v. Yeknath, 5 Bom., 400). A written statement called for by the Court after the first hearing is also exempt from Court-fee duty under sec. 19, cl. iii, Act VII of 1870 (Nagu v. Yeknath, 5 Bom., 400).

Clause (f).—Evidence how to be recorded.—In suits for the recovery of rent whether an appeal is allowed or not (see sec. 153), evidence is to be recorded under sec. 189 of the Civil Procedure Code, which provides that evidence need not be recorded at length; “but the Judge as the examination of each witness proceeds, shall make a memorandum of the substance of what he deposes, and such memorandum shall be written and signed by the Judge with his own hand, and shall form part of the record.”

In a suit for ejectment, the Munsif, instead of recording the evidence in full in the language of the Court, recorded it in English, as if it were a suit for rent: held, that this was a mere irregularity which was cured by sec. 578, C. P. C. (Ratan Lal Giri v. Farashi, 11 C. W. N., 826).

Clause (ff).—In the Notes on Clauses to the Bill of 1906, it was said.—

“Much inconvenience is caused to landlords, owing to their original rent-rolls, collection and measurement papers and account books having to be simultaneously filed in Court in different suits for the recovery of arrears of rent. The new clause (ff) provides that, when the originals have been once produced in Court in any suit, the landlord may be permitted to file certified copies of extracts in subsequent suits.”

The clause was modified by the Select Committee, who observed :—

“We think that the provisions of the clause should be extended to maps, and that original copies and extracts should not acquire the evidential value proposed, unless the originals have been not only produced but also admitted in evidence.”

Clause (g).—Execution of decrees of ejectment for arrears.—A decree for ejectment for arrears of rent is not in any case to be executed for fifteen days [sec. 66 (2)], which period may be extended [sec. 66 (3)]. In such a case execution on the oral application of the decree-holder obviously cannot be granted.

Clause (h).—Assignment of decrees for arrears of rent.—A sale held in execution of a decree for arrears of rent on an application by the assignee of the decree when the landlord's interest in the property itself is not transferred to the assignee, passes no title to the auction-purchaser. A purchaser of the same property at a sale held in execution of a mortgage decree obtained after the first sale acquires a good title as against the first purchaser (Guru Charan Nath v. Kartik Nath, 10 C. W. N., 44). The provisions of this clause do not apply to a case in which a decree is transferred by operation of law e. g., when the decree-holder dies, and the right to execute the decree vests in his heir or representative (Uma Sundari Dasi v. Brajanath Bhattacharji, 16 Calc., 347). The word "assignee" as used in this clause does not include trustees who execute decrees under an assignment, which is not for their benefit but for the benefit of the heir of the assignor (Chhatrapat Singh v. Gopi Chand Bothra, 26 Calc., 750; 4 C. W. N., 446).

The fact that an assignment of a decree for arrears of rent was made before the coming into force of the Tenancy Act will not protect from the provisions of sec. 148 (h) an assignee who proceeds to execution afterwards; but execution cannot be refused where before that Act came into operation the assignment had been recognized by a Court of execution under sec. 232 of the Civil Procedure Code (Kailash Chandra Rai v. Jadunath Rai, 14 Calc., 380). When a decree for rent had been passed before the passing of the Bengal Tenancy Act, and had been assigned to a benamidar after the passing of the Act, and execution had been taken out by him, though the landlord's interest had not become vested in him, and certain taluks had been sold on his application and had been purchased by himself, it was held that the sales were bad and could not be regarded as sales at which the purchaser became entitled to the taluks free of all incumbrances. "Though the decree was passed under the former Rent Act," it was said, "the assignment of the decree and the application for execution by the assignee having been made after the Bengal Tenancy Act came into operation, clause (h) of section 148 of that Act must apply to the execution proceedings; and the sale upon such an application, which is prohibited by that clause, must be held to be no sale under the rent law" (Shashi Bhusan Guha v. Gagan Chandra Saha, 22 Calc., 364). In a case in which an ijaradar on the expiry of his lease sold all his decrees for rent and all arrears of rent due to him to three persons, two of whom were his superior landlords, it was contended that section 148 (h) was no bar to the execution of the decrees, as the landlord's interest had vested in the superior landlords on the determination of the ijara. It was, however, held that sec. 148 (h) was a bar to the execution, as the ijaradar's interest as landlord had not vested in the superior landlords (Dwarkanath Sen v. Piarimohan Sen, 1 C. W. N., 694). An application for execution by the assignee of a decree which was obtained by a landlord against a defaulting tenant for arrears of rent which accrued due between the date of sale of the tenure in execution of a previous decree for rent and the date of the confirmation of such sale, is barred by this clause, as being one for the execution of a decree for arrears of rent (Karuna Mayi Banurji v. Surendra Nath Mukhurji, 26 Calc., 176). It has also been ruled that although, if a landlord's interest has been vested in an assignee of a rent decree, he can execute it, yet the decree so assigned ceases to be a rent decree and becomes only an ordinary civil demand recoverable under the Code of Civil Procedure (Dino Nath De v. Golap Mohini Dasi, 1 C. W. N., 183). See also Bhagwan Sahai v. Sangeshur Chaudhri, (19 W. R., 431), and the note to sec. 72, p. 234, on the subject of "Back rents." As to how decrees passed under the former law are to be executed after the coming into operation of the Tenancy Act, see note to sec. 2 (4), pp. 11-14.

A decree obtained in a suit for rent brought by a landlord who ceases to have interest in the land during the pendency of the suit is not a decree for rent. When such a decree is assigned by the decree-holder and is afterwards re-assigned to him, this clause is no bar to the execution of the decree (Nagendra Nath Basu v. Bhuban Mohan Chakravartti, 6 C. W. N. 91.) When the plaintiff in a suit is shown to have been the landlord at the date of suit and also at the date of decree, both suit and decree would be under the Act, and the fact that the plaintiff sold his interest in the tenure subsequently to obtaining the decree will not prevent him from obtaining the benefit of sec. 65 (Khetra Pal Singh v. Kritarthamayi Dasi, 10 C. W. N., 547). *

In a suit for rent by an assignee of the landlord, when the landlord admits that he has sold the arrears of rent to the plaintiff, and when such landlord is also a party to the suit, it is not open to the Court to find that the sale is benami (Amrita Lal Mukhurji v. Giridhar Ghosh, 5 C. L. J., 398).

[148A. Where a co-sharer landlord who has instituted a suit to recover the rent due to all the co-sharer landlords in respect of an entire tenure or holding, and has made all the remaining co-sharers parties defendant to the suit, is unable to ascertain what rent is due for the whole tenure or holding, or whether the rent due to the other co-sharer landlords has been paid or not, owing to the refusal or neglect of the tenant, or of the co-sharer landlords defendant to the suit, to furnish him with correct information on these points, or on either of them, such plaintiff co-sharer landlord shall be entitled to proceed with the suit for his share only of the rent, and a decree obtained by him in a suit so framed shall, as regards the remedies for enforcing the same, be as effectual as a decree obtained by a sole landlord or an entire body of landlords in a suit brought for the rent due to all the co-sharers.]

This section was added to the Act by s. 44, Act I, B. C., 1907. Its object is explained in the Notes on Clauses of the Bill of 1906 as follows :

“ Under the present law, considerable difficulty in realizing rents is often experienced by co-sharer landlords, who make rent collections jointly. A decree for arrears of rent, obtained by a co-sharer for the amount due to him alone, is a mere money decree (Jogendra Nath Ghosh v. Paban Chandra Ghosh, 8 C. W. N., 472) and the tenure or holding, in respect of which the arrears are due, does not pass to the purchaser in a sale for the execution of such a decree (Narainuddin v. Srimanta Ghosh, 29 Cal., 219), unless he can get himself recognised by the other co-sharers. Decrees for arrears of rent obtained by single co-sharers, are therefore often of little value, and the system is further objectionable, in that it exposes the tenant to the trouble of several successive suits brought by different co-sharer landlords. Considering that the majority of estates in the province are held by co-sharer landlords, it seems necessary to provide a remedy for the present state of things. As it is often impossible to get all the landlords to join in a suit for arrears of rent, a single co-sharer should be empowered to sue for the rent due to all the co-sharers, and that the tenure or holding should pass in execution of a decree obtained in such a suit, provided that the other co-sharers have been made parties.”

In the Notes on Clause 34 of the Bill, now added to the Act as section 158 B, it is said :

“ The object of this clause is to counteract the effect of several rulings of the High Court, two of which are cited above in the note on clause 30, as to the nature of suits brought by co-sharer landlords for arrears of rent and as to the effect of decrees obtained in such suits. Their result is that—

- (1) suits in which co-sharer landlords sue for rent are not rent suits, but money suits ;
- (2) the provisions of section 148 do not apply to them ;
- (3) evidence in such suits cannot be recorded summarily ;
- (4) a second appeal lies in them, while an appeal is barred in the case of a decree obtained by a sole landlord ;
- (5) co-sharer landlords cannot sue for four years' rent as sole landlords can, under article 2 (b), Schedule III of the Act ; and
- (6) decrees obtained in suits by co-sharer landlords can be executed within twelve years, instead of within three, as in case of ordinary rent decrees.

Such results are anomalous and inconvenient, and the clause, the introduction of which has been recommended by the High Court, will have the effect of removing them."

The Select Committee in their report say :

"At the time when the Bill was published in the Gazette a reference had been made to a Full Bench of the High Court in which the correctness of the decision in the case of Jogendra Nath Ghose v. Paban Chandra Ghose (8 C. W. N. 472) was called in question. In December last the Full Bench decided that the question propounded did not properly arise in the case in which it was referred, and declined to give any decision on the point. The Hon'ble Chief Justice observed that as there appeared to be a considerable conflict of judicial opinion on the question, it would be well if the Legislature settled it. Clause 34, now 158 B, therefore, seems to us to be fully justified. We have inserted a new sub-section⁽¹⁾" (i. e. the new section 148 A,) "as it has been represented to us that the section would not benefit a large class of co-sharer landlords who collect their shares of the rent separately and are not in a position to know the amounts of rent due from the tenants to their co-sharers, and whether they have been paid or not. Such co-sharer landlords will have no remedy unless they are allowed to sue for the rent due to them only, or to the entire body of co-sharers, according to the extent of the information available. The new sub-section will allow a co-sharer to sue for his share only where his co-sharers or the tenant have neglected to supply him with information." See also notes to sec. 158 B, 169, 188 A, and sched. III, arts. (2) and (6).

149. (1) When a defendant admits that money is due from him on account of rent, but pleads that it is due not to the plaintiff but to a third person, the Court shall, [except for special reasons to be recorded

Payment into Court of money admitted to be due to third person.

(1) Founded on the case of Prakash Lal v. Ekkauri Balgobind Sahai, (19 Cal., 785) in writing,] refuse to take cognizance of the plea unless the defendant pays into Court the amount so admitted to be due.

(2) Where such a payment is made, the Court shall forthwith cause notice of the payment to be served on the third person.

(3) Unless the third person within three months from the receipt of the notice institutes a suit against the plaintiff and therein obtains an order restraining payment out of the money, it shall be paid out to the plaintiff on his application.

(4) Nothing in this section shall affect the right of any person to recover from the plaintiff money paid to him under sub-section (3).

The words in brackets have been omitted by s. 45, Act I, B. C., 1907. The Select Committee in their report on the Bill of 1906 said :

“ It has been represented that as a matter of fact a tenant pleading that the rent claimed is due to a third person, or that it is in excess of the amount due, has rarely if ever been called upon to deposit the amount claimed or admitted, because the Courts have given too free an interpretation to the exception. The omission of the words “ except for special reasons to be recorded in writing,” by making a deposit necessary in every case in which the defendant admits money to be due, will check the setting up of false pleas.”

Sub-section (1).—Intervenors.—According to the Select Committee on the Bill, the object of the rule laid down in this section was “ to avoid the complication and delay which arise from questions as to the landlord’s title being raised in rent suits,” and “ to force the issue of disputed title to be raised separately and independently of the rent suit.” Under Act X of 1859, sec. 77, third persons claiming the rent under a title hostile to the plaintiff could intervene in suits for the recovery of rent ; but Act VIII, B. C., of 1869 contained no such provision, and neither does this Act. This section would therefore seem to adopt the rule laid down in Lodai Mullah v. Kali Das Rai, (8 Calc., 238 ; 10 C. L. R., 581) that where a person sued for rent sets up the title of a third party, and alleges that he holds under, and pays rent to, him, such third party ought not to be made a party to the suit so as to convert a simple suit for arrears of rent into one for the determination of the title to the property, in respect of which the rent is claimed. "Such a suit raises only two issues,—viz., (1) Does the relation of landlord and tenant exist between the plaintiff and defendant? (2) Are the alleged arrears of rent due and unpaid? And these are questions in which the plaintiff and defendant are alone concerned, and no third party claiming a title adverse to the plaintiff, can properly be made a party to the trial of these issues." In this case it was further said that sec. 28 of Act XIV of 1882, which permits of the adding as defendants in a suit of persons against whom any right to relief is alleged to exist, is not imperative, and that when in a rent-suit the question of the title of a third party is raised, it is better for the proper adjudication of the question of title, that it should be tried by a competent Court in a suit directly framed and brought for that purpose.

It would seem that this section must be read with section 60 of the Act, and that the third person referred to in it must be a registered proprietor, and a defendant cannot plead in defence to a claim by a person whose name is registered under the Land Registration Act that the rent is due to a third person, whose name is not so registered.

Sub-section (2).—Service of notice.—The notice referred to in this sub-section should be served in the mode prescribed by rule 3, Chap. I of the Govt. rules under the Act.

Sub-section (3).—In Jagadamba Debi v. Pratap Ghosh (14 Calc., 537), it was ruled that a suit by a third person under sec. 149 (3) of the Bengal Tenancy Act is not a title suit and need not be stamped as such. In this case Tottenham, J., expressed an opinion that such a suit is in the nature of a suit for an injunction under the Specific Relief Act or else a declaratory suit. In Rabiunnissa v. Guljan (17 Calc., 829), however, it was said that the object of sec. 149 was to prevent tenants being harassed when disputes arise between rival claimants to the land in respect of which the rent is due. In a suit under clause (3) of section 149, therefore, the plaintiff is entitled to have the question of title as well as of possession tried and to obtain the injunction therein mentioned. A suit under this clause in which the plaintiff claims the right to receive rent by reason of his being in possession of the land is maintainable, though the decision of the suit may or may not ultimately rest on the question of possession merely without reference to the question of title. The question of possession should be tried first and the suit dismissed if that question be decided against the plaintiff, as he does not rely on his title: but if decided in the plaintiff's favour, the defendant should be put to proof of his title (Jadab Lal Rai v. Khemankari Debya, 8 C. W. N., 248). A suit contemplated by this section is a suit with reference to the money deposited in Court and for an injunction restraining the paying out of the money. The section does not contemplate a suit for the establishment of the relation of landlord and tenant (Haranath Banurji v. Ananta Dasi, 9 C. W. N., 492). Where in a suit brought under this clause, the plaintiff made out a strong case; held that the onus was then shifted to the defendant and that the plaintiff was entitled to succeed, though she could not prove realization of rent from the tenants, her case being that the defendant had prevented her from realizing them (Trailokya Mohini v. Kali Prasanna Ghosh, 11 C. W. N., 380). In a suit under this section the question of title as well as of possession has to be tried, and unless the plaintiff establishes his title, he is not entitled to the injunction mentioned in sub-sec. (3) (Mahomed Mazhar v. Kadir, 11 C. W. N., cxxviii).

The provisions of this section do not apply to a suit for rent brought by a co-sharer landlord (Ras Bihari Ghosh v. Lalit Kumar Mukhurji, 9 C. W. N., ccxcii).

150. When a defendant admits that money is due from him to the plaintiff on account of rent, but pleads that the amount claimed is in excess of the amount due, the Court shall, [except for special reasons to be recorded in writing] refuse to take cognizance of the plea unless the defendant pays into Court the amount so admitted to be due.

Payment into Court of money admitted to be due to landlord.

The words in brackets have been omitted by s. 45, Act I, B. C., 1907. See note to s. 149, p. 442.

Section 150 is highly penal in its character, and it cannot be put in force against a defendant unless he has intentionally admitted money to be due and has not paid it; and such admission must be in the action (Ali Ahammad v. Bipin Bihari Basu, 20 Calc., 595). It does not seem to be necessary that the money should be paid in along with the written statement. It would seem to be sufficient if the money is paid before the plea is taken cognizance of.

Section 150 is limited in its operation to cases in which the plea of the tenant is one in respect of which the burden of proof is upon him: in other words, where it is a plea of confession and avoidance. The section, therefore, does not apply to a case where the rate of rent is in dispute (Banarasi Prasad v. Makhan Rai, 30 Calc., 947).

151. When a defendant is liable to pay money into Court under either of the two last foregoing sections, if the Court thinks that there are sufficient reasons for so ordering, it may take cognizance of the defendant's plea on his paying into Court such reasonable portion of the money as the Court directs.

152. When a defendant pays money into Court under either of the said sections, the Court shall give the defendant a receipt, and the receipt so given shall operate as an acquittance in the same manner and to the same extent as if it had been given by the plaintiff or the third person, as the case may be.

153. An appeal shall not lie from any decree or order passed, whether in the first instance or on appeal, in any suit instituted by a landlord for the recovery of rent where—

- (a) the decree or order is passed by a District Judge, Additional Judge or Subordinate Judge, and the amount claimed in the suit does not exceed one hundred rupees, or
- (b) the decree or order is passed by any other judicial officer specially empowered by the Local Government to exercise final jurisdiction under this section, and the amount claimed in the suit does not exceed fifty rupees;

unless in either case the decree or order has decided a question relating to title to land or to some interest in land as between parties having conflicting claims thereto, or a question of a right to enhance or vary the rent of a tenant, or a question of the amount of rent annually payable by a tenant ;

Provided that the District Judge may call for the record of any case in which a judicial officer as aforesaid has passed a decree or order to which this section applies, if it appears that the judicial officer has exercised a jurisdiction not vested in him by law, or has failed to exercise a jurisdiction so vested, or has acted in the exercise of his jurisdiction illegally or with material irregularity ; and may pass such order as the District Judge thinks fit.

[Explanation.—A question as to the regularity of the proceedings in publishing or conducting a sale in execution of a decree for arrears of rent is not a question relating to title to land or to some interest in land as between parties having conflicting claims thereto.]

The explanation was added by s. 46, Act I, B. C., 1907.

Appeals.—The provisions of this section apply only to suits for the recovery of rent : so that an appeal will lie under sec. 540, C. P. C., in all other classes of suits under the Tenancy Act, as well as in suits for the recovery of rent in which any of the questions referred to in the section have been decided. But no appeal lies against an order passed by a Civil Court under sec. 84 (Goghan Mollah v. Rameshar Navain Mahta, 18 Calc., 271 ; Piari Mohan Mukhurji v. Baroda Charan Chakravartti, 19 Calc., 485), from an order under sec. 91 directing tenants to attend and point out boundaries of land to be measured (Daya Ghazi v. Ram Lal Sukal, 2 C. W. N., 351), from an order rejecting an application under sec. 93 of this Act for the appointment of a common manager (Hossain Baksh v. Mutukdhari Lal, 14 Calc., 312), from an order under sec. 173 of this Act setting aside a sale (Raghu Singh v. Misri Singh, 21 Calc., 825), or from an order under sec. 174 of this Act or sec. 310 A, C. P. C., setting aside a sale (Kishori Mohan Rai v. Saroda Mani Dasi, 1 C. W. N., 30; Bansidhar Haldar v. Kedar Nath Mandal, 1 C. W. N., 114).

The provisions of this section do not apply to the case of a suit for rent by a co-sharer landlord (Jogendra Nath Ghose v. Paban Chandra Ghose, 8 C. W. N., 472). This sets aside a ruling to the contrary effect in the same case reported at 7 C. W. N., 908.

An application for the transfer of a decree for execution under sec. 223, C. P. C., is an application coming under sec. 244, C. P. C., An appeal therefore lies against an order rejecting such an application (Rhuvani Charan Datta v. Pratap Chandra Ghose, 7 C. W. N., 575).

Second Appeals.—A second appeal to the High Court will, except in the cases referred to in this section, lie on the grounds (a) of the decision being contrary to some specified law or usage having the force of law; (b) of the decision having failed to determine some material issue of law or usage having the force of law; and (c) of a substantial error or defect in the procedure, which may possibly have produced error or defect in the decision of the case on the merits (sec. 584, C. P. C.). No second appeal lies when it has been found that the relation of landlord and tenant does not exist between the parties (Ram Kanai Das v. Fakir Chand Das, 8 C. W. N., 438). The provisions of this section are not applicable, and will, therefore, not bar a second appeal, in a suit for back rents by an assignee from the previous landlord, for such a suit is not a suit by a landlord against a tenant (Kali Nath Mukhurji v. Kifarullah Mollah, 1 C. W. N., cxix; Mahendra Nath Kalamori v. Kailash Chandra Dogra, 4 C. W. N., 605). Neither are they applicable in a suit in which rent is only nominally claimed, but which is really a suit for mesne profits or damages (Chandi Charan Tarafdar v. Jogendra Chandra Chaudhuri, 1 C. W. N., cxx). A second appeal will lie from an order under sec. 173 of this Act setting aside a sale, when the auction-purchaser is a benamidar for the judgment-debtor and where, therefore, the application for setting aside the sale is really one under sec. 244, C. P. C. (Chand Mani Dasi v. Santo Mani Dasi, 24 Calc., 707; 1 C. W. N., 534). An objection as to the due service of a notice to quit cannot be taken for the first time in second appeal (Loknath Gop v. Pitambar Ghosh, 3 C. W. N., 215). When a decree was passed by a Munsiff on an award, and on appeal the appeal was set aside on the ground that the award was bad; held that the award being good and valid no appeal lay, and no second appeal lay to the High Court against the order of the Lower Appellate Court, and the remedy lay under sec. 622 (Ganga Charan Rai v. Sasti Mandal, 6 C. W. N., 614). In a suit for ejectment in which neither party set up a tenancy, the Lower Appellate Court found the defendant to be a yearly tenant and entitled to a notice to quit : held that the suit should have been decreed, and that the Lower Appellate Court could not make for the defendant a case different from and inconsistent with that set up by him (Sujjad Ahmad Chaudhuri v. Gangai Charan Ghosh, 9 C. W. N., 460). The question of the nature of a tenancy, i. e., whether the tenants are merely tenants at will or whether they are yearly tenants is a question of law which can be dealt with by the High Court on second appeal (Sulatu Das v. Jadu Nath Das, 8 C. W. N., 774). Where in an appeal in a rent suit a Subordinate Judge left out of account an important portion of the evidence relied on by the plaintiffs ; held that this was an error of law and a ground of second appeal (Hussan Kuli Khon v. Nakchedi Nonia, 33 Calc., 200).

Clause (a).—When amount claimed does not exceed one hundred rupees.—The word “order” in this section does not mean merely a final order. It includes an order of remand, and, therefore, reading this section with sec. 588, cl. 28, Civil Procedure Code, no appeal lies from an order of remand in a suit for rent for less than Rs. 100, unless such order has determined any of the questions specified in sec. 153 (Gagan Chand v. Caspersz, 4 C. W. N., 44 ; Batasu Sarkar v. Jaiti, 3 C. W. N., 181). Unless it appears either from the finding of the District Judge or elsewhere upon the proceedings that the amount sued for does not exceed one hundred rupees, the High Court has no right to draw any inference to that effect (Tulsi Pandi v. Bachu Lal, 9 Calc., 595 ; 12 C. L. R., 223). An appeal does not lie to the High Court from a decision of a District Judge staying execution in a suit for arrears of rent and for ejectment where the value of the amount decreed is less than Rs. 100. Nor can an application made to eject the tenant on his default to pay into Court the moneys due under the decree within the time fixed by sec. 52 of Bengal Act VIII of 1869, confer such right of appeal (Purbati Churan Sen v. Mandari, 5 Calc., 594). A second appeal will not lie in a suit for arrears of rent and ejectment when the sum claimed is less than Rs. 100, and when a decree is given for the rent only, and the claim for ejectment is disallowed. (Brajnath Srimani v. Troilukhya Nath Mitra, S. A., No. 2194 of 1886 decided by Wilson and O’Kinealy, JJ., June 16th 1887). But from the terms of clause (g), sec. 148, it would seem as if a suit in which a decree for ejectment for arrears of rent is given is merely a suit for the recovery of rent. Read with the provisions of sec. 193 of this Act, this section bars a second appeal, when the rent sued for is rent of a tank, and the amount claimed is less than Rs. 100 (Mallu Pasari v. Wake, 2 C. W. N., 11). The word “suit” in sec. 153 includes proceedings in execution of the decree made in the suit. No second appeal, therefore, lies against an order made in the course of proceedings in execution of a decree passed in a suit for rent in which the amount claimed does not exceed Rs. 100, unless the order appealed against decides any of the special questions mentioned in sec. 153 (Shyama Charan Mitra v. Debendra Nath Mukhurji, 4 C. W. N., 269; 27 Calc., 484). But this has practically been set aside by the Full Bench decision in Kali Mandal v. Ramsarbaswa Chakravarti, (32 Calc., 957):

When a tenant has contracted to pay rent to one of several landlords in respect of his share separately, and such rent has been assessed without reference to the rent payable to the other co-sharers and has been separately collected, the landlord is a separate landlord, and s. 153 applies (Bhabatarini Dasi v. Fhabbar Mulita, 5 C. L. J., 235).

Clause (b).—When the amount claimed does not exceed fifty rupees.—Speaking generally, it may be said that almost all Munsifs of more than five years' standing have now been invested with summary powers under this clause. (See Govt. notification, No 945 J. D. of June 15th, 1894, published in the Calcutta Gazette of June 27th, 1894, Part I, p. 713).

Questions relating to title in land, or to some interest in land as between parties having conflicting claims thereto.—In a suit in which the defendant (raiyat) sets up the title of a third person who is not made a party, the decision cannot be considered a binding decision in respect of title as between parties having conflicting claims to land (Dilbar v. Ishar Chandra Rai, 21 W. R., 36; Kashi Ram Das v. Sham Mohini, 23 W. R., 227; Raj Krishna Mukhurji v. Srinath Datta, 23 W. R., 408; Durga Narain Sen v. Ram Lal Chhutar, 7 Calc., 330; Lodai Mollah v. Kali Das Rai, 8 Calc., 238). No second appeal lies in a case between landlord and tenant, in which the third person set up by the tenant is not made a party, there consequently being no question relating to title as between parties having conflicting claims (Rama Prasad Rai v. Sarup Paramanik, 8 Calc., 712). In a suit in which the plaintiff claims rent as zamindar, and the defendant, admitting his own tenancy, claims it as mortgagee, there cannot be said to be conflicting claims to, or to some interest in, land (Raj Krishna Mukhurji v. Piari Mohan Mukhurji, 24 W. R., 114). But in one case in which the value of the suit was under Rs. 100, it was held that an appeal was not barred, as the lower Court had determined a question of law as to whether the tenure was gusasta (Baijinath Sahu v. Ramdaur Rai, 7 C. L. R., 369). If a third party claims a title to the land and is made a party to the suit and the question of title is gone into, a second appeal will lie (S.A. No. 943 of 1889, decided 19th May, 1890). In a suit decided under this Act, in which the plaintiff claimed to be the proprietor of a share in a zamindari, and in which the other co-sharers were made pro-forma defendants and put in written statements contesting plaintiff's title and share, it was held that a second appeal lay, as a question of title to land as between parties having conflicting claims thereto had been decided (Sukurulla v. Bama Sundari Dasi, 24 Calc., 404). So, in a case in which the plaintiff claimed the land as tenant and alleged that the defendant was his sub-tenant, but the defendant pleaded that he was the tenant of the land under the plaintiff's landlord, and the plaintiff failed to prove his title as tenant, it was held that a second appeal might lie (Sitanath Pal v. Kartik Gharami, 8 C. W. N., 434). But where the defendant sets up the title of the plaintiff's landlord, who is no party to the suit, no second appeal lies (Ram Mohan Mohish v. Badun Barai, 8 C. W. N., 436). Where in a suit for rent the defendant claimed to hold under the plaintiff and his mother, under a right different from that set up by the plaintiff, it was held that it was not a question as between parties having conflicting claims thereto, and an appeal was barred (Dinabandhu Nandi v. Nabin Chandra Kar, 8 C. W. N., 437. See also Ram Kanai Dass v. Fakir Chand Das, 8 C. W. N., 438). An order setting aside or declining to set aside a sale in execution of a decree for rent, the decree-holder being the purchaser, falls within the proviso, as it decides a question relating to some interest in land as between parties having conflicting claims thereto, and is therefore appealable, although there could be no appeal in the suit on account of the prohibition contained in the section (Kali Mandal v. Ramsarbaswa Chakravartti, 32 Calc., 957 ; 9 C. W. N., 721 ; 1 C. L. J., 476. See also Ganga Charan Bhattacharya v. Sashi Bhushan Rai, 1 C. L. J., 255, and Safar Ali v. Raj Mohan Guha, 1 C. L. J., 454). This sets aside Mannohini Dasi v. Lakhi Narain Chandra, (28 Calc., 116), in which the contrary view had been taken. The explanation added to the section by s. 46, Act I, B. C., 1907, now sets aside this ruling in Bengal. Where in a suit instituted by a co-sharer landlord, the question raised and decided was not merely the amount payable to the co-sharer, but whether he had a title to recover a particular share of the rents of a mousah ; held, that the suit came under the proviso to sec. 153 (Paresh Mani Dasya v. Naba Kishor Lahiri, 8 C. W. N., 193).

Questions of right to enhance or vary the rent of the tenant.—The law on this point according to sec. 102, Act VIII, B. C., of 1869 being the same as laid down in this section, a second appeal lay in a suit for rent below Rs. 100, in which the right to enhance had been determined (Watson & Co. v. Ramdhan Ghosh, 17 W. R., 496) ; but not where no such right had been decided (Golak Chandra Datta v. Miah Rajah Mizi, 17 W. R., 119). No appeal will lie merely because the rate of rent has been varied by the decision of the Court, unless the Judge has determined the right to vary the rent (Watson v. Mohendro Nath Pal, 23 W. R., 436). A rent suit in which the only question is whether the rent is to be paid in instalments cannot be said to involve a question of a right to enhance or vary the rent (Piari Mohan Mukhurji v. Madhab Chandra, 23 W. R., 385), and in a suit on the basis of a shironamah, where the raiyat denied that he had executed that document and produced evidence to show that the rates mentioned in it were not correct, no question of right to vary the rent was held to be involved (Nitressar Singh v. Jhoti Teli, 23 W. R., 343).

Questions as to amount of rent annually payable.—Under sec. 102, Act VIII, B. C., of 1869, no appeal lay in cases in which merely a question as to the amount of rent payable was involved (Haro Prasad Chakravartti v. Sridam Chandra Chaudhri, 20 W. R., 15; Harish Chandra Chakravartti v. Hari Bewah, 20 W. R., 16; Narabdessar Prasad Rui v. Jungli, 24 W. R., 49). Now, an appeal will lie when such a question has been decided. But not if the suit has been decided before the passing of the Tenancy Act, though the appeal may have been preferred after that date (Haro Sundari Debi v. Bhajohari Das, 13 Calc., 86, Satghari v. Majidan, 15 Calc., 107). (See note to sec. 2 (4), p. 11). In a suit in which the amount claimed was less than Rs. 100 and in which the question was whether the plaintiff was entitled to collect a 10 as. or a 16 as. share of the rent, it was held that under the proviso to sec. 153 no appeal lay, inasmuch as no question of the amount of rent annually payable by a tenant had been decided. "We understand these words to mean," it was said, "the total amount of rent annually payable in respect of a jama or holding, and not the amount of rent which may be due to any particular co-sharer in the property" (Prasanno Kumar Banurji v. Srinath Das, 15 Calc., 231). But in a subsequent suit in which the plaintiffs claimed the sum of Rs. 15 as rent, and in which the defendant pleaded that there had been a division of the holding and that the plaintiffs were entitled only to Rs. 7-8, p. a., it was held that a question as to the amount of rent annually payable by a tenant was involved, and that an appeal lay (Abhai Charan v. Sashi Bhushan Basu, 16 Calc., 155). These conflicting decisions were referred to a Full Bench which affirmed the decision in the latter case, and ruled that the words "amount of rent payable by a tenant" occurring in the above section include the case of rent payable by a tenant to one of the co-sharer landlords, who collects his rent separately (Narain Mahtan v. Manofi Patak, 17 Calc., 489). Where the question is whether the plaintiff is entitled to an 8as or to a 16 annas share of the rent, no second appeal lies (Fakir Mandal v. Arshad Molla, 10 C. W. N., cclxxx). When a defendant pleaded that he was the tenant of a third person at a rate of rent lower than that claimed by the plaintiff, and the Court merely held that the defendant was plaintiff's tenant; held that no second appeal lay (Baidya Nath v. Dhan Krishna Sarkar, 5 C. W. N., 515).

In a suit in which a plaintiff claimed under a usufructuary mortgage to be entitled to the full rent of the tenure, viz., Rs. 17, p. a., but in which the Subordinate Judge had held that he was not entitled to this amount, but to a less amount, inasmuch as part of the tenure had been sold in execution of a decree for road cess, it was held that a second appeal lay, as a question of the amount of rent annually payable by the tenant had been decided in it (Nobin Chandra Naskar v. Bansi Nath Paramanik, 21 Calc., 722). In a suit for rent, which is really one for damages or compensation, in which the amount claimed is less than Rs. 100, a second appeal lies (Chandi Charan Tarafdar v. Jogendra Chandra Chaudhuri, 1 C. W. N., cxx). A party can prefer a second appeal in a suit for the recovery of rent, the value of which is less than Rs. 100, if a question of the amount of rent annually payable has been decided, even though the question has been decided in his favour (Sripati Bhattacharji v. Kala Chand Ghosh, 1 C. W. N., clxxxvii; Rai Charan Ghosh v. Kumud Mohan Datta, 1 C. W. N. 687; Ala Bux v. Abdur Rahman, 9 C. W. N., cxcix). But when the plaintiff cannot prove the rate of rent claimed by him, and a decree is given at the rate of rent admitted by the defendant, no question as to the amount of rent annually payable is decided and no second appeal lies (Nehejaie v. Nanda Lal Banerji, 1 C. W. N., 711). No second appeal lies, when the only issue decided is to whom the rent is payable (Baidya Nath Bahara v. Dhan Krishna Sarkar, 5 C. W. N., 515).

In a suit in which the plaintiff sued for arrears of rent as well as of cesses and dak tax, the total amount claimed being less than one hundred rupees, and the defendant pleaded that he was not liable for dak cess, and it was held by the Subordinate Judge that the defendant was not liable to pay dak cess, it was ruled that a second appeal lay, as a question of the amount of rent annually payable by the tenant had been decided (Watson v. Srikrishna Bhunik, 21 Calc., 132). In two cases (Mohesh Chandra Chattopadhyaya v. Umataru Debi, 16 Calc., 638, and Rajani Kant Nag v. Jageshwar Singh, 20 Calc., 254) it has been held that no second appeal lies in suits for cesses, in which the amounts claimed are less than one hundred rupees. In the latter case it was observed that "no doubt the Act declares that in sections 53 to 68, both inclusive, and sections 72 to 78, both inclusive, 'rent' includes cesses, but we think these are enabling provisions, passed to extend the meaning of 'rent,' and it in no way interferes with the law refusing a right of appeal in suits below rupees one hundred in value, which law is made applicable to suits for cesses by section 47 of Bengal Act IX of 1880." But if the decision appealed against has decided whether such cesses are payable or not, a second appeal lies (Debendra Prasad Ghosh v. Pawesh Nath Mitra, 4 C. L. J., 119). But see notes on "dak cess" and "cesses" to sec. 3 (5) and sec. 74, pp. 30, 31, 45 and 245. Rent, as defined in the Tenancy Act, does not include interest payable on an overdue instalment; so no second appeal lies in a suit for arrears of below Rs. 100 in value, when the only question decided was as to the amount of interest payable (Kailash Chandra De v. Tarak Nath Mandal, 25 Calc., 571; 1 C. W. N., lxiii; Kripa Sindhu Mukhurji v. Jogendra Chandra Mukhurji, 5 C. L. J., 78 n); and a question as to the instalments in which rent is payable, though it affects the amount of interest payable on the rent, is not a question "of the amount of rent annually payable" (Rai Churan Ghosh v. Kunud Mohan Datta, 25 Calc., 571; 2 C. W. N., 297). See note, p. 32. But a question whether rent is payable in money or kind is such a question (Apurba Krishna Rai v. Ashutosh Dutta, 9 C. W. N., 122).

Powers of District Judge to set aside orders under the proviso to sec. 153.—The words "judicial officer as aforesaid" mentioned in the proviso to sec. 153 have reference to the "Judicial Officer" spoken of in clause (b) of the section and to such officer only. It follows that the District Judge possesses no revisional jurisdiction by virtue of that proviso in respect of the decrees and orders of a District Judge, Additional Judge, or Subordinate Judge referred to in clause (a) of the section (Sankar Mani Debi v. Mathura Dhapini, 15 Calc., 327). An Additional Judge has no revisional powers under the proviso; for the section makes a distinction between a District Judge and an Additional District Judge (Gaudna v. Jabanulla, 5 C. W. N., xlviii).

High Court's powers of revision.—The High Court can, in a case in which no second appeal lies, interfere under sec. 622, C. P. C., and set aside the order of a District Judge in a suit for arrears of rent, when the District Judge has acted illegally in the exercise of his jurisdiction (Jagabandhu Patak v. Jadu Ghosh Alkushi, 15 Calc., 47). It can do so, when the District Judge has interfered with a judgment of a Munsif on a point of law (Harananda Banurji v. Ananta Dasi, 9 C. W. N., 492). When a Lower Appellate Court has not decided any such question as would make his judgment appealable, a second appeal is barred. If it had erroneously refused to exercise jurisdiction, the remedy is by an application under sec. 622 (Sarat Chandra Chongha v. Ramnidhi Mazumdar, 2 C. L. J., 69 n; Gopi Nath Dikpati v. Jadu Nath Mandal, 3 C. L. J., 52 n). In two suits valued at less than Rs. 50, a Subordinate Judge set aside the decrees of the Court of First Instance : held, that the Subordinate Judge had no jurisdiction to hear the appeals, but his decision could only be set aside under sec. 622 (Basiruddi v. Nalini Bhusan Gupta, 6 C. W. N., lxxxviii).

When a Munsif made an order for the payment of rent decreed by instalments ; held that he committed an error of law only and not an error in the exercise of this jurisdiction within sec. 622. (Shib Narain Mukhurji v. Baikantho Nath Isar, 11 C. W. N., 857).

[153A. Every application for an order under section 108 of the Code of Civil Procedure to set aside a decree passed ex-parte, or for a review of judgment, under section 623 of the said Code, in a suit between a landlord and tenant as such, shall contain a statement of the injury sustained by the applicant by reason of the decree or judgment ; and no such application shall be admitted—

- (a) unless the applicant has, at or before the time when the application is admitted, deposited in the Court to which the application is presented the amount, if any, which he admits to be due from him to the decree-holder, or such amount as the Court may, for reasons to be recorded by it in writing, direct ; or
- (b) unless the Court, after considering the statement of injury, is satisfied, for reasons to be recorded by it in writing, that no such deposit is necessary.]

This section has been inserted in the Act by sec. 47, Act I, B. C. 1907, at the instance of the Select Committee on the Bill, who say ;

“The conditions which apply under sections 149 and 150 to a plea by a tenant to the effect that the rent claimed is due to a third person or is in excess of the amount really due, should also attach to an application for the setting aside of an ex-parte decree under section 108 of the Code of Civil Procedure, for such applications are very often made with the sole object of delaying and obstructing the recovery of rent. A deposit of the decretal amount is required in the case of such an application under section 17 of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, 1887. We have inserted the new section 153A with the object of preventing vexatious applications for the purpose of delay, not only under section 108 of the Code of Civil Procedure, but also under section 623 of the same Code. We think that the tenant should be bound to deposit either the amount, if any, which he admits to be due, or such amount as the Court directs. The Court should be empowered to regulate the amount of the deposit after consideration of the statement of injury filed with the application. In all cases the Court should record its reasons for the order it passes, whether it requires or excuses a deposit.”

154. A decree for enhancement of rent under this Act, if passed in a suit instituted in the first eight months of an agricultural year, shall ordinarily take effect on the commencement of the agricultural year next following ; and, if passed in a suit instituted in the last four months of the agricultural year, shall ordinarily take effect on the commencement of the agricultural year next but one following ; but nothing in this section shall prevent the Court from fixing, for special reasons, a later date from which any such decree shall take effect.

Date from which decree for enhancement takes effect.

“Agricultural year” is defined in sec. 3 (11). See note to that clause, p. 36.

Relief against forfeitures.

155. (1) A suit for the ejectment of a tenant, on the ground—

(a) that he has used the land in a manner which renders it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy, or

(b) that he has broken a condition on breach of which he is, under the terms of a contract between him and the landlord, liable to ejection, shall not be entertained unless the landlord has served, in the prescribed manner, a notice on the tenant specifying the particular misuse or breach complained of, and, where the misuse or breach is capable of remedy, requiring the tenant to remedy the same, and, in any case, to pay reasonable compensation for the misuse or breach, and the tenant has failed to comply within a reasonable time with that request.

(2) A decree passed in favour of a landlord in any such suit shall declare the amount of compensation which would reasonably be payable to the plaintiff for the misuse or breach, and whether, in the opinion of the Court, the misuse or breach is capable of remedy, and shall fix a period during which it shall be open to the defendant to pay that amount to the plaintiff, and, where the misuse or breach is declared to be capable of remedy, to remedy the same.

(3) The Court may, from time to time, for special reasons, extend a period fixed by it under sub-section (2).

(4) If the defendant, within the period or extended period (as the case may be) fixed by the Court under this section, pays the compensation mentioned in the decree, and, where the misuse or breach is declared by the Court to be capable of remedy, remedies the misuse or breach to the satisfaction of the Court, the decree shall not be executed.

This section is based on section 14 of the Conveyancing and Law of Property Act, 1881 (Selections from papers relating to the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, p. 204). Permanent tenure-holders and raiyats holding at fixed rates can be ejected on the second of the grounds mentioned in this section, but not on the first [secs. 10 and 18 (b)]. Occupancy and non-occupancy raiyats can be ejected on both the grounds [secs. 25 and 44 (b)].

Holders of service tenures are exempt from the operation of the section (Bonerji v. Akbal Jamadar, 1 C. L. J., 16 n).

A tenant holding under a lease of a permanent character has no power to make excavations of such a character as to cause substantial damage to the property demised, although by the terms of the lease he has power to make excavations (Girish Chandra Chanda v. Sirish Chandra Das, 9 C. W. N., 255).

Waiver of forfeiture by receipt of rent.—A landlord who has accepted rent from his tenant subsequently to the date of forfeiture must be held to have waived his right to ejectment (Kali Krishna Tagore v. Fiazal Ali Chaudhuri, 9 Calc., 843). If he sues his tenant for rent due subsequently to the date of the forfeiture, he will similarly lose his right to eject (Jageshri Chaudhrai v. Mahomed Ibrahim, 14 Calc., 33). But he can sue for ejectment on further breaches of the conditions of the lease (Duli Chand v. Meher Chand Sahu, 8 W. R., 138). Receipt of rent is not in itself a waiver of every previous forfeiture; it is only evidence of a waiver (Chandra Nath Misra v. Sardar Khan, 18 W. R., 218).

Notice to pay compensation.—The words “in any case” in this section mean “in every case,” and the omission of a demand for compensation in a notice under the section renders the notice bad, and prevents a suit for ejectment under this section from being entertained. When the suit was for ejectment from certain land, but the plaint contained other prayers, namely, for a declaration that the defendant had no right to build houses on the land, and for an injunction on him to remove houses he had built thereon, and the suit for ejectment failed from insufficiency of the notice under sec. 155, it was held that the plaintiff was not entitled to the declaration or injunction as asked for (Prasad Singh v. Ram Pratap Rai, 22 Calc., 77).

A notice under this section calling on a tenant to fill up an excavation made in certain land or in the alternative to pay compensation is not bad in law (Baidya Nath Pande v. Ghisu Mandal, 30 Calc., 1063).

In a suit instituted under this section for ejectment, the claim must include all the lands comprised in the tenancy. If the claim is limited to a portion of the land e. g., the portion covered by a building, the suit is badly framed and must fail (Kamaleswari Prasad Singh v. Harballabh Narain Singh, 2 C. L. J., 369).

Service of notice.—For the rules framed by the Local Government for the service of the notice referred to in sub-section 1 of this section, see rule 11, Chap. V, of the Government rules under the Act (Appendix I).

Co-sharer landlords may sue under clause (b).—In a suit for ejectment by one of two joint owners of certain jote land, which the tenant held under a pattah, which provided that he could not without the consent of the plaintiff cut the trees in the garden, excavate tanks and turn dhosa land into jul, and in which it was found that he had done all these things, it was held that the plaintiff was not barred from suing by the provisions of sec. 188 of this Act. "The right under which the plaintiff sues," it was said, "is not a thing which she, as landlord, is under the Bengal Tenancy Act required or authorised to do. The suit is brought under the contract on breach of the conditions of a lease by the tenant" (Haripria Debi v. Ram Chandra Mahanti, 19 Calc., 541).

Limitation.—The period of limitation for a suit for ejectment of a tenant on the ground mentioned in clause (a) of this section is two years under art 32, Sched. II of Act XV of 1877 (Soman Gope v. Raghubar Ojha, 24 Calc., 160; 1 C. W. N., 223). So, also, in a suit where the primary relief sought was a mandatory injunction directing the tenant to fill up a tank excavated by him in contravention of the terms of the tenancy and for damages and when only the secondary relief sought was ejectment (Sarup Das v. Jageswar Rai, 26 Calc., 564; 3 C. W. N., 464). The period of limitation runs from the time when the landlord became aware of the misuse or breach complained of (Govinda Chandra Basu v. Kamizuddin, 9 C. W. N., ccxvi). The period of limitation for the ejectment of a tenure-holder or raiyat on the ground mentioned in clause (b) of this section, that is, on account of any breach of a condition in respect of which there is contract expressly providing that ejectment shall be the penalty of such breach, is one year (Art 1, Sched. III of this Act).

Rights of ejected raiyats in respect of crops and land prepared for sowing.

156. The following rules shall apply in the case of every raiyat ejected from a holding :—

- (a) when the raiyat has, before the date of his ejectment, sown or planted crops in any land comprised in the holding, he shall be

- entitled, at the option of the landlord, either to retain possession of that land and to use it for the purpose of tending and gathering in the crops, or to receive from the landlord the value of the crops as estimated by the Court executing the decree for ejectionment ;
- (b) when the raiyat has, before the date of his ejectionment, prepared for sowing any land comprised in his holding, but has not sown or planted crops in that land, he shall be entitled to receive from the landlord the value of the labour and capital expended by him in so preparing the land, as estimated by the Court executing the decree for ejectionment, together with reasonable interest on that value ;
- (c) but a raiyat shall not be entitled to retain possession of any land or receive any sum in respect thereof under this section where, after the commencement of proceedings by the landlord for his ejectionment, he has cultivated or prepared the land contrary to local usage ;
- (d) if the landlord elects under this section to allow a raiyat to retain possession of the land, the raiyat shall pay to the landlord, for the use and occupation of the land during the period for which he is allowed to retain possession of the same, such rent as the Court executing the decree for ejectionment may deem reasonable.

This section introduces a rule in some respects resembling the English law of emblements. Under the old law, the effect of an order for ejectment was to dispossess the raiyat not only of the land but also of the crop standing thereon (Durjan Mahton v. Wazid Hussain, 5 Calc., 135). The Rent Commissioners pointed out that "owing to there being no provision in the existing law regarding the away-growing crop, as a natural consequence, when a tenant is ejected while the crop is on the ground, the right to this crop is a constant source of dispute and litigation." A raiyat has, as a general rule, no right to the growing crop on the sale of his holding. It passes to the purchaser at the sale, except when it has been specially excepted by the notification of sale, or custom to the contrary has been proved (Afatullah v. Dwarkanath Motri, 4 Calc., 814). But, as said by Sir Steuart Bayley, "when a raiyati holding is sold up, the raiyat gets the money, which includes the value of the crop on the ground." This section does not apply unless there is a decree for ejectment (Ram Ranjan Chakravartti v. Janoki Nath Pal, 4 C. W. N., lxiv).

157. When a plaintiff institutes a suit for the ejectment of a trespasser, he may, if he thinks fit, claim as alternative relief that the defendant be declared liable to pay for the land in his possession a fair and equitable rent to be determined by the Court, and the Court may grant such relief accordingly.

Power for Court to fix fair rent as alternative to ejectment.

Trespassers.—In strict law, trespassers should not be sued for rent but for damages for the use and occupation of the land (Rhuban Mohan Basu v. Chandra Nath Banurji, 17 W. R., 69; Kailash Chandra Sarkar v. Umanand Rai, 24 W. R., 412; Krishna Gopal Mawar v. Barnes, 2 Calc., 374; Kali Krishna Tagore v. Izzatunissa, 24 Calc., 557; 1 C. W. N., lxxviii). But under the old law it has been held in several cases that persons who make themselves tenants by use and occupation of land may be treated as such and sued for rent (Nityanand Ghosh v. Krishna Kishor, W. R., Sp. No., 1864, Act X, 82; Lakhi Kant Das v. Samiruddin Laskar, 13 B. L. R., 243; 21 W. R., 208; Lalan Muni v. Sona Mani Debi, 22 W. R., 334; Sarnomayi v. Dimonath Gir, 9 Calc., 908). Landlords may now treat trespassers as tenants at their pleasure (Azim v. Ram Lal Saha, 25 Calc., 324). Receipt of rent from a trespasser or suing him for rent will convert him into a tenant (Mohomed Azmal v. Chandi Lal Pandi, 7 W. R., 250; Gadadhar Banurji v. Khettra Mohan Sarma, 7 W. R., 460). But mere willingness to pay rent does not make a trespasser a tenant (Lyons v. Betts, 13 W. R., 94). Raiyats are not trespassers, though the title of the persons who let them into occupation of the land may have been defective (Ramgat Pundi v. Radha Prasad Singh, 22 W. R., 195 ; Mohima Chandra Saha v. Hazari Paramanik, 17 Calc., 45 ; Binad Lal Prakash v. Kalu Paramanik, 20 Calc., 708 ; Azim v. Ram Lal Shaha, 25 Calc., 324), provided the tenants entered on the land in good faith (Peari Mohun Mandal v. Radhika Mohan Hazra, 8 C. W. N., 315 ; 5 C. L. J., 9 ; Upendra Narain Bhattacharya v. Pratub Chandra Pradhan, 8 C. W. N., 320). See also notes, pp. 24, 52, 149.

A trespasser will acquire title to land by adverse possession, if the rightful owner holds it under him as a tenant for the statutory period (Secretary of State v. Krishna Mani Gupta, 6 C. W. N., 617).

Ejectment of trespassers by co-sharers.—When a tenant has been put into possession of ijmali property with the consent of all the co-sharers, no one or more of the co-sharers can turn the tenant out without the consent of the others ; but no person has a right to intrude upon ijmali property against the will of the co-sharers or any of them : if he does so, he may be ejected without notice, either altogether, if all the co-sharers join in the suit, or partially, if some only wish to eject him ; and the legal means by which such a partial ejectment is effected is by giving the plaintiffs possession of their shares jointly with the intruder (Radha Prasad Wasti v. Isaf, 7 Calc., 414 ; Haladhar Sen v. Gurudas Rai, 20 W. R., 126 ; Hamidunnissa v. Ismail, 1 C. W. N., cxciii). A decree for partial ejectment and joint possession can be made in favour of a co-owner of property (Kamal Kumari Chaudhurani v. Kiran Chandra Rai, 2 C. W. N., 229). This is the rule as regards trespassers or persons who are trespassers in relation to the co-sharer landlords who seek to eject them, and in such a case it is not necessary to bring a suit for partition against the other co-sharers (Dilbar Sardar v. Hossein Ali, 26 Calc., 553). A different rule has apparently been laid down by the Privy Council in the case of tenants in common who take exclusive possession of any portion of the common property and who in law are not trespassers. See Watson & Co. v. Ram Chand Datta, (18 Calc., 10 ;) and Lachmessar Singh v. Manowar Hossein, (19 Calc., 253 ;) Madan Mohan Shaha v. Rajab Ali, (28 Calc., 223.)

Rulings under this section.—The provisions of this section apply only to agricultural land, and in a suit for rent, when no alternative claim is made for use and occupation, no damages for use and occupation can be decreed (Rachhea Singh v. Upendra Chandra Singh, 27 Calc., 239). See also Surendro Narain Singh v. Bhai Lal Thakur, 22 Calc., 756.) The provisions of this section may be applicable, and a right to claim rent may, on a plaintiff's title being established, arise notwithstanding that his previous suit for rent was dismissed (Dwarkanath Rai v. Rām Chand Aich, 3 C. W. N., 266 ; 26 Calc., 428).

A trespasser cannot be allowed to get possession of land to which he has no title upon which he may have made improvements and hold it against the will of the landlord merely because he has been many years on the land. The owner of the land may eject, but may be bound to give him compensation if he looked on without giving the defendant due warning of his doing wrong (Bahir Das Chakravarti v. Nabin Chandra Pal, 6 C. W. N., xxxii).

158. (1) [Subject to the provisions of section 111], the Court having jurisdiction to determine a suit for the possession of land may, on the application of either the landlord or the tenant of the land, determine all or any of the following matters, (namely) :—

Application to determine incidents of tenancy.

- (a) the situation, quantity and boundaries of the land ;
- (b) the name and description of the tenant thereof (if any) ;
- (c) the class to which he belongs, that is to say, whether he is a tenure-holder, raiyat holding at fixed rates, occupancy-raiyat, non-occupancy-raiyat, or under-raiyat, and, if he is a tenure-holder, whether he is a permanent tenure-holder or not, and whether his rent is liable to enhancement during the continuance of his tenure ; and
- (d) the rent payable by him at the time of the application.

(2) If, in the opinion of the Court any of these matters cannot be satisfactorily determined without a local inquiry, the Court may direct that a local enquiry be held under Chapter XXV of the Code of Civil Procedure by such Revenue-officer as the Local Government may authorize in that behalf by rule made under section 392 of the said Code.

(3) The order on any application under this section shall have the effect of, and be subject to the like appeal as a decree.

The words within brackets at the commencement of the section have been inserted by s. 48, Act I, B. C., 1907. See note to s. 111, p. 356.

Object of section.—This section is founded on section 10 of the North Western Provinces Rent Act (XII of 1881) and is intended to take the place of the suits for pattahs and kabulyats of the former law. The Rent Commission pointed out that “little use was made of these provisions by those for whose benefit they were intended.” The provisions of the present section were accordingly introduced with the view of supplying the want indicated by experience of some “means of obtaining an authoritative settlement of essential questions connected with the tenancy and in dispute between the parties thereto.”

What questions may be determined in applications under this section.—“Sec. 158 clause (d) lays down that a Court dealing with an application under sec. 158 is to determine the rent payable by the tenant at the time of the application. It, therefore, could not have been intended that in a case under this section the Court should pass a decree for enhancement which can ordinarily take effect from the beginning of the agricultural year next following, or from that of the year next but one following, the year in which the decree was passed . . . If a landlord seeks to enhance his tenant's rent, when no settlement proceedings are going on, he must institute a suit for the purpose, and cannot do so by means of an application under sec. 158” (Rajeswar Prasad Singh v. Barta Koer, 21 Calc., 807). In Bhupendro Narain Datta v. Nemai Chand Mandul, (15 Calc., 627) it was held that in a proceeding under sec. 158 it is open to a petitioner, if he acknowledges the opposite party to be a tenant, to dispute the validity of a lease under which the alleged tenant is holding, and it is open to the Court to determine that question. But this decision was dissented from in the Full Bench case of Debendro Kumar Bandopadhyaya v. Bhupendro Narain Datta, (19 Calc., 182), in which it was held that an application under sec. 158, which under colour of asking for the determination of the incidents of a tenancy really seeks to set aside the lease under which the tenant came into possession, does not come within the scope of the provisions of this section. It was said by the majority of the Judges who decided this case that "the object of this section is to enable the Court to ascertain what are the existing arrangements between a landlord and his tenant, and not to enable the Court in effect to make a new contract for parties between whom no contract was in existence at and before the date of the application." The object of section 158 is merely to provide a summary procedure for settling disputes between landlord and tenant in regard to the particulars referred to in clauses (a), (c) and (d). Though clause (b) does authorize the Court to determine the name and description of the tenant, this was not intended to, and does not, authorize the Court to decide conclusively disputes as to who is the tenant or in occupation of the land. Such an issue can only be decided collaterally, and does not arise between the parties in such a manner as to make the decision upon it res judicata between the parties in a subsequent regular suit (Piari Mohan Mukkurji v. Ali Sheikh, 20 Calc., 249). In a proceeding under sec. 158, in which an enquiry had to be made as to the boundaries of the tenants' holdings, the Amin took evidence as to the standard measure of the district, and it was held that this evidence had been rightly admitted and acted upon (Deoki Singh v. Sec Gobind Sahu, 17 Calc., 277). The question whether a holding is transferable cannot be gone into under sec. 158 (Purna Rai v. Bangshidhar Singh, 3 C. W. N., 15). In a proceeding under s. 158, the Court has no jurisdiction to assess additional rent for excess lands found to be in the occupation of the tenant, its function being limited to recording the existing rent payable by the tenant at the time of the application (Srinarain Thakur v. Luchmeswar Singh, 6 C. W. N., 592).

Co-sharer landlords.—An application under this section cannot be made by one of several joint landlords. Such an application is a thing which the landlord is authorized to do under the Bengal Tenancy Act and under that Act alone. It follows that when there are two or more joint landlords, the application must be made by all of them acting together. It is not a sufficient compliance with the provisions of sec. 188 to make the landlords who refuse to join parties to the proceedings (Mahib Ali v. Amir Rai, 17 Calc., 538).

Applications against more than one tenant.—This section does not authorize one application being made against a number of tenure-holders, having separate and distinct tenures. The procedure is by separate applications against each (Golap Chandra Naulakha v. Ashutosh Chaturji, 21 Calc., 602). But one application may be made in respect of several holdings, when they are held by one tenant and under

s. 647, Civ. Pro. Code, the provisions of the Civil Procedure Code are applicable to proceedings under this section (Dijendro Nath Rai v. Sailendro Nath Rai, 24 Calc., 197 ; 1 C. W. N., 236).

Commissions.--See the Government Notification regarding the rank of the Commissioners, printed at p. 130, and the Board of Revenue's Circular 'as to the cost to be incurred in making local enquiries, printed at p. 132. They are both applicable to enquiries under s. 158 (2) as well as under 31 (b).

[CHAPTER XIII.]

SUMMARY PROCEDURE FOR THE RECOVERY OF RENTS
UNDER THE PUBLIC DEMANDS RECOVERY ACT, 1895.

158A. (1) Any landlord whose land is situate in an area for which a record-of-rights has been prepared and finally published, and in which such record is maintained, may apply to the Local Government, through the Collector of the district in which his land is situate, for the application of the procedure prescribed by the Public Demands Recovery Act, 1895, to the recovery of the arrears of rent which he alleges are, or may accrue, due to him for lands in such area.

Recovery of arrears by the certificate procedure in certain areas.

Ben. Act I of 1895.

(2) The Local Government may reject any such application, or may allow it subject to such terms and conditions as it may see fit to impose, and may at any time add to or vary any terms or conditions so imposed, or withdraw its allowance of the application, without, in any of these cases, assigning any reason for its action.

(3) When any such application has been allowed, the landlord may make a requisition in writing, in the Form prescribed, to such Revenue-officer as the Local Government may appoint, for the purpose of this section, to perform the functions of a Certificate Officer under the Public Demands Recovery Act, 1895, for the recovery of any arrears of rent which he alleges are due to him from any tenant.

Ben. Act I of 1895.

(4) Every such requisition shall be signed and verified by the landlord making it, in accordance with the provisions of sections 51 and 52 of the Code of Civil Procedure as to the verification of plaints ; and there shall be payable in respect of every such requisition a Court-fee of the same amount as is payable under the Court-fees Act for the time being in force in respect of a plaint for the recovery of a sum of money equal to that stated in such requisition.

(5) On receipt of such requisition the Revenue-officer may, in accordance with such rules as the Local Government may prescribe in this behalf, issue certificates in the Form prescribed therefor for the recovery of the arrears alleged to be due, and any such certificate shall, as regards the remedies for enforcing the same and so far only, have the force and effect of a decree of a Civil Court passed in a suit for the recovery of rent, and the provisions of Chapter XIV shall, so far as may be practicable, be applicable to all proceedings for the execution of such certificate.

Provided that—

(a) no certificate shall be issued for the recovery of arrears of rent of a tenancy regarding which a suit has been instituted in a Civil Court for the alteration of the rent payable by the tenant or the determination of his status as a tenant, in respect of the period during which it is alleged in the requisition made under sub-section (3) the arrears of rent sought to be recovered have accrued ; and,

(b) if after the issue of a certificate it is found that such a suit has been instituted in a Civil Court before the issue of the certificate, such certificate shall be cancelled.

(6) The following provisions of the Public Demands Recovery Act, 1895, shall, so far as they Ben. Act I of 1895. are applicable, apply to the proceedings for the execution of all certificates for the recovery of arrears of rent issued under sub-section (5), namely :— the proviso to sub-section (1) of section 7, and sections 10 to 17 (both inclusive), and 22 to 33 (both inclusive).

(7) No landlord shall, during the pendency of any proceedings under this section, institute a suit in a Civil Court for the recovery of any arrears of rent in respect of which he has made a requisition under sub-section (3); and, subject to the provisions of section 15 of the Ben. Act I of 1895. Public Demands Recovery Act, 1895, no tenant shall, after the issue of any certificate against him under sub-section (3), institute a suit in, or apply to, a Civil Court for the alteration of the rent payable by him, or the determination of his status as a tenant, in respect of the period during which the arrears of rent for which such certificate was issued have accrued.

(8) The word “landlord” in this section includes an entire body of landlords, and also one or more co-sharer landlords who collects or collect his or their share or shares of the rent separately, and, where the Revenue-officer issues a certificate on the requisition of one or more such co-sharer landlords, he shall at the same time issue to each of the remaining co-sharer landlords a copy of such certificate.]

This Chapter has been added to the Act by sec. 49, Act I, B. C., 1907.

Section 158A contains the most novel of the provisions introduced into the Tenancy Act by the amending Act of 1907. Its genesis is explained in the Notes on Clauses of the Bill of 1906 as follows :

“ The provision of a summary procedure for the recovery of rents has for many years been urged upon the Government by landholders. The delay and expense caused by the present system are admitted, but hitherto no scheme, which has been put forward, has commended itself. The fact that records-of-rights have now been prepared for large areas in the province justifies a reconsideration of the matter. Where a record-of-rights has been prepared and is periodically revised or maintained, the annual demand due from each individual raiyat is accurately known. The only question at issue in a rent suit will be the amount due from the raiyat for the period for which rent is claimed in the suit. If the landlord's accounts and collection papers are properly maintained, and if proper rent-receipts in foil and counterfoil are habitually kept and given as required by law, this will, in the great majority of cases, be an easy matter to determine. It is therefore proposed that in areas in which a record-of-rights has been prepared and published and is periodically revised, the Local Government should take power to allow the recovery of arrears of rent by the application of the procedure prescribed by the Public Demands Recovery Act, 1895, in the case of those landlords to whom, in the opinion of Government, this privilege may safely be conceded. It is further proposed that the issue of certificates should be entrusted to a Revenue Officer, who shall have power to inspect the landlord's rent-rolls, accounts and collection papers, and to compare the receipts given to the raiyats with the counterparts kept by the zamindar, and to test their agreement with entries in the accounts. The conditions under which the summary procedure may be applied will thus resemble those under which it is extended to Government estates and estates under the Court of Wards, for the demand of each individual raiyat will be accurately known and the landlord's accounts and collection papers will be subject to inspection by a Government officer. If it is possible, with safety, to reduce the expense of rent-suits, the results will be beneficial to landlords and tenants alike, and it is expedient, therefore, that a trial should be given to the scheme provided for in the clause, subject to the safeguards therein laid down.”

The Select Committee in their Report say :—

“ The opinions received from the various Associations consulted evince some degree of opposition to this clause. The landlords, while ready to welcome any change in the procedure which will expedite the recovery of rent, do not approve of the safeguards and restrictions with which it is now proposed to surround the extension of the Certificate Procedure for this purpose. Some of them appear to fear that the provisions of the new section 158A will give too much power to the local officers. We understand, however, that the clause is intended to be purely an experimental measure, its main object being to introduce into the rent law of Bengal a principle which has not existed there before. It is necessary to be cautious in its application, and to make sure that it does not prove an instrument of oppression of the tenants. We hope that the provision may prove a great inducement to landlords to manage their estates properly, and to maintain their rent accounts in a correct and intelligible manner. It is probable that, after some experience has been gained of the working of the proposed provisions, it will be possible to introduce a measure more general in scope and more detailed in character. On this assumption, we have contented ourselves with modifying the clause as drafted, so as to provide a tentative but workable system.

Sub-section (1).—The word “maintain” should be substituted for the words “periodically revised.” At present no scheme for periodical revision has been worked out, and it is not advisable to make any entry in the sub-section which might bind the Government to a particular scheme. We have added the words “or may accrue,” since the application will be for the recovery of future as well as of past arrears.

Sub-section (2).—The provision that no reasons need be given by the Local Government for any conditions it imposes, or for its refusal or withdrawal of the right, has been objected to. At the present stage, it would, in our opinion, be inadvisable to leave any chance of the exercise of its discretion by the Local Government being questioned. We understand that the sole ground for consideration by the Local Government will be the landlord's conduct as a landlord.

New sub-sections (3) and (4).—The clause as it stands in the Bill as introduced makes no provision for the making of a requisition for issue of a certificate by the landlord, nor does it prescribe the court-fee payable. We have supplied the defect, following section 9 (2) of the Public Demands Recovery Act, 1895.

It may be assumed that care will be taken in selecting the officers who are to exercise the powers under the section, but we consider it best to assure this by specifically declaring that the Certificate Officer is to be especially appointed by the Government. Ordinarily, we think such powers should be conferred on the officer who is entrusted with the maintenance of the record.

New sub-section (5).—In order to make the privilege of being able to recover rent by the certificate procedure of real value, the certificate should have the effect of a decree in a rent-suit. We have amended the sub-section accordingly.

New sub-section (6).—It is not necessary to make the provisions of sections 19, 20 and 21 of the Public Demands Recovery Act applicable, but sections 24, 27 and 28 contain provisions which seem to be required.

New sub-sections (7) and (8)⁽¹⁾.—We have made amendments, in order to prevent any conflict of jurisdiction between the Civil Courts and the Revenue-Officer in areas where the provisions of this section are in force.

New sub-section (9)⁽²⁾.—We propose to limit the application of the clause to a sole landlord, or to such co-sharer landlords as collect their shares of the rent separately. It would obviously be impossible in the case of joint landlords to let one of several collect by certificate, while the rest have recourse to the Civil Court. As the certificate will have the force of a decree in a suit for arrears of rent, it is necessary that where one of several co-sharer landlords who collect their shares separately applies for the issue of a certificate against a tenant of all the co-sharers, the remaining co-sharers should have notice of the fact.

(1) Sub-section (8) as framed by the Select Committee has been converted into the provisions (a) and (b) to sub-section (5)

(2) The sub-section referred to in the Select Committee's report as new sub-section (9) is now sub-section (8) of the section.

CHAPTER XIV.

SALE FOR ARREARS UNDER DECREE.

Extended to the districts of Cuttack, Puri and Balasore (Not., Jany. 3rd 1907.)

[158B.] (1) Where a tenure or holding is sold in execution of a decree for arrears of rent due in respect thereof, or of a decree for damages under section 186A, the tenure or holding shall, subject to the provisions of section 22, pass to the purchaser, provided that the decree in execution of which it has been sold has been obtained by—

Passing of tenure or holding sold in execution of decree.

- (a) a sole landlord ; or
- (b) the entire body of landlords ; or
- (c) one or more co-sharer landlords, who has, or have, sued for the rent due to all the co-sharers in respect of the entire tenure or holding and made all the remaining co-sharers parties defendant to the suit.

(2) When one or more co-sharer landlords, having obtained a decree in a suit framed under sub-section (1) or under section 148A applies, or apply, for the execution of the decree by the sale of the tenure or holding, the Court shall, before proceeding to sell the tenure or holding, give notice of the application for execution to the other co-sharers.]

This clause has been added to the Act by s. 50, Act I, B. C., 1907. The object is to counteract the effect of the ruling in the case of Jogendra Nath Ghosh v. Paban Chandra Ghosh, (8 C. W. N., 472), and to provide that in execution of a decree obtained by a co-sharer landlord in a suit passed under s. 148A, the tenure or holding shall pass. It enacts that notice of the application for execution shall be given to the remaining co-sharers so that they may apply for a rateable distribution of the surplus sale proceeds—See new provisions added to s. 169 and notes to ss. 148A, 188A, and Sched. III, arts. (2) and (6).

159. Where a tenure or holding is sold in execution of a decree for arrears due in respect thereof, the purchaser shall take subject to the interests defined in this Chapter as “protected interests,” but with power to annul the interests defined in this Chapter as “incumbrances :”

(General powers of purchaser as to avoidance of incumbrances.

Provided as follows :—

- (a) a registered and notified incumbrance within the meaning of this Chapter shall not be so annulled except in the case hereinafter mentioned in that behalf ;
- (b) the power to annul shall be exerciseable only in manner by this Chapter directed.

When the interest of a lessee in an undivided share in several parcels of land is sold in execution of a decree for rent, the purchaser is not the purchaser of a holding within the meaning of this section and is not entitled to annul incumbrances under sec. 169 (Asadullah v. Sagan Mullah, 6 C. W. N., lxxxiv).

Patni taluks.—Under sec. 195 (e) nothing in this Act affects any enactment relating to patni tenures, in so far as it relates to those tenures, Patni taluks are, therefore, still saleable under Reg VIII of 1819 (Gyanoda Kanth Rai v. Bramomayi Dasi, 17 Calc., 162), and Act VIII, B. C., 1865. But the provisions of this Act, so far as they do not interfere with the patni law in respect of patni tenures, apply to them, (Durga Prasad Bandopadhyaya v. Brindaban Rai, 19 Calc., 504), so that the landlords of patni taluks may also sell them under the provisions of this Chapter in execution of decrees for arrears of rent, if they please. The patnidar is personally liable for the rent, and a transferee of a fractional share of a patni is liable for the rent severally and jointly with the registered tenant if the landlord chooses to recognize him as one of the joint-holders of the patni, and he is also liable for the entire rent of the patni (Sourendro Mohun Tagore v. Sornomoyi, 26 Calc., 103).

What passed at a sale for arrears under the former law.—

On execution of a decree obtained against the tenant whose name was registered in the landlord's serishtah, the whole tenure might be sold, though others recognized by the zamindar as his tenants might be interested in the lease. (Hari Charan Basu v. Meherunnissa, 7 W. R., 318; Forbes v. Pratap Singh, 7 W. R., 409; Alimudin v. Sabir Khan, 8 W. R., 60; Bhobo Tarini Dasi v. Prasannamayi Dasi, 10 W. R., 304; Fatima Khatun v. Collector of Tipperah, 13 W. R., 433; Sadhan Chandra Basu v. Guru Charan Basu, 15 W. R., 99; Ghulam Chandra De v. Nadiyar Chand Adhikari, 16 W. R., 1; Bissessar Lal Sahu v. Lachmessar Sing, 5 C. L. R., 477; L. R., 6 I. A., 233). Where an under-tenure was sold in execution of a decree, which had been passed in the terms of a compromise effected between the landlord and all the sharers in the tenure but one, and the representative of the latter sought to assert his right to his share against the auction-purchaser, it was held that in a sale under Act VIII of 1869, a tenure is sold outright, and that this tenure did not pass to the auction-purchaser with any incumbrances (Girish Chandra Ghosh v. Kali Tara, 25 W. R., 395). Even though the sale proceedings specified that the rights and interests of certain parties were sold, yet the tenure itself was sold and all the co-sharers were jointly liable (Alimuddin v. Sabir Khan, 8 W. R., 60). But in Dwarkanuth v. Alok Chandra Sil, (9 Calc., 641), it was held, on a construction of a sale-certificate and a proclamation of sale purporting to be under secs. 59 and 60 of the Rent Act, VIII of 1869, that what passed by the sale was not an under-tenure, but merely the right, title, and interest of the judgment-debtor,—the declaration of a sale proclamation not being by itself sufficient to override the description of the property in the body of the document. Where a widow's life interest is sold for arrears of rent, it is not merely the widow's life interest that is transferred, but the property itself, and the reversionary heir cannot follow the estate after her death (Tilak Chandra Chakravarti v. Madan Mohan Jogi, 12 W. R., 504; Mohima Chandra Rai v. Ram Kishor Achurji, 23 W. R., 174; 15 B. L. R., 142; Baijan v. Brij Bhukan Lal Awasti, 1 Calc., 133; 24 W. R., 306; L. R., 2 I. A., 275; Anand Mayi v. Mahendro Narain Das, 15 W. R., 264). A zamindar who has obtained a decree for arrears of rent of a transferable tenure is entitled to sell the tenure, and a person, who has obtained a transfer of such tenure, which he has not registered, and cannot show a sufficient cause for not registering, is bound by the sale, and cannot set up a title, which he has acquired by a previous sale. (Sham Chand Kundu v. Braja Nath Pal, 21 W. R., 94; 12 B. L. R., F. B., 484). A decree for rent obtained by a landlord against his registered tenant renders the tenure comprised in the decree liable for sale, although such tenure may have passed into other hands than those of the judgment-debtor. (Rash Bihari Bandopadhyaya v. Piari Mohan Mukhurji, 4 Calc., 346). The plaintiff purchased under a private conveyance from the registered tenant a permanent transferable interest in land such as is described in sec. 26 of Bengal Act VIII of 1869, but no notice of the transfer was given to the samindar. The samindar subsequently brought a suit against the tenant for arrears of rent, and obtained a decree, in execution of which he caused the tenure to be sold, and himself became the purchaser. The plaintiff took proceedings under sec. 311 of Civil Procedure Code to set aside the sale; but his application was rejected on the ground—an erroneous one—that he was not a proper party to take such proceedings, and he did not appeal against the order rejecting it. It was held that a suit brought against the samindar and tenant to set aside the sale was in the absence of fraud not maintainable. The plaintiff might have satisfied that rent-decree and so prevented the sale, or he might have appealed against the order rejecting his application to set it aside; but having done neither, and the samindar having had no notice of the transfer, the plaintiff was not entitled to treat the proceedings in the rent suit as a nullity, on the ground that he was not a party to the suit (Panyé Chandra Sarkar v. Har Chandra Chaudhuri, 10 Calc., 496).

When two persons, B and I were registered tenants, and on B's death no one was registered in his place, and a suit for arrears of rent was brought against the widow and the executors of the sole surviving tenant, it was held in view of sec. 26 of Act VIII of 1869, B. C., that the samindar was not bound to look for his rent beyond the representative of the surviving registered tenant and that the entire tenure passed by the sale in execution of a decree for arrears of rent obtained against the representative of the surviving registered tenant. It was held further that when the sale proclamation distinctly set out that the sale would be held according to the provisions of sec. 59 of Act VIII of 1869, and the property advertised was the tenure, and the property sold was the tenure, the mere insertion of a statement that the sale was of the rights and interests of the judgment-debtor would not have the effect of limiting the sale to such rights and interests and not extending to the tenure itself (Nazir Mahomed Sarkar v. Girish Chandra Chaudhuri, 2 C. W. N., 251). If a landlord has recognised a transferee of the tenancy as his tenant, he cannot sell the tenancy for arrears due from the recorded tenant (Anurita Lal Basu v. Saurabi Dasi, 2 W. R., Act X, 86; Miah Jan v. Karuna Mayi Debi, 8 B. L. R., 1; Mozon Mollah v. Dula Ghazi Kulan, 12 B. L. R., 492, note; Ram Kishor Acharji v.

Krishna Mani Debi, 23 W. R., 106). But if in execution of a decree for arrears of rent, the right, title and interest only of the judgment-debtor is attached and sold under Act VIII of 1859 (the old Civil Procedure Code), then, the whole tenure does not pass, as it would have done, had the sale taken place in accordance with the provisions of sec. 59, Act VIII, B. C., of 1869 (Dular Chand Sahu v. Lal Chabil Chand, L. R.; 6 I. A., 47; 3 C. L. R., 561).

When the decree for arrears of rent had been obtained by a co-sharer in a joint undivided estate, dependent taluk or other similar tenure, then under sec. 64 of Act VIII, B. C., of 1869, the under-tenure could not be sold until the moveable property of the judgment-debtor had been sold and proved insufficient to satisfy the decree. In that case, the under-tenure could be sold, not under sec. 59 of the Act, but under the ordinary procedure of the Court, and such sale had the effect of a sale of immoveable property held in execution of a decree, not being for arrears of rent payable in respect thereof, that is, of an ordinary money decree. In these circumstances, only the right, title and interest of the judgment-debtor passed by the sale (Ramjiban Chaudhuri v. Piari Lal Mandal, 4 W. R., Act X, 30; Mritanjai Chaudhuri v. Khettra Nath Rai, 5 W. R., Act X, 71; Nundo Lal Rai v. Guru Charan Basu, 15 W. R., 6; Ghulam Chandra De v. Nadiar Chand Adhikari, 16 W. R., 1; Miajan v. Karunumayi Debi, 8 B. L. R., 1; Mohendra Kumar Dattu v. Hira Mohan Kundu, 7 Calc., 723; Krishna Chandra Ghosh v. Raj Krishna Bandopadhyaya, 12 Calc., 24; Bhaba Nath Rai v. Durga Prasanno Ghosh, 16 Calc., 326), and so, if the rights and interest of the judgment-debtor had already been sold at a prior execution sale, the purchaser took nothing (Daulat Ghazi Chaudhuri v. Manwar, 15 W. R., 341; Girish Chandra Mitra v. Jhaku, 17 W. R., 352; 12 B. L. R., 488, note). But in one case, in which a judgment-debtor was alone registered in the zamindar's serisht as owner of a tenure, and his two brothers, who were joint in estate with him, were entitled each to an equal share with him in the tenure, it was held that a sale which took place in execution of the decree for arrears of rent obtained by a co-sharer only in the zamindari had passed the whole tenure, and not merely the interest of the judgment-debtor (Jeo Lal Singh v. Ganga Prasad, 10 Calc., 996). In this case, however, the judgment-debtor was the manager of the family, and it was said that he had been sued as representing the ownership of the whole tenure, so it was just and equitable that the sale, although purporting to be of the right and interest of the judgment-debtor only, should operate as a sale of the tenure.

A share of tenure could be sold.—A share of an under-tenure can be sold under sec. 64 of Bengal Act VIII of 1869, so as to render the sale binding upon the judgment-debtor, and there is no substantial difference between the sale of a portion of an under-tenure under that section and under the Civil Procedure Code (Ashanullah v. Rajendra Chandra Rai, 12 Calc., 464). But the purchaser must take his position as being jointly liable for the rent with the other under-tenants (Gobind Chandra Rai v. Ram Chandra Chaudhuri, 22 W. R. 421), and he does not acquire the property with the privileges attaching to the purchase of an entire tenure, i.e., free of incumbrances (Reily v. Har Chandra Ghosh, 9 Calc., 722).

To make a tenure liable to sale in execution for arrears of rent under Act VIII of 1869 all the co-sharer landlords must be made parties to the suit : when this is not done, only the right, title and interest of the judgment-debtor will pass. When a suit was brought by some only of several co-sharer landlords against a Hindu lady who had succeeded her father to the tenure, for the recovery of rent which had accrued due after her father's death ; held, that the liability for the debt was personal and did not attach to the reversion, and a sale held in execution of a decree obtained by the landlords in the suit passed only her limited interest in the tenure to the purchaser (Jiban Krishna Rai v. Braja Lal Sen, 7 C. W. N., 425 ; 30 Calc., 550.)

What now passes at a sale in execution of a decree for arrears of rent.—It is clear that the whole tenure or holding now passes at a sale held in execution of a decree for arrears of rent, subject to the "protected interests" and "incumbrances" referred to in sec. 159. But a sale held in execution of a decree obtained by a co-sharer landlord apparently does not pass the tenure or holding, but only the right, title and interest of the judgment-debtor in consequence of the provisions of sec. 188 of this Act (Beni Madhub Rai v. Jood Ali Sarkar, 17 Calc., 390 ; Durga Charan Mandal v. Kali Prasanna Sarkar, 26 Calc., 727 ; 3 C. W. N., 586 ; Sita Nath Chaturji v. Atmaram Kar, 4 C. W. N., 571 ; Sadagar Sarkar v. Krishna Chandra Nath, 26 Calc., 937 ; Narain Uddin v. Srimanta Ghose, 29 Calc., 219). The law on this point is, however, changed by Act I, B. C., 1907. See notes to ss. 148A, pp. 440, 441, and 158A, pp. 469-471. When by private arrangement amongst co-sharers one of them is in exclusive possession of a certain portion of ijmali land, a purchaser of the right, title and interest of the latter is entitled to be placed in the same position as the vendor (Kumudini Mazumdar v. Rasik Lal Mazumdar, 11 C. W. N., 517). When a tenure is sold in execution of a mortgage decree, the rent being under sec. 65 a first charge upon it, it passes to the purchaser subject to this charge, and can be sold in execution of the decree for the rent which accrued due previously to the date on which the sale was confirmed (Muharani Dasya v. Harendra Lal Rai, 1 C. W.

N., 458). But when a tenure is sold in execution of a rent decree, it passes to the purchaser free of all liability created upon it by the default of the previous holder, and so cannot be resold for any arrears that accrued due before the date of sale (Faiz Rahman v. Ram Sukh Rajpat, 21 Calc., 169; Ram Chandra Sadhu Khan v. Samir Ghazi 20 Calc., 25). This has also been held under the former law (Latifan v. Miahjan, 6 W. R., 112; Pran Gaur Mazumdar v. Hemanta Kumari Debi, 12 Calc., 597). The same rule was laid down in Ram Saran Poddar v. Mahomed Latif, (3 C. W. N., 62) in which it was further decided that the plaintiff who had purchased at the second sale for arrears of past years, and who had consequently acquired no title in the holding, was yet entitled in equity to recover from the landlord, defendant, the purchase money paid by him without instituting a separate suit against him for the recovery of damages.

But when a tenure or holding was sold in execution of a decree for rent with notice that it was saddled with liability for arrears of rent for a period anterior to the date of sale; held, that the purchaser was liable for the rent of such period (Haradhan Chattoraj v. Kartik Chandra Chattopadhyay, 6 C. W. N., 877). A sale of a tenure held in execution of a decree for road-cess passes the tenure free from all but registered and notified incumbrances under sec. 161 (Nobin Chandra Laskar v. Bansinath Paramanik, 21 Calc., 722). But if a sale be held in execution of a decree for road-cess against some only of the owners of the tenure, its effect is not to convey to the purchaser the whole tenure, but only the right, title and interest of the particular persons against whom the decree has been obtained (Mahamand Chakravartti v. Beni Madhab Chaturji, 24 Calc., 27). A certificate under the Public Demands Recovery Act can only be enforced against the person whose name is entered in such certificate as if it were a personal debt of his: so, where in execution of a certificate against the recorded tenant, the landlord put up the holding to sale, held, that the right, title and interest of the recorded tenant alone passed (Rupram v. Iswar, 6 C. W. N., 302). In one case, however, Jeo Lal Singh v. Ganga Prasad (10 Calc., 996) was followed and it was held that the sale, though in terms a sale only of the right, title and interest of the judgment-debtor, really passed the right, title and interest not only of the registered tenant, but also of the unregistered co-owners whom he represented (Nitayi Bihari Saha v. Hari Govinda Saha, 26 Calc., 677). But in Ashok Bhuain v. Karim Baipari, (9 C. W. N., 843), it was decided that the sale of a jote in execution of a decree for rent obtained against the recorded tenants does not pass the interest of the tenants whose names are not registered in the landlord's serishtah. So, where one of several joint tenants executed a kabulyat in favour of the landlord and the other tenants acquiesced in the representation of the holding by the tenant who executed the kabulyat, and the landlord sued him only for the rent and in execution of that rent decree attached the entire holding, and the other tenants made no attempt to get themselves recognised or to pay the arrears; held, that the attachment covered the entire holding unless there was fraud on the landlord's part (Rajani Kant Guha v. Uzir Bibi, 7 C. W. N., 170). When an under-tenure had been sold in execution of three ex parte decrees for arrears of rent, and the decrees had not each and all of them been against each and all of the three owners of the under-tenure, but one of them was against the three owners, who all understood that they were judgment-debtors under the decree, it was held that the sale was a valid one and operated to transfer the under-tenure to the purchaser (Tara Lal Singh v. Sarobar Singh, 27 Calc., 407). But in Ananda Kumar Naskar v. Hari Das Halder, (27 Calc., 545; 4 C. W. N., 608) the sale in execution of a decree obtained against some of the heirs of the last recorded tenant was held not to pass the jamr, but only the right, title and interest of the judgment-debtors, the landlord having for some time accepted rent from all the heirs of the deceased recorded tenant. Where certain co-sharer landlords instituted a suit for the rent of a jote, making all parties interested in the jote parties defendant and obtained a decree, a sale in execution of the decree passed the entire jote to the purchaser. But a sale in execution of a decree for rent obtained by the same landlords in a suit subsequently instituted against the purchaser, but after the latter had parted with his interest in the jote to a third party, did not affect the rights acquired by such third party by his purchase. The fact that such third party had not got his name registered in the zamindar's scriishtah, in place of the first purchaser was immaterial, as at the second auction sale only the right, title and interest of the judgment-debtor was sold (Umesh Chandra Rai v. Gour Lal Chaudhuri, 10 C. W. N., 1042). A mortgagor does not represent the mortgagee, and the latter is not bound by a sale in execution of a rent decree obtained against the former (Sashi Bhushan Guha v. Gagan Chandra Suha, 22 Calc., 364). But see the definition of "registered and notified incumbrance" (sec. 161), and the case of Nobin Chandra Laskar v. Bansi Nath Paramanik, (21 Calc., 722) in which it was held that a usufructuary mortgage, which has not been registered and notified, is not "a registered and notified incumbrance." A tenure was transferred by a private sale in 1897. In 1902 the landlord sued the original tenant for arrears of rent, got a decree and brought the tenure to sale in execution. Held, that the purchase in 1897 having been registered in the landlord's serishtah under sec. 12 of the Act long before the institution of the suit, and the arrears being for a period subsequent to the purchase, the landlords' suit was brought against the wrong party and would not affect the petitioner (Ainaddi Sapui v. Aghore Nath Bose, 1 C. L. J., 187). When a landlord and tenure-holders have divided a tenure by mutual agreement, the purchase of one of the divided shares must be regarded as that of an entire tenure (Gopi Nath Biswas v. Radha Shyam Poddar, 5 C. W. N., lxxx). Sec. 99 of the Transfer of Property Act applies to zaripeshgi mortgagees and a purchase of the mortgaged property by the mortgagee in execution of a decree for rent due by the mortgagor under a kutkina lease of the property is absolutely void (Sheodevi Tewari v. Ram Saran Singh, 26 Calc., 164). The sale of a holding in execution of a decree for rent obtained by a landlord, who also holds a mortgage of the holding is void, and the purchaser at the sale acquires no title against another mortgagee of the holding, who has purchased it under a decree on his mortgage (Basiruddi v. Kulash Kamini Devi, 33 Calc., 113). One of several joint landlords brought a suit for arrears of his share of the rent of a certain occupancy holding against three persons who were the recorded tenants, but two of the recorded tenants had already transferred their interests to the plaintiff: held, that the purchaser at the sale purchased only the right, title and interest of the judgment-debtors, and, as two of these had no interest at the date of the sale, the right of their transferee was not affected by it (Afraz Molla v. Kulsamunnissa, 4 C. L. J., 68; 10 C. W. N., 176). Nothing but the tenure in default can be sold. A claim which the judgment-debtor may have against the decree-holder cannot be sold (Lachmipat v. Mandil Koer, 3 C. W. N., 333).

The terms "right, title and interest" of the debtors, as used in a sale certificate and order, must be construed with reference to the circumstances under which the suit was brought, and the true meaning of the decree under which the sale took place as well as the proceedings leading up to sale. In a case where proceedings were taken under this Act and application was made for the simultaneous issue of the order of attachment and proclamation as provided in s. 163, what was intended to be sold was the entire tenure (Akhui Kumar Sur v. Bijai Chand, 29 Calc., 813). See "Execution of decrees for arrears of rent", p. 215.

Grounds on which a sale held in execution of a rent decree can be set aside.—If a sale takes place in execution of a decree in force and valid at the time of sale, the property in the thing sold passes to the purchaser. If the decree or judgment be afterwards reversed, the reversal does not affect the validity of the sale, or the title of the purchaser (Chandra Kant Sarmah v. Bissessar Sarmah, 7 W. R., 312; Rewa Mahton v. Ram Krishna Singh, 14 Calc., 18; L. R., 13 I. A., 106; Mathura Mohan Ghosh v. Akhai Kumar Mitra, 15 Calc., 557; and contra, Bhulu v. Ram Narain Mukhurji, W. R., Sp. No., 1864, 129). A bona fide sale under a decree is binding, notwithstanding that the decree may be set aside upon review (Jan Ali v. Jan Ali Chaudhri, 10 W. R., 154; 1 B. L. R., A. C., 56; Piari Mani Dasi v. Collector of Birbhum, 8 W. R., 300). No suit will lie to set aside the sale of an estate in execution of a decree for arrears of rent at enhanced rates according to a prior decree for enhancement subsequently reversed on special appeal, on the ground of want of notice of the suit for arrears of rent (Durga Prasad Pal v. Jogesh Prakash Gangopadhyaya, 4 W. R., Act X, 38). But a sale in execution of a decree barred by limitation at the time of a sale is invalid (Ghulam Asgar v. Lakhmani Debi, 5 B. L. R., 68; 13 W. R., 273), and a sale held under a decree passed by a Court without jurisdiction and reversed on that account is a nullity (Jadu Nath Kundu v. Braja Nath Kundu, 6 B. L. R., App., 90). The purchaser of an under-tenure may sue in the Civil Court to set aside a sale of the under-tenure in execution of a decree for arrears of rent, under Act X of 1859, on the ground that such decree was obtained by fraud subsequent to the purchase (Ganga Das Dattu v. Ram Narain Ghose, B. L. R., F. B., 625; Nil Mani Bank v. Padda Lochan Chakravartti, B. L. R., F. B., 379; Ram Sundar Paramanik v. Prasanna Kumar Basu, B. L. R., F. B., 382; Batulan v. Uziran, 8 W. R., 300). A suit by an auction-purchaser to obtain khas possession of an under-tenure, which had been sold under Act VIII (B. C.) of 1869, was dismissed on the ground that the suit in which the zamindar had obtained the decree was a fraudulent one, and the purchaser knew that it had been against the wrong party. In special appeal, the provisions of Act X of 1859 sec. 106, were pleaded in justification of the zamindar; but it was held that he could not bring such a suit against a person other than the one whom he knew to be the proprietor of the under-tenure, and from whom for a series of years he had been receiving rent (Nobin Chandra Sen v. Nobin Chandra Chakravartti, 22 W. R., 46). The holder of an under-tenure, though his name has not been registered as the owner, may bring a suit to set aside a sale of the under-tenure, sold in execution of a decree for rent against the former owner, on the ground that the money due under the decree had been deposited before the sale (Afzal Ali v. Gur Narain, 6 W. R., Act X, 59; B. L. R., F. B., 519). Some of the heirs of a deceased tenant not parties to the decree for rent in execution of which a sale has taken place may sue to have it declared that the sale was fraudulent or did not affect their interest (Jagan Nath Gorai v. Watson & Co. 19 Calc., 341). And a quondam judgment-debtor may sue to have a sale held in execution of the decree against him set aside, on the ground that the decretal amount had been paid to the quondam judgment-creditor out of Court before the sale (Pat Dasi v. Sharup Chand Mula, 14 Calc., 376). But in Mathura Mohan Ghosh v. Akhai Kumar Mitra (15 Calc., 563) it was pointed out that according to the ruling of the Privy Council in Rewa Mahton v. Ram Krishna Singh, (14 Calc., 18 ; L. R., 13 I, A, 106) the sale could only be set aside in this case, if the auction-purchaser were a party to the fraud. In one case in which a plaintiff sued for possession of a holding, but it was decided that the sale at which he had purchased the holding, though held in execution of a decree for arrears of rent, was bad, as the landlord had previously sold the holding in execution of a money decree, it was said that the plaintiff was entitled to a refund of the purchase money from the landlord, and that a separate suit for the purpose was not necessary (Ram Saran Poddar v. Mahomed Latif, 3 C. W. N., 62). A person to whom a transferable occupancy holding was mortgaged before its sale in execution of a rent decree is a representative of the judgment-debtor within the meaning of sec. 244, C. P. C., and may apply to set aside the sale (Nissa Bibi v. Radha Kishor Manikya, 11 C. W. N., 312). After a judgment-debtor, with full knowledge of the execution proceedings and full opportunity of objecting that the holding is an occupancy-holding and non-transferable, fails to raise that objection at the time of the sale, it is not competent to him to resist the purchaser after the confirmation of the sale, and as between the purchaser and the judgment-debtor the title to the property vests in the purchaser on the confirmation of the sale. Where a settlement is made by the landlord with the auction-purchaser of a non-transferable holding as soon as can be reasonably expected after the sale and when the landlord afterwards recognises the purchaser and receives rent from him, it is sufficient to render the sale valid in law (Dwarkanath Pal v. Tarini Sankar Rai, 11 C. W. N., 513).

"Incumbrances" and "registered and notified incumbrances."—These terms are defined in sec. 161, clauses (a) and (b). In Titu Bibi v. Mohesh Chandra Bagchi, (9 Calc., 683 ; 12 C. L. R., 304) it was settled that under the former law under-tenures, which are "incumbrances" within the meaning of sec. 66 of Act VIII, B. C., of 1869, are not avoided by a sale of the parent tenure but are only voidable at the option of the purchaser. The object of making sub-leases and incumbrances voidable on the sale for arrears of rent is explained by the Rent Commissioners, at whose instance the provisions of this Chapter were introduced, to be that "the superior landlord's securities for his rent may not be impaired."

When a landlord in collusion with his tenant obtained a decree for rent and in execution thereof purchased the holding, the lien of a mortgagee under the tenant of a part of the holding should be held to continue to subsist upon the land, and the mortgagee would have the same right against the landlord as he would have against the mortgagor (Ram Saran Das v. Ram Prakash Das, 32 Calc., 283).

160. The following shall be deemed to be protected interests within the meaning of this Chapter :—

terests.

- (a) any under-tenure existing from the time of the Permanent Settlement ;
- (b) any under-tenure recognized by the settlement-proceedings of any current temporary settlement as a tenure at a rent fixed for the period of that settlement ;
- (c) any lease of land whereon dwelling-houses, manufactories or other permanent buildings have been erected, or permanent gardens, plantations, tanks, canals, places of worship or burning or burying grounds have been made ;
- (d) any right of occupancy ;
- (e) the right of a non-occupancy-raiyat to hold for five years at a rent fixed under Chapter VI by a Court, or under Chapter X by a Revenue-officer ;
- (f) any right conferred on an occupancy-raiyat to hold at a rent which was a fair and reasonable rent at the time the right was conferred ; and
- (g) any right or interest which the landlord at whose instance the tenure or holding is sold, or his predecessor in title, has expressly and in writing given the tenant for the time being permission to create.

In the statement of Objects and Reasons for the Bill to amend the Tenancy Act (Selections from papers relating to the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, p. 206) it is explained that the first three of the interests referred to in this section are protected under a sale for arrears of revenue (see sec. 37, Act XI of 1859 and sec. 12 of Act VII, B. C., 1868) and, therefore, "would seem to be a fortiori entitled to protection under a sale for rent." The interests referred to in clauses (d), (f) and (g), it is pointed out, are protected in similar sales under the existing law, (see secs. 16 of Act VIII, B. C., of 1865 and 66 of Act VIII, B. C., of 1869 and Nilmadhab Karmokar v. Shibu Pal, 15 W. R., 410). The interest referred to in cl. (e) is new and has been created by this Act. See sec. 46 (7).

Clause (c).—With clause (c) of this section should be read clause 4, sec. 167, of this Act which provides that "when a tenure or holding is sold in execution of a decree for arrears due in respect thereof, and there is on the tenure or holding a protected interest of the kind specified in section 160, clause (c), the purchaser may, if he has power under this Chapter to avoid all incumbrances (sec. sec. 165) sue to enhance the rent of the land, which is the subject of the protected interest, unless it has been held for a term exceeding twelve years at a fixed rent equal to the rent of good arable land." The benefit of the fourth exception to sec. 37, Act XI of 1859 (which corresponds to cl. (c) of this section), must be limited to improvements effected bona fide and to permanent buildings erected before the revenue sales, and should not be conceded to anything subsequently constructed, or which appears to have been constructed merely for the purpose of defeating the rights of an auction-purchaser. Subject to this reservation, it does not matter whether the improvements have been effected by the present holder or by some previous occupier (Asgur Ali v. Asmat Ali, 8 Calc., 110. See also Bul Chand v. Lathu, 23 W. R., 387; and Mokar Ali v. Shama Charan Das, 3 C. W. N., lxiii), in which it has been ruled that a dwelling house to be exempted under sec. 37 of the Revenue sale law must be a dwelling house of a permanent character, and that mere huts would not come within that description. It is immaterial whether the lands on which buildings have been erected and gardens made were expressly leased for these purposes or not (Bhago Bibi v. Ram Kant Rai, 3 Calc., 293; Govindo Chandra Sen v. Jai Chandra Das, 12 Calc., 327).

Clause (g).—A mortgage created by a dar-patnidar of his interest in the taluk does not amount to a "protected interest" (Akhai Kumar Sur v. Bijai Chand, 29 Calc., 813). Where raiyats having permanent interests in a holding sold a portion of it, and the transferees again sold a portion of their purchased interest to one R, and R obtained settlement from the landlord ; held, that the interest of the transferee was not an incumbrance, which could be avoided by a purchaser at a rent sale (Baistab Charan Chaudhuri v. Okhil Chandra Chaudhuri, 11 C. W. N., 217.) A patni kabulyat contained the following clause : " If I should let out this mahal in dar-patni to any person, such dar-patnidar shall act according to the terms of my kabulyat ; " held, that these words did not amount to an express or implied permission to create a sub-tenure, and the knowledge of the proprietor of the creation of the sub-tenure and the acceptance by him of the rent of the patni taluk through the sub-tenure-holder were not sufficient to make the sub-tenure a protected interest. (Mahomed Kazim v. Nufar Chandra Pal, 9 C. W. N., 803 ; 32 Calc., 911).

161. For the purposes of this Chapter—

(a) the term "incumbrance," used with reference to a tenancy, means any lien, sub-tenancy, easement or other right or interest created by the tenant on his tenure or holding or in limitation of his own interest therein, and not being a protected interest as defined in the last foregoing section ;

Meaning of "incumbrance" and "registered and notified incumbrance."

(b) the term "registered and notified incumbrance," used with reference to a tenure or holding sold or liable to sale in execution of a decree for an arrear of rent due in respect thereof, means an incumbrance created by a registered instrument, of which a copy has, not less than three months before the accrual of the arrear, been served on the landlord in manner hereinafter provided.

[(c) the terms 'arrears' and 'arrear of rent' shall be deemed to include interest decreed under section 67 or damages awarded in lieu of interest under sub-section (1) of section 68.]

Clause (c) has been added to the section by s. 51, Act I, B. C., 1907.

It will be seen that the purchaser at a sale under sec. 164, i. e., at a sale of a tenure or holding at fixed rates, can annul all incumbrances, not being registered and notified incumbrances. A purchaser at a sale under sec. 165, i. e., at an adjourned sale of a tenure or holding at fixed rates, and the purchaser at a sale under sec. 166, i. e., at a sale of an occupancy holding, can annul registered and notified incumbrances.

Lease an Incumbrance.—In sec. 161 of the Bengal Tenancy Act the word ‘incumbrance’ seems to be used as covering a lease. A lease, just as much as a sale, gift or mortgage, must come within the meaning of incumbrance (Jogeshur Muzumdar v. Abid Mahomed Sarkar, *3 C. W. N., 13).

Exchange of part of holding an incumbrance.—When the registered tenant of a holding has exchanged part of his holding with other persons, though the exchange has not been ratified by the landlord, the purchaser at a sale for arrears of rent cannot eject the occupiers of the land exchanged, without having taken proceedings to annul the incumbrance, as provided in section 167 (Chandra Sakhi v. Kali Prasanna Chakravartti, 23 Calc., 254).

Mortgages which are not incumbrances.—A mortgage created by sec. 171 in favour of a person who pays the decretal amount and saves a tenure or holding from sale is not an incumbrance within the meaning of sec. 161 and cannot be annulled by a purchaser at a sale held under the provisions of this Chapter (Pasupati Mahapatro v. Narayani Dasi, 24 Calc., 537; 1 C. W. N., 519). A usufructuary mortgage which has not been registered and notified is not a registered and notified incumbrance (Nobin Chandra Laskar v. Bansi Nath Paramanik, 21 Calc., 722). When a mortgagee of a tenure has enforced his lien and obtained his decree, it is no longer an incumbrance on the tenure (Abhai Kumar Sur v. Bijai Chand, 29 Calc., 813).

Clause (c).—This clause sets aside, so far as sales in execution of rent decrees are concerned, the rulings, cited at p. 32, to the effect that interest is not rent. It further provides that damages awarded under sec. 68 (1) is also rent within the meaning of this Chapter.

Service of copy of incumbrance.—Sec. 176 provides that the registering officer shall, at the request of the tenant or person in whose favour the incumbrance is created, notify it to the landlord by causing a copy of it to be served on him.

162. When a decree has been passed for an arrear of rent due for a tenure or holding, and the decree-holder applies under section 235 of the Code of Civil Procedure for sale of tenure or holding.

XIV of 1882.

the attachment and sale of the tenure or holding in execution of the decree, he shall produce a statement showing the pargana, estate and village in which the land comprised in the tenure or holding is situate, the yearly rent payable for the same and the total amount recoverable under the decree.

The High Court has framed the following rule under sec. 287 of the Civil Procedure Code :—

“Every person applying under sec. 162 of the Bengal Tenancy Act (VIII of 1885) for the simultaneous attachment and sale of a tenure or a holding of a raiyat holding at fixed rates, or applying only for the sale of such tenure or holding already under attachment, shall in such application specify the registered and notified incumbrances subject to which the tenure or holding is to be sold. Such specification shall be verified in the manner prescribed by the Code of Civil Procedure for the verification of plaints by the holder of the decree in execution of which the tenure or holding is to be sold, or by some other person (approved of by the Court), if the Court be satisfied that he is acquainted with the facts mentioned in it.” (Calcutta Gazette of August 18th 1886, Part I, p. 939, and High Court's General Rules and Circular Orders (Civil), p. 32).

163. (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Code of Civil Procedure, when the decree-holder makes the application mentioned in the last foregoing section, the Court shall, if under section 245 of the said Code it admits the application and orders execution of the decree as applied for, issue simultaneously the order of attachment and the proclamation required by section 287 of the said Code.

Order of attachment and proclamation of sale to be issued simultaneously.

XIV of 1882.

(2) the proclamation shall, in addition to stating and specifying the particulars mentioned in section 287 of the said Code, announce—

(a) in the case of a tenure or a holding of a raiyat holding at fixed rates, that the tenure or holding will first be put up to auction subject to the registered and notified incumbrances, and will be sold subject to those incumbrances if the sum bid is sufficient to liquidate the amount of the decree and costs, and that otherwise it will, if the decree-holder so desires, be sold on a subsequent day, of which due notice will be given, with power to annul all incumbrances ; and

(b) in the case of an occupancy-holding, that the holding will be sold with power to annul all incumbrances.

(3) The proclamation shall, besides being made in the manner prescribed by section 289 of the said Code, be published by fixing up a copy thereof in a conspicuous place on the land comprised in the tenure or holding ordered to be sold, and shall also be published in such manner as the Local Government may, from time to time, direct in this behalf.

(4) Notwithstanding anything contained in section 290 of the said Code, the sale shall not, without the consent in writing of the judgment-debtor, take place until after the expiration of at least thirty days, calculated from the date on which the copy of the proclamation has been fixed up on the land comprised in the tenure or holding ordered to be sold.

Sub-section (3).—The landholder, decree-holder, is debarred from claiming an amount not mentioned in the sale proclamation (Raj Narain Mitter v. Panna Chand Singh, 30 Cal., 213). When a tenure or holding was sold with a notice that it was saddled with a liability for arrears of rent for a period anterior to the date of sale, held that the purchaser was liable for the rent of such period (Haradhan Chattoraj v. Kartik Chandra Chatterji, 6 C. W. N., 877).

Government notification under this sub-section.—The Local Government has issued the following notification under this sub-section :—

“Under sec. 163 (3), Bengal Tenancy Act, the Lieutenant Governor is pleased to direct that the proclamation referred to in that section as required by section 287 of the Civil Procedure Code, Act XIV of 1882, shall, in addition to the places prescribed in sec. 163 (3) of the Bengal Tenancy Act, and in sec. 289 of the Code of Civil Procedure, be also published in the mal kachari or rent office of the estate, and at the local thana.” (Calcutta Gazette, March 3rd, 1886, Part I, p. 142).

Stay of sale pending appeal.—A decree for arrears of rent is a decree for money and, therefore, the provisions of sec. 546, Civil Procedure Code, which allow of a sale of immoveable property in execution of a decree for money being stayed until an appeal against the decree is disposed of, apply to sales in execution of rent decrees (Banku Bihari Sanyal v. Shama Charan Bhattacharji, 25 Calc., 322.)

164. (1) When a tenure or a holding at fixed rates has been advertised for sale under the last foregoing section, it shall be put up to auction, subject to registered and notified incumbrances ; and, if the bidding reaches a sum sufficient to liquidate the amount of the decree and costs, including the costs of sale, the tenure or holding shall be sold subject to such incumbrances.

Sale of tenure or holding subject to registered and notified incumbrances, and effect thereof.

(2) The purchaser at a sale under this section may, in manner provided by section 167, and not otherwise, annul any incumbrance upon the tenure or holding not being a registered and notified incumbrance.

Sub-section (1).—The object of the provision that the tenure or holding is in the first instance to be put up to sale subject only to registered and notified incumbrances is to prevent sham incumbrances being fraudulently set up after the sale.

Meaning of bidding.—In an unreported case, Appeal from Order No. 69 of 1887, Nabo Kumar Mukhurji v. Kishori Dasi, decided by Petheram, C. J., and Ghose, J., on the 30th May, 1887, it was decided that a bidding, which is withdrawn before acceptance is not a bidding within the meaning of the section.

165. (1) If the bidding for a tenure or a holding at fixed rates put up to auction under the last foregoing section does not reach a sum sufficient to liquidate the amount of the decree and costs as aforesaid, and if the decree-holder thereupon desires that the tenure or holding be sold with power to avoid all incumbrances, the officer holding the sale shall adjourn the sale and make a fresh proclamation under section 289 of the Code of Civil Procedure, announcing that the tenure or holding will be put up to auction and sold with power to avoid all incumbrances upon a future day specified therein, not less than fifteen or more than thirty days from the date of the postponement; and upon that day the tenure or holding shall be put up to auction and sold with power to avoid all incumbrances.

✓ (2) The purchaser at a sale under this section may, in manner provided by section 167, and not otherwise, annul any incumbrance on the tenure or holding.

When there are several tenures held by the same tenant, the landlord may institute one suit for the rent of all the tenures, but he cannot put the tenures to sale in execution of the decree obtained in such a suit so as to enable the purchaser to avoid incumbrances. A sale under this Chapter can take place only when a separate decree has been obtained for the arrears of each tenure or holding, and the same is sold separately in execution of such a decree (Hridai Nath Das v. Krishna Prasad Sarkar, 11 C. W. N., 497; 34 Cal., 298; 6 C. L. J., 153; Baikantha Nath Rai v. Debendro Nath Saha, 11 C. W. N., 676):

166. (1) When an occupancy-holding has been advertised for sale under section 163, it shall be put up to auction and sold with power to avoid all incumbrances.

Sale of occupancy-holding with power to avoid all incumbrances, and effect thereof.

(2) The purchaser at a sale under this section may, in manner provided by the next following section, and not otherwise, annul any incumbrance on the holding.

167. (1) A purchaser having power to annul an incumbrance under any of the foregoing sections and desiring to annul the same, may, within one year from the date of the sale or the date on which he first has notice of the incumbrance, whichever is later, present to the Collector an application in writing, requesting him to serve on the incumbrancer a notice declaring that the incumbrance is annulled.

Procedure for annulling incumbrances under the foregoing sections.

(2) Every such application must be accompanied by such fee for the service of the notice as the Board of Revenue may fix in this behalf.

(3) When an application for service of a notice is made to the Collector in manner prescribed by this section, he shall cause the notice to be served in compliance therewith, and the incumbrance shall be deemed to be annulled from the date on which it is so served.

(4) When a tenure or holding is sold in execution of a decree for arrears due in respect thereof, and there is on the tenure or holding a protected interest of the kind specified in section 160, clause (c), the purchaser may, if he has power under this Chapter to avoid all incumbrances, sue to enhance the rent of the land which is the subject of the protected interest. On proof that the land is held at a rent which was not at the time the lease was granted a fair rent, the Court may enhance the rent to such amount as appears to be fair and equitable.

This sub-section shall not apply to land which has been held for a term exceeding twelve years at a fixed rent equal to the rent of good arable land.

Sub-section (1). Annulment of incumbrances.—The mode prescribed by section 167 is the only mode in which incumbrances can be annulled by purchasers of tenures and holdings for arrears of rent (Sashi Bhusan Guha v. Gagan Chandra Saha, 22 Calc., 364 ; Chandra Sakhi v. Kali Prasanna Chakravarti, 23 Calc., 256), even when the incumbrancer and the purchaser are the same person (Golak Chandra Das v. Ram Sankar Datta, 4 C. W. N., 268). But this was dissented from in a later case (Mastulla Mandal v. Jan Mamud Sha, 28 Calc., 12 ; 4 C. W. N., 735) in which it was decided that when the mortgagee of a property purchases it at a sale in execution of a rent decree under sec. 165, and takes out the balance of the surplus sale proceeds, and applies it pro tanto to the satisfaction of a mortgage decree which he had obtained, his mortgage lien on the property is extinguished by his purchase, though he may not have taken steps to annul the incumbrance under sec. 167. A sale with power to annul incumbrances does not ipso facto cancel the incumbrances. Notice must be given according to the procedure laid down in section 167 (Beni Prasad Sinha v. Rewat Lal, 24 Calc., 746), within one year of the purchaser becoming aware of the incumbrance (Gopi Nath Biswas v. Radha Shyam Poddar, 5 C. W. N., lxxx.) The service of the notice under sec. 167 is sufficient under sec. 164 to annul the incumbrance : it is not necessary to bring a regular suit to extinguish it, and a purchaser at a sale may give a valid notice under sec. 167, even though he may have transferred his rights in the property before the notice is given (Piari Lal Rai v. Moheswari Debi, 25 Calc., 551). The service of a notice under this section annulling a mortgage is no bar to the mortgagee making an application to set aside a sale of the tenure (Brij Kumar Rai v. Dhanukdhari Raut, 10 C. W. N., 976). An under-raiyat's lease which is unregistered is not an incumbrance and need not be annulled under this section (Piari Mohan Mukhurji v. Badal Chandra Bagdi, 5 C. W. N., 310 ; 28 Calc., 205).

In a suit for possession after annulment of an under-tenure under s. 167, absence of due service of notice on a person who in the suit disclaimed all interest therein, cannot prejudice the plaintiff. But if application for the issue of notice against some of the persons jointly interested in the incumbrance was not made within time, the whole suit must fail (Delaney v. Rahamat Ali, 32 Calc., 710).

The purchaser of an undivided share in lands leased to a raiyat, even in execution of a decree for rent, acquires no right to annul incumbrances (Ahadullah v. Gagan Molla, 2 C. L. J., 10).

S. 167 does not apply to a sale in execution of a rent decree of a portion only of a tenure or holding, and the auction-purchaser cannot proceed under that section to annul incumbrances (Ram Kinkar Biswas v. Akhil Chandra Chaudhuri, 11 C. W. N., 350). When certain defendants annulled under this section a mortgage which they were under no obligation to pay off, it was held that they exercised only a statutory right, which can never be an equitable wrong or amount to fraudulent conduct (Surendra Mohan Singh v. Bansidhar, 11 C. W. N., cxcv).

This section applies where the incumbrancer is a third party, and not where the purchaser and the incumbrancer are the same person (Hem Chandra Chaudhuri v. Tafazzal Hossain Khan, 8 C. W. N., 332).

Collector.—A sub-divisional officer not specially appointed by the local Government to discharge the functions of a Collector under sec. 167, has no power to receive an application, nor has he jurisdiction to issue a notice annulling an incumbrance (Mohabat Singh v. Umakil Fatima, 28 Calc., 66).

There is no irregularity in the service of the notice, merely because the application was received by the Deputy Collector in charge and the notice was signed by a Deputy Collector "for the Collector" (Mahomed Kasim v. Nafar Chandra Pal, 9 C. W. N., 803 ; 32 Calc., 911). But where the notice had been given by a Deputy Collector, and his action had been approved by the Collector after the lapse of one year, held, that the incumbrance had not been annulled, the notice by the Deputy Collector being invalid (Ram Dhan De v. Surjo Narain Mukhurji, 2 C. L. J., 99 ; 9 C. W. N., lxvii).

Sub-section (2).—Fees.—Fees for the service of the notice are to be levied in accordance with rules 1 to 4, Chapter VII of the Government Rates under this Act. The Board of Revenue have fixed no special fees for the service of the notice.

Sub-section (3).—Mode of Service.—For the mode of service of the notice of the incumbrance, see rule 3, Chap. I of the Government Rules under the Act.

✓ Terms of notice.—No form of notice has been prescribed. A notice to annul an incumbrance is not bad, though it does not specify the particulars of the land held by the tenant or the rent payable by him and though it is addressed to several tenants jointly (Jagabandhu Mazumdar v. Rashi Manjan Dasya, 5 C. W. N., 272).

Assessment of mesne profits.—Where the position of the plaintiff is that of landlord and tenant combined, and the defendant, a sub-tenant, notwithstanding a notice served upon him under 167 withheld possession from the plaintiff, the mesne profits must be assessed on the value of the crops raised by the defendant, and not upon the basis of the rent which the rightful owner had been realising from the tenants, before dispossession. (Gopal Chandra Mandal v. Rhuban Mohan Chaturji, 30 Calc., 536).

Limitation.—An application to avoid an incumbrance under sec. 67 was made by an auction-purchaser within one year from the date on which he had notice of the incumbrance, mentioning therein a wrong person as the incumbrancer. After the period of limitation another application was made to him to amend the previous application by substituting the name of the real incumbrancer, which was allowed by the Collector. It was held, however, that the Collector's functions in the matter were merely ministerial, that he had no power to make any such amendment and that the application for service of the notice on the real incumbrancer was barred by limitation (Nritya Gopal Hazra v. Ghulam Rasul, 28 Calc., 180). When limitation is governed by the provisions of this section, a minor is not entitled to a fresh period of limitation (Akhai Kumar Sur v. Bijai Chand, 29 Calc., 813).

168. (1) The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the official Gazette, direct that occupancy-holdings or any specified class of occupancy-holdings in any local area put up for sale in execution of decrees for rent [a decree for an arrear of rent] due on them shall, before being put up with power to avoid all incumbrances, be put up subject to registered and notified incumbrances, and may by like notification rescind any such direction.

(2) While any such direction remains in force in respect of any local area, all occupancy-holdings, or, as the case may be, occupancy-holdings of the specified class in that local area, shall, for the purposes of sale under the foregoing sections of this Chapter, be treated in all respects as if they were tenures.

Power to direct that occupancy holdings be dealt with under foregoing sections as tenures.

The words in brackets in this section were substituted by s. 52, Act I., B. C., of 1907, for the words "decrees of rent," as a consequential alteration necessary in consequence of the addition of clause (c) to section 161.

Object of this section.—The object of this section is explained in the Statement of Objects and Reasons for the Bill, in which it was said that it was thought that the provisions of this Chapter were as a general rule unsuited to occupancy holdings, "inasmuch as an ordinary occupancy holding is not likely to be saddled with incumbrances which should be respected at a sale. It appears, however, that there are in some parts of the country occupancy-holdings of large extent, the land of which is sub-let on such terms that the interest of the lessee is of considerable value. Under these circumstances, the proper course appears to be that occupancy-holdings should as a rule be sold at once with power to annul all incumbrances (sec. 166); but that the Local Government should have power to direct that the occupancy holdings in any local area should be in the first instance put up subject to incumbrances, as if they were tenures." (Selections from papers relating to the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, p. 206). The Local Government has not as yet found it necessary to take action under this section.

169. (1) In disposing of the proceeds of a sale under this Chapter, the following rules, instead of those prescribed by section 295 of the Code of Civil Procedure, shall be observed, that is to say :—

Rules for disposal of the sale-proceeds.
XIV of 1882.

- (a) there shall first be paid to the decree-holder the costs incurred by him in bringing the tenure or holding to sale ;
- (b) there shall, in the next place, be paid to the decree-holder the amount due to him under the decree in execution of which the sale was made ;

(c) if there remains a balance after these sums have been paid, there shall be paid to the decree-holder therefrom any rent which may have fallen due to him in respect of the tenure or holding between the institution of the suit and the date of [the confirmation of] the sale ;

(d) the balance (if any) remaining after the payment of the rent mentioned in clause (c) shall, upon the expiration of two months from the confirmation of the sale, be paid to the judgment-debtor upon his application.

[Provided that, where a tenure or holding has been sold in execution of a decree obtained by one or more co-sharer landlords in a suit framed under sub-section 148A or sub-section (I) of section 158B, —

(i) payment of the amount due under such decree shall, notwithstanding anything contained in clause (b), be made to the decree-holder and to the other co-sharer landlords in proportion to the amount found to be due to each, and,

(ii) if there remains a balance, payment of any rent which may have fallen due in respect of the tenure or holding between the institution of the suit and the date of ~~the~~ confirmation of the sale shall, notwithstanding anything contained in clause (c), but subject to the determination, in the manner, and with the effect mentioned in sub-section (2), of any dispute as to their respective rights to receive such rent, be made to the said decree-holder and the other co-sharer landlords in proportion to their respective shares in the tenure or holding.]

(2) If the judgment-debtor disputes the decree-holder's right to receive any sum on account of rent under clause (c), the Court shall determine the dispute, and the determination shall have the force of a decree.

The words within brackets have been inserted in, and the proviso has been added to, clause (c) by s. 53, Act I, B. C., 1907.

Clause (c).—In the case of a rent sale with express power to the purchaser to annul all incumbrances, so long as such power remains in the purchaser, the heir of a mortgagee is in jeopardy, and he may abandon his lien and ask to have it transferred to the surplus sale proceeds (Nim Chand v. Ashutosh Datta, 9 C. W. N., 117). Under sec. 316 of the Code of Civil Procedure a sale takes effect from the date of its confirmation; so the decree-holder would seem to be entitled to be paid out of the balance of the sale proceeds any rent due to him up to the date of the confirmation of the sale. But he is apparently not entitled to be paid any interest due on this rent, for the definition of "rent" does not include interest (sec. 3 (5), p. 32). His right to interest will survive, but he apparently cannot get it under this clause. But according to Ghosh, J., in Bijai Chand v. S. C. Mukhurji, (5 C. L. J., 27n.) the word "rent" in this clause cannot have been intended to exclude interest accruing thereupon, so as to compel the decree-holder to bring a fresh suit for the interest only. As to the liability of the tenure or holding for rent accrued due prior to the date of sale, see note to sec. 159, pp 477, 478. The words "date of sale" in this clause mean date of confirmation of the sale (Matangini Chaudhurani v. Srinath Das, 7 C. W. N., 552. See also Lakhi Narain v. Narendra Lal, 11 C. W. N., ccxxxix.) This ruling has now been given effect to in Bengal by the words inserted by s. 53, Act I, B. C., 1907.

In the Notes on Clauses to the Bill it is said :—

"As the law now stands, the decree-holder is, under section 169 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, entitled to the rent up to the date of the sale, while the purchaser under section 316 of the Civil Procedure Code, does not become entitled to the rent until the date of the confirmation of the sale. The proposed amendment will bring the sections into conformity."

The landlord has a claim to the surplus sale proceeds preferential to that of the mortgagee of the holding, who stands in the shoes of the judgment-debtor (Prabal Chandra Mukhurji v. Jadupati Chakravartti, 6 C. L. J., 26).

Proviso.—The proviso added by Act I, B. C., of 1907 has been rendered necessary by the additions to the Act made in sections 148A, and 158 B. Now, under these sections a tenure or holding will pass in execution of a decree for rent obtained by a co-sharer landlord, if obtained in a suit framed under sec. 148A. Before execution of such a decree can be taken out, notice of the application for execution must under sect 158 B (2), be given to the other co sharers. The present proviso safe-guards their interests as regards their rights to participate in the distribution of the surplus sale proceeds.

Clause (d).—When in execution of a decree for arrears of rent the tenure was sold, and an unregistered tenant who was a purchaser of a share of the tenure after the date of decree brought a suit for recovery of his share of the surplus sale proceeds; h/d, that the suit was maintainable (Matangini Chaudhurani v. Srinath Das, 7 C. W. N., 552). See also Ambika Nath Acharjee v. Aditya Nath Maitra, 6 C. W. N., 624).

Jurisdiction of the Small Cause Court—A suit for a share of the sale proceeds of a tenure sold in execution of a decree for arrears of rent is not cognizable by a Small Cause Court (Ram Kumar Sen v. Ram Kamal Sen, 10 Calc., 388).

Tenure or holding to be released from attachment only on payment into Court of amount of decree with costs, or on confession of satisfaction by decree-holder.

XIV of 1882.

170. (1) Sections 278 to 283 (both inclusive) [and 310A] of the Code of Civil Procedure shall not apply to a tenure or holding attached in execution of a decree for arrears due thereon.

(2) When an order for the sale of a tenure or holding in execution of such a decree has been made, the tenure or holding shall not be released from attachment unless, before it is knocked down to the auction-purchaser, the amount of the decree, including the costs decreed, together with the costs incurred in order to the sale, is paid into Court, or the decree-holder makes an application for the release of the tenure or holding on the ground that the decree has been satisfied out of Court.

(3) The judgment-debtor or any person having in the tenure or holding any interest voidable on the sale, may pay money into Court under this section.

The words "and 310 A" within brackets have been inserted in this section by s. 54, Act I, B. C., 1907.

Sub-section (1).—Claims to attached tenures or holdings.—Sections 278 to 283 of the Civil Procedure Code relate to claims to attached property and objections to the attachment thereof and their disposal. From the provisions of this sub-section it follows that no claims to tenures or holdings attached in execution of decrees under the Bengal Tenancy Act can now be enquired into. When in execution of a decree for arrears of rent, the defaulting tenure is attached, no claim under sec. 278, Civ. Pro. Code, is maintainable, whether the claim is to the tenure or adverse to the tenure (Makbul Ahmad v. Rakhal Das Hazra, 4 C. W. N., 732). The decision in this case being in conflict with that in Jagabandhu Chattopadhyaya v. Dinu Pal, (4 C. W. N., 734) the question was referred to a Full Bench, by which it was held that sec. 170 bars a claim under sec. 278, C. P. C., in all cases i. e., whether the claim to the tenure or holding attached be a claim to the tenure or holding, or be based on the ground that the property claimed is not part of the tenure or holding attached (Amrita Lall Bose v. Nemai Chand Mukhopadhyaya, 28 Calc., 382 ; 5 C. W. N., 474) See also Khetra Pal Singh v. Kritarthamayi Dasi, (33 Calc., 566 ; 10 C. W. N., 547 ; 3 C. L. J., 470). This sub-section applies to tenures or holdings attached after the Tenancy Act came into operation in execution of decrees obtained before that date (Deb Narain Datta v. Narendra Krishna, 16 Calc., 267). See note to sec. 2 (4), pp. 11-14.

Exclusion of operation of section 310A.—In the Notes on Clauses to the Bill of 1906 it was said with reference to this question :

"It has been held by the High Court that the provisions of section 310A of the Code of Civil Procedure apply to sales in execution of rent decrees. This enables persons other than the judgment-debtor to apply to have such sales set aside. It is undesirable that proceedings between landlord and tenant, relating to the recovery of rent, should be protracted by the intervention of third parties, and it is accordingly proposed that section 310A of the Code of Civil Procedure shall not apply to a tenure or holding attached in execution of a decree for arrears of rent."

Some discussion took place in Council on the subject of this provision and its object was more fully explained as follows.

"The intention of the framers of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, with regard to sales of tenures or holdings for arrears of rent was that any one having in the tenure or holding an interest voidable on the sale (e.g., a mortgagee or an unrecognised transferee) might pay in the decretal amount with costs before, and so stop, the sale. This is provided for in section 170, sub-section (3). But it was intended that, after the sale, only the judgment-debtor should have the privilege of having the sale set aside by paying up the decretal amount and costs with compensation to the auction-purchaser of 5 per cent. of his purchase money. The object of these provisions was to induce persons having an interest in the property to be sold to pay in the amount of the landlord's debt before the sale, so that the landlord (decree-holder) might get the money due to him quickly, and the matter might be settled and set at rest once for all. This was no hardship to the landlord, because (1) he got his money quickly, (2) his old tenant still remained his tenant, and (3) all risk of future complications and expense was obviated.

The provision that after the sale only the judgment-debtor should be allowed to pay up the decretal amount presented no practical obstacle to the setting aside of the sale, and was no hardship to any one, because the decree-holder could always be compelled to take the money, whoever paid it, by the simple device of paying in the amount in the name of the judgment-debtor.

The provisions of section 310A have, however, by the rulings of the High Court, been extended to sales in execution of rent decrees, and the result of this has been (1) to take away from the mortgagee or unrecognised transferee all inducement to pay in the decretal amount before sale, (2) to force the landlord (decree-holder) to take the money from a person whom he may not recognise, or wish to recognise, as his tenant, and (3) to give rise to the probability of protracted proceedings and long and expensive litigation. For, in the first place, the decretal amount is often paid in with a request that it may not be paid out to the landlord (decree-holder) till applications by the judgment-debtors for setting aside the sale on the ground of irregularities or fraud in the sale proceedings have been disposed of. Simultaneous applications under section 174 and to set aside the sale on the first of these grounds have now been provided against by clause 37 of the Bill. But there is no remedy for a simultaneous application under section 174 and one to set aside the sale on the ground of fraud. These applications to set aside the sale may be opposed both by the decree-holder and the auction-purchaser, for the latter may not wish to part with the tenure or holding purchased by him and to whom the statutory allowance of 5 per cent. on the purchase money may not be a sufficient compensation for the loss of his bargain. The decree-holder may also oppose the application to set aside the sale, not only on the ground that there was no fraud, but because the amount paid in was insufficient or was not paid in due time. These proceedings, with the inevitable appeal and second appeal or application for revision, to the High Court, may last for years. All this time the landlord does not know who his tenant is—whether he is the old tenant (i.e., the judgment-debtor) or the auction-purchaser. He cannot be certain, then, whom he should sue for rent. He may sue the wrong person, and some of his lawful demands for rent may consequently become barred by limitation."

Sub-section 3.—Where a decree made in a suit for rent was in the main one for rent, although it included other sums which were not strictly rent within the meaning of the Bengal Tenancy Act, and in execution thereof the tenure in arrear was ordered to be sold under Chapter XIV of the Act and advertised: Held, that the holder of an under-tenure liable to be avoided would be justified in making a payment to prevent the sale of the superior tenure, and having made the payment, would be entitled to the rights, which are given to a person who makes a payment under section 170 of the Bengal Tenancy Act. (Jnanada Sundari Chaudhurani v. Atul Chandra Chakravarti, 32 Calc., 972). But the purchaser of a tenure from a tenant against whom the decree for rent was obtained in execution of which the tenure is advertised for sale has no right to make a deposit under this sub-section, as he has not an interest in the tenure voidable by the sale. But in a case of this nature, the High Court in revision did not set aside the order allowing such a purchaser to make the deposit on the ground that on a former occasion in similar circumstances the purchaser had made a similar deposit and the decree-holder had withdrawn it (Jotindra Mohan Tagore v. Durga Debi, 10 C. W. N., 438). A mortgagee making payments to save the mortgaged property from being sold in execution of a rent decree has an additional lien on the property for the sums so paid by him (Rakhohari Chatteraj v. Bipro Das De, 31 Calc., 975).

Co-sharer landlords cannot attach tenures or holdings in execution of decrees for their shares of rent.—An attachment of a tenure or holding in execution of a decree obtained by a fractional co-sharer for arrears of rent of his separate share is not such an attachment as is contemplated by section 170 of the Tenancy Act. When landlords are seeking to take the benefit of this Act, they must under the provisions of sec. 188 act in concert; and when one of several co-sharers in a zamindari thinks fit to pursue his remedies to recover his share of the rent, he must pursue them under the ordinary law of the country, and independently of the Tenancy Act (Beni Madhab Rai v. Jaod Ali Sarkar, 17 Calc., 390). But when a decree for the entire rent has been obtained by one of several co-sharers by making the others parties defendants and is executed by him alone and the defaulting tenure is attached, no claim by a third person under sec. 278, C. P. C., is maintainable. The decree has in this case the same effect as if it had been obtained by all the co-sharers and sec. 188 has no application (Chandra Sikhar Patra v. Rani Munjhi, 3 C. W. N., 386).

Amount paid into Court to prevent sale to be in certain cases a mortgage-debt on the tenure or holding.

171. (1) When any person having, in a tenure or holding advertised for sale under this Chapter, an interest which would be voidable upon the sale, pays into Court the amount requisite to prevent the sale,—

- (a) the amount so paid by him shall be deemed to be a debt bearing interest at twelve per centum per annum and secured by a mortgage of the tenure or holding to him ;
- (b) his mortgage shall take priority of every other charge on the tenure or holding other than a charge for arrear of rent ; and
- (c) he shall be entitled to possession of the tenure or holding as mortgagee of the tenant, and to retain possession of it as such until the debt, with the interest due thereon, has been discharged.

(2) Nothing in this section shall affect any other remedy to which any such person would be entitled.

This section is founded on the provisions of sec. 13, Reg. VII of 1819, which under sec. 6, Act VIII, B. C., of 1865, and sec. 62, Act VIII, B. C., of 1869 were applicable to similar payments.

Clause (a).—A mortgage created by the operation of this section is not an incumbrance under sec. 161 and cannot be annulled by a purchaser at a sale held under the provisions of this Chapter (Pasupati Mahapatra v. Narayani Dasi, 24 Calc., 537 ; 1 C. W. N., 519). It is a mortgage on the entire tenure ; so when a sepatnidar pays the amount due from the darpatnidars, he has a mortgage over the whole tenure, which cannot be divided* in proportion to the interests of the darpatnidars, (unreported case, S A., No 47 of 1889, decided by Petheram, C. J., and Banerjee, J., May 1st, 1890). This section does not apply to a person who has a sale set aside by paying the decretal amount and the auction-purchaser's commission under sec. 174. Such a person accordingly acquires no mortgage under this section over the shares of his defaulting co-tenants (Gopi Nath Bagdi v. Ishar Chandra Bagdi, 22 Calc., 800).

Clause (e).—Under cl. 4, sec. 13 of Reg. VIII of 1819, a person making a deposit to stay the sale of a superior tenure was entitled to be put in possession of the tenure of the defaulter "on applying for the same." These words do not occur in this section. A person making a deposit under this section must therefore apparently bring a regular suit to obtain possession. A person who enters into possession of a tenure as mortgagee under the provisions of cl. 40, sec. 13 of Reg. VIII of 1819 is bound in the first place to pay the rent due to the landlord out of the collections before applying the same to the liquidation of his own debt, and the defaulter is not to be liable for the rent of the tenure during the period of the possession by the person so holding it as mortgagee (Bhairab Chandra Kapur v. Lalit Mohan Singh, 12 Calc., 185. See also Kanai Lal Set v. Nistarini Dasi, 10 Calc., 443).

Sub-section (3).—Who may pay money into Court.—Under Act VIII, B. C., of 1865, it has been held that when an under-tenure has been transferred, but the transfer is not registered in the scriistah of the zamindar or superior tenant, the transferee is, nevertheless, entitled as a person interested in the protection of the tenure to stop its sale in execution of the decree by paying into Court the amount of the decree. (Anand Lal Mukhurji v. Kalika Prasad Misra, 20 W. R., 59; see also Rajendro Narain Rui v. Phudi Mandal, 15 Calc., 482).

Other remedies of persons whose interests are affected by sale.—These appear to be of a three-fold nature: (1) a regular suit for the recovery of the money deposited. See Ambika Debi v. Pranhari Das, (4 B. L. R., F. B. 77; 13 W. R., F. B., 1), in which the person who made the deposit was an under-tenant, and Lakhi Narain Mitra v. Khettro Pal Singh, (13 B. L. R., 146), in which the depositor was an unregistered assignee of a darpatni taluk. But see also Maharani Dasya v. Harendro Lal Rai, (1 C. W. N., 458), in which a mortgagee who had purchased the mortgaged property in execution of his own decree on the property being again put up to sale in execution of a decree for arrears of the rent due prior to the date of his purchase, paid the amount and stayed the sale and then brought a suit to recover the amount of his payment. It was held that he could not recover, for there was no privity between him and the judgment-debtors under the decree for arrears of rent; (2) deduction of the amount deposited from any amount due by him to the judgment-debtor as his superior landlord. This is expressly provided in the section next following (sec. 172). See Nobo Gopal Sarkar v. Srinath Bandopadhyaya, (8 Calc., 877; 11 C. L. R., 37); Lalit Mohan Saha v. Srinibas Sen, (13 Calc., 331). A tenant may similarly deduct from the rent any sum which he may have paid, not into Court, but direct to the zamindar, in order to stay the sale of the patni (Turini Debi v. Shama Charan Mitra, 8 Calc., 954; but see contra, Mahomed Hossein Ali v. Bakaula, 6 W. R., 84); (3) if, notwithstanding the deposit, the sale takes place, a suit will lie to have the sale set aside (Afzal Ali v. Gurnarain, 6 W. R., Act X, 59; B. L. R., F. B., 519. But see contra, Mritanjai Sarkar v. Gopal Chandra Sarkar, 10 W. R. 466; 2 B. L. R., A. C., 131).

A private purchaser of a tenure, who has not registered his name in the landlord's serishtu and has not been recognized by him, cannot maintain a suit to set aside a sale held in execution of a rent decree obtained under Act X of 1859 against a registered tenant (Patil Sahu v. Hari Mahanti, 5 C. W. N., 126).

172. When a tenure or holding is advertised for sale under this Chapter in execution of a decree against a superior tenant defaulting, and an inferior tenant, whose interest would be voidable upon the sale, pays money into Court in order to prevent the sale, he may, in addition to any other remedy provided for him by law, deduct the whole or any portion of the amount so paid from any rent payable by him to his immediate landlord; and that landlord, if he is not the defaulter, may in like manner deduct the amount so deducted from any rent payable by him to his immediate landlord, and so on until the defaulter is reached.

See note to preceding section, p. 503.

173. (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in section 294 of the Code of Civil Procedure, the holder of a decree in execution of which a tenure or holding is sold under this Chapter may, without the permission of the Court, bid for or purchase the tenure or holding.

Decree-holder may bid at sale; judgment-debtor may not.

XIV of 1882.

(2) The judgment-debtor shall not bid for or purchase a tenure or holding so sold.

(3) When a judgment-debtor purchases by himself or through another person a tenure or holding so sold, the Court may, if it thinks fit, on the application of the decree-holder or any other person interested in the sale, by order set aside the sale, and the costs of the application and order, and any deficiency of price which may happen on the re-sale, and all expenses attending it, shall be paid by the judgment-debtor.

Sub-section (1).—Section 294 of the Civil Procedure Code prohibits a decree-holder bidding for or purchasing property put up to sale in execution of his decree without the express permission of the Court. This sub-section removes this restriction so far as sales held in execution of rent decrees are concerned.

Sub-section (2).—A judgment-debtor bidding for or purchasing property in contravention of this sub-section renders himself liable to the penalty provided in sec. 185, Indian Penal Code.

Sub-section (3).—When the purchaser is found to be a mere benamidar for the judgment-debtor, the sale is only voidable and not absolutely void. The proper Court to determine whether the sale should stand or fall, is the Court that held the sale (Gopal Chandra Mitra v. Ram Lal Gosain, 21 Calc., 554). The decree-holder and all the judgment-debtors are necessary parties to proceedings under section 173, Bengal Tenancy Act (Mohima Chandra Neogi v. Jogendra Kumar Ghosh, 3 C. W. N., xiv). An attachment creditor has locus standi to apply to set aside a sale under sec. 173, cl. 3, as he is interested in the sale (Eastern Mortgage & Agency Co., v. Gobind Chandra Chaturji, 3 C. W. N., xiv).

Limitation.—An application to set aside a sale under sec. 173 is governed by art. 178, Sched. II of the Limitation Act and should be made within three years from the date when the right to apply accrues (Chand Mani Dasi v. Santo Mani Dasi, 24 Calc., 707 ; 1 C. W. N. 534).

Appeal.—No appeal lies from an order setting aside a sale under sec. 173 of the Bengal Tenancy Act (Raghu Singh v. Misri Singh, 21 Calc., 825). When an order has been made or setting aside a sale under section 173, Bengal Tenancy Act, no appeal can be preferred from such an order by the auction-purchaser, although an appeal might lie on behalf of the decree-holder or a co-judgment-debtor, and there is no real conflict between the cases of Raghu Singh v. Misri Singh, (21 Calc., 825) and Chand Mani v. Santo Mani, (24 Calc., 707, 1 C. W. N., 534), Mohima Chandra Neogi v. Jogendra Kumar Ghosh (3 C. W. N., xiv). See also Harabandhu Adhikari v. Harish Chandra De, (3 C. W. N., 184). An appeal will lie on behalf of the judgment-debtor, and when the appellant's case is that the purchase was made not by a third party but by some of the judgment-debtors benami in the name of the auction-purchaser, if that be proved, the case will come under sec. 244, C. P. C., and an appeal will lie (Sriram Chandra Singh v. Guru Das Kundu, 3 C. W. N., civ). Where the auction-purchaser is a third person and not the decree-holder and where upon an application being made by the judgment-debtor under sec. 310A, C. P. C., to set aside the sale, it is not contested by the decree-holder, so that no question arises between the decree-holder and the judgment-debtor, the order of the Court does not fall under s. 244, C. P. C., and is consequently not appealable (Amir Rai v. Basdeo Singh, 5 C. L. J., 204).

Second Appeal.—Where the auction-purchaser is a benamidar for the judgment-debtor in an application to set aside a sale under sec. 173 of the Tenancy Act and sec. 311, C. P. C., a second appeal lies to the High Court from the order made on the application, as the application is one under sec. 244 of the C. P. Code (Chand Mani Dasi v. Santo Mani Dasi, 24 Calc., 707 ; 1 C. W. N., 534). The purchaser of the interests of a judgment-debtor is his representative for the purpose of execution proceedings (Akshai Kumar Sur v. Bijai Chand, 29 Calc., 813).

174. (1) Where a tenure or holding is sold for an arrear of rent due thereon, then, at any time within thirty days from the date of sale, the judgment-debtor may apply to have the sale set aside, on his depositing in Court, for payment to the decree-holder, the amount recoverable under the decree with costs, and, for payment to the purchaser, a sum equal to five per centum of the purchase-money.

(2) If such deposit is made within the thirty days, the Court shall pass an order setting aside the sale, and the provisions of section 315 of the Code of Civil Procedure shall apply in the case of a sale so set aside :

Provided that, if a judgment-debtor applies under section 311 of the Code of Civil Procedure to set aside the sale of his tenure or holding, he shall not be entitled to make an application under this section, [and if he applies under this section, he shall not be entitled to make an application under section 311 of the Code of Civil Procedure.]

(3) Section 313 of the Code of Civil Procedure shall not apply to any sale under this Chapter.

The words in brackets were added to the proviso to sub-section 2 by s. 55, Act I, B. C., 1907.

This section does not confer a new right.—In Jagadanand Singh v. Amrita Lal Sarkar (22 Calc., 767), it was held by a Full Court that this section did not create a new right in a judgment-debtor, and is therefore applicable to proceedings in execution of a decree which had been passed before the Tenancy Act became law and that the provisions of sec. 310 A, C. P. C., are also applicable to such proceedings. See note to sec. 2 (4), pp. 11-14.

Meaning of "decree" in this section.—The word "decree" in this section primarily refers to the decree of which execution is sought. But if in the meantime, that is, before the sale is actually held, the decree of the Court of first instance is modified in appeal in favour of the judgment-debtor, then, necessarily the "decree" must be the decree of the appellate Court (Bhikhi Singh v. Bhanu Mahtan, 3 C. W. N., 231).

Sale in execution of decree for road-cess.—The provisions of sec. 174 are applicable to a sale held in execution of a decree for road-cess (Kishori Mohan Rai v. Sarodamoni Dasi, 1 C. W. N., 30).

Sub-section (1).—Who may deposit decretal amount and apply to have the sale set aside.—The term “judgment-debtor” used in this sub-section has been interpreted strictly as referring to the judgment-debtor alone and as not including a transferee or assignee from a judgment-debtor (Rajendra Narain Rai v. Phudi Mandal, 15 Calc., 482). But this decision is now of little practical importance, as it has been held in Janardan Ganguli v. Kali Krishna Thakur, (23 Calc., 393) that the provisions of sec. 310A of the Code of Civil Procedure are applicable to sales held in execution of rent decrees. The provisions of section 310A are new and were added to the Code of Civil Procedure by Act V of 1894. They allow “any person whose immoveable property has been sold in execution of a decree to apply to have the sale set aside on his depositing within 30 days of the sale the decretal amount and 5 p. c. of the purchase money.” The terms of sec. 310A are, therefore, much wider than those of sec. 174, and consequently practically supersede them. The decision in Janardan Ganguli v. Kali Krishna Thakur was followed in Banshidhar Haldar v. Kedur Nath Mandal (1 C. W. N., 114).

In an unreported case (Rule No. 269 of 1888, decided by Petheram, G. J., and Tottenham, J., on the 30th April, 1888), it was held that a judgment-debtor can apply under this section for the setting aside of a sale, even when the sale has taken place in execution of a decree for arrears of rent obtained against him by a co-sharer landlord, in which case under the old law only the rights and interests of the judgment-debtor were sold, and not the tenure or holding itself. But in a later case, also unreported, Kailash Kumini Debi v. Umar Mandal (S. A., No. 443 of 1892), it was decided, following the ruling in Beni Madhub Rai v. Jaod Ali Sarkar, 17 Calc., 390, vide, pp. 379, 396), to the effect that an attachment of a tenure or holding in execution of a decree obtained by a fractional co-sharer for arrears of the rent of his separate share is not an attachment under sec. 170 of this Act, that, when a tenure is sold in execution of a decree obtained by one of several joint landlords for his share of the rent of the tenure, the tenant is not entitled to avail himself of the privilege conferred by this section and to ask that the sale may be set aside on his payment of the amount recoverable under the decree and costs and a sum equal to 5 p. c. upon the purchase-money. The question is, however, now of less importance than formerly, for it would seem that, if a tenant under such circumstances cannot apply under sec. 174 of this Act, he can always do so under sec. 310A of the Code of Civil Procedure and obtain the same relief as he would have obtained, if sec. 174 had been applicable. A benamidar of a person whose property has been sold has a right to apply to have the sale set aside under sec. 310A, C. P. C. (Basi Poddar v. Ram Krishna Poddar, 1 C. W. N., 135; Paresh Nath Singh v. Nobo Gopal Chattopadhyay, 5 C. W. N., 821; 29 Calc., 1). A purchaser who claims to be a purchaser of a tenure prior to attachment from a judgment-debtor whose interest in the tenure has been sold in execution of a decree for its own arrears of rent is entitled to apply under sec. 311 of the Code of Civil Procedure to set aside the sale (Abhai Dasi v. Padmo Lochan Mandal, 22 Calc., 802). A person who acquired an interest in a property before the judgment-debtor became liable can apply under sec. 310A, C. P. C. (Banshidhar Halder v. Kedar Nath Mandal, 1 C. W. N., 114), but not a purchaser at a private sale from the judgment-debtor after sale in execution (Hazari Ram v. Badai Ram, 1 C. W. N., 279). A mortgagee, whether by a simple mortgage or a mortgage by conditional sale of a tenure or holding sold in execution of arrears of rent due in respect of it, is a person "whose immoveable property has been sold" and can apply under sec. 310A. (Paresh Nath Singh v. Nobo Gopal Chattopadhyay, 5 C. W. N., 821; 29 Calc., 1). So can an under-raiyat (Chandra Kumar Nath v. Kamini Kumar Ghosh, 11 C. W. N., 742). The purchaser of a share of an occupancy holding transferable by custom can apply under sec. 310A, (Binodini Dasi v. Piari Mohan Halder, 8 C. W. N., 55; Kunjo Bihari Mandal v. Sambhu Chandra Rai, 8 C. W. N., 232). When a mokarari tenure is sold in execution of a decree for arrears of rent, a dar-mokaridar has a right to come in and make a deposit under s. 310A, C. P. C., (Narain Mandal v. Sourindra Mohan Tagore, 32 Calc., 107). A person who holds a howla within an osat taluk, which has been sold free from incumbrances in execution of a decree for arrears has no right to apply under sec. 310A for setting aside the sale. (Administrator General of Bengal v. Mohamed Khalil, 5 C. W. N., cxxxii). An under-raiyat cannot make a deposit and apply under sec. 310A, to have a sale of a holding set aside (Abid Mollah v. Diljan Mollah, 29 Calc., 459).

BUT by the addition now made to sec. 170 by s. 54, Act I, B. C., of 1907, which renders inapplicable the provisions of sec. 310A, C. P. C., to sales in execution of rent decrees, where Act I, B. C., of 1907 is in force, & c, in Bengal, most of these rulings are no longer good law. (See note, pp. 499-501).

Amount deposited cannot be rateably distributed.—Sec. 295, C. P. C., which provides for the rateable distribution of assets realised by sale or otherwise does not apply to a deposit made by a judgment-debtor either under sec. 174 of the Tenancy Act or under sec. 310A, C. P. C., (Bihari Lal Pal v. Gopal Lal Sil, 1 C. W. N., 695). The words "payable to the decree-holder" mean that he is the person solely entitled to the money paid into Court (Roshan Lal v. Ram Lal Mallik, 30 Calc., 262 ; 7 C. W. N., 341).

Sub-section (2).—How and when deposit may be made and its effect.—The deposit under sec. 174 of the Tenancy Act must be of such a nature as to be at once payable to the parties, and a Court has no power under that section to set aside a sale unless the judgment-debtor has strictly complied with its provisions. A deposit made in the shape of Government promissory notes is not good. The deposit should be made in the currency of the country (Rahim Baksh v. Nando Lal Gossami, 14 Calc., 321). A deposit under sec. 174 must be such as the decree-holder may draw out at once. A deposit not made payable to the decree-holder until a certain event has happened is not a good deposit (Shakoti v. Jotindro Mohan Tagore, 1 C. W. N., 132). But in a subsequent case it was held that a deposit, with regard to which it was subsequently applied that it should be retained in Court pending the disposal of an application under sec. 108 C. P. C., was a valid deposit (Hanuman Singh v. Lachman Sahu, 8 C. W. N., 355). The whole of the debt, the expenses, and the damages which the purchaser has sustained must be deposited in Court ; so that the Court may know of its own knowledge that the provisions of the section have been complied with (Kabilaso Kuar v. Raghu Nath Saran Singh, 18 Calc., 481). If the Court be closed on or before the last day of the period limited, the judgment-debtor may pay the amount into Court on the first day the Court re-opens, notwithstanding the absence of any express provision to this effect (Sashi Bhushan Rudro v. Govind Chandra Rai, 18 Calc., 231). See also sec. 10, Act X of 1897. The words "date of sale" in sec. 310A, C. P. C. mean the actual date of sale (Kesa Sahai Singh v. Giani Rai, 6 C. W. N., 776). If the amount payable has been calculated and settled by an officer of the Court and that amount has been paid into Court, an order setting aside the sale must be made as a matter of right, even though the amount is short by a small sum (Ugruh Lal v. Radha Prasad Singh, 18 Calc., 255). This was followed in Abdul Latif v. Jadab Chandra Mitra, (25 Calc., 216) and Fakir v. Biraj Mohini Dasi, (11 C. W. N., 116). The same rule applies to amounts deposited under the provisions of sec. 310A, C. P. C. (Mukbul Ahmed v. Bazal Sobhan Chaudhri 25 Calc., 609). But in Chandi Charan Mandal v. Banka Bihari Lal, (26 Calc., 449), it was ruled by a Full Bench that where the judgment-debtor has not within thirty days from the date of sale deposited in Court a sum equal to 5 p. c., of the purchase-money and the amount specified in the proclamation of sale, but has deposited in Court a sum calculated by some officer of the Court as the sum to be deposited in respect of such 5 p. c. and of the sum specified in such proclamation of sale, and there is nothing to show that there was any mistake of the Court by which the judgment-debtor was induced to deposit an insufficient amount, the sale ought not to be set aside. When a deposit has been duly made and an order setting aside the sale has been passed, a further order under sec. 315 of the Code of Civil Procedure directing the return of the purchase-money to the purchaser should be given. This order under sec. 315 of the Civil Procedure Code may be enforced as a decree for money.

Notice to purchaser.—An auction-purchaser is entitled to a notice before an order under sec. 310A for setting aside a sale is made (Janardan Ganguli v. Kali Krishna Thakur, 23 Calc., 396; Banshidhar Haldar v. Kedar Nath Mandal, 1 C. W. N., 114). But see Bhairab Pal v. Prem Chand Ghosh, (1 C. W. N., clxi).

Sub-section (2). Proviso.—Section 311 of the Code of Civil Procedure allows an application to be made for the setting aside of a sale on the ground of material irregularity in publishing and conducting it by the decree-holder or any person whose immoveable property has been sold, provided the applicant proves that he has sustained substantial injury by reason of the irregularity, and this has been held to apply also to sales taking place in execution of rent decrees (Azizunnissa Khatun v. Gora Chand Das, 7 Calc., 163). In Rajendro Nath Haldar v. Nil Ratan Mitra, (23 Calc., 958), it was ruled that when an applicant had made an application under sec. 310A, Act XIV of 1882, he could not immediately afterwards make an application under sec. 311 of the same Act, so as to carry on simultaneously applications under both sections. The provisions of sec. 310A are almost exactly the same as those of the proviso to sub-section (2): so this ruling would seem also to preclude applications under sec. 174 of this Act and sec. 311, C.P. C., being carried on simultaneously.

This has now been provided for by the addition to the proviso made by s. 55, Act I, B. C., of 1907, which meets the converse case to that already dealt with in the proviso.

In the Notes on Clauses of the Bill of 1906, it was said :

“ Under section 174, as at present framed, there is nothing to prevent a tenant from applying to have a sale set aside, by paying the decretal amount and subsequently claiming, under section 311 of the Code of Civil Procedure, that the sale was invalid. It is clearly inequitable that the tenant should be allowed to have recourse to a double procedure in applying to have a sale set aside, and the proposed addition to section 174 will prevent this."

Sub-section (3).—Section 313 allows of applications to set aside sales on the ground of the persons whose property has been sold having no saleable interest therein. Sales of tenures or holdings cannot be set aside on this ground, as "the rent is a first charge" upon them (sec. 65), and they are liable to be sold for arrears of rent due in respect of them, no matter in whose hands they may be at the time of their sale. The persons in possession of the property, or whose property has been sold, have their remedy in sec. 335 of the Code, or by means of a regular suit.

No appeal lies.—An order under sec. 174 is not appealable, as it is not one under sec. 244, C. P. C. (Kishori Mohan Rai v. Sarodu Mani Das, 1 C. W. N., 30), and not being a proceeding for the execution of of a decree (Subh Narain Lal v. Gorak Prasad, 3 C. W. N., 344). Neither is an order under sec. 310A appealable when it only decides a question between the auction-purchaser and judgment-debtor (Bansidhar Haldar v. Kedar Nuth Mandal, 1 C. W. N., 114). It is appealable when it decides a question between decree-holder and judgment-debtor (Kripa Nath Pal v. Ram Laksmi Dasya, 1 C. W. N., 703 ; Phul Chand Rai v. Narsingh Misra, 28 Calc., 73). When the auction-purchaser is a stranger, sec. 622 C. P. C., applies (Kedar Nuth Sen v. Uma Charan, 6 C. W. N., 57).

The purchaser of the interest of a judgment-debtor is his representative for the purpose of execution proceedings (Akhai Kumar Sur v. Bijai Chand, 29 Calc., 813).

No charge on property for amount paid to set aside sale.—Where the plaintiffs and defendants were co-tenants of two jotes, which were sold in execution of a decree for rent, and the plaintiffs paid the decretal amount and auction-purchaser's fees, and had the sale set aside, it was held that the plaintiffs had not, besides their right to contribution personally, a right to a charge on the property so far as the share of their co-tenants was concerned for the amount paid by them (Gopi Nath Bagdi v. Ishar Chandra Bagdi, 22 Calc., 800). A mortgagee making a payment under sec. 310A to save a mortgaged property from being sold in execution of a rent decree has an additional lien on the property for the sum so paid by him (Rakhohari Chatteraj v. Bipra Das De, 31 Calc., 975).

How an order under this section can be set aside.—No suit is maintainable to set aside a sale under the provisions of this section (Kabilaso Koer v. Raghu Nath Saran Singh, 18 Calc., 481). The propriety of an order refusing to set aside a sale can be called in question by an application under sec. 622 of the Civil Procedure Code (unreported case, Rule No. 269 of 1888, decided by Petheram, C. J., and Tottenham, J. on the 30th April, 1888; Rahim Baksh v. Nando Lal Gossami, 14 Calc., 321; and Jaggabandhu Patak v. Jadu Ghosh Alkushi, 15 Calc., 47. See also Debo Das v. Ram Charan Das, 2 C. W. N., 477, and note "No Appeal lies," p. 404.

175. Notwithstanding anything contained in Part IV of the Indian Registration Act, 1877, an instrument creating an incumbrance upon any tenure or holding which has been executed before the commencement of this Act, and is not required by section 17 of the said Registration Act to be registered, shall be accepted for registration under that Act if it is presented for that purpose to the proper officer within one year from the commencement of this Act.

Part IV of the Registration Act deals with "the time of presentation." The date of the commencement of this Act is the 1st November 1885. See note to sec. 1 (2), p. 4.

176. Every officer who has, whether before or after the passing of this Act, registered an instrument executed by a tenant of a tenure or holding and creating an incumbrance on the tenure or holding, shall, at the request of the tenant or of the person in whose favour the incumbrance is created, and on payment by him of such fee as the Local Government may fix in this behalf, notify the incumbrance to the landlord by causing a copy of the instrument to be served on him in the prescribed manner.

Rules 11, 12 and 13 of the rules framed by the Registration Department under this Act prescribe how applications under this section are to be dealt with. The process fees payable for notifying the incumbrance to the landlord are those fixed by rules 1 to 4 of Chap. VII of the Government rules under this Act, and the copy of the incumbrance should be served on the landlord in the manner prescribed by rule 3, Chap. I of the same rules.

177. Nothing contained in this Chapter shall be deemed to enable a person to create an incumbrance which he could not otherwise lawfully create.

Power to create incumbrances not extended.

CHAPTER XV.

CONTRACT AND CUSTOM.

178. (1) Nothing in any contract between a landlord and a tenant made before or after the passing of this Act—

Restrictions on exclusion of Act by agreement.

- (a) shall bar in perpetuity the acquisition of an occupancy-right in land, or
- (b) shall take away an occupancy-right in existence at the date of the contract, or
- (c) shall entitle a landlord to eject a tenant otherwise than in accordance with the provisions of this Act, or
- (d) shall take away or limit the right of a tenant, as provided by this Act, to make improvements and claim compensation for them.

(2) Nothing in any contract made between a landlord and a tenant since the 15th day of July, 1880, and before the passing of this Act, shall prevent a raiyat from acquiring, in accordance with this Act, an occupancy-right in land.

(3) Nothing in any contract made between a landlord and a tenant after the passing of this Act shall—

- (a) prevent a raiyat from acquiring, in accordance with this Act, an occupancy-right in land ;
- (b) take away or limit the right of an occupancy-raiyat to use land as provided by section 23 ;

- (c) take away the right of a raiyat to surrender his holding in accordance with section 86 ;
- (d) take away the right of a raiyat to transfer or bequeath his holding in accordance with local usage ;
- (e) take away the right of an occupancy-raiyat to sub-let subject to, and in accordance with, the provisions of this Act ;
- (f) take away the right of a raiyat to apply for a reduction of rent under section 38 or section 52 ;
- (g) take away the right of a landlord or a tenant to apply for a commutation of rent under section 40 ; or
- (h) affect the provisions of section 67 relating to interest payable on arrears of rent :

Provided as follows :—

- (i) nothing in this section shall affect the terms or conditions of a lease granted bona fide for the reclamation of waste land, except that, where, on or after the expiration of the term created by the lease, the lessee would, under Chapter V, be entitled to an occupancy-right in the land comprised in the lease, nothing in the lease shall prevent him from acquiring that right ;
- (ii) when a landlord has reclaimed waste land by his own servants or hired labourers, and subsequently lets the same or a part thereof to a raiyat, nothing in this Act shall affect the terms of any contract whereby a raiyat is prevented from acquiring an occupancy-right in the land or part during a period of thirty years from the date on which the land or part is first let to a raiyat ;

- (iii) nothing in this section shall affect the terms or conditions of any contract for the temporary cultivation of [horticultural or] orchard land with agricultural crops.

[Explanation.—The expression “horticultural land” as used in proviso (iii) means garden land in the occupation of a proprietor or permanent tenure-holder, which is used bonâ fide for the cultivation of flowers or vegetables, or both, grown for the personal use of such proprietor or permanent tenure-holder and his family, and not for profit or sale.]

The words in brackets in proviso (iii) and the explanation have been inserted and added by s. 56, Act I, B. C., 1907.

Sub-section (1). Clause (a)—Section 7 of Act X of 1859 and of Act VIII, B. C., of 1869 provides that nothing in sec. 6 of these Acts, (the section prescribing that raiyats cultivating or holding land for twelve years shall have a right of occupancy in such land), shall affect the terms of any written contract for the cultivation of land entered into between a land-holder and a raiyat, when it contains any express stipulation contrary thereto. But these provisions have been wholly superseded by sec. 178 of this Act (Bengal Indigo Co, v. Raghubar Das, 24 Calc., 272 ; L. R., 23 I. A., 158 ; 1 C. W. N., 83). An agreement made before the passing of the Bengal Tenancy Act between a landlord and his tenant, which bars the acquisition of the right of occupancy during the lifetime of the tenant, does not come within the prohibitory terms of section 178 (3), clause (a) of the Act, nor does it come within the terms of section 178 (1) clause (a) of that Act. Where before the passing of the Bengal Tenancy Act a landlord entered into an agreement with his tenant and the defendant that the former would hold certain lands under him for her life and that after her death the landlord would take khas possession of them and that her heirs, that is, the defendant or her heirs, would never raise any objection or prefer any sort of claim to them : Held, that it was a valid contract under section 7, Act VIII of 1869 (B. C.), that the tenant during her lifetime was not an occupancy raiyat and that the defendant, who claimed to be the heir of the tenant never having been recognized by the landlord as tenant, was a trespasser (Baul Chandra Chakravartti v. Nistarini Debi, 33 Calc., 136 ; 10 C. W. N., 533).

Sub-section (1). Clause (b).—In a suit commenced before the passing of the Tenancy Act and brought to eject certain defendants in accordance with the terms of a solehnamah, or agreement, entered into between the plaintiff and the defendants, and in which the latter had agreed to hold a certain specified area for a term of five years, which term had expired, and in which the lower Courts found that as regards a certain portion of the land in question, the defendants had acquired occupancy rights before the alleged solehnamah was executed, it was held that the tenants could not get the benefit of sec. 178. The Court (Tottenham and Norris, JJ.), in this case said :—"We think that in this suit which commenced before the new Tenancy Act came into force, the tenant cannot get the benefit of sec. 178. We think that the point to be looked at was, what was the right of the tenant at the time the suit was brought. At the time the suit was brought there was nothing to prevent his contracting himself out of his rights." (Maheshwar Prasad Narain Singh v. Sheobaran Mahto, 14 Calc 621). But this case was decided before the Full Bench case of Deb Narain Datta v. Narendro Krishna (16 Calc., 267), and would seem not to be in accordance with the principles laid down in it ; for sub-section (1), clause (b), of sec. 178 does affect a substantive right, and from the words "any contract made between a landlord and a tenant before or after the passing of this Act, it would appear that it was expressly intended that this clause should have retrospective effect. See note to sec. 2, p. 12.

Sub-section (1). Clause (c).—This clause "makes it clear that under the present rent law in all cases to which it applies there can no longer be any eviction on the ground of forfeiture incurred by denying the title of the landlord." (Debirudin v. Abdur Rahim, 17 Calc., 196.) See note to sec. 89, p. 274. A stipulation in a lease to the effect that the lessee shall not purchase the jote rights of any tenant, and that, if he does so, the purchase shall be null and void, and that on expiry of the term of the lease, the lessor shall be entitled to ekhas possession is valid and in no way contrary to public policy (Watson & Co. v. Ram Chandra Datta, 1 C. W. N., 174). In a case in which it was sought to eject a tenant from certain homestead land held as part of a raiyati holding under a lease which contained a stipulation that the tenant would quit whenever the landlord called upon him to do so, it was ruled that sec. 44 cl. (c) only applies when the lease is granted for a fixed term, and that under sec. 178, sub-section 1 cl. (c), the stipulation in the lease could not be enforced (Nando Kumar Guha v. Kali Kumudin Haji, 3 C. W. N., xlvii).

Sub-section (2).—The 15th July, 1880, mentioned in this sub-section, is the date of the publication by the Government of Bengal of the Rent Law Commissioner's Report and Draft Bill. The date of the passing of the Act is the 14th March, 1885.

Sub-section (3). Clause (d).—A transfer of a tenure made in terms of the provisions of this Act is not binding on the landlord if there be a contract between the landlord and the tenant that the transfer shall not be valid and binding until security to the satisfaction of the landlord has been furnished by the transferee, and such security has not been furnished. Sec. 178 does not deal with this matter (Dinabandhu Rai v. W. C. Bonerjee, 19 Calc., 774).

Sub-section (3). Clause (h).—A tenant before the passing of the Tenancy Act executed a kabulyat agreeing to pay interest on arrears at a higher rate than 12 p. c., p. a. In execution of a decree for arrears, his holding was put up to sale and purchased by the defendant. The landlord then sued the purchaser for arrears and interest at the rate stipulated for in his predecessor's kabulyat. It was held that the plaintiff was not entitled to a higher rate of interest than that allowed by sec. 67 of the Act, as the stipulation to pay a higher rate, though it might have been binding on the former tenant so long as he held the land, was not an ordinary incident of the holding and did not attach to the land so as to bind the defendant who purchased the holding at the sale (Alim v. Sotish Chandra Chaturdhurin, 24 Calc., 37). This clause is applicable to contracts entered into after the passing of the Act, viz, 14th March 1885, and parties cannot contract themselves out of the provisions in s. 67 which limits interest to simple interest at 12 p. c., p. a. by the device of making the rent payable otherwise than quarterly. Such a contract is not enforceable in so far as it may provide for payment of interest at a rate higher than 12 p. c. (Narendra Kumar Ghosh v. Gora Chand, 33 Calc., 683). See note to sec. 67, p. 221.

Proviso (iii). Horticultural.—In the Notes on Clauses of the Bill of 1906 it was said :

"It seems reasonable that proviso (iii) to section 178 should be extended to horticultural land, temporarily let out for the cultivation of ordinary crops. If a tenant is given a temporary lease of such lands, he should not be allowed to retain them after the expiry of the lease, on the plea that occupancy rights have accrued."

This necessitated a definition of the meaning of "horticultural," which has been given in the "Explanation".

Contracts for payment of rent.—A contemporaneous oral agreement cannot be proved to shew that the rent is less than what is stated in the registered kabulyat (Radha Raman Chaudhuri v. Bhawani Prasad Bhuiumik, 6 C. W. N., 60). Where one of several joint tenants executed a kabulyat for the entire tenure and it was found that the other tenants did not acquiesce in, and were not bound by it, held that the tenant executing the kabulyat was not liable for the whole rent or for more than his share of it (Ram Taran Chatturji v. Asmatullah, 6 C. W. N., 111).

179. Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to prevent a proprietor or a holder of a permanent tenure in a permanently-settled area from granting a permanent mukarrari lease on any terms agreed on between him and his tenant.

Proprietors have power by sec. 2, Reg. V of 1812 and sec. 2, Reg. XVIII of 1812 to grant leases for any period, even to perpetuity, and at any rent which they may deem most conducive to their interests. This power is now extended to permanent tenure-holders, but not to other classes of tenants.

This section controls sec. 67.—This section controls sec. 67; so that a lease of a dur-patni taluk, created on the 13th February, 1886, i. e., after the Tenancy Act had come into operation, by the terms of which the defendant was bound to pay rent in monthly instalments, and, if not so paid, to pay interest at the rate of 1 p. c., per mensem, is not affected by the provisions of sec. 67 read with those of sec. 178 (3) (h), being a permanent lease granted by a permanent tenure-holder in a permanently settled area (Atulya Charan Basu v. Tulsi Das Sarkar, 2 C. W. N., 543). But the contrary was laid down in Rasanta Kumar Rai Chaudhuri v. Promotha Nath Bhattacharjee, (26 Calc., 130; 3 C. W. N., 36), in which it was held "that a contract by a tenant holding under a permanent mukarrari lease to pay interest on the arrears of rent at a higher rate than 12 per cent. per annum is not enforceable in law." The conflict between these two rulings was referred to a Full Bench by which it was settled that sec. 179 does control sec. 67, and that the latter of the two cases referred to above was wrongly decided (Matangini Debi v. Makrura Bibi, 5 C. W. N., 438; 29 Calc., 674; Alimunnissa Chaudhūrani v. Shama Charan Rai, 32 Calc., 749; 9 C. W. N., 466; 1 C. L. J. 176). An auction-purchaser of a dar-patni tenure is bound by a stipulation contained in the dar-patni lease as to the payment of interest on the arrears of rent, such a stipulation, where there is nothing unusual in it, being part of the ordinary incidents of a tenure (Raj Narain Mitra v. Panna Chand Singh, 30 Calc., 213). See note, p. 224.

This section controls sec. 74.—In a suit for arrears of chaukidari tax payable by a patnidar under the patni settlement, the defence was that it was an abwab or illegal cess, and therefore, could not be recovered in consequence of the provisions of sec. 74 of the Act. It was held that it was not an abwab, and, therefore, that it was unnecessary to consider the effect of sec. 179 of this Act. It was, however, said that "there is no doubt some repugnancy between this section and sec. 74 of the Act, but whether, following the principle enunciated by the Lord Justice James in Ebbs v. Boulnois, (10 Ch., App., 479 (484)), we regard the latter, which is a special provision, as a qualification of the former, which is a general one, or adopting the rules stated by Keating, J., in Wood v. Riley (L. R., 3 C. P., 26 (27)) that of two repugnant clauses in a statute the last must prevail, give effect to the latter, there seems to be good reason for thinking that sec. 179 is not controlled by sec. 74" (Ahsanullah Khan v. Tirthubashini, 22 Calc., 680). This was followed in Krishna Chandra Sen v. Sushila Sundari, 26 Calc., 611; 3 C. W. N., 608, in which it was decided that a stipulation for the payment of an abwab in a permanent mukarrari lease is valid and sec. 74 does not control sec. 179. Where a permanent tenancy was created by a lease dated 1860, i. e., before the passing of this Act, the provisions of s. 179 will not apply and the landlord cannot recover any abwab from the tenant (Apurna Charan Ghosh v. Karam Ali, 4 C. L. J., 527). See note, p. 246.

and diara lands.

180. (1) Notwithstanding anything in this Act, a raiyat—

- (a) who, in any part of the country where the custom of utbandi prevails, holds land ordinarily let under that custom and for the time being let under that custom, or,

(b) who holds land of the kind known as chur or diara, shall not acquire a right of occupancy—in case (a), in land ordinarily held under the custom of utbandi and for the time being held under that custom, or in case (b), in the chur or diara land, until he has held the land in question for twelve continuous years; and, until he acquires a right of occupancy in the land, he shall be liable to pay such rent for his holding as may be agreed on between him and his landlord.

(2) Chapter VI shall not apply to raiyats holding land under the custom of utbandi in respect of land held by them under that custom.

(3) The Collector may, on the application of either the landlord or the tenant or on a reference from the Civil Court, declare that any land has ceased to be chur or diara land within the meaning of this section, and thereupon all the provisions of this Act shall apply to the land.

Utbandi tenancies.—An utbandi tenancy is a tenancy from year to year, sometimes from season to season, the rent being regulated, not as in the case of halhasili by a lump payment in money for the land cultivated, but by the appraisement of the crop on the ground, and according to its character. So far it resembles the tenancy by crop appraisement of the bhaoli system; but there is between them this marked difference that, while in the latter the land does not change hands from year to year, in the former it may. (See Selections from papers relating to the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, p. 371). The term utbandi is said to be due to the fact that under this system of tenancy the land at the end of the season or of the period of the lease may lie fallow on account of the exhaustion of its strength or because no one has come forward to take it. The system prevails in the districts of 24-Parganas, Nuddea, Jessore, Khulna, Murshidabad and also Pubna. (See letter from the Commissioner of the Presidency division, 24 R. L., dated 17th Sept, 1884, printed at p. 183 of the Bengal Government's report on the Bengal Tenancy Bill, 1884, Vol. II). The cases in which this system of tenancy has been noticed are as follows. In Kenny v. Ishar Chandra Poddar, (W. R., Sp. No., 1864, Act X, 9), it is pointed out that the utbandi system prevails in the district of Nuddea and the utbandi raiyat is not a continuing tenant, but cultivates only a piece of land in one year, and another, the next. In Mirzin Biswas v. Hills (3 W. R., Act X, 159), it is said :—"There exists in the district of Kishnagar a custom, under which tenants can cultivate land, which is not directly let out to other tenants, but remains khas khamar on payment of certain high rates of rent. In the case of such tenants, there exists an implied agreement between the parties, that such rent shall be paid ; and the amount of land so cultivated and the rent to be paid for it are ascertained each year by actual measurement. The lands in question are called utbandi lands, and the rates are calculated at what are called utbandi rates." Again, in Dwarka Nath Misra v. Nabo Sardar, (14 W. R., 193), Jackson, J., observed—"Some little confusion appears to me to have been introduced into the case by the use of the term utbandi. So far as my experience and knowledge of the matter go, an utbandi tenure is one by which a raiyat holds a certain area of land (which I believe is usually defined), but for which he pays rent according to the quantity of that land which year by year he cultivates. The rent will, therefore, vary according to the actual cultivated area ; but I am not aware that there is any authority for saying that a landlord is at liberty to vary at his pleasure the rate at which a tenant holding an utbandi tenure pays for the land which he cultivates, due notice being served on him under sec. 13, Act X of 1859,"

In the case of Premanand Ghosh v. Surendra Nath Rai, (20 W. R., 329) the jote in question was a nuksan jote, which was said to be very much the same as utbandi and it was ruled that occupancy rights could be acquired in such jotes, if held for twelve years, although the tenant under the custom of the locality only paid rent for the years when he could cultivate the land. But in Beni Madhub Chakravartii v. Bhuban Mohan Biswas, (17 Calc., 393), it was decided that under sec. 180 of this Act a right of occupancy cannot be gained in a piece of land held on the utbandi system, if the possession of the land has not been continuous, though it may have commenced more than twelve years previously. In this case it was remarked :—"Section 180 of the Bengal Tenancy Act prohibits the acquisition of an occupancy right in land ordinarily let under the custom of utbandi until that particular land has been held for twelve years continuously. In this respect utbandi land is dealt with in the Act differently from ordinary rayati land in which by sec. 21 a settled raiyat has a right of occupancy, no matter how short a time he has held it. Now, it is necessary to enquire what this utbandi system really is ; for there seems to have been some difference of opinion regarding it and perhaps in fact the incidents of that system do vary in different places. Several Judges who have sat in this Court have stated their own opinions on this subject, and their opinions have not been quite uniform. Perhaps our safest guide in the matter is what is to be found in special reports made by Revenue Officers, and in the descriptions given in the Statistical Account of Bengal compiled by Sir W. W. Hunter from information carefully collected through local officers in the districts where the system exists. When the present Bengal Tenancy Act was under consideration by the Select Committee of the Legislative Council, a memorandum by Mr. Cotton, then a Secretary to the Board of Revenue, was submitted by the Government of Bengal for the information of the Select Committee. Mr. Cotton here reports upon the utbandi system and transcribes the passages describing it in the Statistical Account of Bengal in the districts of Nuddea, Jessore, Moorsshedabad and Pabna ; and he sums up the results. We quote the passage in the Statistical Report relating to the utbandi system in Nuddea :—‘ Utbandi is applied to land held for a year, or rather for a season only. The general custom is for the husbandman to get verbal permission to cultivate a certain amount of land in a particular place at a rate agreed upon. When the crop is on the ground the land is measured and the rent is assessed on it’ Mr. Cotton says, too, that the utbandi raiyat abandons altogether (i. e., has no right to claim again) any land, except such as he has under cultivation in any given year. The zamindar may let in juma to some one any land which the utbandi raiyat has not got under cultivation in any year. Again, in September, 1884, the Commissioner of the Presidency division submitted to Government an analysis of the reports of his district-officers regarding utbandi tenures. The Collector of Nuddea stated that cultivators who take such lands are not obliged to cultivate them a second year ; but as a rule they can keep them for certain for three years, if they elect to do so. Generally, the lands under this system are cultivated from one to five years, and then left fallow for the same period. The cultivators acquire no right of occupancy, nor do they desire to do so. These descriptions of utbandi do seem to refer rather to particular areas taken for cultivation for limited periods and then given up, than to holdings of which parts are cultivated and other parts lie fallow, while the rent for the whole is assessed year by year with reference to the quantity within the holding under cultivation in that year. A holding of the latter description hardly seems to answer to the general conception of utbandi, although the rent may be arrived at each year by ascertaining what area has been cultivated. It is not clear to which description the four bighas of the present suit belong, whether they are part of a larger holding once settled with the plaintiff, or whether they form a separate holding which he has from time to time cultivated on the utbandi system during a period which has covered more than twelve years. If it is the former case, his right of occupancy would seem to be complete, but if it is the latter case, we are not prepared to hold that cultivation at various times and under separate agreements on each occasion, such periods not being continuous, although of the same piece of land, would confer the right upon the ground that the first of such periods commenced more than twelve years before the alleged dispossession."

No notice of abandonment need be given.—No notice is required to be given by the tenant to the landlord in abandoning an utbandi tenure, as it is a settlement for a year only (Amrita Lal Mukhurji v. Giridhar Ghosh, 5 C. L. J., 398; 11 C. W. N., 581).

Chur or diara land.—The expression chur or dearah land has not been defined in the Act, but chur, (or properly char) means a sand-bank formed in a river, or which has accreted to its bank; while dearah (properly diara) means an island formed in the bed of a river. (See Wilson's Glossary). The presumption, which is created by section 20, clause (7) of the Act is applicable cannot be applied to land to which section 180 of that Act. In dearah or chur land the person who alleges that he has been for twelve continuous years in possession, must prove that allegation. Held, further, that section 4 of Regulation XI of 1825, cannot apply. The tenants being held to be annual tenants and there being no pre-existing right to the land in the tenants to which any right to the later accretion can be said to be annexed. (Beni Prasad Koeri v. Chaturi Tewari, 33 Calc., 444).

181. Nothing in this Act shall affect any incident
Saving as to service tenures. of a ghatwali or other service tenure, or, in particular, shall confer a right to transfer or bequeath a service-tenure which, before the passing of this Act, was not capable of being transferred or bequeathed.

Ghatwali tenures.—Ghatwali tenures may be divided into two classes, viz., (1) tenures granted for a species of military service to be rendered by guarding the ghats or passes on the western frontier of Bengal, and (2) tenures granted on condition of rendering Police service. In their judgment in the case of Manoranjan Singh v. Lilanand Singh, (3 W. R. 84), which related to a Kharakpore ghatwali tenure, Trevor and Campbell, JJ., observed that there appears to be "a considerable variety in the tenures known under the general name of ghatwali in different parts of the country. They all agree in this that they are grants of land situated on the edge of the hilly country and held on condition of guarding the ghats or passes. Generally, there seems to be a small quit-rent payable to the zamindar in addition to the service rendered, and with the view of marking the subordination of the tenure. But in some zamindaries and patnies these tenures are of a major, in others, of a minor, character. Sometimes, the tenure of the great zamindar himself seems to have been originally of this character. More frequently large tenures consisting of several whole villages are held under the zamindar. In other places, e. g., in Bishenpore, as explained by Harrington (Analysis, Vol. III, p. 510), the sardar and superior ghatwals have small and specific portions of land in different villages assigned for their maintenance. These last, says Harrington, are analogous to the chakaran assignments of land to village watchmen in other districts. But he goes on to explain that the ghatwali tenure differed essentially from the common chakaran in two respects :—First—that the land is not liable to resumption at the discretion of the landholder, nor the assessment to be raised beyond the established rule ; and secondly, that although the grant is not expressly hereditary, and the ghatwal be removeable for misconduct, it is the general usage on the death of a faithful ghatwal to appoint his son, if competent, or some other fit person in his family, to succeed to the office." In the case of Lilanand Singh v. Manoranjan Singh (3 Calc, 251), Garth, C. J., remarked that "these tenures were created by the Mahomedan Government in early times as a means of providing a police and military force to watch and guard the mountain passes from the invasions of the lawless tribes who inhabited the hill districts. Large grants of land were made in those days by the Government, often to persons of high rank, at a low rent or at no rent at all, upon condition that they should provide and maintain a sufficient military force, to protect the inhabitants of the plains from these lawless incursions ; and the grantees on their part sub-divided and re-granted the lands to other tenants (much in the same way as military tenures were created in England in the feudal age), each of whom, besides paying generally a small rent, held their lands in consideration of these military services, and provided (each according to the extent of his holding) a specified number of armed men to fulfil the requirements of the Government." Ghatwali tenures originated in Tappah Sarath or Sewrath, Deogarh, which was formerly part of the Birbhum District, but which has now been incorporated with the Sonthal Parganas District. The Birbhum ghatwali tenures, have formed the subject of legislation (Reg. XXIX of 1814 and Act V of 1859). Ghatwali tenures are also to be found in the districts of Bankura, Bhagalpore, Monghyr, Manbhum, Purneah and Patna. The following rulings relating to such tenures are arranged according to the districts to which the disputed tenures belonged.

Birbhum ghatwali tenures.—The ghatwals of Birbhum are possessed of estates of inheritance without the power of alienation, and this estate cannot be void so long as they perform all the obligations of service and payment of rent incident to their tenures. A perpetual sub-lease granted bona fide by a ghatwal will be good not only during the tenancy of the grantee but after his decease during the tenancy of his heirs (Deputy Commissioner of Birbhum v. Rango Lal Deo, W. R., F. B., No., 34 ; Jogendra Nath Singh v. Kali Charan Rai, 9 C. W. N., 663.) But a different rule on this latter point was laid down in subsequent cases (Grant v. Bangshi Deo, 15 W. R., 38 : 6 B. L. R., 652 ; Jogeshwar Sarkar v. Nimai Karmakar, 1 B. L. R., s. n., vii ; and Narain Mallik v. Badi Rai, 29 Calc., 227 ; 6 C. W. N., 94), in which it was ruled that a ghatwal is not competent to grant a lease in perpetuity and his successors are not bound to recognize any such incumbrance. Succession to the Birbhum ghatwali tenures is regulated by no kulachar or family custom nor by the Mitakshara law, but solely by the nature of the tenure, which descends undivided to the party who succeeds to and holds the tenure as ghatwal and who may be a female (Kastura Kumari v. Manohar Deo, W. R., Sp. No., 1864, 39). It would be inconsistent with the true character of these tenures to hold that the legislature intended that they should devolve on issue of the body only, and not on heirs generally according to the law which may govern such succession. The word "descendants," therefore in sec. 2. Reg. XXIX of 1814, is not to be construed in its restricted meaning but includes the widow of a deceased ghatwal, who may, therefore, be one of the heirs. With reference to the peculiar character of ghatwali tenures described in Reg. XXIX of 1814, it would seem that they were intended to be the exclusive property of the ghatwal for the time being, and not joint family property (Chatradhari Singh v. Saraswati Kumari, 22 Calc., 156). Long continued possession at a uniform rent may lead to the inference of a fixed and permanent ghatwali tenure (Ram Ranjan Chakravarti v. Ram Narain Singh, 22 Calc., 533 ; L. R., 22 1, A., 60). Long possession (presumably from the decennial settlement) and gradual cultivation by a ghatwal on payment of a quit rent (and not merely possession without cultivation) are evidence of an implied grant, which protects the ghatwal from enhancement or assessment on the land so cultivated (Erskine v. Manik Singh, 6 W. R., 10). When it is admitted that a ghatwal's estate dates from a time anterior to the decennial settlement and before the creation of the zamindari, the tenure is protected from any fresh assessment (Erskine v. Government, 8 W. R., 232). As long as such a tenure exists, the presumption under sec. 50 can arise (Gauri Kant v. Ram Gopal, 2 C. L. J., 379). Ghatwali tenures are not liable to sale or attachment in execution of decrees. The surplus proceeds of such a tenure collected during the life-time of the judgment-debtor are liable to be taken in execution as being personal property, but not profits accumulated after the judgment-debtor's death (Kastura Kumari v. Binod Ram Sen, 4 W. R., Misc., 5)⁽¹⁾ The rents of a ghatwali tenure are not liable for the debts of the former deceased holder of the tenure (Binod Ram Sen v. Deputy Commissioner of the Sonthal Parganas, 6 W. R., 129; S. C., 7 W. R., 178). The same rule has been held to apply in the case of the ghatwali tenures to the south of Birbhum, which are not the subject of express legislation (Bakra Nath Singh v. Nilmoni Sing, 5 Calc., 389; 4 C. L. R., 583; S. C., 9 Calc., 187; L. R., 9 I. A., 104). A shikmi ghatwali tenure held under the superior ghatwal is also not liable to be sold in execution, nor are its proceeds liable to attachment for satisfaction of the debt due from its holder (Bali Dobe v. Ganai Deo, 9 Calc., 388). When a ghatwal becomes a defaulter, it is in the power of the authorities under Reg. XXIX of 1814 to transfer his tenure, and that power is not put an end to by the money being offered before the tenure is actually made over to another person (Chitro Narain Singh v. Assistant Commissioner, Sonthal Parganas, 14 W. R., 203). Where a permanent tenure has been granted by a ghatwal, if the successor of such ghatwal, being one of the ghatwals to whom Reg. XXIX of 1814 applies, wishes to resume that tenure, he must bring his suit within twelve years after succeeding to the ghatwali estate. The possession of the tenant is adverse to him from the time of the decease of his immediate predecessor (Madho Kuari v. Ram Chandra Singh, 9 Calc., 411). Occupancy rights cannot be acquired in ghatwali lands (Upendra Nath Haara v. Ram Nath Chaudhri, 33 Calc., 630; Mohesh Manjhi v. Pran Krishna Mandal, 1 C. L. J., 138).

Chota Nagpur ghatwali tenures.—As between two mal raiyats with whom a settlement has been made under Reg. III of 1877, there may be a partition of the waste and jungle land, but it cannot be binding on the superior landlord, the ghatwal, and will only subsist during the currency of the settlement (Donan Pandi v. Panchu Kol, 5 C. W. N., 185).

(1) Cf. Rajkeshwar Deo v. Baksidhar, 23 Calc., 573, which, however, relates to a Kharakpore ghatwali.

Kharakpore ghatwali tenures.—Kharakpore ghatwali tenures are to be met with in the districts of Bhagalpore and Monghyr. One of the earliest cases which has reference to such tenures is that of Lilanand Singh v. Government of Bengal, (6 Moo., 1. A., 101; 4 W. R., P. C., 77), in which their Lordships of the Privy Council decided that the Kharakpore ghatwali tenures are perpetual and hereditary grants of land, which cannot be resumed by Government. In Manoranjan Singh v. Lilanand Singh, (3 W. R., 84; 5 W. R., 101; 13 B. L. R., 124), the zamindar having come to an arrangement with Government under which the Government dispensed with the services in consideration of an annual sum to be paid in lieu of these services, the zamindar sued to resume the ghatwali lands on the ground that the services on which they were held were no longer required. It was decided, however, that the lands could not be resumed and that the ghatwals had permanent hereditary tenures at a fixed jama and could not be evicted except for misconduct. See also Manoranjan Singh v. Lilanand Singh, (2 B. L. R., 125 note; 13 B. L. R., 124), and Kuldip Narain Singh v. Government, (B. L. R., Sup. Vol., F. B., 559; 6 W. R., 199; 11 B. L. R., P. C., 71; 14 Moo. 1. A., 247). But in Lilanand Singh v. Surwan Singh, (5 W. R., 292), it was held on a consideration of the terms of the lease under which the ghatwal held the lands that the zamindar could resume them, when the ghatwali services were no longer required. See also Lilanand Singh v. Nasib Singh, (6 W. R., 80); Mahbub Hossain v. Patasu Kumari, (10 W. R., 179; 1 B. L. R., A. C., 120). A ghatwali estate is not necessarily held by males to the exclusion of females (Durga Prasad Singh v. Durga Kuari, 20 W. R., 154). The lands of the ghatwals of Kharakpore are not capable of alienation by private sale or otherwise, and are not liable to sale in execution of decrees, except with the consent of the zamindar and his approval of the purchaser as a substitute for the outgoing ghatwal (Lilanand Singh v. Durgabati, W. R., Sp. No., 1864, 249; Guman Singh v. Grant, 11 W. R., 292). After deduction of all necessary outgoings from the total rents due to a ghatwal, the residue, being his own personal property, may be attached in execution of a personal decree against him (Rajkeshwar Deo v. Bansidhar, 23 Calc., 873). The income of a ghatwali property is not itself a ghatwali property and is liable to be sold (Suraj Mal v. Kristo Prasad Singh, 10 C. W. N., cclx). Future rents and profits that may become due to a ghatwal cannot be attached in execution of a decree against him (Udai Kumari v. Hari Ram Shaha, 28 Calc., 483). In Anando Rai v. Kali Prasad Singh, 10 Calc., 677;

S. C., 15 Calc., 471), it was held (1) that a ghatwali tenure in Kharakpore is transferable, if the zamindar assents and accepts the transfer, which assent and acceptance may be presumed from the fact of the zamindar having made no objections to a transfer for a period of over twelve years, and (2) that in dealing with a ghatwali tenure the Court must have regard to the nature of the tenure itself, and to the rules of law laid down in regard to such tenures, and not to any particular school of law or the customs of any particular family, and that a ghatwali, being created for a specific purpose, has its own particular incidents and cannot be subject to any system of law affecting only a particular class or family. In this case it was pointed out that there is this difference between the ghatwals of Birbhum and those of Kharakpore that the former are appointed by Government, and the latter by the zamindar. In a suit by the zamindar to enhance the rent it was decided that as long as the ghatwals are able and willing to perform the services, the zamindar has no right to enforce the payment of an enhanced rent on the ground that their services are no longer required (Lilunand Singh v. Manwanjan Singh, 3 Calc., 251). Any presumption there may be against the right of a ghatwal to grant mukarari leases cannot hold good against such leases when granted in good faith for the clearance of jungle (Davies v. Debi Mahtan, 18 W. R., 377).

Manbhum ghatwali tenure.—A suit for khas possession by Government will not lie in respect of ghatwali lands admittedly included in a decennially settled estate, though Government may have a right to claim service from the ghatwals, and may compel the nomination of ghatwals to perform such services (Gadadhur Banurji v. Government, 6 W. R., 326); but a suit will lie to assess lands occupied by ghatwals in excess of the area recorded in their ismnavisi (Jago Jiwan Lal v. Raghu Nath Kopat, 6 W. R., 197). A suit against a jagirdar on account of arrears unpaid by his predecessor must fail, unless he is sued as the legal representative of the late jagirdar, in which case he may be liable to satisfy the arrears out of any assets, other than the jagir which may have come into his hands (Nilmani Singh v. Madhab Singh, 1 B. L. R., A. C., 195). A right to re-instate a ghatwal in possession of lands cannot exist in the Government, or in any person or body whatsoever (Anand Kumari v. Government, 11 W. R., 180.)

Purneah ghatwali tenure.—In a suit in which the plaintiff, an auction-purchaser at a sale for arrears of revenue, sued to resume the lands of a jagir, which had been held rent-free by the defendants for nearly a century, it appeared that the lands had been granted by the Government before the Permanent Settlement, as a hereditary jagir tenure, in consideration of services which the jagirdars rendered to Government in repressing the incursions of wild elephants upon the cultivated lands of the zamindari. It was held that, notwithstanding that the lands were the subject of assessment when the zamindari was permanently settled by Government with the zamindar, the plaintiff had no right to assess the lands, and that the settlement between the Government and the zamindar could not affect the rights of the jagirdars, whose rights were derived not from the zamindar but from the supreme authority in the State. It was further decided that the lands held on this tenure, even if chakaran, differed from the ordinary chakaran lands contemplated by sec. 41, Reg. VIII of 1793, and that the jagirdars were bound, if occasion required it, to protect the pargana from the incursions of wild elephants and might forfeit the tenure if they wilfully failed in the performance of that duty, but were not liable to have their lands resumed, because there was no longer any occasion for the performance of the particular service (Forbes v. Mir Mahomed Taki, 14 W. R., P. C., 28 ; 5 B. L. R., 529 ; 13 Moo. I. A., 438).

Patna ghatwali tenure.—A Commissioner of Revenue is not warranted by law on the demise of a ghatwal to consider the eligibility of rival claimants to the tenure (a perpetual and descendible one) and to reject the claims of the natural heir on considerations purely moral (Lal Dhari Rai v. Brajo Lal Singh, 10 W. R., 401).

Police ghatwali tenures - The Civil Courts cannot interfere to re-instate a ghatwal, who has been dismissed by the Police authorities in the land which he formerly held as ghatwal. The right to possess the lands depends on the tenure of the office (Debi Narain Singh v. Sri Krishna Sen, 1 W. R., 321). Permanent leases granted by the ghatwals of Birbhum prior to the Decennial Settlement for the due performance of the police duties for which the lands were originally granted to the ghatwals, and which have been held from generation to generation cannot be set aside at the instance of the present sirdar ghatwals. The creation of such under-tenures is not beyond the power of the ghatwals (Makurbhano Deo v. Kastura Kueri, 5 W. R., 215). The dismissal of a ghatwal will carry with it the forfeiture of his tenure (Secretary of State v. Poran Singh, 5 Calc. 740).

Service tenures.—The law relating to chaukidari chakaran lands is to be found in sec. 41, Reg. VIII of 1793, and Act VI of 1870 (B. C.) Part II, ss. 48-61. In Jai Krishna Mukhurji v. Collector of East Burdwan (1 W. R., P. C., 26 : 10 Moo. I. A., 16), it was explained that before the British possession of India the zamindars were entrusted as well with the defence of the territory against foreign enemies as with the administration of law and the maintenance of peace and order within their district ; that for this purpose they were accustomed to employ not only armed retainers, but also a large force of thanadars or a general police force, and other officers in great numbers under the name of chaukidars, paiks and other descriptions as well for the maintenance of order as for the protection of the property of the zamindar, the collection of his revenue and other services personal to the zamindar. All these different officers were at that time the servants of the zamindar, appointed by him and removable by him, and they were remunerated in many cases by the enjoyment of land rent-free or at a low rent in consideration of their services. The lands so enjoyed were called chakaran or service lands. The effect of the decennial settlement was to divide them into two classes ; (1) thanadari lands, which by Reg. I of 1793, sec. 8, cl. 4, were made resumable by the Government ; (2) all other chakaran lands, which by Reg. VIII of 1793, sec. 41, were, whether held by public officers or private servants in lieu of wages, to be annexed to malguzari lands and declared responsible for the public revenue assessed on the whole estate. The mere fact of long prior possession of a service tenure on no rent at all gives the holder no exemption from the payment of rent when the service is no longer required or performed (Chandra Nath Rai v. Bhim Sardar, W.R., Sp. No., 1864, Act X, 37). Where the original donee of a service tenure ceases to do any service and pays in lieu a rent, which his descendants continue to pay, the condition of the tenure becomes altered from service to rent (Mahendra Singh v. Jokha Singh, 19 W. R., 211). Where a sanad granted to the holder of a jagir was only a confirmation by the Government and the zamindar of the tenure under which the jagir was held and authorized the jagirdar to remain in possession but did not describe the service he was bound to perform, it was held that the zamindar could not resume the land without proof that the services to be performed were personal services only to the zamindar (Nil Muni Singh Deo v. Government, 18 W. R., 321 ; S. C., 6 W. R., 121). A grant to a man and his heirs on condition of performing service does not in general mean that the service is to be personally performed by the grantee or his heirs, but that the grantee is to be responsible for its performance (Shib Lall Singh v. Murad Khan, 9 W. R., 126). A distinct refusal by a tenant to perform services incidental to the holding renders him liable to ejectment, and it would seem that no rights of occupancy can accrue in lands held under a service tenure (Haro Gobind Raha v. Ram Ratno De, 4 Calc., 67). A service tenure created for the performance of services, private or personal to the zamindar, may be resumed by the zamindar, when the services are no longer required, or when the grantee of the tenure refuses to perform them.

But a zamindar is not entitled to resume when the grant is for services of a public nature. There is also a distinction between the grant of an estate burdened with a certain service and that of an office, the performance of whose duties is remunerated by the use of certain lands. In the former case the zamindar is not ordinarily entitled to resume, while in the other case he may do so when the office is terminated (Radha Prasad Singh v. Badhu Dashad, 22 Calc., 938. See also Bhinapaiya v. Ram Chandra, 22 Bom., 422). When lands are held upon a grant subject to a burden of service and not merely in lieu of wages, as long as the holders of the grant are able and willing to perform the services, the zamindar has no right to put an end to the tenure whether the services are required or not (Venkata Narasinha Rao v. Sobhanadri Appa Rao, 10 C. W. N., 161; 3 C. L. J., 1). Land ceases to be chaukidari chakaran land when Government transfers it to the zamindar (Ram Ranjan Chakravartti v. Janoki Nath Pal, 4 C. W. N., lxiv), who can dispose of it as he pleases (Janab Ali v. Raki-buddin Mallik, 9 C. W. N., 571; 1 C. L. J., 303; Trailokhyo Nath Chaudhuri v. Ram Dayal Samanta, 10 C. W. N., lxvii). They should be transferred not to the zamindar of the village in which they are situated, but to the zamindar of the estate to which the lands appertain (Pratap Narain Mukhurji v. Secretary of State, 3 C. L. J., 530; 10 C. W. N., 637; 33 Calc., 390). When chaukidari chakaran lands are transferred by Government to the zamindari, and the zamindari has been let in patni, the lands pass to the patnidar, if not excepted from his lease (Girish Chandra Rai v. Hem Chandra Rai, 2 C. L. J., 21 n). The Courts must look at the contract between the parties to see what their intention was with regard to such lands (Pursottam Basu v. Khetra Prasad Basu, 5 C. L. J., 143). When a patnidar sought to have transferred to him certain chaukidari chakaran lands which the Government had settled with the zamindar under Act VI of 1870, B. C., and when it was found that the lands were part of the plaintiff's patni, and that the landlord had sub-let the land to a tenant, it was held (1) that the patnidar was entitled to possession but not to khas possession of the lands (2) that the tenant with whom the lands had been settled by the zamindar was entitled to retain actual possession of the lands, and (3) that the patnidar was bound to pay the zamindar such rents for those lands as corresponded to the proportion between the Government collections and the patni rent formerly payable by him (Hari Narain Mazumdar v. Mukund Lal Mandal, 4 C. W. N., 814). Certain chaukidari chakaran lands were resumed by Government and made over to the zamindar who allowed the defendants to remain on the land and accepted rent from them. The plaintiff patnidar was entitled by his patni lease to all resumed land : held, that the plaintiff was entitled to eject the defendants (Upendra Narain Bhattacharya v. Pratab Chandra Pradhan, 8 C. W. N., 320 ; 31 Calc., 703. See also Newaz Khoda v. Ram Jadu Dey, 34 Calc., 109). When chaukidari chakaran lands, after resumption and transfer to the samindar, have been sold for non-payment of the Government assessment, both the samindar and the patnidar are entitled to share in the surplus sale proceeds, provided the lands are included within the patni grant (Haridas Goswami v. Nisturini Gupta, 1 C. L. J., 102n). A right of occupancy may be acquired under section 6 Act, X of 1859, even in chaukidari chakaran land (Ram Kumar Bhattacharji v. Ram Newaz Rajguru, 31 Calc., 1021 ; 8 C. W. N., 860, but not by the under-tenant of a holder of service tenure (Mritanjai v. Kenatulla, 11 C. W. N., 46 ; 5 C. L. J., 53).

Onus of proof.—Long possession of lands as chaukidari chakaran lands affords ground for the presumption that the lands were set apart as such at the decennial settlement. The onus of proof that the lands were the private lands of the samindar, not set apart at the decennial settlement as chaukidari chakaran, is on the samindar, (Muktakeshi Debi Chaudhrani v. Collector of Murshidabad, 4 W. R., 30). The onus is upon an auction-purchaser who seeks to dispossess or to rack-rent grantees under sanads to make out a clear case for resumption (Forbes v. Mir Mohamed Taki, 14 W. R., P. C., 28 ; 5 B. L. R., 529 ; 13 Moo. I. A. 438). When a plaintiff sues for the recovery of possession of land alleging it to be chaukidari chakaran land, lying within his samindari, which the Collector has transferred to him, it lies on him to prove so much of his case as is not admitted by the defendant (Narendra Lal Khan v. Jogi Hari, 2 C. L. J., 107). A purchaser of an estate at a revenue sale acquires no title to resumed chaukidari chakaran land, which is held by the samindar on a different title (Kashim v. Prasanno Kumar Mukhurji, 10 C. W. N., 598 ; 5 C. L. J., 299).

Proof of adverse possession of service tenures.—When lands are held as a remuneration for services, the fact that no services have been performed does not of itself make the holding adverse : to make the holding adverse, there must be a refusal to perform service or a claim to hold the lands free of service (Komargowda v. Bhimaji, 23 Bom., 602).

Ejectment of service tenure-holders.—Service tenures are excepted from the operation of sec. 89 of this Act, and holders of such tenures can, therefore, be ejected otherwise than in execution of a decree (Makbul Hossain v. Amir, 25 Calc., 131). They can be ejected without the service on them of a notice to quit or of a notice under s. 155 (Bonerji

v. Akbal Jamadar, 1 C. L. J., 16, n ; Ansar Ali v. Grey, 2 C. L. J., 403 ; Ananda Moyi v. Lakshi Chandra, 3 C. L. J., 274 : 33 Calc., 339). One co-sharer cannot bring a suit for the partial ejectment of a tenant who holds the land in lieu of services (Ghulam Mohiuddin v. Khairan, 8 C. W. N., 325 ; 31 Calc., 786).

182. When a raiyat holds his homestead otherwise than as part of his holding as a raiyat, the incidents of his tenancy of the homestead shall be regulated by local custom or usage, and, subject to local custom or usage, by the provisions of this Act applicable to land held by a raiyat.

Effect of this section.—This section does not apply to tenants in general, but only to raiyats⁽¹⁾ [sec 5 (2)]. When a raiyat holds his homestead as a part of his holding as a raiyat, the provisions of this Act apply both to his homestead, and to his agricultural land. When a raiyat holds his homestead otherwise than as part of his holding as a raiyat, the provisions of this Act are still applicable to both, but are liable to be overridden by local custom or usage. In one case a raiyat was a settled raiyat (sec. 21) in respect of some agricultural land in a village. He then took a plot of homestead land in the village, but distinct from his agricultural land. He held this homestead land for three years, when the landlord sued to eject him. It was decided that, there being no local custom or usage to the contrary, the provisions of this Act were applicable, and under secs. 21 and 182 he had occupancy rights in the homestead land and was a settled raiyat in respect to it as well as to his agricultural holding. It further appeared that he had bound himself by the terms of his lease to give up the land on the expiry of a certain period, but this was held to be immaterial, as under sec. 178 (1) (a) and (b) he could not contract himself out of his rights as an occupancy raiyat (S. A., No. 1078 of 1892, decided 16th May, 1893). Under the old law, too, it was held that when the rent of bastu lands was paid by the raiyats to their landlord separately from the rent paid for cultivated lands, but the tenure of the bastu lands was a raiyati tenure, this did not exclude those lands from the operation of Act VIII of 1869, B. C. (Pogose v. Raju, 22 W. R., 511). The provisions of this Act are not applicable to land granted for building purposes and for the establishment of a coal depot (Raniganj Coal Association v. Jadu Nath Ghosh, 19 Calc., 489). See note, p. 22.

In Hussan Ali v. Govinda Lal Basak, 9 C. W. N., 141, it is said by Mitra, J., that the Act has of course no operation as regards homestead lands situated in towns or outside towns. But see note below, and note on "Occupancy rights in homestead land," p. 537.

When homestead land is part of raiyati holding and when not.—Under the former law, it was decided that where the principal subject of the entire occupation is bastu land, the residue (if any) of the holding being entirely subordinate, the Small Cause Court has jurisdiction. But when the principal subject is agricultural land, the buildings being mere accessories thereto, the Small Cause Court will not have jurisdiction (Chundessari v. Ghinah Pandey, 24 W. R., 152). Under the present Provincial Small Cause Court Act (IX of 1887), however, a Mofussil Small Cause Court has no jurisdiction to entertain suits of arrears of rent of homestead or bastu land (Uma Charan Mandal v. Bijari Bewa, 15 Calc., 174); so that the Court in which an action for arrears of rent will lie will no longer be any guide as to whether homestead land is part of a raiyat's holding as a raiyat or not. This is a question of fact, which must be decided on the evidence given in each case. In the case of Abdul v. Kuthan, (1 C. W. N., clxxi), the defendant No. 5 had a raiyati holding and some homestead land with a house on it in a certain village. He sold both to the defendant No. 6, who again sold only the bastu land and the house to the plaintiff. The plaintiff was dispossessed by the landlord of the village and sued to recover possession. In this case it was ruled that as the plaintiff did not claim to recover possession as an occupancy raiyat, and as upon the facts it appeared that he did not hold the homestead as part of his own jote, and the agricultural lands of the original tenant (the defendant No. 5) had not been sold to him, he could not be said to be a raiyat in respect of the homestead lands.

The provisions of this section are applicable whether the homestead and the *raiya*ti holding are held under the same or different landlords: per Geidt, J., in Pratap Chandra Das v. Biseswar Paramanik, 9 C. W. N., 416). It is not required by sec. 182 that a tenant in occupation of homestead land should be a raiyat in the village in which the homestead is situated, nor is it necessary for him to be the tenant under the same landlord as the landlord of the homestead land (Kripa Nath Chakravartti v. Anu, 10 C. W. N., 944; 4 C. L. J., 332). This would seem to be at variance with the view expressed in Kuldip Singh v. Chhatur Singh Rai 3 C. L. J., 285, see ante, p. 93.

Local custom or usage relating to homestead land.—The only local custom or usage concerning homestead land of which any trace is to be found in the judicial decisions of the Courts is a custom of transferability, which it would appear may exist in some districts. See Chandra Kumar Rai v. Kadirmani Dasi, 7 W. R., 247 ; Beni Madhub Banurji v. Jai Krishna Mukhurji, 7 B. L. R., 152 ; 12 W. R., 495 ; Durga Prasad Misra v. Brindaban Sukal, 7 B. L. R., 159 ; 15 W. R., 274 ; Shama Sundari Debi v. Nobin Chandra Kolya, 6 C. L. R., 117 ; Hari Nath Karmokar v. Raj Chandra Karmokar, 1 C. W. N., cxxxvi ; 2 C. W. N., 122. But these cases do not establish the prevalence of such a custom with regard to the class of homestead land to which this Act is applicable. In Chandra Kumar Rai v. Kadir Mani Dasi, (7 W. R., 247), the raiyat was a tenant of khudkasht land, who had built a pukka house, and had acquired a right of occupancy in the land under Act X of 1859. In the case of Beni Madhab Banurji v. Jai Krishna Mukhurji, (7 B. L. R., 152 ; 12 W. R., 495), it was held that by the custom of the Hooghly district a tenure granted for building purposes is transferable. Peacock, C. J., went further and said that in his opinion "if one man grants a tenure to another for the purpose of living upon the land, that tenure, in the absence of any evidence to the contrary, would be assignable," that is, otherwise than by custom. This, however, is an obiter dictum and the land in dispute in this case was evidently non-agricultural. In the case of Durga Prasad Misra v. Brindaban Sukal, (7 B. L. R., 159 ; 15 W. R., 274), the tenant had been allowed to erect mud houses and to plant trees on the land without objection on the part of the landlord and had occupied the land for forty years, and it was held that his holding was not a temporary one. In this case, too, the land appears to have been non-agricultural. In the case of Shama Sundari Debi v. Nobin Chandra Kolya, (6 C. L. R., 117), also, the land had been taken for the erection of a dwelling house and it was ruled that it was transferable by local custom, though held on a non-permanent tenure. It was also decided that the landlord could evict the tenant by service on him of a sufficient notice to quit. In Hari Nath Karmokar v. Raj Chandra Karmokar, (1 C. W. N., cxxxvi ; 2 C. W. N., 122), it was said that previous to the passing of the Transfer of Property Act, non-agricultural lands might or might not have been assignable. The incident of non-transferability is common to tenancies from year to year of homestead lands created before the passing of the Transfer of Property Act in the absence of a custom to the contrary (Mudhu Sudan Sen v. Kamini Kanta Sen, 32 Calc., 1023 ; 9 C. W. N., 895).

Occupancy rights in homestead land.—Under the former law rights of occupancy could not be acquired in land occupied exclusively by buildings (Sarno Mayi v. Blumhardt, 9 W. R., 552 ; Mohar Ali v. Ram Ratan Sen, 21 W. R., 400), or of which the main object of occupation was the dwelling house (Kali Krishna Biswas v. Janki, 8 W. R., 250) or in any land, except land of which the main object was cultivation (Ramdhan v. Haradhan Paramanik, 12 W. R., 404 ; 9 B. L. R., 107, note). But now under this Act, provided a tenant is a raiyat, he may acquire a right of occupancy in his homestead land, whether it be held as part of his agricultural holding or not, unless there be a local custom or usage to the contrary. Rights of occupancy cannot be acquired in suburban lands let for purposes of building (Rakhal Das Addi v. Dinamayi Debi, 16 Calc., 652). In this case the tenant was clearly not a raiyat.

Enhancement of rent of homestead land.—Under the former law it was held that the rent of bastu or homestead land, when it is part of the raiyat's jote or holding is as liable to enhancement under Act X of 1859 as the rent of any other land (Naimudin Joardar v. Scott Moncrieff, 3 B. L. R., A. C., 283 ; 12 W. R., 140 ; Abdul Hamid v. Dongaram Dey, 3 B. L. R., App. 133) ; but bastu or homestead land used for sites of houses in a town cannot form the subject of suits under Act X of 1859 for enhancement. See note to sec. 3 (3), pp. 18—22. The only change made by this Act in the law on this point is, as already pointed out, that when the homestead is held otherwise than as part of the raiyat's agricultural holding, the provisions of this Act relating to enhancement of rent are liable to be over-ridden by local custom or usage ; and further, that in one instance the Act apparently provides for the enhancement under its provisions of the rent of land occupied by buildings : for under sec. 167, sub-sec. (4), a purchaser of a tenure or holding sold in execution of a decree for arrears of the rent thereof may, if he has power to avoid all incumbrances, sue to enhance the rent of land which is the subject of a "protected interest," as defined in sec. 160, clause (c), i. e., "any lease of land whereon dwelling houses, manufactories of other permanent buildings have been erected, or permanent gardens, plantations, tanks, canals, places of worship or burning or burying grounds have been made." Where the subject matter of a tenancy is bastu land situated in a municipality to which the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act are not applicable, a suit for enhancement of rent brought by a landlord without previously serving the tenant with a notice to quit or to pay rent at an enhanced rate must fail (Krishna Kant Saha v. Krishna Chandra Rai, 9 C. W. N., 303.)

Ejectment of tenant from homestead land.—Subject to local custom or usage, when homestead land is held otherwise than as part of the raiyat's agricultural holding, a raiyat can be ejected from his homestead land on the same grounds as those on which he can be ejected from his other land (vide secs. 10, 18, 25, 44 and 49). One of the grounds on which occupancy and non-occupancy raiyats can be ejected is that they have used the land of the holding in a manner which renders it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy, and therefore it would prima facie appear that when a raiyat has erected buildings or permanent structures on agricultural land, he is liable under the provisions of this Act to be ejected, provided always that the landlord has not stood by and passively acquiesced in the construction of the houses (Shib Das Bandopadhyaya v. Baman Das Mukhopadhyaya, 8 B. L. R., 237 ; 15 W. R., 360). The construction of a suitable dwelling house for the raiyat and his family together with all necessary out-offices is, however, an "improvement" [sec. 76 (2) (f)], and cannot render a raiyat liable to ejectment. And in Prasanno Kumar Chaturji v. Jagannath Basak, (10 C. L. R., 25) it was held that where land has with the consent of the landlord ceased to be agricultural, and the tenant has since built a homestead or used part of it for tanks or gardens or other purposes as well as for agriculture, the nature of the tenure is not thereby changed, nor is the tenant deprived of any right of occupancy which he may have acquired. On the other hand, the mere record of the name of a tenant, who is found in occupation of a particular piece of homestead land, and of the rent payable by him, in settlement proceedings does not invest him with any permanent title to hold it (Arat Sahu v. Prandhan Puikara, 10 Calc., 502).

There are a considerable number of cases concerning the ejectment of tenants from homestead land of a non-agricultural character. In many of them the Courts have refrained from giving decrees for ejectment against the tenants on the ground that in the circumstances a presumption might be made that the tenants' leases were of a permanent nature. But the rulings as to the circumstances in which such a presumption may be made are conflicting. In several it has been laid down that mere long possession or the mere construction of buildings on the land will not justify the raising of any such presumption (Addaityo Charan De v. Peter Das, 17 W. R., 383 ; 13 B. L. R., 417 note ; Prasanno Kumar Debi v. Ratan Baijari, 3 Calc., 696 ; 1 C. L. R., 577 ; Tarak Paddo Ghosal v. Shama Charan Napat, 8 C. L. R., 50 ; Prasanno Kumar Chaturji v. Jagannath Basak, 10 C. L. R., 25 ; Rakhal Das Addi v. Dinamayi Debi, 16 Calc., 652). There appears to be only one case in which mere long possession has been held sufficient to warrant the presumption of a tenure being of a permanent and transferable nature, viz., Dunne v. Nabo Krishna Mukhurji, 17 Calc., 144). In the other cases in which the Courts have presumed that the tenants had a permanent interest the land, (viz., Beni Mudhab Mukhurji v. Jai Krishna Mukhurji, 7 B. L. R., 152; 12 W. R., 495; Durga Prasad Misra v. Brindaban Suka, 7 B. L. R., 159; 15 W. R. 274; Brāja Nath Kundu v. Stewart, 16 W. R., 216; 8 B. L. R., App., 51; Johari Lal Sahu v. Dear, 23 W. R., 399; Gopi Chand v. Linkat Hossain, 25 W. R., 211; Gangadhar Shikdar v. Ayimudin Shah Biswas, 8 Calc., 960; S. C., 11 C. L. R., 281; Ranga Lal Lohia v. Wilson, 26 Calc., 204; 2 C. W. N., 718), the lands had either been originally let for building purposes or the tenant had to the knowledge of the landlord and without objection on his part erected pukka buildings or spent large sums of money in improvements of a substantial character. Most of these cases are discussed in Nabu Mandal v. Cholim Mullik, 25 Calc., 896), in which it was held that mere long possession was not sufficient to justify the presumption of the tenure being of a permanent and transferable nature. In Krishna Kishor Neogi v. Mir Mahomed Ali, (3 C. W. N., 255), it was said that a landlord by merely not objecting to his tenant's raising a pukka building does not confer on the tenant a permanent right to remain on the land, and though long possession coupled with the acquiescence of the landlord in the raising of pukka buildings and his receiving rent after such buildings have been raised may justify the inference that a tenant has such a right, yet if the landlord's interest was let out in ijara at the time the building was raised, the absence of objection on his part should not be construed as amounting to acquiescence. Then, in Ismail Khan v. Jaigun Bibi (27 Calc., 570; 4 C. W. N., 210), it was held that in a suit for ejectment which a tenant resists on the ground that the tenancy is a permanent one, and that the landlord stood by and permitted him (the tenant) to erect pukka buildings on the land in the belief that the said tenancy was a permanent one, it is incumbent on the tenant to show that in erecting the buildings he was acting under an honest belief that he had a permanent right in the land, and that the landlord, knowing that he (the tenant) was acting under such belief, stood by and allowed him to go on with the construction of the building. See also Ismail Khan v. Broughton, (5 C. W. N., 846) The Privy Council, too, on the authority of Ramsden v. Dyson (L. R. 1 H. L. 129), has laid down that lessors are not estopped in equity from bringing suits for ejectment merely by reason of their tenants having erected permanent structures on the land with the knowledge of and without interference by the lessors (Beni Ram v. Kundan Lal, L. R., 26 I. A., 58; 21 All., 496; 3 C. W. N., 502).⁽¹⁾ *

(1) But compare Safdar Ali v. Joo Marain Singh, 10 W. R., 161; Uda Begam v. Imam-uddin, 1 All., 82; Kunhammed v. Narayanam Mussal, 12 Mad., 820; Onkarapu v. Subaji Pandurang, 15 Bom., 71; Prasadi Jivan Bhute v. Cassam Juma Ahmed, 20 Bom., 298.

But in Durga Mohan Das v. Rakhal Chandra Rai, (5 C. W. N. 801), it was held that the fact of long possession and instances of transfer and succession may raise a presumption in favour of the permanency of a tenure, and in Ismail Khan v. Aghore Nath Mukhurjee, (7 C. W. N., 734) that in the absence of words importing it, the hereditary character of a tenure may be supplied by the evidence of long and uninterrupted enjoyment and of the descent of the tenure from father to son. The mere fact of an acceptance of rent at the same rate for a long period of years would not be conclusive against the landlord to show that a lease was of a permanent nature, if the origin of the lease be known, but the circumstances of a particular case may properly lead to such an inference, each case depending upon its own circumstances (Wintersdale v. Sarat Chundra Banurji, 8 C. W. N., 155).

The facts of long possession of a tenancy by the tenants and their ancestors and of the landlord having permitted them to build a pukka house, which has existed for a very considerable time and which was added to by successive tenants and of the tenure having been from time to time transferred by succession and purchase, in which the landlord acquiesced or of which he could not have been ignorant are sufficient to warrant the Court in presuming that the tenancy is of a permanent nature (Caspersz v. Kedar Nath Sarbhadhikari, 28 Calc., 738 ; 5 C. W. N., 859. See also Ismail Khan v. Minmayi Dasi, 8 C. W. N., 301 ; Ismail Khan v. Asmatulla, 8 C. W. N., 297 ; *Upendra Krishna Mandal v. 183. Nothing in this Act shall affect any custom, usage or customary right not inconsistent with, or not expressly or by necessary implication modified or abolished by, its provisions.

Illustrations.

(1) A usage under which a raiyat is entitled to sell his holding without the consent of his landlord is not inconsistent with, and is not expressly or by necessary implication modified or abolished by, the provisions of this Act. That usage, accordingly, wherever it may exist, will not be affected by this Act.

(2) The custom or usage that an under-raiyat should, under certain circumstances, acquire a right of occupancy is not inconsistent with, and is not expressly or by necessary implication modified or abolished by, the provisions of this Act. That custom or usage, accordingly, wherever it exists, will not be affected by this Act.

Effect of custom.—According to the terms of this section, “custom, usage, or customary right” will prevail over the provisions of this Act, provided the custom, usage or customary right is not inconsistent with them, or is not expressly or impliedly modified or abolished by anything in the Act. This is in accordance with the general principle laid down by their Lordships of the Privy Council in the case of Nilkrishna Deb Barmano v. Bir Chandra Thakur, (12 Moo. I. A., 523 ; 12 W. R., P. C., 21 ; 3 B. L. R., P. C., 13), “that where a custom is proved to exist, it supersedes the general law, which, however, still regulates all beyond the custom.” This rule was again enunciated in the Privy Council case of Sartaj Kuari v. Dearaj Kuari, (10 All., 272 ; L. R., 15 I. A., 51). The law appears to have been the same, while the former Rent Acts were in force, for it was said by Peacock, C. J., in the case of Thakurani Dasi v. Bisheshar Mukhurji, (B. L. R., F. B., 326 ; 3 W. R., Act X, 29), “that Act X of 1859 did not take away the right of any raiyat who had a right by grant, contract, prescription, or other valid title, to hold at a fixed rate of rent.” “The mode of proving custom is not very well understood in this country,” it is observed in the Rent Law Commissioner’s Report, para 12, “and, unfortunately, notwithstanding a dictum of Sir Barnes Peacock to the contrary, an idea got to prevail, that Act X had superseded all customs, and was intended to do away with all agricultural rights, except those especially mentioned and provided for in that Act. We believe that there are many local customs in this as well as in every other country, well understood by the people, recognized by the landlords, and susceptible of proof in the Courts of Justice, and we think it very desirable to make it clearly understood that the Bill is not intended to interfere with any of these, unless they have been expressly rescinded by, or are clearly inconsistent with, its provisions.”

The provisions of these sections are apparently intended to give effect to these views of the Rent Law Commissioners.

Elements of custom—For the rules of English law as to custom, see Broom’s Legal Maxims, 5th edition, p. 917. The Indian cases on this subject are as follow. In the case of Hur Prasad v. Sheo Dyal (26 W. R., 55 ; L. R., 3 I. A., 285), their Lordships of the Privy Council have said that “a custom is a rule, which, in a particular family or district, has from long usage, obtained the force of law. It must be ancient, certain, and reasonable and, being in derogation of the general rules of law, must be construed strictly." In Kastura Kumari v. Manohur De, (W. R., Sp. No., 1864, 39) it is held that "where it is ancient, invariable and established by clear and positive proof, it over-rides the usual law of inheritance." It is of the essence of special usages, modifying the ordinary law of succession, that they should be ancient and invariable : and it is further essential that they should be established to be so by clear and unambiguous evidence (Ramalukshmi Ammal v. Sivananantha Perumal Sethurayer, 12 B. L. R., 396 ; 14 Moo. I. A., 570 ; 17 W. R., 553). In Lala v. Hira Singh, 2 All., 49), Oldfield, J., observed :—"Amongst the conditions essential for establishing a custom are that the custom must be of remote antiquity, that it has been continued and acquiesced in, that it is reasonable and is certain and not indefinite in its character." Again, in Beni Madhab Banurji v. Jai Krishna Mukhurji, (7 B. L. R., 152 ; 12 W. R., 495), Glover, J., pointed out that "a custom must be proved by strict evidence that what is sought to be established has existed unaltered and uninterrupted from time immemorial." In a recent case, however, Kuar Sen v. Mammam, 17 All., 87, the Allahabad High Court dissented from this view, and said ;—"We cannot in these provinces apply the principle of the English Common Law that a custom is not proved, if it is not shown to have been immemorial. To apply such a principle would be to destroy many customary rights of modern growth in villages and other places." The necessity for a custom being certain has been dwelt on in several cases besides Lala v. Hira Singh. Thus, in Lachman Rai v. Akbar Khan, (1 All., 440) Turner, J., observed : "A custom to be good must be definite." In Jamila Khatun v. Pagal Ram, (1 W. R., 250) it is said :—"The plaintiff relies upon a custom, and unless he can show that the custom is undoubted and invariable, he is not entitled to a decree." See also Bhagwan Das v. Balgovind Singh, 1 B. L. R., s. n., 9. In Chandra Kumar Rai v. Piari Lal Banurji, (6 W. R., 190), however, Trevor and Campbell, JJ., laid down that a custom as to the transferability of khudkasht jotes in Hooghly need not be absolutely invariable ; but Glover J., in Beni Madhab Banurji v. Jai Krishna Mukhurji, said he had doubt as to the correctness of this decision. In Kuar Sen v. Mammam, (17 All., 87), it was said :—"A local custom to have the effect of excluding or limiting the operation of the general rules of law must be reasonable and certain." Then, in Lachnipat Singh v. Sadatulla Nashyo, (9 Calc., 698 ; 12 C. L. R., 382), the necessity for a custom being reasonable was insisted on. In this case, the defendants alleged that they had by custom a right to fish in the plaintiff's bils. But it was held that this custom could not be treated as a valid custom on account of its unreasonableness. "There was no limitation," it was said, "to the number of persons entitled to enjoy it. The tenantry may increase to any number, so that according to this custom an unlimited number of persons can take away the profits of a private property, and that nothing may be left to the owner. . . . Such a custom as this does not seem to be reasonable and ought to be rejected as invalid." Other instances of customs being held to be unreasonable will be found in the cases of Ransordus Bhogilal v. Kesrising Mohan Lal (1 Bom. H. C. 229); Arlapa Naik v. Narsi Keshavji & Co. (8 Bom. H. C. Rep. A. C., 19); De Souza v. Pestanji Dhanjibhai, (8 Bom., 408). In a suit in Madras in which the dancing girls of a temple claimed to have by custom a vote upon the introduction of any new dancing girls into the service of that temple, it was held that such a custom could not be recognized on account of its immorality, as it depended upon an association of women to enjoy a monopoly of the gains of prostitution (Chinna Ummayi v. Tegarai Chetti, 1 Mad., 168).

Proof of custom.—In Doe. d. Jago Mohan Rai v. Nima Dasi, (Montrieu's Cases of Hindu Law, 596) Grey, C. J., observed :—"Although in this country we cannot go back to that period which constitutes legal memory in England, viz., the reign of Richard I, yet still there must be some limitation, without which a custom ought not to be held good. In regard to Calcutta, I should say, that the Act of Parliament in 1773, which established this Supreme Court, is the period to which we must go back to find the existence of a valid custom In regard to the mofussil, we ought to go back to 1793. Prior to that date there was no registry of the regulations, and the relics of them are exceedingly loose and uncertain. I admit that a usage for twenty years may raise a presumption in the absence of direct evidence of a usage existing beyond the period of legal memory." But in Jai Krishna Mukhurji v. Durga Narain Nag, (11 W. R., 348), it was held that "in an enquiry as to whether tenures of a certain class are transferable according to local custom, it is sufficient if there is credible evidence of the existence and antiquity of the custom, and none to the contrary : there is no necessity for the witnesses to fix any particular time from which such tenures became transferable." In Lachman Rai v. Akbar Khan, (1 All., 440), Turner, J., said :—"The most cogent evidence of custom is not that which is afforded by the expression of opinion as to the existence, but by the enumeration of instances in which the alleged custom has been acted upon, and by the proof afforded by judicial or revenue records, or private accounts and receipts that the custom has been enforced." The acts required for the establishment of customary law should be plural, uniform and constant. They may be judicial decisions, but these are not indispensable for its establishment, although some have thought otherwise. The authors of the acts must have performed them with the consciousness that they spring from a legal necessity. To prove a local custom the evidence must be precise and conclusive (Durga Prasad Singh v. Durga Kuari, 20 W. R., 154). What the law requires before an alleged custom can receive the recognition of the Court and so acquire legal force, is satisfactory proof of usage so long and invariably acted upon in practice as to show that it has, by common consent, been submitted to as the established governing rule of the particular family, class, or district of country; and the course of practice upon which the custom rests, must not be left in doubt but be proved with certainty (Perumal Sethurayar v. Ramalinga Sethurayar, 3 Mad. H. C. Rep., 77). In Kuar Sen v. Mamman, (17 All, 87), it was observed that a local custom as a general rule is proved by good evidence of a usage which has obtained the force of law within the particular district, city, mohalla or village, or at the particular place, in respect of the persons and things which it concerns. Where it is sought to establish a local custom by which the residents, or any section of them, of a particular district, city, village or place are entitled to commit on land not belonging to or occupied by them acts which, if there was no such custom, would be acts of trespass, the custom must be proved by reliable evidence of such repeated acts openly done, which have been assented and submitted to, as leads to the conclusion that the usage has by agreement or otherwise become the local law of the place in respect of the person or things which it concerns. In order to establish a customary right to do acts which would otherwise be acts of trespass on the property of another, the enjoyment must have been as of right, and neither by violence nor by stealth nor by leave asked from time to time. The statute law of India does not prescribe any period of enjoyment during which in order to establish a local custom it must be proved that a right claimed to have been enjoyed as by local custom was enjoyed. And in our opinion it would be inexpedient and fraught with the risk of disturbing perfectly reasonable and advantageous local usages regarded and observed by all concerned as customs to attempt to prescribe any such period. But general custom is not proved by the statements of two individuals, or by proving that two particular tenants paid at a particular rate (Prabhu Das v. Sheo Nath Rai, W. R., Sp. No., 1864, Act X, 27), nor a local custom by the evidence of a few antagonistic witnesses (Jai Krishna Mukherji v. Raj Krishna Mukherji, 1 W. R., 153).⁽¹⁾ The proceedings of two former suits where under similar circumstances a right of pre-emption was admitted to exist may be received as evidence of such a custom (Madhub Chandra Nath Biswas v. Tomi Bewa, 7 W. R., 210). Decrees passed in favour of such a custom are admissible to prove its existence (Gurdayal Mal v. Jhandu Mal, 10 All., 585). But the conflicting decisions of subordinate Courts will not prove a custom (Indra Narain Chaudhuri v. Mahomed Naziruddin, 1 W. R., 234). A wajib-ul-urz prepared and attested according to law is prima facie evidence of the existence of any custom which it records (Isri Singh v. Ganga, 2 All., 876; Mahammad Hosain v. Munna Lal, 8 All., 434). But a wajib-ul-urz containing a mere expression of the views of a proprietor is not an authentic record of local customs (Uman Prasad v. Gandharp Singh, 15 Calc., 20; L. R., 14 I. A., 127). A book of local history should not be used to prove a local custom without calling the attention of the parties to it and hearing them with regard to it (Vallabhu v. Madusudan, 12 Mad., 495). Until some connexion either geographical or political, is shown to exist between the districts, there is no ground for inferring the custom of one district from its existence in another (Hira Nath Kuar v. Baram Narain Singh, 17 W. R., 329. See also Anna Purna Dasi v. Uma Charan Das, 18 W. R., 55). The recognition by a landlord of a raiyat as tenant of a portion of a holding is not sufficient proof of the custom of the transferability of occupancy rights in that locality (Ganesh Das v. Ram Pratab Singh, 5 C. W. N., clxxv). To prove or disprove a right or custom it is not enough to adduce evidence of a transaction in which or in the course of which the right or custom was asserted or denied. The transaction will be relevant under sec. 13, cl. (2) of the Evidence Act, if it be one by which the right or custom was asserted or denied (Bansi Singh v. Mir Amir Ali, 11 C. W. N., 703).

(1) For other cases in which the evidence was held insufficient to prove a custom, see Tara Chand v. Rib Ram, 8 Mad. H. C. Rep, 50, and Madhavray Raghuvendra v. Balkrishna Raghavendra, 4 Bom. H. C., Rep. A. C., 118.

Usage.—No definition of usage is given in the Act. In speaking of “mercantile usage,” their Lordships of the Privy Council in the case of Jaga Mohan Ghosh v. Manik Chand, (7 Moo., I. A., 282; 4 W. R. P. C., 8) have said :—“To support such a ground there needs not be either the antiquity, the uniformity or the notoriety of custom which in respect of all these becomes a local law. The usage may still be in course of growth; it may require evidence for its support in each case; but in the result it is enough, if it appear to be so well known and acquiesced in, that it may be reasonably presumed to have been an ingredient tacitly imported by the parties into their contract.” On the subject of “family usage,” in Raj Krishna Singha v. Ramjai Sarmah, (19 W. R., 8; 1 Calc., 186), it has been said :—“It is of the essence of family usages that they should be certain, invariable and continuous, and well established. Discontinuance must be held to destroy them. This would be so when the discontinuance has arisen from accidental causes ; and the effect cannot be less, when it has been intentionally brought about by the concurrent will of the family." The subject of local usage has been considered in the case of Palakdhari Rai v. Manners, (23 Calc., 179). In this case, the defendants alleged that certain occupancy holdings were transferable by "the law and custom prevailing in Behar." Prinsep and Ghose, JJ., who decided this case, pointed out that under sec. 183, illustration (1), a transfer in accordance with usage was valid even without the consent of the landlord. After quoting the passage from the Privy Council case of Juga Mohan Ghosh v. Manik Chand, above cited, they said :—"In applying this case, it must be borne in mind that it relates to a usage in dealing in a particular class of mercantile transactions and contracts made in the course of such business. Consequently, in introducing these principles in the present case, which does not relate to contracts entered into between the parties to the litigation but affects a third party, the landlord, it would be necessary either to prove the existence of the usage on his estate or that it is so prevalent in the neighbourhood that it can reasonably be presumed to exist on that estate. It may be that the usage may have gradually sprung up all round an estate, and yet never have been introduced on it, or been recognised on it, and therefore, in considering the evidence, it is of much importance that this should be taken into consideration in connection with the conduct of the landlord in regard to any such transfers as may have taken place without his consent."

The word 'usage' in this section would include what people are now or recently in the habit of doing in a particular place. It may be that this particular habit is only of very recent origin, or it may be one which has existed for a long time. If it be one ordinarily or regularly practised by the inhabitants of the place where the tenure exists, there would be usage within the meaning of the section (Dalgleish v. Guzaffar Hossain, 23 Calc., 427). In the same case in appeal after remand, it was pointed out (1) that it is not necessary that a long period of time should elapse for the growth of a "usage" or "local usage"; (2) that a "usage" may be established in a much less period of time than a "custom"; and (3) that a usage may have sprung up since the passing of the Act, and that what is necessary to establish a "local usage" of the transferability of occupancy holdings is evidence of purchases or transfers by persons other than the landlords made with the knowledge but without the consent of the landlords, and to which no objection was made by them (Dalgleish v. Guzaffar Hossain, 3 C. W. N., 21).

The transfer of occupancy holdings cannot be justified by local usage which is growing up. The usage should have fructuated into maturity.

To establish a usage as to the transferability of occupancy holdings in a locality it is not enough to prove that several cases of transfers of such holdings have taken place. It is necessary to prove that such transfers have been made with the knowledge and without the consent of the landlord and that no successful objection to such transfer has been made by the landlord (Ramhari Singh v. Jabar Ali, 6 C. W. N., 861). See also Jagan Prasad v. Posan Sahu, 8 C. W. N., 172.

Where the question was whether an occupancy holding was transferable or not, the lower appellate Court found as follows : "There is abundant evidence on the record to show that such lands are actually sold in the locality, and the kabals filed in this case support that fact : " held, that this did not amount to a finding of local usage (Dino Nath Ghosh v. Nobin Chandra Ghosh, 6 C. W. N., 181.)

The finding that tenants do transfer their rights of occupancy without the landlords' consent does not in itself establish a usage in this respect so as to affect the landlord's right to accept or refuse to consent to such transfer. The finding that payment of a nazar is requisite implies that the landlord's consent is necessary (Radhu Kishor Manikya v. Ananda Pria, 8 C. W. N., 235. See also Sibo Sundari Ghosh v. Raj Mohan Guho, 8 C. W. N., 214).

In order to establish usage it is not necessary to give proof of its existence for any length of time and the statement of persons who are in a position to know of its existence in their locality are admissible as evidence of it (Sariatullah Sarkar v. Prannath Nandi, 26 Calc., 184).

CHAPTER XVI.

LIMITATION.

184. (1) The suits, appeals and applications specified in Schedule III annexed to this Act shall be instituted and made within the time prescribed in that Schedule for them respectively ; and every such suit or appeal instituted, and application made, after the period of limitation so prescribed, shall be dismissed, although limitation has not been pleaded.

Limitation in suits, appeals and applications in Schedule III.

(2) Nothing in this section shall revive the right to institute any suit or appeal or make any application which would have been barred by limitation if it had been instituted or made immediately before the commencement of this Act.

Power of Court to take cognizance of question of limitation.—A lower appellate Court is empowered under s. 4 of the Limitation Act and s. 184 of this Act to take cognizance of a question of limitation, though it has not been raised as a defence in the Court of First Instance, if upon the proceedings in the case it is clear that the suit is barred by limitation (Deo Narain Chaudhuri v. Webb, 28 Calc., 86).

Limitation in suits, appeals and applications specified in Schedule III.—For an instance of arrears of the rent of a patni taluk being held barred under the provisions of this section and Schedule III, art. 2 (b), see Barnomnyi Dasi v. Barmamayi Chaudhurani, 23 Calc., 191. There is no saving clause in this section for suits in which the cause of action had arisen before the passing of this Act (Ramdhan Bhadra v. Ram Kumar Dey, 17 Calc., 926). Art. 2 of Schedule III of the Bengal Tenancy Act prescribes one period of limitation for all suits for arrears of rent brought under its provisions. It includes a suit for arrears payable under a lease, and there is no distinction as to the form of the lease, or whether it is registered or not (Iswari Prasad Narain Sahi v. Crowdy, 17 Calc., 469; Muckenzie v. Mahomed Ali Khan, 19 Calc., 1).

Limitation in suits, appeals and applications not specified in Schedule III.—The periods of limitation prescribed in Act XV of 1877 are applicable to suits, appeals and applications not specified in Schedule III of this Act. See Golap Chandra Naulakha v. Krishna Chandra Das Biswas, (5 Calc., 314).

Portions of the Indian Limitation Act not applicable to such suits, &c.

XV of 1877.

185. (1) Sections 7, 8 and 9 of the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, shall not apply to the suits and applications mentioned in the last foregoing section.

(2) Subject to the provisions of this Chapter, the provisions of the Indian Limitation Act, 1877, shall apply to all suits, appeals and applications mentioned in the last foregoing section.

Provisions of Limitation Act inapplicable to suits, appeals and applications specified in Schedule III.—Section 7 of the Limitation Act is to the effect that if a person entitled to sue or make an application is a minor, or insane, or an idiot, he may sue or make the application within the same period after the disability has ceased as would otherwise have been allowed from the time prescribed by the law. This was also held to be the case in a suit for arrears under Act VIII of 1869, B. C. (Girija Nath Rai v. Patani Bibi, 17 Calc., 263). Section 8 of the Limitation Act provides that when one of several joint creditors or claimants is under any such disability, and a discharge can be given without his concurrence, time will run against them all; but where no such discharge can be given, time will not run against any of them, until one of them becomes capable of giving such discharge without the concurrence of the others. Under the provisions of section 9, when once time has begun to run, no subsequent disability or inability to sue stops it. But it is only to the suits, appeals and applications specified in Schedule III that these sections of the Limitation Act are inapplicable. To other suits, appeals and applications brought or made under the Bengal Tenancy Act these provisions of the Limitation Act are fully applicable. In a case where limitation is determined by the provisions of s. 167 of the Act, s. 7 of the Limitation Act has no application and a minor is not entitled to any fresh period of limitation (Akshai Kumar Sur v. Bijai Chand, 29 Calc., 813).

Sub-section (2).—This sub-section makes it clear that the provisions of section 5 of the Limitation Act, as well as the rules laid down in Part III of the Act for the computation of the period of limitation, are to be applied in computing the special periods of limitation specified in Schedule III of this Act. (See Bihari Lal Mukhurji v. Mangala Nath Mukhurji, 5 Calc., 110; Golap Chandra Naulakha v. Krishna Chandra Das Biswas, 5 Calc., 314; Kush Lal Mahtan v. Ganesh Datta, 7 Calc., 690; Khettra Mohan Chakravarti v. Dinabashi Shaha, 10 Calc., 265. Compare Nagendra Nath Mallik v. Mathur Mohan Parhi, 18 Calc., 368). This sub-section makes the provisions of sec. 19 of the Limitation Act applicable to the execution of rent decrees. The acknowledgment under s. 19 does not affect or alter the period of limitation prescribed in art. 6, Sched., III of this Act, but only gives the decree-holder a fresh starting point for counting the period prescribed by the article (Harihar Lal v. Ganendra Prasad, 1 C. L. J., 61 n.).

Limitation in cases in which litigation has prevented institution of suit.—The Rent Law Commission (see para 162, p. 72, of their Report), proposed to introduce a section to the effect that “when the result of the litigation between any persons is such that they are found to stand in the relation of landlord and tenant to each other, and to have stood in this relation while such litigation was pending, but until their mutual rights were finally determined by such litigation such landlord was unable to sue such tenant for rent, the period of limitation for suing for any such rent shall be computed from the termination of such litigation.” They explained that this proposed rule was founded on the case of Swarnamayi v. Susti Mukhi Barmani, (12 Moo. I. A., 244; 11 W. R., P. C., 5; 2 B. L. R., P. C., 10). In this case, “a zamindar brought a patni tenure to sale under Reg. VIII of 1819. The patnidar was, thereupon, ousted, and the purchaser took possession of the patni tenure. The patnidar then successfully sued to have the sale reversed on the ground of irregularity, and recovered possession of the patni tenure, together with mesne profits, from the purchaser for the period of his possession. The zamindar subsequently sued the patnidar for rent for this period. Such rent was barred, if the period of limitation contained in Act X of 1859 were to be applied without qualification. The Privy Council, however, held, that it was not barred; that the cause of action accrued at the time at which, the sale having been set aside, the obligation to pay this rent revived; that the patnidar, on being restored to possession, took back the estate subject to the obligation to pay the rent; and that the particular arrears must be taken to have become due in the year in which that restoration to possession took place." This case was followed in Ishan Chandra Rai v. Ashanullah, (8 B. L. R., 537, note; 16 W. R., 79); Din Dayal Paramanik v. Radha Kishori Debi, (8 B. L. R., 536; 17 W. R., 415); Mohesh Chandra Chakladar v. Gangamani Dasi, (18 W. R., 59) and Dhanpat Singh v. Saraswati Misra, (19 Calc., 267). The Rent Commission pointed out that in the case of Swarnamayi v. Sashi Mukhi Barmani, "there are two points to be noticed: (1) the zamindar could not sue the patnidar for the rent as long as the latter was out of possession; (2) the patnidar received mesne profits for the period for which rent was claimed." From this case, it was said, were distinguishable "some subsequent cases, in which, although the landlord had denied the continuance of the relation of landlord and tenant, and attempted to put an end to such relation, the tenant was, nevertheless, not dispossessed and there was in consequence nothing to prevent the landlord from recovering his rent. In these cases, although one element, receipt by the tenant of the profit of the land, was present, the other element, viz., inability of the landlord to sue, was wanting." See Watson & Co. v. Dhanendra Chandra Mukhurji, 3 Calc., 6; Brajendra Kumar Rai v. Rakhal Chandra Rai, ib., 791; Haro Prasad Rai v. Gopal Das Datta, ib., 817; Haronath Rai v. Goluk Nath, 19 W. R., 18; Barada Kant Rai v. Chandra Kumar Rai, 23 W. R., 280; Haro Prasad Rai v. Gopal Das Datta, 9 Calc., 255; 12 C. L. R., 129; Sherriff v. Dinonath Mukhurji, 12 Calc., 258; Haro Kumar Ghosh v. Kali Krishna Thakur, 17 Calc., 251; Burnomayi Dasi v. Bramamayi Chaudhurani, 23 Calc., 191; Mahomed Mazid v. Mahomed Ashan, 23 Calc., 205. Where a suit for the recovery of arrears of rent was brought more than three years after the due date; held, that the fact that a suit for enhancement had been brought by the plaintiff within that period and in that suit the plaintiff had claimed enhanced rent for the year in question, stayed the operation of the law of limitation (Hem Chandra Chaudhuri v. Kali Prasanna Bhadhuri, 8 C. W. N., 1).

CHAPTER XVII.

SUPPLEMENTAL.

Penalties.

186. (1) If any person, otherwise than in accordance with this Act or some other enactment for the time being in force,—

Penalties.
 Penalties for illegal interference with produce.

(a) distrains, or attempts to distrain the produce of a tenant's holding, or

(b) resists a distraint duly made under this Act, or forcibly or clandestinely removes any property duly distrained under this Act, or,

(c) except with the authority or consent of the tenant, prevents or attempts to prevent the reaping, gathering, storing, removing or otherwise dealing with any produce of a holding, he shall be deemed to have committed criminal trespass within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code.

XLV of 1860.

(2) Any person who abets within the meaning of the Indian Penal Code the doing of any act mentioned in sub-section (1), shall be deemed to have abetted the commission of criminal trespass within the meaning of that Code.

XLV of 1860.

Criminal trespass is defined in sec. 441, and its punishment is prescribed in sec. 447, of the Penal Code. Abetment is dealt with in Chap. V, secs. 107 to 117 of the same Code.

[Damages for denial of landlord's title.

186A. (1) When, in any suit between a landlord and tenant as such, the tenant renounces his character as tenant of the landlord by setting up without reasonable or probable cause title in a third person or himself, the Court may pass a decree in favour of the landlord for such amount of damages, not exceeding ten times the amount of the annual rent payable by the tenant, as it may consider to be just.

(2) The amount of damages decreed under subsection (1), together with any interest accruing due thereon, shall, subject to the landlord's charge for rent, be a first charge on the tenure or holding of the tenant; and the landlord may execute such decree for damages and interest, either as a decree for a sum of money, or, subject to the provisions of section 158B, in any of the modes in which a decree for rent may be executed.]

This section was introduced into the Act by s. 57, Act I, B. C., 1907.

Under the former rent law, s. 111 of the Transfer of Property Act, and the English law, denial of a landlord's title is a ground of forfeiture of the tenant's interest. It is not a ground of forfeiture under the present Act (see notes pp. 106 and 274). The Committee who framed the draft Bill of 1906 considered that forfeiture of the tenant's interest would be too severe a penalty for such an offence. They accordingly framed the present section as a substitute for it. In the Notes on Clauses of the Bill of 1906, it was said :

“ One of the main objects of the Bill is to give landlords greater facilities for collecting their rents. It is to a great extent owing to mala fide denials of the landlord's title that ordinary rent-suits have in so many cases become complicated and protracted title suits. The proposed new section will doubtlessly be very effectual in preventing tenants from attempting to evade payment by the setting up of false titles.”

Agents and representatives of landlords.

187. (1) Any appearance, application or act, in, before or to any Court or authority, required or authorized by this Act to be made or done by a landlord, may, unless the Court or authority otherwise directs, be made or done also by an agent empowered in this behalf by a written authority under the hand of the landlord.

Agents and representatives of landlords.
Power for landlord to act through agent.

(2) Every notice required by this Act to be served on, or given to, a landlord shall, if served on, or given to, an agent empowered as aforesaid to accept service of or receive the same on behalf of the landlord, be as effectual for the purposes of this Act as if it had been served on, or given to, the landlord in person.

(3) Every document required by this Act to be signed or certified by a landlord, except an instrument appointing or authorizing an agent, may be signed or certified by an agent of the landlord authorized in writing in that behalf.

The written authority referred to in sub-section (1) must be stamped as a power of attorney under art. 50, Sch. I, Act I of 1879. See note to sec. 145, p. 426. Under sub-section (3) a receipt for rent may be signed by an agent of the landlord : see note to sec. 56, p. 191.

188. Where two or more persons are joint-landlords, anything which the landlord is under this Act required or authorized to do must be done either by both or all those persons acting together, or by an agent authorized to act on behalf of both or all of them.

Joint-landlords to act collectively or by common agent.

Powers of co-sharer landlords under former law.—Under the former law, one co-sharer landlord could not sue a tenant for a kabulyat (Ghani Mahomed v. Moran, 4 Calc., 96; 2 C. L. R., 370; Sarat Sundari Debi v. Watson, 2 B. L. R., A. C., 159; S. C., 11 W. R., 25; Uday Charn Dhar v. Kali Tara Dasi, 2 B. L. R., App., 52; S. C., 11 W. R., 392; Indra Chandra Dugar v. Brindaban Bihara, 8 B. L. R. 251; contra, Ramanath Rakkhit v. Chand Hari Bhuiya, 6 B. L. R., 356; S. C., 14 W. R., 432). He could collect his share of the rent separately only if the tenant had agreed to pay him his proportionate share of the entire rent. Such an agreement might be evidenced either by direct proof or by usage from which its existence might be presumed, and was perfectly consistent with the continuance of the original lease of the entire tenure,—the cancellation and determination of which was not to be presumed from the mere fact of a separate payment of rent to one or more of the co-sharers (Ghani Mahomed v. Moran, 4 Calc., 96; 2 C. L. R., 370; Ranjai Singh v. Nagar Ghazi, 5 W. R., Act X, 68; Ganga Narain Das v. Sarada Mohan Rai, 12 W. R., 30; 3 B. L. R. A. C., 230; Sri Misra v. Crowdy, 15 W. R., 243; Indramani Barmani v. Surup Chandra Pal, 15 W. R., 395; 12 B. L. R., 291, note; Bhairab Mandal v. Gangaram Banurji, 17 W. R., 408; Haradhan Gossami v. Ram Nawaz Misra, 17 W. R., 414; Dinobandhu Chaudhri v. Dinonath Mukhurji, 19 W. R., 168; Lalan v. Hemraj Singh, 20 W. R., 76; Baikanto Kuibantu v. Sashi Mohan Pal, 22 W. R., 526; Braro Kishor Bhattacharji v. Uma Sundari Debi, 23 W. R., 37; Dinobandhu Rai v. Uma Charan Chaudhri, 23 W. R., 53; Anu Mandal v. Kamaludin, 1 C. L. R., 248; Ahamuddin v. Girish Chandra Shumanto, 4 Calc., 350; Lutfulhak v. Gopichandra Mazumdar, 5 Calc., 941. But see contra, Amrit Chaudhri v. Haidar Ali, W. R., Sp. No., Act X, 63; Mahomed Singh v. Maghi Chaudhurain, 4 W. R., 253; Piari Mohan Singh v. Mirza Ghazi Mazumdar, 11 W. R., 270; S. C., 2 B. L. R. 337; Dinobandhu Rai v. Uma Charan Chaudhri, 23 W. R., 53). But a co-sharer landlord could sue for his share of the rent separately if he made all his co-sharer parties defendant to it (Harkishor Das v. Jugal Kishor Shaha, 16 W. R., 281; Salehunnissa Khatun v. Mohesh Chandra Rai, 17 W. R., 452; Durga Charan Sarmah v. Jampa Dasi, 21 W. R., 46; 12 B. L. R., 289; Mokhada Sundari Dasi v. Karim, 23 W. R., 11; Kali Charan Singh v. Solano, 24 W. R., 267; Srinath Chandra Chaudhri v. Mohesh Chandra Bandopadhyay, 1 C. L. R., 453; Jadu Das v. Sutherland, 4 Calc., 556; 3 C. L. R., 223; Ganga Narain Sarkar v. Srinath Banurji, 5 Calc., 915; Abhai Govind Chaudhri v. Hari Charan Chaudhri, 8 Calc., 277; contra, Annoda Charan Rai v. Kali Kumar Rai, 4 Calc., 89; Manohar Das v. Manzur Ali, 5 All., 40). He was not bound to ask his co-sharers to join him as plaintiff (Tarini Kant Lahiri v. Nandu Kishor Patranavis, 12 C. L. R., 588). He might also claim the whole rent and ask the Court to make the other co-sharers plaintiffs with him (Tara Chand Banurji v. Amir Mandal, 22 W. R., 394). In a subsequent case it was laid down that this was the proper course for him to pursue in such circumstances (Jadu Shat v. Kadambini Dasi 7 Calc., 150).⁽¹⁾ One co-sharer landlord could not enhance the rent of his share, such an enhancement being inconsistent with the continuance of the lease of the entire tenure (Ghani Mahomed v. Moran, 4 Calc., 96; 2 C. L. R., 370; see also Bhairab Mandal v. Gangaram Banurji, 17 W. R., 408; 12 B. L. R., 290, note; Haradhan Gossami v. Ram Nawaz Misra, 17 W. R., 414; Raj Chandra Mazumdar v. Rajaram Gop, 22 W. R., 385; Chuni Singh v. Hari Mahata, 9 C. L. R., 37; 7 Calc., 633; Kashi Kishor Rai v. Alip Mandal, 6 Calc., 149; Jogendra Chandra Ghosh v. Nobin Chundra Chattopadhyaya, 8 Calc., 353; 10 C. L. R., 331; Kali Chandra Singh v. Raj Kishor Bhadro, 11 Calc., 615; but see contra, Dukhi Ram Sarkar v. Gauhar Mandal, 10 W. R., 307; Sarat Sundari Debi v. Ananda Mohan Ghatak, 5 Calc., 273; 4 C. L. R., 448; Bidhu Bhushan Basu v. Kamaradin Mandal, 9 Calc., 864; Rash Bihari Mukhurji v. Sukhi Sundari Dasi, 11 Calc., 644). He could not do so, even if he made all his co-sharers parties to the suit (Bharat Chandra Rai v. Kali Das De, 5 Calc., 574; 5 C. L. R., 545. See contra, Gopal v. Macnaghten, 7 Calc., 751.) But he could issue a notice of enhancement provided the suit was brought by all the share-holders (Chuni Singh v. Hira Mahata, 7 Calc., 633; Bidhu Bhushan Basu v. Kamaradin Mandal, 9 Calc., 864). When a tenant had been admitted into possession by all the co-partners in an estate, he could not be ejected unless all the partners joined in the action (Gauri Sankar Sarmah v. Tirthamani, 12 W. R., 452; Bissessar Karmakar v. Jaggabandhu Karmakar, 14 W. R., 183; Alam Manjhi v. Ashad Ali, 16 W. R., 138; Haladhar Sen v. Guru Das Rai, 20 W. R., 126; Radha Prasad Wasti v. Isaf, 7 Calc., 414; 9 C. L. R., 76; Tulsi Pandi v. Bachu Lal, 12 C. L. R., 223; Bollai Sati v. Akram Ali, 4 Calc., 961; Reasat Hossein v. Chorwar Singh 7 Calc., 470). And in one case it was held that if a single co-sharer had granted a lease of land separately enjoyed by him, an auction-purchaser under Act XI of 1859 could not eject the tenant, as the lease by the single co-sharer was to be looked upon as the act of all (Manohar Mukhurji v. Jai Krishna Mukhurji, 6 W. R., 315), and in another, that one of several joint lessors could eject a lessee on the expiry of lease (Madan Singh v. Harpat Singh, 2 W. R., 290). When several co-sharers had served a joint notice to quit, and they had jointly instituted a suit for the recovery of the land, the fact of one of the plaintiffs withdrawing from the suit did not prevent the remaining plaintiffs from obtaining a decree for possession of their shares (Diwarka Nath Rai v. Kali Chandra Rai, 13 Calc., 75). Where land is held in joint proprietorship, an action to recover it from a stranger must be brought in the names of all the proprietors jointly (Nandan Lal v. Lloyd, 22 W. R., 74). But no man has a right to intrude upon ijmali property against the will of the co-sharers or of any them. If he does so, he may be ejected without notice, either altogether, if all the co-sharers join in the suit, or partially, if only some of the co-sharers wish to eject him : and the legal means by which such partial ejectment is effected is by giving the plaintiffs possession of their shares jointly with the intruder (Radha Prasad Wasti v. Isaf, 7 Calc., 414 ; 9 C. L. R., 76. See also Ghansham Singh v. Ranjit Singh, 4 W. R., Act X, 39, and contra, Luchman Sahai v. Siami Jha, 5 W. R., Act X, 93). One shareholder in a joint undivided estate could not apply under sec. 10, Act VI, B. C., of 1862 for the measurement of land (Muluk Chand Mandal v. Madhushudan Bachaspati, 16 W. R., 126 ; Surendra Mohan Rai v. Bhagabat Charan Gangopadhyaya, 18 W. R., 332 ; 10 B. L. R., 403 note) ; nor could he do so under sec. 37, Act VIII, B. C., 1862 (Santiram Panjah v. Baikant Pariu, 19 W. R., 280 ; 10 B. L. R., 397 ; Piari Mohan Mukhurji v. Raj Krishna Mukhurji, 20 W. R., 385). But he could do so, under sec. 38, Act VIII, B. C., of 1869, after making the remaining proprietors parties to the proceedings (Abdul Hossein v. Lal Chand Mahtun, 10 Calc., 36 ; 13 C. L. R., 323). See note, p. 278. Finally, a co-sharer landlord could not exercise the power of distraint except through a manager authorised to collect the rents on behalf of all the sharers (sec. 112, Act X of 1859, and sec. 68, Act VIII B. C. of 1869).

Meaning of "landlord" and "joint landlord" in this section.—The word "landlord" must be taken to mean the whole body of landlords (Jagabandhu Patuk v. Jadu Ghosh Alkushi, 15 Calc., 47). The term "joint landlords" must be held to include all the co-sharers immediately under whom the tenant holds, whether such co-sharers receive their quota of rent from the tenant jointly or separately (Haladhar Saha v. Rhidni Sundari, 19 Calc., 593). When a tenure was held under a zamindari forming an entire estate, which was subsequently partitioned into four, it was held that the effect of the partition was to create separate and distinct tenures under the proprietors of the four new estates, and that the proprietors of the several estates were not joint landlords (Hem Chandra Chaudhri v. Kali Prasanna Bhaduri, 26 Calc., 832). Where a tenant agreed with his landlord, a dar-mokararidar, to pay rent both to him and the mokararidar, held, that they were not joint landlords, and even if they were, by collecting rent and suing separately, they had ceased to be so (Matungini Dasi v. Ram Das Mallik, 7 C. W. N., 93). When a tenant has contracted to pay rent to one of several landlords in respect of his share separately from that of his co-sharers, and such rent has been assessed without reference to the rent payable to the other co-sharers and has been separately collected, the landlord is a separate landlord (Bhabatarini Dasi v. Ekabbar Malita, 5 C. L. J., 235). A kabulyat by which a tenant agrees to pay rent at a specified rate to a co-sharer landlord for his undivided half share of the lands held by the tenant under the whole body of landlords and further to pay additional rent at a fixed rate for additional area found on measurement to be held by him under such co-sharer creates a separate tenancy, and is not merely an agreement to pay the share of the rent separately (Sailendra Nath Mitra v. Karali Charan Singh, 2 C. L. J., 534). Section 188 does not prohibit joint landlords from ceasing to be joint or preclude them from suing for their shares of the rent separately, when they have ceased or wish to cease, to be joint landlords; provided the suits are so framed as to free the tenant from all further liability to any one of them (Rajnarin Mitra v. Ekadasi Bag, 27 Calc., 479; 4 C. W. N., 494).

Meaning of "authorized."—All that this section requires is that the agent should be authorized, and such authority may be given either verbally or in writing (Gopinath Chakravartti v. Umakanth Das Rai, 24 Calc., 169).

Powers of joint landlords under this Act.—Under the provisions of this Act joint landlords cannot enhance (ss. 6, 33, 43 and 48), the rent of their tenants except jointly or by an agent authorized to act on behalf of all of them (Gopal Chandra Das v. Umesh Narain Chaudhri, 17 Calc., 695; Mahib Ali v. Amir Rui, 17 Calc., 540; Haladhar Shaha v. Rhidai Sundari, 19 Calc., 593; Baidya Nath De Sarkar v. Ilim, 2 C. W. N., 44; 25 Calc., 917). But contracts for enhanced rent executed before the passing of this Act do not come within the operation of this section (Tejendra Narain Singh v. Bakai Singh, 22 Calc., 658). Co-sharer landlords who are joint landlords cannot now sue separately for additional rent for additional land found by measurement to be in a tenant's possession, (sec. 52 (a); Gopal Chandra Das v. Umesh Narain Chaudhri, 17 Calc., 695; Bindu Bashini Dasi v. Piari Mohan Basu, 20 Calc., 107). But where the tenant has agreed to allow one of several co-sharer landlords to deal with him as his own tenant without reference to the rights of the other co-sharer landlords, the effect is to create a separate tenancy under such fractional co-sharer and the provisions of section 188 are inapplicable (Panchanan Banerji v. Raj Kumar Guha, 19 Calc., 610; Govind Chandra Pal v. Hamidulla Bhuiyan, 7 C. W. N., 670. Compare on this point Baidya Nath De Sarkar v. Ilim, (2 C. W. N., 44; 25th Calc., 917). So too, when a tenant executed a kabulyat agreeing to pay rent for a certain area at a certain rate, and further agreeing to pay rent at the same rate for an additional area on its becoming fit for cultivation, it was held that a suit brought on the kabulyat by the co-sharer landlord in whose favour it had been executed, would lie. It was said that the suit was not one for enhancement or one for additional rent for excess land, and if the plaintiff was entitled, as he admittedly was, to realize his share of the rent separately, there was no reason why he should not be entitled to claim separately the rent that was payable, not upon a fresh adjustment of the rent inconsistent with a continuance of the old tenancy, but upon an ascertainment of the rent payable in accordance with the terms of the original letting (Ram Chandra Chakravartti v. Giridhar Datta, 19 Calc., 755). This was followed in Tejendra Narain Singh v. Bakai Singh, (22 Calc., 658); and Din Tarini Dasi v. Broughton, (3 C. W. N., 225). But this is not the case when the rent has to be ascertained and adjusted after measurement (Baidya Nath De Sarkar v. Ilim, 2 C. W. N., 44; 25 Calc., 917). So, when the defendants took possession of certain lands by gradual encroachment, and the plaintiffs, being co-sharer landlords, sued for assessment of rent, it was held that the holding would be a new holding and the rent assessed a new rent, sec. 52 would not apply and sec. 188 would be no bar to the suit. But if a co-sharer landlord sues for rent not merely of the additional land found in possession of the tenant, but in respect of the entire quantity of land found in his possession including the lands of his old holding, sec. 52 applies and sec. 188 bars the suit (Abdul Hamid v. Mohini Kant Saha, 4 C. W. N., 508). A fractional share-holder cannot grant abatement of the rent of a holding independently of his other co-sharers (sec. 52 (b)); Syama Charan Mandal v. Saim Mollah, 1 C. W. N., 415; Bhupendra Narain Datta v. Raman Krishna Datta, 27 Calc., 417; 4 C. W. N., 107). A co-sharer landlord who is one of several joint landlords cannot now eject a tenant (secs. 10, 18, 25 and 49), from a tenancy created by all the co-sharers unless it has been determined by all of them (Ghulam Mohiuddin v. Khairan, 8 C. W. N., 325; 31 Calc., 786). But a co-sharer landlord who is the managing member of a joint Hindu family may eject (Annoda Mohan Sarma v. Basir, S. A. 1568 of 1886, decided 15th Jan., 1887), and this section does not apply when the suit is brought under the contract law on a breach of the conditions of a lease by the tenant (Haripria Debi v. Ram Chandra Mahanti, 19 Calc., 541), nor when separate leases have been executed in favour of each co-sharer, stipulating for the separate payment of each co-sharer's share of the rent, giving each co-sharer a right to measure and assess the land independently of the others and thus constituting three separate tenancies, one of which might be avoided without affecting the others (Harendra Narain Singh v. Moran, 15 Calc., 40). A co-sharer landlord can take joint possession of an abandoned non-transferable holding without bringing a suit for partition (Dilbar Sardar v. Hossein Ali, 26 Calc., 553). See note, p. 267.

A co-sharer who is a joint landlord cannot now apply for commutation of a rent payable in kind (sec. 40), or for a division and appraisal of rent payable in kind (sec. 69), (Nukheda Singh v. Ripu Mardan Singh, 4 C. W. N., 239), or for the registration of landlords' improvements (sec. 80), or sub-let (sec. 85), or issue a notice and enter upon an abandoned holding (sec. 87), or measure lands (sec. 90); (Mahib Ali v. Amir Rai, 17 Calc., 540; Matangini Dasi v. Ram Das Mallik, 7 C. W. N., 93,) (in which case the landlords were not joint landlords), or apply for a survey and record-of-rights (sec. 101 (2) (a), or for a settlement of fair rents [sec. 105 (1) and (2)], or distrain (sec. 121), or apply to have the incidents of a tenancy determined (sec. 158, and Mahib Ali v. Amir Rai, 17 Calc., 538), or apply for the attachment and sale of a tenure or holding so that the tenure or holding may pass at the sale (sec. 162); (Bhaba Nath Rai v. Durga Prasanno Ghosh, 16 Calc., 326; Beni Madhab Rai v. Jaod Ali Sirkar, 17 Calc., 390⁽¹⁾; Durga Charan Mandal v. Kali Prasanna Sarkar, 26 Calc., 727; 3 C. W. N., 586; Sadagar Sarkar v. Krishna Chandra Nath, 26 Calc., 937; 3 C. W. N., 742; Jurip v. Ram Kumar De, 3 C. W. N., 747, Narain Uddin v. Srimanta Ghosh, 29 Calc., 219, 6 C. W. N., 124). Umesh Chandra Rai v. Gour Lal Chaudhri, 10 C. W. N., 1042⁽²⁾), or apply to have declared that land has ceased to be chur or diara land [sec. 180 (3)]. But he may institute proceedings under sec. 106, disputing an entry in a record-of-rights (Sher Bahadur Shahu v. Mackenzie, 7 C. W. N., 400). A co-sharer landlord may sue to compel a tenant to fill up a tank which he has excavated in one part of his holding (Govinda Chandra Basu v. Kamizuddin, 9 C. W. N., ccxlv).

Application of this section to suits for arrears of rent.—

It has been held that this section does not apply to a suit brought by a co-sharer landlord for his share of the rent, if he has previously collected it separately (Dinamayi Debi v. Satimullah, decided on the 14th Sept., 1886; reference under sec. 617 of Act X of 1877 from the District Judge of Rungpore, dated 18th June, 1886. Jagabandhu Patak v. Jadu Ghosh Alkushi, 15 Calc., 47; Raj Kumar Mazumdar v. Prabal Chandra Ganguli, 9 C. W. N., 656; or if the tenant has taken a lease from him in respect of his share of the holding (Bihari Charan Sen v. Bhut Nath Paramanik, 3 C. W. N., 214): or to a suit by a co-sharer landlord for the entire rent, after making the other co-sharers, who will not join in the suit, parties defendant (Prem Chand Naskar v. Mukhoda Debi, 14 Calc., 201, and Umesh Chandra Rai v. Nasir Mallik, 14 Calc., 203, note). But a suit by a co-sharer landlord for his proportionate share of the rent cannot be maintained, when there is no contract under which the tenant is bound to pay his share separately, although the other co-sharers landlords are made defendants (Ram Saran v. Nem Nurain, 6 C. W. N., 326). When a landlord sues for the entire rent of a holding, but it is found that he is entitled only to a share of the rent, the suit must be dismissed, unless his co-sharers are made parties to it or an arrangement is proved between the landlords and the tenant, that the latter should pay each landlord his proportionate share of the entire rent (Nepal Chandra Ghosh v. Mohendra Nath Rai, 31 Calc., 707). When a decree for the entire rent of a tenure is obtained by one of several co-sharers by making the others parties defendant and is executed by him alone, the decree has the same effect as if obtained by all the co-sharers, and sec. 188 has no application (Chandra Sikhar Patra v. Rani Manjhi, 3 C. W. N., 386). It is, only when plaintiffs can show that those entitled as co-sharers to join with them refused to join, or have otherwise acted prejudicially to their interests, that they are entitled to sue alone and make their co-sharers defendants in the suit (Dwarkanath Mittra v. Tara Prasanna Rai, 17 Calc. 160; Jibanti Nath Khan v. Gokul Chandra Chaudhuri, 19 Calc., 760; Sashi Sikharesswar Rai v. Girish Chandra Lahiri, 1 C. W. N., 659). But such a suit should not be dismissed merely on the ground that there is no evidence to show that the other co-sharers refused to join as plaintiffs (Bissessar Rai Chaudhuri v. Braja Kant Rai, 1 C. W. N., 221). If co-sharers are unaware whether the share of the rent due to their other co-sharers has been paid or not, they are entitled to bring their suit in the alternative, asking for their share of the rent only in the first instance, but praying that, if any portion of the rent due to their co-sharers be unpaid, they may be allowed to amend their plaint and claim a decree for the entire rent (Prakash Lal v. Ekkauri Balgobind Sahai, 19 Calc., 735). See sec. 148A, p. 439. In Piari Mohan Basu v. Nobin Chandra Rai, 26 Calc., 409; 3 C. W. N., 271) as the Court was of opinion that there was a conflict between the cases of Tarini Kant Lahiri v. Nanda Kishor Patronavis (12 C. L. R., 588), Dwarkanath Mittra v. Tara Prasanna

(1) But see Nitayai Behari Saha v. Hari Govindo Saha, 26 Calc., 677.

Rai (17 Calc., 160), Bissessar Rai Chaudhuri v. Braja Kanta Rai, (1 C. W. N., 221), and Sashi Shikareswar Rai v. Grish Chandra Lahiri, (1 C. W. N., 659) it referred the following question for the decision of a Full Bench: "When two parties contract with a third party, can a suit by one of them, making the other a co-defendant be dismissed, because the plaintiff had not proved that the co defendant had refused to join as plaintiff?" The Full Bench answered this question in the negative. When a number of landlords collect rent jointly, the fact that one of them alone has got his name registered under the Land Registration Act in respect of his share does not entitle him to recover his share of the rent separately, (Rampad Singh v. Ramdas Pandi, 1 C. W. N., ccxlv).

Where a whole body of co-sharer landlords and tenants have come to an arrangement by which rent is made payable to the co-sharers separately in proportion to their shares in the estate, it is not competent for one of the co-sharers so long as such arrangement subsists, to bring a suit for the full rents of the tenure by making his co-sharers parties defendants (Promoda Nuth Rai v. Ramani Kant Rai, 9 C. W. N., 34). But there is nothing to prevent the co-sharers reverting to their original condition, if they are all agreed (Shamu Charan Bhattacharya v. Akhai Kumar Mitra, 10 C. W. N., 787; 3 C. L. J., 627,) where there is nothing to show that their former arrangement to collect the rent separately was to be perpetual (Akhai Kumar Mitra v. Gopal Kamini Debi, 33 Calc. 1010; 10 C. W. N., 952)

Where several co-sharer landlords, who had been collecting the rent due to them separately from the dar-maurasidars, united in bringing an action against the intermediate maurasidars for arrears of rent, so as to obtain a decree which would be binding upon and would pass the tenure; held, that the landlords were not bound to continue to collect rent in this manner unless they had given their consent in writing under sec. 88, and that their action in bringing a joint suit did not amount to fraud (Girish Chandra Mukhurji v. Chhatradhar Ghosh, 3 C. L. J., 379).

But see the changes introduced in Bengal by ss. 148A, 158B, the proviso to s. 169, and s. 188A, added to the Act by Act I, B. C., of 1907.

Suits for damages by co-sharer landlords.—A suit for damages for trees cut down by a tenant is maintainable at the instance of one of several joint landlords (Hrisikesh Singhu v. Sadhu Charan Lohar, 2 C. W. N., 80).

High Court's powers of revision.—Orders passed illegally and with material irregularity under this section may be revised by the High Court under sec. 622, C. P. C. (Jugabandhu Patak v. Judu Ghosh Alkushi, 15 Calc., 47; Hrisikesh Singhu v. Sadhu Charan Lohar, 2 C. W. N., 80).

This section was introduced into the Act by s. 58, Act I, B. C., 1907. In the Select Committee's report on the Bill of 1906, it is said with reference to this section :

"We have recast this clause in order more fully to counteract the ruling in the case of Jogendra Nath Ghosh v. Paban Chandra Ghosh referred to in the note on clause 34. We have made the provisions of sections 143 to 153 applicable to all suits between landlord and tenant as such instituted by a sole landlord, the entire body of landlords or one or more co-sharer landlords, and have omitted mention of sections 168, 169, 184 and 185, and we have applied the various sections of Chapter XIV of the Act to proceedings in execution of rent decrees in suits framed under section 158B. This was apparently the intention of the framers of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, but the intention was frustrated by the ratio decidendi in the case of Jogendra Nath Ghosh v. Paban Chandra Ghosh," (8 C. W. N., 472). See notes to 148A, 158B, 169, and Sched. III, Arts (2) and (6).

Sub-sections (2), (3), and (4) in brackets have been substituted for sub-section (2) of this section by s. 59, Act I, B. C., 1907.

Extended to Orissa, (Not., Jan 5th, 1893), and to the Chota Nagpur Division, except the district of Manbhum (Not., Aug. 4th, 1906).

Government Rules under this Act.—The rules made by the Local Government under this section, with the Board of Revenue's instructions thereon, are printed in Appendix I. It was held in Upadhyaya Thakur v. Persidh Singh, (23 Calc., 723) that rule 25 of the former Chap. VI of the Government rules under the Act which allowed any number of tenants occupying land under the same landlord to be joined as defendants in the same proceeding for the settlement of rents had been legally made by Government under clause (1) of this section. See rule 39 of the present Chap. VI.

Board of Revenue's Survey and Settlement Rules.—All rules in the Board of Survey and Settlement Manual relating to the duties of Revenue officers making a survey and preparing a record-of-rights under the authority of section 101 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, so far as such officers are judicial officers and purporting to be instructions to those officers, which have not been passed by Government in the manner prescribed by sers. 189 and 195, are altogether without sanction of law and are in no way binding on such officers (Secretary of State v. Netai Singh, 21 Calc., 38, pp. 48, 49).

190. (1) Every authority having power to make rules under any section of this Act shall, before making the rules, publish a draft of the proposed rules for the information of persons likely to be affected thereby.

Procedure for making, publication and confirmation of rules.

(2) The publication shall be made, in the case of rules made by the Local Government or High Court, in such manner as may, in its opinion, be sufficient for giving information to persons interested, and, in the case of rules made by any other authority, in the prescribed manner :

Provided that every such draft shall be published in the official Gazette.

(3) There shall be published with the draft a notice specifying a date, not earlier than the expiration of one month after the date of publication, at or after which the draft will be taken into consideration.

(4) The authority shall receive and consider any objection or suggestion which may be made by any person with respect to the draft before the date so specified.

(5) The publication in the official Gazette of a rule purporting to be made under this Act shall be conclusive evidence that it has been duly made.

(6) All rules made under this Act may, from time to time, subject to the sanction (if any) required for making them, be amended, added to or cancelled by the authority having power to make the same.

Extended to Orissa, (Not., Jan. 5th, 1893) and to the Chota Nagpur Division except the district of Manbhum (Not., Aug. 4th 1906).

The only other authority, besides the Local Government, authorized by this Act to make rules under it is the High Court (see secs. 100, 142 and 143). The rules framed by the High Court under secs. 100 and 142 will be found printed in Appendix III. No rules under sec. 143 have as yet been made by the High Court. Rules framed by the Inspector General of Registration under sec. 69 of the Indian Registration Act and approved of by the Local Government will be found in Appendix IV, but they are not rules made under this Act.

Provisions as to temporarily-settled districts.

191. Where the area comprised in a tenure is situate in an estate which has never been permanently settled, nothing in this Act shall prevent the enhancement of the rent upon the expiration of a temporary settlement of the revenue, unless the right to hold beyond the term of the settlement at a particular rate of rent has been expressly recognized in settlement-proceedings by a Revenue-authority empowered by the Government to make definitively or confirm settlements.

Provisions as to temporarily-settled districts.

Saving as to tenures held in estates which have been permanently settled.

Extended to Orissa (Not., Sept. 10th, 1891).

This section was originally section 20 of the Bengal Tenancy Act Bill, 1883. In the Statement of Objects and Reasons for the Bill it is stated with reference to this section, which saves to a landlord in a temporarily settled tract a right to raise the rent of any tenure when a new settlement of the revenue is made, that it is new and "may be defended as being in accordance with the views that prevail as to the relative position of the landlord, the tenant and the Government in such tracts. The Government has a right to raise its revenue on the occasion of a fresh settlement. Of this right, no act of the landlord can deprive it; and, accordingly, if the landlord were to be bound by a grant at fixed rates made by him so as to extend beyond the term of the settlement, the result would be that on the occasion of a new settlement, he might be exposed to the risk of having to pay an enhanced revenue without the possibility of recovering it from his tenant." (Statement of Objects and Reasons, Bengal Tenancy Bill, 1883, Chap. III, para. 21; Selections from the papers relating to the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, p. 189).

Section 192, however, as amended by Act I, B. C., of 1907, enables a Revenue Officer making a settlement of land revenue in a temporarily settled estate, to fix fair and equitable rents of his own motion, even where the landlord has granted a lease or made a contract purporting to entitle the tenant to hold the land free of rent or at a particular rent.

This section does not apply to a case in which an estate though not permanently settled in 1793 was subsequently permanently settled in 1811 (Tamasha Bibi v. Asutosh Dhar, 4 C. W. N., 513).

192. When a landlord grants a lease, or makes any other contract, purporting to entitle the tenant of land not included in an area permanently settled to hold that land free of rent or at a particular rent, and while the lease or contract is in force—

Power to alter rent in case of new assessment of revenue.

- (a) land-revenue is for the first time made payable in respect of the land, or
- (b) land-revenue having been previously payable in respect of it, a fresh settlement of land-revenue is made, a Revenue-officer may, notwithstanding anything in the contract between the parties, by order, on the application of the landlord or of the tenant, [or of his own motion shall] fix a fair and equitable rent for the land in accordance with the provisions of this Act.

The words within brackets were inserted in this section by s. 60, Act I, B. C., 1907.

Extended to Orissa, (Not., Oct. 17th, 1892).

This section was sec. 121 of the Bengal Tenancy Bill, 1883, as first introduced. In the Statement of Objects and Reasons (Chap. IX, para. 86) it is said that this section "in effect enacts that contracts fixing rents shall, in temporarily-settled tracts, hold good only until a fresh settlement is made. The reasons for the provision are similar to those stated above (para. 21) in connection with sec. 20" (now sec. 191). (See Selections from the papers relating to the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, p. 199). But it would seem that under the law as it stood before the Amendment Act I, B. C., of 1907, leases and contracts made by a landlord purporting to entitle a tenant of temporarily settled land to hold that land rent-free or at a particular rent, could only be avoided in the manner prescribed by the section, and, further, that a Settlement Officer could act under the section only on the application of the landlord or the tenant and could not of his own motion alter the rent agreed upon by the parties, though the land might be assessed for revenue purpose at full rates. But the words added by Act I. B. C., of 1907 enable a Revenue officer to fix rents in such cases of his own motion. The Notes on Clauses appended to the Amendment Bill of 1906 contain the following remarks :—

"This clause is intended to enable the Revenue Officer, in cases where a settlement of land revenue is being made, to fix a fair and equitable rent of his own motion for all lands, in respect of which the settlement of land revenue is being made. It sometimes happens that temporary settlement-holders, in the course of a settlement, fraudulently create fictitious rent-free holdings or holdings at low rates of rent, with the object of reducing the value of the estate and getting the revenue lowered. The revenue demand is fixed on a fair valuation of the lands of the estate, but unless fair and equitable rents are fixed, the settlement-holder may be unable to meet the demand, and the Government revenue may be endangered. It is considered necessary, therefore, that the Revenue Officer should have power to settle fair and equitable rents of his own motion, in cases where the settlement-holder has collusively lowered the rental demand, with the object of preventing a new settlement being made on a fair revenue."

Rights of pasturage, &c.

193. The provisions of this Act applicable to suits for the recovery of arrears of rent shall, as far as may be, apply to suits for the recovery of anything payable or deliverable in respect of any rights of pasturage, forest-rights, rights over fisheries and the like.

Rights of pasturage, &c.

Rights of pasturage, forest-rights, &c.

Rights of pasturage, forest rights and fisheries.—When pasture land, a forest, thatching grass land, or a tank is held by a tenure-holder or raiyat as part of his tenure or holding, the provisions of this Act will be fully applicable; but when they are held otherwise, only the provisions of this Act for the recovery of arrears of rent will be applicable, and they only “so far as may be.” The provisions of this section make no change in the law on this subject which prevailed before the passing of this Act. Thus, under the old law it was held that a right of occupancy could be gained in land used for grazing horses (Fitzpatrick v. Wallace, 11 W. R., 231) and in a tank situated on land let for cultivation, but not in a tank forming the principal subject of the lease, and with only so much land appurtenant as was necessary for its banks (Nidhi Krishna Basu v. Ram Das Sen, 20 W. R., 341; Shibu Jelya v. Gopal Chandra Chaudhuri, 19 W. R., 200), or in a tank not part of an agricultural holding but used for rearing and preserving fish (Mahananda Chakravarti v. Mangala Krotani, 31 Calc., 937) or when the tenant had merely a right to graze cattle, cut wood, catch fish or cut the grass of thatching grass land which grew spontaneously, and which he in no way cultivated (Gur Dial v. Ram Dut, 1 Agra, F. B., 15). No right of occupancy can be acquired in a fishery or jalkur (Uma Kanto Sarkar v. Gopal Singh, 2 W. R., Act X, 19; Sham Narain Chaudhuri v. The Court of Wards, 23 W. R., 432; Jagbandhu Saha v. Promatha Nath Rai, 4 Calc., 767; Bollai Sati v. Akram Ali, 4 Calc., 961). So, too, a lessor cannot sue under Act X of 1859 to enhance the rent payable by a lessee on account of a right leased to the latter to collect lac insects from trees growing in the former's lands (Gopal Singh Murah v. Sankari Paharin, 23 W. R., 458). But a rent suit may be brought under a farming lease from the owner of a hat to collect a portion of the proceeds of sale from persons exposing their goods for sale in the hat (Bangshodhur Biswas v. Mudhu Mahaldar, 21 W. R., 383). See note to secs. 3 (3), and 3 (5), pp. 21, 22, or for rent of the description known as phalkar (Gobind Sukal v. Gokul Bhakat, 23 W. R., 304). That the provisions of this Act for the recovery of arrears of rent are only made applicable to rights of pasturage, forest rights, etc., "as far as may be," would appear to be due to the fact that the holders of such rights may have only limited or no interests in the land over which they exercise these rights (Bishun Lal Das v. Khairunnissa Begum, 1 W. R., 78; Manohar Chaudhuri v. Nursingh Chaudhuri, 11 W. R., 272; Radha Mohan Mandal v. Nil Madhub Mandal, 24 W. R., 200; David v. Grish Chandra Guha, 9 Calc., 183), though there is no such broad proposition that the settlement of a jalkar implies no right in the soil (Rakhai Charan Mandal v. Watson & Co, 10 Calc., 50). It is, therefore, doubtful how far the provisions of Chap. XII, relating to distraint and of Chap. XIV, relating to sales for arrears under decree, will apply to arrears of rent of such rights. It has been held that a jalkar is not an easement within the meaning of sec. 27 of the Limitation Act, IX of 1871. (Parbati Nath Rai v. Madhu Puroi, 1 C. L. R., 592). But it may exist in India as an incorporeal hereditament (Forbes v. Mir Muhammad Hossein, 12 B. L. R., 210; 20 W. R. 44) and is immoveable property within the meaning of the General Clauses Act (I of 1868) (Fadu Jhala v. Gaur Mohan Jhala, 19 Calc. 544). Jalkar, or water rights, may include rights to drift and stranded timber as well as rights to fishing or any other interest of a similar kind in the produce of a river (Amriteswari Debi v. Secretary of State, 24 Calc., 504; 1 C. W. N., 249). When a grant is merely of a right of fishery, the lessee acquires no right in the sub-soil nor is he entitled to retain possession when the water dries up (Mohanand Chakravarti v. Mangala Keotani, 31 Calc., 937; 8 C. W. N., 804). One who has a right of fishery in a public navigable river is entitled to such right also in a channel which is connected with it like an arm of the river system, and flows in the bed from which the river has shifted (Jagendra Narain Rai v. Crawford, 2 C. L. J., 569.) A suit for rent of a jalkar will lie in the Court where the suit for possession of the fishery would lie (sec. 144 of this Act; Shibu Halder v. Gopi Sundari Dasi, 1 C. W. N., lxxxvii). The rent law in Bengal does not apply to ferry tolls (Ruchha Singh v. Upendro Chandra Singh, 27 Calc., 239).

(a) the powers and duties of Settlement-officers as defined by any law not expressly repealed by this Act ;

(b) any enactment regulating the procedure for the realization of rents in estates belonging to the Government, or under the management of the Court of Wards or of the Revenue-authorities ;

(c) any enactment relating to the avoidance of tenancies and incumbrances by a sale for arrears of the Government revenue ;

(d) any enactment relating to the partition of revenue-paying estates ;

(e) any enactment relating to patni tenures, in so far as it relates to those tenures ; or

(f) any other special or local law not repealed either expressly or by necessary implication by this Act.

Extended to the Chota Nagpur Division, except the district of Manbhum (Not., Feb, 9th, 1903).

Settlement laws.—The principal laws relating to settlements in Bengal are Regulations VII of 1822, IX and XI of 1825, and IX of 1833. Act VIII, B. C., of 1879 is in force only in districts to which the Bengal Tenancy Act has not been extended.

Realization of rents in Government and Wards' Estates.—The Acts relating to this subject are Acts VII (B. C.) of 1868, and I (B. C.) of 1895.

Sales for arrears of Government revenue.—The laws relating to the avoidance of tenancies and incumbrances by sales for arrears of Government revenue are Acts XI of 1859 (secs. 37 and 52), VII (B. C.) of 1868, (secs. 11 and 12), and II (B. C.) of 1895.

Partition of revenue-paying estates.—The law now regulating the partition of revenue-paying estates in Bengal is Act V (B. C.) of 1897.

Patni tenures.—The laws relating to patni tenures are Regulations VIII of 1819 and I of 1820 and Acts VI of 1853 and VIII (B. C.) of 1865. Regulation VIII of 1819 being an enactment relating to patni tenures is under sec. 195 (e) of the Bengal Tenancy Act not affected by that Act, and the provisions of sec. 13 of that Act have no application to patni tenures (Gyanoda Kanth Rai v. Bramomayi Dasi, 17 Calc., 162). But the provisions of secs. 15 and 17 of the Bengal Tenancy Act apply to patni tenures. The object of sec. 195 (e) is that nothing in the Bengal Tenancy Act should interfere with the patni law in respect of patni tenures, but that in other respects the Bengal Tenancy Act should be held to apply, as supplementing the patni law (Durga Prasad Bando-padhya v. Brindaban Rai, 19 Calc., 504). Where certain shares in certain mahals were granted in a permanent lease along with certain jote lands situated in those mahals by one instrument which described it as a patni settlement, at a rent fixed in a lump and where in such a case there was no appropriation of the rent of the jote jamas as distinguished from those of the patni taluks: held that the settlement created by this lease cannot be regarded as a valid patni tenure although the parties may have originally agreed that the patni regulation will apply (Hayes v. Bidya Nand Thakur, 3 C. L. J., 373).

Dar-patni tenures.—Dar-patni tenures are not included within the terms of clause (e) of sec. 195. "The words 'in so far as it relates to those tenures, must,' we think, be treated as expressly limiting the provision to enactments relating to patnis properly and strictly so called and as intended to exclude those which relate to tenures, which, although resembling patnis, as dar-patnis, &c., are not strictly patnis, not possessing all the qualities of them." Section 13 of this Act, therefore, applies to sales of dar-patni tenures in execution of decrees (Mahomed Abbas Mandal v. Brajo Sundari Debi, 18 Calc., 360). So, notwithstanding a stipulation in a patni lease that on default of any instalment of rent, the landlord shall be entitled to realize it by the sale of the patni, the patni-dar is personally liable (Sourendra Mohun Tagore v. Sarnomoyi, 26 Calc., 103).

Construction of Act.

Construction of Act.

Act to be read subject to Acts hereafter passed by Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council.

196. This Act shall be read subject to every Act passed after its commencement by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal in Council.

"In the absence of some such provision as this, the Bengal Legislative Council would, owing to the wide extent of ground covered by this measure of the Supreme Legislature, find itself practically debarred for all time to come from dealing with almost every question affecting the relations of agricultural landlords and tenants." (Report of the Select Committee, dated 12th February, 1885. Selections from papers relating to the Bengal Tenancy Act. 1885, p. 389). Under sec. 5 of the Indian Councils Act, 1892, (55 and 56 Vict., c. 14, s. 5,) the local legislature of any province may with the previous sanction of the Governor-General repeal or amend as to that province any Act or Regulation of the Supreme Legislature

SCHEDULE III.

LIMITATION.

(See section 184.)

PART I.—Suits.

Description of Suit.	Period of Limitation.	Time from which period begins to run.
1. To eject any tenure-holder or raiyat on account of any breach of a condition in respect of which there is a contract expressly providing that ejectment shall be the penalty of such breach.	One year.	The date of the breach.
[1 (a) To eject a non-occupancy raiyat on the ground of the expiration of the term of his lease.	Six months	The expiration of the term.]
2. For the recovery of an arrear of rent [in a suit brought by— (i) a sole landlord, (ii) the entire body of landlords, or (iii) one or more co-sharer landlords.]	Six months.	The date of the service of notice of the deposit.
(a) when the arrear fell due before a deposit was made under section 61 on account of the rent of the same holding.	Three years	The last day of the Bengali year in which the arrear fell due, where that year prevails, and the last day of the month of Jeyt of the Amli or Fasli year in which the arrear fell due, where either of those years prevails. [The last day of the agricultural year in which the arrear fell due.]
(b) in other cases ,	...	The date of dispossession.
3. To recover possession of land claimed by the plaintiff as an occupancy-raiyat [a raiyat or an under-raiyat]	Two years.	The date of dispossession.

The new article 1 (a) has been added and the words in brackets have been inserted by sec. 61, Act I, B. C., 1907. The words "the last day of the agricultural year" have been substituted for the whole of the words in the 3rd col., opposite art. 2, b), and the words "a raiyat or an under-raiyat" are substituted for the words an "occupancy raiyat" in article (3).

PART II.—Appeals.

Description of Appeal.	Period of Limitation.	Time from which period begins to run.
4. From any decree or order under this Act, to the Court of a District Judge or Special Judge.	Thirty days.	The date of the decree or order appealed against.
5. From any order of a Collector under this Act, to the Commissioner.	Thirty days.	The date of the order appealed against.

PART III.—Applications.

Description of Application.	Period of Limitation.	Time from which period begins to run.
For the execution of a decree or order made under this Act, or any Act repealed by this Act, [in a suit between landlord and tenant to whom the provisions of this Act are applicable,] and not being a decree for a sum of money exceeding Rs. 500, exclusive of any interest which may have accrued after decree upon the sum decreed, but inclusive of the costs of executing such decree; except where the judgment-debtor has by fraud or force prevented the execution of the decree, in which case the period of limitation shall be governed by the provisions of the Indian Limitation Act, 1877.	Three years	(1) The date of the decree or order; or (2) where there has been an appeal, the date of the final decree or order of the Appellate Court; or (3) where there has been a review of judgment, the date of the decision passed on the review.

The words in brackets in article 6 have been substituted by sec. 61, Act I, B. C., 1907, for the words "under this Act, or any Act repealed by this Act."

Article 1.—A landlord who has waived his right to sue for the cancelment of a lease on the raiyat's failure to pay six successive instalments is not barred by limitation from suing for cancelment on further breaches of the covenant (Duli Chand v. Meher Chand Sahu, 8 W. R., 138). But in a suit for the cancelment of a lease on the ground of an alleged breach of its conditions, viz., the defendant's failure to plant 2,000 betel-nut trees within five years from the date of the lease, it was held that the plaintiff's cause of action was not a continuing or an annually recurring one, but accrued when the breach actually took place, (i. e.,) on the expiration of the stipulated five years, and that plaintiff was bound to sue within one year from that date (Kali Kamal Majumdar v. Jumat Ali, 11 W. R. 452 ; 3 B. L. R., App., 47).

For a suit brought to eject a tenant for misuse of the land in a manner which has rendered it unfit for the purposes of the tenancy, the period of limitation is two years under art. 32, Sch. II of Act XV of 1877 (Soman Gope v. Raghubar Ojha, 24 Calc., 160 ; 1 C. W. N., 223).

Article 1 (a).—Section 45 has been repealed in Bengal, and the period of limitation for a suit for the ejectment of a non-occupancy raiyat on the ground of the expiration of the term of his lease has been transferred to its more appropriate place, Schedule III. See note, p. 153.

Article 2.—This article includes a suit to recover under a lease, and there is no distinction as to the form of the lease, or as to whether it is registered or not (Iskwari Prasad Narain Sahi v. Crowdy, 17 Calc., 469). Suits for rent founded on registered contracts in respect of lands subject to the provisions of the Tenancy Act are governed by the limitation provided by this article (Mackenzie v. Mahomed Ali Khan, 19 Calc., 1). A registered lease granted for building purposes and for establishing a coal depot, not being a lease of land for agricultural or horticultural purposes, does not come within the operation of the Tenancy Act and the limitation applicable to a suit for rent reserved in such a lease is that prescribed by art. 116 of the Limitation Act. (Raniganj Coal Association v. Jadu Nath Ghosh, 19 Calc., 489). The period of limitation applicable to a suit for compensation for use and occupation of land is six years under art. 120 of the Limitation Act (Watson & Co. v. Ram Chand Datta, 23 Calc., 799).

The words introduced into this article and into article 6 by s. 61, Act I, B. C., 1907, it is said in the Select Committee's Report on the Bill, "will restore to suits for arrears of rent and to executions of rent decrees the rules of limitation originally intended by the framers of the Act to apply to such rent and execution proceedings, as to the applicability of which, as explained in the Note on Clause 39 in the Statement of Objects and Reasons, and in the note on clause 34 above, there may be some doubt."

See also notes to ss. 148 A, 158 B, 169, and 188 A, pp. 439—441, 472, 495 and 564.

Article 2. (a).—By a condition in the lease of a taluk additional rent became payable in respect of all lands, which, not being in a state of cultivation at the time of the lease, should be subsequently brought into cultivation, so soon as the lessee had enjoyed them rent-free for the space of seven years. Rent having become due under the condition on certain lands, which had not been in a state of cultivation at the time of the making of the lease, the lessee deposited in Court, as the entire rent payable in respect of the taluk, the same amount as he had paid in previous years. In a suit brought a year after the lessor had notice of such deposit, to recover the entire rent payable in respect of the lands newly brought into cultivation, it was held that such suit, having been instituted more than six months after service of notice of such deposit on the lessor, was barred under sec. 31 of Bengal Act VIII of 1869. (Ram Sankar Senapati v. Bir Chandra Manikya, 4 Calc., 714). But a suit for rent due for a period prior to a deposit being made under Act VIII (B. C.) of 1869 is not barred, where the contention of the defendants is that the tenure was the depositor's and that the rent was due from him and not from them (Ramdin Singh v. Chandi Prashad Singh, 21 W. R., 278), and this period of limitation does not apply to a deposit made before the rent is due (Tara Mani Kunwari v. Jiban Mandar, 6 W. R., Act X, 98; Ahmed Hossain v. Keramat, 8 W. R., 353; Surja Kant Acharya v. Hemanta Kumari, 20 Calc., 498. But see Mahomed Shukurulla v. Rumya Bibi, 7 W. R., 487). The notice of deposit is to be served by the Court, and it is, therefore, to be presumed until the contrary be shown, that the notice was issued and duly served (Bijai Govind Singh v. Karu Singh, 18 W. R., 531). When co-sharer landlords are jointly and severally entitled to the rent claimed, the service of a notice of deposit of rent on any one of them will not reduce the period of limitation to six months, as provided in this article (Rup Chand Mahton v. Gudar Singh, 6 C. W. N., 15; 29 Calc., 283).

Article 2 (b).—The last day on which a suit for recovery of arrears of rent can be instituted under sec. 29, Act VIII (B. C.) of 1869, is the last day of the third year from the close of the year in which the rent became payable (Kashi Kant Bhattacharji v. Rohini Kant Bhattacharji, 6 Calc., 325. See also Durga Das Chaturji v. Nobin Mohan Ghosal, 6 W. R., Act X, 63; Umur Narain Puri v. Ararat Lal, 7 W. R., 301; Baikant Ram Rai v. Sharfunnissa Begam, 15 W. R., 523; Haro Kumar Ghosh v. Kali Krishna Thakur, 17 Calc., 251; Barnamayi Dasi v. Barnamayi Chaudhurani, 23 Calc., 191). The limitation of three years allowed for a suit to recover arrears of rent must reckon, not from the date of instalments, but from the day of the year in which the arrear becomes due (Gobind Kumar Chaudhri v. Haro Gopal Nag, 11 W. R., 537). This article does not apply to a suit brought by an assignee of arrears from the landlord (Mahendra Nath Kalamori v. Kailash Chandra Dogra, 4 C. W. N., 605). The Rent Act recognizes payment in kind as rent. Non-payment in kind, therefore, must be deemed to be an arrear of rent and as such a suit may be brought to recover it within three years from the last day of the Bengali year in which it shall have become due. But inasmuch as the actual grain is not producible at any time within three years from the time when it became due, the money value of the grain, as it stood when it was ready for delivery and ought to have been delivered, must necessarily be taken to represent the grain itself (Krishnabandhu Bhattacharji v. Rotish, 25 W. R., 307). See note, p. 188. The right of a landlord to recover any sum payable by a tenant as drainage charges under Act VI, B. C., of 1880, accrues not on the date on which the Collector assessed the amount payable by the tenant, but on the date on which the landlord himself enters into an engagement with the Government to pay the cost with which he is charged under the Act (Mun Mohini Dasi v. Priya Nath Besali, 8 C. W. N., 640). A suit to recover such drainage charges is governed by cl. (2) Sch. III of this Act (Nasir Chandra v. Jyoti Kumar Mukhurji, 11 C. W. N., 57).

The word "arrear" in the third column of this article means "rent in arrear," and where the Fasli year prevails, the suit must be brought within 3 years of the Jeyt of the year in which it fell due. The period of limitation is therefore not 3 years, but 2 years and 9 months (Ishwardhuri Singh v. Ram Brich Rai, 3 C. L. J., 74 n).

When the period of limitation referred to in this article has expired, the plaintiff cannot be allowed to fall back upon art. 132, Sch. II of the Limitation Act (Kali Charan Bhaumik v. Harendra Lal Rai, 4 C. L. J., 553).

As regards the changes made by s. 61, Act I, B. C., 1907 in this article, it is said in the Select Committee's report on the Bill of 1906 :

"The present state of affairs regarding limitation for the bringing of suits for recovery of rent is anomalous. By this amendment, which has been made on the suggestion of the High Court, we have attempted to remove the anomaly. The change will affect those portions of the Province only where the Amlī or Fasli year prevails. There will result a slight extension in favour of the landlords of the period of limitation, and there can be no reasonable objection from the tenants' point of view. The present custom fulfils no particular object."

Article 3.—The introduction of this article is due to a proposal of the Rent Commission, who in their report (Vol. I, § 158, p. 71) say: "We have provided that one year shall be the period of limitation for a suit by a raiyat against his landlord to recover the possession of a holding from which such raiyat has been illegally ejected by such landlord in any case not governed by sec. 9 of the Specific Relief Act, I of 1877; in other words, for a suit intended to try not merely the question of dispossession without consent, but also the question of title." The Select Committee on the Bill observed regarding this article:—"We consider that a moderately short period of limitation should be fixed for the recovery by an occupancy-raiyat of land comprised in his holding, and, following the precedent presented by sec. 81 of the Central Provinces Act, 1881, we have fixed the period at two years from the date on which he is ejected." (Selections from papers relating to the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, p. 242) In Ramsani Bibi v. Amu Barpari, (15 Calc., 317), it was held that this article relates to suits brought by an occupancy-raiyat against his landlord, and not to a suit brought against a third party, who is a trespasser. In Chandra Kishor De v. Raj Kishor Mazumdar, (15 Calc., 450), it was similarly ruled that the suit mentioned in sec. 184, and Sched III, Part I, art. 3, of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, means a suit by an occupancy raiyat as such, that is, an occupancy-raiyat claiming a right of occupancy as against his landlord. Then, in Saraswati Dasi v. Hari Taran Chakravartti, (16 Calc., 741), it was decided that this article applies to all suits by occupancy raiyats for the recovery of possession of land from which they have been dispossessed by their landlords, and in which the title of the raiyats is denied and put in issue. "There is nothing in the terms of the law," it was said, "to lead us to suppose that the legislature provided only for suits of a possessory nature, such as was previously dealt with by sec. 27 of Bengal Act VIII of 1869." This was followed in the case of Ramadhan Bhadra v. Ram Kumar De, (17 Calc., 926), in which, it was observed, but as an obiter dictum, by Ghose, J., that "the words of article 3 of the new Act seem to indicate, although the matter is not clear, that all suits for the recovery of possession wherein an occupancy right may be claimed are to be governed by the limitation prescribed in that article." But in Julmati v. Kali Prasanna Rai, (28 Calc., 127; 4 C. W. N., 803), in which the plaintiffs sued as occupancy raiyats to recover possession of land from which they had been dispossessed by the defendants, one of whom was one of their landlords (i. e. a co-sharer landlord) and the others were persons who had acted "in collusion with him, it was decided by a Full Bench that this article was applicable. Then, in Bheka Singh v. Nakchhed Singh, (24 Calc., 40) it was ruled that the operation of the article is not restricted to suits against the landlord alone, and that it applies to a suit brought against a tenant with whom the land has been settled by the landlord. "We are not aware of any decision," it was observed in this case, "(there is none reported) which limits the article against the landlord alone, and holds that it does not apply to a suit against a person holding under the landlord. The omission to add the landlord as a party would not in our opinion extend the period of limitation from two to twelve years. It is the circumstance of the ouster, and the fact that a particular person has ousted the plaintiff, which gives rise to the necessity of his proving his occupancy right as against that person and, therefore, makes it necessary for him to sue to recover possession of the land, claiming it to be held by him as an occupancy raiyat." See also Rakhit Mahanta v. Padda Bauri, (9 C. W. N., 54). So, too, when the dispossessing defendants have been inducted into the land by the agents of the landlord, (Chintamani Sahu v. Upendro Nath Sarnakar, 4 C. W. N., 326). The two years' period of limitation applies whether the dispossession be by a fractional landlord, the sole landlord, or the entire body of landlords (Parameswar v. Kali Mohan, 28 Calc., 127 ; 4 C. W. N., 800 ; Annada Sundari Chundalini v. Kebabram Changa, 7 C. W. N., 542.) But when the landlord is no party to the suit and there is nothing to show that he had any hand in the ouster, the period of limitation applicable is twelve years, though the defendant may claim to hold under the same landlord as the plaintiff (Iradat v. Dalu, 1 C. W. N., 573). See also Moharam Ali v. Tukha Ali, (9 C. W. N., ccxxxi) ; and Ramijulla v. Ishak Dhali, (6 C. W. N., 702, 29 Calc., 610) ; which overrules Hara Kumar v. Nasarudin, (4 C. W. N., 665), in which it was held that this article applies, if after the ouster the dispossessing defendants took a settlement from the landlord. If the suit is brought against the landlord, it is immaterial whether he is described as such in the plaint or not (per Ghose, J., in Ramdhan Bhadro v. Ram Kumar De, 17 Calc., 930). But the special limitation of two years, as laid down in this article, does not apply to a case where an occupancy raiyat has been dispossessed from his holding by his landlord, not as a landlord, but as a purchaser of the holding in execution of a decree for rent (Abhai Charan Mukhurji v. Titu, 2 C. W. N., 175, Mahomed Khalil v. Hirendro Nath Bhuttacharji, 5 C. L. J., 650), or as purchaser of the right, title and interest of a tenant at a sale held in execution of a rent decree obtained by him as a co-sharer landlord (Brajo Kishor Mahapatra v. Saraswati Dasi, 6 C. W. N., 333), or to one where a suit is brought by a person who has purchased the right of an occupant tenant as against one who happens to be the landlord and who claims to maintain his possession by virtue of a decree which he has obtained for possession as against the occupant tenant, the mortgagor (Dinobandhu Shaha v. Lalit Mohan Maitro, 2 C. W. N., 595). When a raiyat has been dispossessed by one co-sharer landlord but his title has been recognised by all parties concerned and the recognition has been up to within two years of the institution of the suit, the suit is not barred under this article. (Surafudin Mandal v. Chandra Mani Gupta, 5 C. W. N., 405). This article does not apply to a suit for the recovery of possession of homestead land not held as part of an occupancy holding (Abdul v. Kutban, 1 C. W. N., clxxi), or to suits brought by other than occupancy raiyats (per Ghose J., in Ramdhan Bhadro v. Ram Kumar De, 17 Calc., 930, e. g., by under-raiyats for the possession of land sub-let to them by an occupancy-raiyat (Bhagban Chandra Saha v. Jagneshwar Ghosh, 2 C. W. N., cccxviii). This period of limitation runs from the date of actual dispossession. A plaintiff cannot have a fresh start of limitation from the date of attachment by a Criminal Court under sec. 146, Crim. Pro. Code (Deo Narain Chaudhuri v. Webb, 28 Calc., 86; 5 C. W. N., 160).

All this is changed in Bengal by the substitution by s. 61 (3), Act I, B. C., of 1907 of the words "a raiyat or an under-raiyat" for "an occupancy-raiyat."

Article 6.—This article applies not only to decrees under the Bengal Tenancy Act, but, on its introduction into any territory, division or district, to decrees made under "any Act repealed by this Act,"—consequently, to decrees passed under Act X of 1859 or Act VIII, B. C. of 1869, as the case may be. The words "inclusive of costs" in this article set aside the ruling of the High Court in Kadambini Debi v. Kailash Chandra Pal, (6 Calc. 554). Decrees for arrears of rent are decrees made under the Tenancy Act within the meaning of this article, and the "final decree" mentioned in this article must be the final decree in the suit, and cannot be held to include an order in appeal upon an application to set aside that decree under sec. 108 of the Code of Civil Procedure (Baikanta Nath Mittra v. Aghor Nath Basu, 21 Calc., 387.) An application for the execution of a decree for rent made more than three years after the date of that decree is barred, even though the decree-holder has taken some step in aid of execution in the interval (Sahib Rai v. Gangadhar Prasad, 1 C. L. J., 101n). An application for execution of a decree for a sum not exceeding Rs. 500, obtained by a co-sharer landlord for his share of the rent is governed not by this article, but by art. 179 of Sch II of the Limitation Act (Kedar Nath Banurji v. Ardha Chandra Rai, 29 Calc., 54; 5 C. W. N., 763). But this is changed by s. 61, Act I B. C., 1907. See note to article 2, p. 582.

Article 6.—Limitation runs from date of decree.—Under sec. 58, Act VIII (B. C.) of 1869, limitation runs from the date of the decree and not from the dates of payment of instalments (Mantazul Hak v. Nirbhair Singh, 9 Calc., 711 ; 12 C. L. R., 318). Similarly, under the Tenancy Act, limitation runs from the date of the decree and not from the date fixed for payment of the decretal amount (Ram Sadai Mukhurji v. Dwarka Nath Mukhurji, 22 Calc., 644). An acknowledgment of liability under s. 19 of the Limitation Act made by a judgment-debtor to the decree-holder's right to execute a rent decree gives the decree-holder a fresh starting point for counting the period of limitation prescribed by art. 6, Sch. II (Harihar Lal v. Gunendra Prasad, 9 C. W. N., 1025 ; Rukhal Chandra Tewari v. Hemangini Debi, 3 C. L. J., 347).

Applications in continuation of former proceedings.—When the execution of decrees has been unavoidably stayed owing to proceedings in Court e. g., proceedings to set aside the decrees which it is sought to execute, the Courts have mitigated the rigour of the provisions of the Limitation Act by regarding applications for execution made after the expiry of the period of limitation, not as fresh applications for execution, but as applications made in continuation of former proceedings. This rule was first laid down in the case of Piaru Tuhobildarini v. Nazir Hossein, (23 W. R., 183), which was followed in Paras Ram v. Gardner, (1 All., 355), Kalyanbhai Dipchand v. Ghanasham Lal Judunathji, (5 Bom., 29), Issari Dasi v. Abdul K'halak, (4 Calc., 415) ; and Basant Lal v. Batul Bibi, (6 All. 23). This doctrine was applied to a rent decree under Act VIII (B. C.) of 1869 in Chandra Pradhan v. Gopi Mohan Saha, (14 Calc., 385), and to decrees under this Act in Baikanta Nath Mitra v. Aghore Nath Basu, (21 Calc., 387) ; but only so far as regarded property mentioned in the former application. See also Ram Sundar Sanyal v. Gopeshwar Mustafi, (3 Calc., 716) ; and Hari Charan Basu v. Sabaidar, (12 Calc., 161). The decree-holder obtained a decree for rent on the 12th January 1892, and made an application for execution on the 10th March 1892, which was dismissed on the ground of informality on 30th June 1892. On the 1st July 1893, a temporary injunction was issued, restraining the decree-holder from executing the decree pending the decision of a suit brought by the judgment-debtor in which it was inter alia prayed to set aside the decree which had been executed. The suit was decreed by the High Court, but on appeal it was dismissed and the injunction was discharged on the 20th May, 1897 : held, that the application of the rent decree dated 18th May, 1897 was barred ; the decree-holder was not entitled to a fresh starting point from the 20th May, 1897 (Sarup Ganjan Singh v. Watson & Co, 6 C. W. N., 735).

Court-fees.—Section 7, cl (ii) (e) of the Court Fees Act (VII of 1870) does not apply to a suit for possession of an occupancy holding brought by the tenant against the landlord, as well as the person whom the landlord has inducted into the land ; the Court-fee payable on the plaint in such a case must be computed on the market value of the property which the plaintiff seeks to recover (Farzand Ali v. Mohant Lal Puri, 32 Calc., 268).

RULES UNDER THE BENGAL TENANCY ACT

MADE BY THE

LOCAL GOVERNMENT. (1)

NOTIFICATION.

No 2705 T.R.—The 31st October, 1907. In exercise of the power conferred upon him by sub-section (2) of section 61, section 134 and section 189 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885 (VIII of 1885), the Lieutenant-Governor is pleased to direct that the following revised rules under the said Act, which, subject to the modifications now made therein, were published, in accordance with the provisions of sub-sections (1), (2) and (3) of section 190 of the said Act, at pages 1371—1398 of the Calcutta Gazette, Part I, of the 7th August 1907, shall be substituted for the like rules, which were published with the notification dated the 21st December 1885, at pages 1255—68 of the Calcutta Gazette, Part I, dated the 23rd idem, as subsequently added to, modified or altered up to the date of this notification.

E. A. GAIT,

Offg. Chief Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

Government Rules under the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885

(VIII of 1885), [as modified by subsequent legislation.]

CHAPTER I.—GENERAL.

1. In carrying out the following rules, Revenue-officers shall have regard to the instructions of the Board of Revenue for the guidance of Revenue-officers, so far as such instructions are consistent with the rules herein prescribed under Act VIII of 1885.

(¹) By Notification No. 292, L. R., published in the Calcutta Gazette of the 25th Jany. 1893, Part I, p. 59, these rules were declared to be in force in Orissa so far as they relate to the sections of the Act, which have been or may be extended to Orissa.

(b) the names of vendors and purchasers the quantities sold and the price thereof, for any sales effected in his presence.

10. When price-lists are prepared at the sadar sub-division by an officer other than a Covenanted Deputy Collector, or at other sub-divisions by an officer subordinate to the Sub-divisional Officer, or by a Sub-Registrar, they shall be submitted to the Covenanted Deputy Collector, or to a Deputy Collector specially nominated by the Collector for the purpose, or to the Sub-Divisional Officer as the case may be. Such officer shall scrutinize the lists; he may call for explanation and cause manifest errors to be corrected; and, having satisfied himself of the accuracy of the lists, he shall countersign them.

11. The price-lists shall be published for not less than one week at the marts to which they respectively refer, at the Collector's or Sub-divisional Office, and at every police-station and munsifi in the local area.

12. After the expiry of the term of publication of the price-lists in the mart to which they refer, as mentioned in the last preceding rule, the lists shall be submitted to the Board with any objections made to them, and with the opinions of the officers who prepared and countersigned them, and of the Collector, on such objections.

CHAPTER III.—LANDLORDS' IMPROVEMENTS.

13. Section 80.—An application for the registration of a landlord's improvement may be presented to the Collector of the district or to the officer in charge of the sub-division in which the land benefited by the improvement is situated, or to any Assistant or Deputy Collector who may be specially appointed by the Government to receive such application. It shall, as far as practicable, be in the form (Form I) specified in Schedule I appended to these rules, and five copies shall be submitted in respect of each village benefited.

14. The officer receiving the application shall fix a date for hearing objections to the same. He shall send, by registered letter, copies of the application, with intimation of the date so fixed, to those of the tenants in each village whose names are mentioned in column 8 of the application. He shall also give notice to the tenants generally by beat of drum and by causing a copy of the application and notice of the date, fixed for hearing objections thereto, to be fixed up in the presence of not less than two persons in some conspicuous place in every such village.

The expenses of such service and publication shall be borne by the applicant for registration.

15. The officer may make over the application to any of his subordinates, not being below the rank of a Sub-Deputy Collector for local inquiry and report, and shall in that case fix a date for hearing the report, and shall cause such date to be notified to the parties concerned in the manner set forth in rule 14. The inquiry shall be limited to the ascertainment of the fact whether the alleged improvement is of such a nature as to come within the meaning of section 76 (2) of the Bengal Tenancy Act, or not: whether it falls under sub-clause (e) of that section, and if so, whether any enhancement of rent is being paid for the original improvement, and whether the cost of the improvement has been correctly stated in the application.

16. On the date so fixed, or on any date to which the proceedings may be adjourned, the officer shall hear summarily such of the parties and their witnesses as may attend, and shall consider any report submitted to him under rule 15. He shall then decide whether the work is an improvement as defined in section 76 (2) of the Bengal Tenancy Act, and whether the landlord is entitled to register it, and shall accordingly order it to be registered with such modifications of the figure in column 6 of the application as he may deem fit, or shall refuse registration. If the work is fit to be registered as an improvement, the officer shall record clearly whether it falls under sub-clause (e) of section 76 (2): and, if so, whether any enhancement of rent is being paid for the original improvement, and, if so, how much.

17. Nothing hereinbefore contained shall preclude the officer receiving the application from holding a local inquiry in person, and from ordering the improvement to be registered, or refusing registration in accordance with the result of the inquiry so held.

18. If an order refusing to register an improvement is passed by an officer lower in rank than the Collector of the district, such order shall not take effect until confirmed by the Collector of the district.

19. Section 81 (1).—Evidence relating to any improvement under sub-section (1) of sub-section 81 shall be recorded by the Revenue-officer specified in rule 13, who shall exercise the powers of a Civil Court in the trial of suits, and shall be guided by the provisions of sections 182 and 184 of the Code of Civil Procedure.

CHAPTER IV.—REVENUE OF PROPRIETORS' PRIVATE LANDS.

20. Section 118.—Applications under section 118 may be made to the Collector of the district, or to the officer in charge of the sub-division in which the land in question is situated, or to any Assistant or Deputy Collector specially empowered by Government to receive such applications. If the application is made to the Collector of the district, he may transfer it for disposal to any officer empowered by Government to receive it.

21. The application shall be signed by the party making it, and shall contain the following particulars, so far as the applicant is able to furnish them :—

- (a) the name, tauzi number, and Government revenue of the estate ;
- (b) the names of the registered proprietors, and the share held by each ;
- (c) the specification of each plot of land referred to in the application, showing the village in which it is situated and the area and boundaries of each plot, if known ;
- (d) the names of the tenants (if any) in occupation of each such plot ; and
- (e) the grounds of the application.

22. On receipt of the application the officer shall make such inquiry as he may think fit by examining the applicant or his agent, and may call for further particulars before ordering further proceedings.

23. If the area of the lands has not been already ascertained by measurement made by competent agency under the authority of Government, or if for sufficient reason a further measurement is considered desirable, the officer shall order the lands to be measured and shall estimate the cost of measurement in accordance with the rules for the time being in force for the measurement of lands in partition cases, and shall require the applicant to deposit the amount either at once or in such instalments as he may deem fit.

CHAPTER V.—SERVICE OF NOTICES.

24. Sections 12, 13, 15 and 18.—Notices under sections 12, 13, 15 and 18 shall contain, so far as may be possible, the particulars given in the forms contained in Schedule I (Forms 2 to 7). Each notice forwarded to the Collector by a registering officer or a Civil Court shall be supported by a chalan showing the payment into the treasury of the landlord's fee, money-order commission and any other fees or charges realised in cash.

25 (a). Where there is a sole landlord, or where two or more persons are joint-landlords, and have a common agent such as is referred to in section 188, or a common manager appointed under section 95, the notices shall be served on such sole landlord or his agent, or on such common agent or manager, as the case may be.

(b). Where there is more than one landlord, and no common agent or manager has been appointed, a notice shall be served on each joint landlord.

26. In each case under the preceding rule the notice shall be forwarded by post, in a letter registered under Chapter VI of the Indian Post Office Act, 1898 (VI of 1898) and an acknowledgment obtained.

27. In the cases mentioned in rule 2(a), the landlord's fee shall be transmitted by Money Order to the sole landlord or his agent, or to the common agent or manager, as the case may be, at the time when the notice is issued. The coupon attached to the money-order shall contain, so far as may be possible, the particulars given in the forms contained in Schedule I.

28. If, in cases where the amount of landlord's fee is transmitted by money order, the sole landlord or his agent or the common agent or manager refuses to accept payment thereof, and in all other cases where no application is made for payment of the landlord's fee, the amount shall be kept in deposit in the Collector's office for three years from the date of the service of the notice, and on the expiry of that time it shall be forfeited to the Government.

29. The Collector or any other officer who signs the order for the notice to be served shall satisfy himself, by reference to the chalan accompanying it in accordance with the provisions of rule 1, that the landlord's fee and other fees and charges realised in cash have been paid into the treasury.⁽¹⁾

30. Section 46 (2)—The agreement under sub-section (2) of section 46 shall be filed in the Court having jurisdiction to entertain a suit for arrears of rent of the holding, and shall be served on the raiyat in the manner prescribed for the service of summons on defendant under the Code of Civil Procedure, on payment of the fee prescribed by the High Court.

31. Section 46 (4)—The notice under sub-section (4) of section 46 shall be filed in the Court having jurisdiction to entertain a suit for arrears of rent of the holding, and shall be served on the landlord in the manner prescribed for the service of a summons on a defendant under the Code of Civil Procedure, on payment of the process fee prescribed by the High Court.

(1). In Bengal section 45 of the Act has been repealed. But in Eastern Bengal, the former rule for the service of a notice to quit under section 45 remains in force. It is as follows :

Section 45.—Notice to a raiyat to quit under this section shall be served through the Court having jurisdiction to entertain a suit for ejectment from the holding in the manner prescribed for the service of a summons on a defendant under the Code of Civil Procedure, and shall be subject to the same process fee.

32. Section 63 (2).—In cases (a), (b) and (d) of section 61 referred to in sub-section (2) of section 63, the notice of the receipt of the deposit shall be served by forwarding the notice by post in a letter registered under Chapter VI of the Indian Post Office Act, 1898 (VI of 1898), or, where the Court may deem it necessary, in the manner prescribed for the service of a summons on a defendant under the Code of Civil Procedure.

33. Section 72 (2).—The general notice referred to in sub-section (2) of section 72 may be published by the transferee by fixing up a written notice to the tenants in the village office or in the presence of not less than two persons in some conspicuous place on the lands, and by proclaiming to the tenants by beat of drum, in every village to which the transfer extends, that the interest of the former landlord has passed to the transferee. The transferee may, if he thinks fit, apply for service of the notice to the Court having jurisdiction to entertain a suit for arrears of rent of the holding, and the Court shall thereupon serve the notice as hereinbefore prescribed on payment of the process-fee prescribed by the High Court.

34. Section 73.—Notice under section 73 shall be in writing and shall be delivered to the landlord or his agent, or, where two or more persons are joint-landlords, to their common agent referred to in section 188, or to their common manager appointed under section 95, as the case may be, at the landlord's village office, or at such other convenient place as may be appointed by the landlord for the payment of rent under sub-section (2) of section 54. When there are two or more joint landlords without a common agent or manager the notice shall be served at the village office of the principal co-sharer or at such other places as may be appointed by each of the landlords for payment of rent under sub-section (2) of section 54.

35. The raiyat may, if he thinks fit, cause the notice to be served through the Civil Court having jurisdiction to entertain a suit for arrears of rent of the holding in the manner prescribed for the service of a summons on a defendant under the Code of Civil Procedure, on payment of the process-fee prescribed by the High Court.

36. Section 86 (2) and (4).—If the raiyat elects to proceed under sub-section (2) of section 86, he may personally serve a written notice of his intention to surrender on his landlord; but if he elects to proceed under sub-section 4 of the said section, the notice of the raiyat's intention to surrender shall be served on the landlord in the manner prescribed for the service of a summons on a defendant under the Code of Civil Procedure, on payment of the process-fee prescribed by the High Court.

37. Section 87.—A notice of the tenant's abandonment of his holding under sub-section (2) of section 87 shall be in the form (Form 8) contained in Schedule I, and shall be submitted in duplicate. One copy shall be published by beat of drum upon the holding alleged to be abandoned, and then kept in the record, and the other copy shall be affixed, in the presence of not less than two witnesses, to some dwelling-house, or tree, or other conspicuous object upon the holding. The fee payable by the landlord shall be Re. 1.

38. Section 155.—Notice to the tenant under section 155 shall be filed in the Court having jurisdiction to entertain a suit for arrears of rent of the holding, and shall be served in the manner prescribed for the service of a summons on a defendant under the Code of Civil Procedure, on payment of the fee prescribed by the High Court.

39. Every requisition from the Civil Court to the Collector for certified copies of, or extracts from, the record-of-rights shall, so far as may be possible, contain the particulars specified in the form (Form 9) in Schedule I. The copy or extract shall be certified to be correct by such officer as may be appointed by the Collector for the purpose.

CHAPTER VI.—THE PROCEDURE TO BE FOLLOWED BY REVENUE-OFFICERS IN REGARD TO THE RECORD-OF-RIGHTS AND SETTLEMENT.

40. (a) Every Revenue-officer appointed by the Local Government under the designation of "Settlement Officer" or "Assistant Settlement Officer" for the purpose of making surveys, records-of-right, settlement of rents, determination of proprietor's private lands and such like proceedings, or any one or more of them, under the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, is hereby vested with—

- (i) all the powers exercisable by a Civil Court in the trial of suits ;
- (ii) powers to enter upon any land and to survey, demarcate and make a map of the same ;
- (iii) all the powers of an Assistant Superintendent of Survey and a Deputy Collector under the Bengal Survey Act, 1875 ; and
- (iv) power to cut and thresh the crops on any land and weigh the produce with a view to estimating the capabilities of the soil.

(b) A Revenue-officer who, under the designation of "Settlement Officer," has been appointed by the Local Government for the purpose of making a survey and record-of-rights and settlement of rents under Chapter X of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, shall have power by general or special order to make over for disposal to any officer subordinate to him (who has been duly empowered, under the designation of Assistant Settlement Officer, to act as a Revenue-officer under the provisions of the same Chapter of the same Act),—

- (i) objections preferred under section 103A,
- (ii) the settlement of fair rents (including the preparation of a table of rates),
- (iii) the preparation of a Settlement Rent-Roll, under Chapter X, Part II, of the Act, in any area,
- (iv) applications for the settlement of fair rents under section 105,
- (v) suits instituted for the trial of disputes under section 106, and
- (vi) applications for the commutation of rents under section 40.

(c) A Revenue-officer so appointed under the designation of Settlement Officer shall, on the application of any person interested and after giving notice to other persons interested, and hearing any objections preferred, or of his own motion without giving such notice, have power to withdraw, from the file of any Assistant Settlement Officer subordinate to him, any of the matters specified in rule 40 (b) above, and to dispose of them himself, or to transfer them for disposal to any other Assistant Settlement Officer subordinate to him who has been duly empowered to act as a Revenue Officer. *

(d) On the application of either party to a suit under section 106, after giving notice to the other party and hearing any objections preferred, or of his own motion without giving such notice, a Revenue-officer so appointed under the designation of Settlement Officer may transfer to such competent Civil Court as the District Judge may designate the trial of a suit or of any class of suits instituted for the decision of a dispute or disputes which involve important and complicated questions of right and title or claims to be put in possession.

(e) In the case of an uninhabited village, any general notice to be served or publication to be made under the rules in this Chapter may be served or made in any inhabited village contiguous to that village, or if there be no inhabited village contiguous to that village, in the inhabited village nearest to that village or in the village in which the tenants and occupants of the lands of the uninhabited village are believed by the Revenue-officer to reside.

41. Deputy Superintendents of Survey and Assistant Superintendents of Survey employed in operations under these rules are hereby declared to be Revenue-officers for the purpose of performing any duty imposed upon them by these rules, or by instructions consistent with these rules, issued by the Board of Revenue. They are hereby vested with the powers specified in section 189 (1) (b), provided that an Assistant Superintendent shall not exercise the powers vested in a Superintendent under the Bengal Survey Act, 1875 (Ben. Act V of 1875).

Procedure for Cadastral Survey, Record-of-rights and Settlement of Rents.

42. The processes shall be—

A.—Demarcation of boundaries.

B.—Measurement.

C.—Khanapuri, i. e., preliminary preparation of the record.

D.—Attestation of the record.

E.—Publication of the draft record.

F.—Disposal of objections under section 103A.

G.—Settlement of fair rents in cases in which a settlement of revenue is being or is about to be made.

H.—Final publication of the record-of rights.

I.—Distribution of copies of the record-of-rights to parties interested.

J.—The settlement of fair rents on the application of the parties under section 105, and the trial of suits for the decision of disputes under section 106, in cases in which a settlement of revenue is not being or is not about to be made.

K.—Correction of bonâ fide omissions or mistakes in the record-of-rights.

A.—Demarcation of Boundaries.

43. (a) In the demarcation of village boundaries, the area contained within the exterior boundaries of the village maps of the revenue survey shall be preserved, as far as possible, as the unit of survey and record.

(b) Where there is no dispute, the boundary of the village according to possession shall be followed for the purposes of map and record.

(c) Where there is a dispute as to a village boundary, the Revenue-officer shall decide the dispute under the Bengal Survey Act, 1875 (Ben. Act V of 1875).

(d) Where the Settlement Officer is of opinion that the village maps prepared at the Revenue Survey are not suitable as the unit of survey and record, he shall issue notice of the inquiry to all parties concerned in the manner prescribed, and after such local inquiry in the presence of the parties as he may consider necessary shall determine the area to be included in the village. He shall then submit his proceedings to the Board through such superior authorities as the Board may prescribe; and such area as the Board may, after such further inquiry as may be deemed necessary, declare to be included in a village shall be adopted as the unit of survey and record-of-rights:

Provided that in all cases where the Revenue Survey village is not adopted as the unit of survey, the Settlement Officer shall draw up a statement, in such form as the Board may prescribe, showing the areas adopted as the unit of survey as compared with the areas contained in the village maps of the Revenue Survey; and such statement shall be filed in the Collector's Office.

(e) Where no Revenue Survey maps have been prepared, the Revenue officer appointed under the designation of Settlement Officer shall issue notice to all parties concerned in the manner prescribed, and after such local inquiry in the presence of the parties as he may consider necessary, shall determine the area to be included in the village. He shall then submit his proceedings to the Collector, and such area as the Collector, after such further inquiry as he deems necessary, and with the sanction of the Board of Revenue, by general or special order, declares to constitute a village shall be adopted as the unit of survey and record-of-rights.

(f) In cases where the procedure prescribed in sub-clauses (d) and (e) have been adopted, the Board of Revenue shall submit a report to Government for issue of the notification prescribed by section 3 (10) (b) of the Bengal Tenancy Act.

(g) The notice under rule 43 (d) and (e) of the inquiry to be held shall be given by proclamation and beat of drum and by posting it in the presence of not less than two persons in some convenient place or places in the lands to which it refers.

44. Boundary pillars of a permanent nature shall be erected at every point where the boundaries of three or more villages meet, and may be erected wherever the Revenue-officer considers it necessary to define by pillars the boundaries of estates or tenures, or of lands which have been the subject of dispute.

B.—Measurement.

45. A field map of every village shall be prepared. It shall show the boundaries of every field separately held, or of such plot of land as the instructions of the Board of Revenue for giving effect to these rules may lay down.

C. Khanapuri, i. e., Preliminary Preparation of the Record.

46. The following are the principal documents to be prepared in the course of a survey and the preparation of a record-of-rights under Chapter X of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885 :—

Village map.
Khasra.
Parcha.

Khewat.
Khatian.
Terij.

These and any other papers prescribed by the Board of Revenue shall be prepared in such manner as the Board may prescribe.

47. The record of rights, which shall be published under section 103A of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, shall be contained in the khewat and the khatian and such other papers as may be specified by general or special order of the Board of Revenue in the case of any local area.

48. (a) The proprietary khewat shall show the character and extent of proprietary interests. It shall be first drawn up with reference to the registers maintained by the Collector under the provisions of the Land Registration Act, 1876 (Ben. Act VII of 1876). As the record-writing proceeds, the proprietary khewat shall be altered in accordance with the facts of possession. The Settlement Officer shall, from time to time, under such instructions as the Board of Revenue may prescribe in this behalf, give information to the Collector of all alterations made in the khewat, and the Collector shall thereupon take action to make such corrections as may be necessary in his registers prepared under the Land Registration Act. If the Collector, after inquiry under the Land Registration Act, finds that any entry in the khewat is incorrect, a note shall be made in the khewat of his finding.

(b) A khewat shall ordinarily be prepared to show the character and extent of the interest of tenure-holders, such of their interests as are of a raiyati nature being also recorded in the khatian.

49. (a) The khatian shall show in detail for all the lands of the village, estate by estate, landlord by landlord, tenant by tenant, and occupant by occupant, the lands included in each estate owned by each landlord and occupied by each tenant or occupant, with particulars of rent and area and of the incidents of each tenancy.

(b) Lands cultivated or otherwise held direct by the proprietor shall be shown in detail in the khatian, and shall be entered either as proprietor's private land, within the meaning of Section 120 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, or as land held by the proprietor, but not private land within the meaning of that section.

D.—Attestation of the Record.

50. (a) When the map, khasra, khewat, and khatian for a village have been prepared in the manner prescribed by these rules and by instructions of the Board of Revenue consistent with them, the Revenue-officer shall issue a notification in the form, (Form 10) given in Schedule I fixing a day which shall be not less than a week from the date of publication of the notification, on which he will be present at some place to be specified at or near the village, for the purpose of attesting and completing the record-of-rights.

(b) The notification shall further state that on the day so fixed, or on any other day to which the proceedings may be adjourned, the Revenue-officer will record rents and status and deal with objections relating to entries in the record or omissions therefrom; and it shall require all parties interested in the subject matter of the inquiry to attend at the time and place specified, with their parchas, and with such evidence as they have to offer in connection with the proceedings.

(c) Such notification shall be published by proclamation and beat of drum, and fixed up, in the presence of not less than two persons, in some conspicuous place in the village to which it refers.

51. The Revenue-officer may also, if he deem fit, take such additional measures under the powers conferred on him by rule 40, as he may deem desirable to procure the attendance, at the place specified in the notification issued under the last preceding rule, of the occupants, under-raiyats, raiyats, tenure-holders, landlords and proprietors, or their authorised agents.

52. On the date specified in the notification issued under rule 50, or on any other date to which the proceedings may be adjourned, the entries which have been made in the khewat and in each khatian shall be read out in the presence of such of the interested parties as are in attendance.

If the correctness of any entry is questioned, the Revenue-officer shall dispose of the objection after local inquiry or otherwise :

Provided that if the correctness of the measurement be objected to, and a fresh measurement be demanded, the Revenue-officer may require the cost of the re-measurement to be deposited.

If the measurement shows the original measurement to have been inaccurate, the amount deposited, or any portion of it, may, if the Revenue-officer thinks fit, be refunded to the objector.

53. The Revenue-officer shall ascertain what tenants claim the right to hold at fixed rates or fixed rents, explaining, as far as may be necessary, the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, in this respect. If the right claimed is disputed by the landlord, the Revenue-officer shall call on the claimants for proofs of such right. It is sufficient for the claimant to establish the presumption mentioned in section 50 (2), and if that presumption be not rebutted by the landlord, the claimant shall be recorded as a raiyat at fixed rates of rent, or a fixed rent, as the case may be.

54. The Revenue-officer shall ascertain which of the raiyats are settled raiyats, or occupancy raiyats, as the case may be, and shall record them as such, having regard to the presumption of section 20 (7) of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885.

55. The Revenue-officer shall ascertain what raiyats are non-occupancy, and to this end he shall be entitled to call upon the landlord or his agent to produce a statement showing the names of the raiyats alleged by him to be non-occupancy raiyats. On the production of such statement, the Revenue-officer shall explain to the raiyats whose names are entered in the statement, and who have not already been recorded as occupancy or settled raiyats, the nature of the presumption raised by section 20 (7) of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885. If, after such explanation, a raiyat admits himself to be a non-occupancy raiyat, he shall be recorded as such. If he does not admit himself to be a non-occupancy raiyat, the Revenue-officer shall call on the landlord to prove the allegation made by him in regard to such raiyat.

56. Abwabs shall not be recorded. Cesses which are authorised by law shall be recorded separately from the rent in the khatian or in the case of tenure-holders in the khewat.

57. The Revenue-officer shall summarily ascertain the rent at present payable by the tenant, and record it in the appropriate column of the khatian as the rent payable in respect of the land held by the tenant.

58. If while the record is being prepared, the landlord and tenant agree as to the rent, which shall be recorded as payable, the Revenue-officer, if he has been vested with powers under section 109C of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, as amended by Bengal Act I of 1907, may, if he is satisfied that the rent agreed upon is fair and equitable but not otherwise, settle such rent as a fair and equitable rent, although the terms of the agreement are such that, if they were embodied in a contract, they could not be enforced under the Bengal Tenancy Act.

59. If the Revenue-officer has not been vested with powers under section 109C, he may, if he considers that the provisions of that section should be applied in respect of the rent of any tenure or holding, submit a report to any Revenue-officer, who has been vested with powers under section 109C in the local area for which the record-of-rights is being prepared: and such Revenue-officer after giving notice to the landlord and tenant, and after such further inquiry as he may deem necessary, may, if he is satisfied that the rent agreed upon by the landlord and tenant is fair and equitable, but not otherwise, settle such rent as a fair and equitable rent, although the terms of the agreement are such that, if they were embodied in a contract, they could not be enforced under the Bengal Tenancy Act.

60. Proceedings for the settlement of rents under section 109C shall be drawn up in such form as the Board of Revenue may prescribe ; and all rents settled under clause (1), section 109C or revised by the Board of Revenue under clause (3) section 109C shall be entered in the record-of-rights.

61. When the record-of-rights has been prepared and attested in the manner prescribed in Rules 50 to 57, and when the record shall have been arranged and corrected in accordance with the orders which the Revenue-officer may have passed, he shall record a proceeding in which he shall state that attestation of the records of the village has been completed, and shall then cause the draft record-of-rights to be published in the village in the manner provided in Rule 62

E.—Publication of the Draft Record.

62(a). As soon as the record-of-rights has been prepared and attested, a notice in Form 11 in Schedule I shall be posted up at the landlord's office in the village and in the presence of not less than two persons, in some other conspicuous place in the village, or where the village is uninhabited, in the village in which most of the cultivators of the uninhabited village reside, stating that the draft of the record will be published in the village on a day to be specified, not less than a week from the date of the posting of such notice, and calling on all persons interested to attend on the date so specified :

Provided that the draft of the record shall not be published until the proceeding under Rule 61 has been recorded.

(b) On the date fixed for the publication of the draft record, the Revenue-officer shall either proceed to the village himself and read the contents of the record in the presence of the parties who attend, or he shall depute an officer, who shall read out the contents of the record in the presence of as many of the parties as attend, and the Revenue-officer or the officer deputed by him, as the case may be, shall at the same time inform the parties who attend that the Draft Record will be open for inspection for not less than one month in the office of the Revenue-officer, or in such other convenient place as the Revenue-officer may determine.

Any objection which may be made to any entry during the period named, shall be received and considered by the Revenue-Officer. Objections shall, as far as practicable, be made in Form 12 given in Schedule I.

F.—Disposal of Objections under section 103A.

63. When an objection is made within and before the expiry of the period of publication of the Draft Record prescribed under Rule 62 (b) regarding the correctness of an entry, or as to the propriety of any omission, notice of the objection in Form 13 Schedule I shall be served on all persons whose interest may, in the opinion of the Revenue-officer, be affected thereby, and they shall be called upon to attend at such time and place as the Revenue-officer may fix for the disposal of the objection.

If no person attends to contest the objection, and the Revenue-Officer is satisfied that the notice of the objection has been duly served on all persons interested, the objection may be allowed and the record amended accordingly, or the person who made the objection may, if the Revenue-officer thinks fit, be called upon to produce evidence in support of his objection.

All such objections shall be dealt with summarily under such instructions as the Board of Revenue may prescribe.

G.—Settlement of fair Rents in cases in which a Settlement of Revenue is being, or is about to be, made.

64. If it does not appear to the Revenue-officer expedient to settle the rents of tenants of every class in an estate or tenure belonging to the Government, the Revenue-officer shall submit a report for the orders of the Government under the proviso to section 104 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, as amended by Bengal Act I of 1907.

65. In the case of a settlement of fair rents under Part II of Chapter X of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, when a settlement of revenue is being, or is about to be, made, the Revenue-officer shall serve a notice by proclamation and beat of drum, and by posting it, in the presence of not less than two persons, in some conspicuous place in the village comprising the lands under settlement.

The notice shall be in Form 14 in Schedule I and shall set forth that on a date named and at a place named, the Revenue-officer will settle fair rents in respect of all estates, tenures or holdings, and for unsettled lands included in such village. A schedule may, when the Revenue-officer thinks fit, be appended to the notice, giving such particulars as he may think necessary relating to the names and numbers of all estates, tenures, and holdings paying revenue or rent to Government, and of unsettled lands for which rent will be settled. Such notice shall be served at least one week previous to the date fixed for settlement of fair rents. When such notice has been served it shall be held that all persons have, subject to the provisions of Rule 73, been sufficiently warned of the date fixed :

Provided that in cases in which a table of rates is prepared under the provisions of section 104B, the notice shall not be published until the table of rates has been confirmed under sub-section (5) of that section.

66. A table of rates shall not ordinarily be prepared when it is found that the tenants of the local area in question hold their lands at lump rentals, and no rates actually exist, or when the rates are so numerous and varied, and are so little dependent on the class of soil, that no table of existing rates can be prepared. When the above conditions do not obtain, and it is possible to prepare a table of existing rates which are generally of a uniform character and in accordance with certain ascertainable classes of soil, a table of rates may be prepared in accordance with the provisions of section 104A (c) :

Provided that when the Revenue-officer is of opinion, for reasons to be recorded by him in writing, and submitted to, and approved by, the authority empowered to confirm the table of rates, that the rents stated as the existing rents by the landlord and tenants are not the rents that are legally payable, and that it is impossible to ascertain those rents, a table of rates fairly and equitably payable may be prepared and shall be based on the rates or rents payable in those neighbouring villages, the lands of which are fairly comparable with the lands of the village.

67. When the Revenue-officer has decided to settle rents in any local area on the basis of a table of rates, under section 104A (c), he shall first prepare a table of existing rates and shall then either maintain those rates or shall proceed to enhance or reduce them, having regard to the general principles laid down in the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, for the enhancement or reduction of rents and especially to section 30 (b), (c) and (d).

68. The table of rates finally prepared by the Revenue-officer and published by him under section 104B (2), shall contain the particulars noted in section 104B (1) and shall show :—

- (a) the classes of land as locally known, that have been adopted in the fixation of rates ;
- (b) the area, expressed in local measure, for which each rate is fixed ;
- (c) the existing rates, if any, taken as the basis of the table of rates ; and
- (d) the rates fixed as fairly and equitably payable for that area of land of each class of land for each class of tenant whose rent is liable to alteration.

69. (a) When a table of rates has been prepared under section 104B, a notice in Form 15 in Schedule I shall be posted up in the landlord's office in the village or in the presence of not less than two persons in some conspicuous place in the village, stating that the table of rates will be published in the village on a day to be specified, not less than a week from the date of the posting of such notice, and calling on all persons interested to attend on the date so specified.

(b) On the date fixed for the publication of the table of rates the Revenue-officer shall proceed to the village and shall explain to so many of the parties as attend, the proposed rates and the grounds on which they are based, and shall hear and consider any objections that may be raised to any entries in the table. He shall at the same time inform the parties who attend that the table of rates will be open to inspection for not less than one month in the office of the Revenue-officer, or in such other convenient place as the Revenue-officer may determine, and that any person who objects to any entry in the table of rates may present a petition to him on the subject, within one month of the date of the publication of the table of rates, which will be duly considered under section 104B (3).

70. The Revenue-officer shall record the grounds of his final order in every case in which he disposes of an objection to a table of rates under section 104B (4).

71. In submitting his proceedings to the confirming authority under section 104B (4), the Revenue-officer shall describe the land classification adopted by him for the purposes of his table of rates, and shall show in tabular form the rates which were found by him to exist for the classes of land described, and the rates he proposes to substitute for the existing rates, explaining in each case his grounds for maintaining, enhancing or reducing the rates.

73. (a) The following Revenue Authorities are empowered under section 104B (4) to confirm tables of rates prepared under the Bengal Tenancy Act :—

- (i) when the total rents to which the table of rates is to be applied will not, in the opinion of the Revenue-officer, exceed Rs. 1,000, the Collector of the District ;
- (ii) when the total rents in question will, in the opinion of the Revenue-officer, exceed Rs. 1,000, but will not exceed Rs. 5,000 the Commissioner of the Division ; and
- (iii) when the total rents in question will, in the opinion of Revenue-officer, exceed Rs. 5,000, the Board of Revenue.

(b) The following Revenue Authorities are empowered, under section 104B (4), to confirm Settlement Rent-Rolls prepared under the Bengal Tenancy Act :—

- (i) in all cases in which the Settlement Rent-Roll has been prepared by an Assistant Settlement Officer, and the Settlement Officer is of the rank of a Collector, the Settlement Officer ; and

- (4) in all other cases the Collector or other Revenue Authority to whom the Settlement Officer is declared by the "Board of Revenue" to be immediately subordinate.

73 On the date fixed in the notice issued under rule 65 above, or on any subsequent date to which the proceedings may be adjourned, the Revenue-officer shall read, or cause to be read aloud in his presence, the name of each tenant whose rent has to be settled, the area of his tenancy, and the existing rent, and shall proceed to settle a fair rent for every such tenant under the provisions of section 104 A (1) (a), (b), (d) or section 104C :

Provided that when a Revenue-officer proposes to alter an existing rent, and the parties have not attended in compliance with the general notice prescribed in rule 65 above, the Revenue-officer shall serve each person interested with a special notice, and the fair rent shall not be settled in the absence of such person until after due service of such special notice has been proved.

74. The Settlement Rent-Roll shall contain the particulars prescribed in section 104A (2), and the fair rent settled for each tenant shall be entered in it by the Revenue-officer himself at the time that such rent is settled.

75. As soon as the Settlement Rent-Roll has been prepared, it shall be published by a notice in Form 16 in Schedule I in the manner prescribed for the publication of the Draft Record in rule 62, and the Revenue-officer, or the officer deputed by him to read out the contents of the Settlement Rent-Roll, as the case may be, shall at the same time inform the parties who attend that the Settlement Rent-Roll will be open to inspection for not less than one month in the office of the Revenue-officer, or in such other convenient place as the Revenue-officer may determine, and that any person who objects to any entry in the Settlement Rent-Roll or omission therefrom may present a petition to the Revenue-officer on the subject within one month of the date of the publication of the Settlement Rent-Roll, which will be duly considered under section 104E.

76. All objections presented under rule 69 or rule 75 shall be dealt with in accordance with the provisions of rule 63, in the same way as objections presented under section 103A. An appeal presented under section 104G (1) shall lie to the officer to whom the Revenue-officer who has passed the order appealed against is immediately subordinate :

Provided that a second appeal shall lie from any order on appeal settling the amount of a fair rent passed by a Settlement Officer or Collector under this rule to the Commissioner of the Division, and that, when the proposed annual rental of any tenancy exceeds 100 rupees per annum, a final appeal shall, in all such cases, lie to the Board of Revenue.

77. As soon as the Settlement Rent-Roll has been sanctioned by the Confirming Authority, it shall be incorporated in the record-of-rights by the entry of the fair rents settled in a column of the khatian to be set apart for that purpose.

78. Rules 65 to 77 (both inclusive) shall apply, so far as may be, to a settlement of rents under section 112 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, as amended by Bengal Act I of 1907.

H.—Final publication of the Record-of-rights.

79. When all objections under section 103A have been disposed of as provided for in rule 63 above, and, in cases in which a settlement of revenue is being, or is about to be made, the Settlement Rent-Roll has been incorporated in the record-of-rights, as provided in rule 77, and the Revenue-officer has corrected the Draft Record in accordance with the orders passed by him on such objections or in the course of the preparation of the Settlement Rent-Roll, he shall finally frame the record and cause it to be published by notifying, in the form shown in Form 17 in Schedule I, that its contents will be read out in the village, and, when the village is uninhabited in the village in which most of the cultivators of the uninhabited village reside, on a date to be specified, not less than a week from the date of the publication of such notice, and by reading it out himself or causing it to be read in the village on the date so specified, in the manner prescribed in rule 62, in the presence of the parties or of as many of them as attend.

80. When all the records-of-rights in any local area have been finally published, the Revenue-officer shall submit a report to the Local Government, containing such particulars as may be necessary in order to enable the Local Government to issue a notification under sub-section (2) of section 103B of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, as amended by Bengal Act I of 1907.

I.—Distribution of copies of the Record-of-rights to parties interested

81. (a) The Revenue-officer shall cause to be made a copy of, or extract from the record-of-rights as finally published in accordance with rule 70, and this copy or extract shall bear a certificate, under the Revenue-officer's signature and seal, that it is a copy of, or extract from, the record-of-rights as finally published. The copy or extract shall be made over to the landlord concerned, or where there are more landlords than one, to their common agent or common manager, as the case may be, or if there be no common agent or common manager, to such person among the landlords as the Revenue-officer may think fit.

(b) The finally published record itself shall be made over to the Collector of the district, and shall bear a certificate that it is the finally published record, under the Revenue-officer's signature and seal.

(c) An extract from the record-of-rights as finally published under rule 79 relating to his tenancy shall be given to every tenant under the signature and seal of the Revenue officer and shall bear a certificate that it is an extract from the record-of-rights as finally published.

(d) Copies of records, or of extracts from them, supplied to landlords and tenants under this rule shall be given free or on payment according as in the case of each local area the Local Government may direct. When payment is required, the sums so recovered shall be adjusted against the expenses incurred on account of survey and settlement.

(e) If the Local Government so directs, copies of the maps shall be prepared and distributed to the landlords and tenants concerned, and in such a case the foregoing rules regarding copies of, or extracts from, the record shall apply to such copies of the maps.

J.—The settlement of fair rents on the application of the parties under section 105, and the trial of suits for the decision of disputes under section 106 in cases in which a settlement of revenue is not being, or is not about to be, made.

82. When the landlord or tenant applies for the settlement of a fair rent, he shall be considered as plaintiff and the opposite party as defendant. The proceedings shall be dealt with as suits and subject to the directions contained in rules 84 to 87 of this Chapter, the Revenue-officer shall adopt, as far as it is applicable, the procedure laid down in the Code of Civil Procedure for the trial of suits.

83. When the estate or tenure is managed by the Court of Wards or by a Manager appointed by the District Judge under section 95 of the Act and a settlement of revenue is not being, or is not about to be made, the procedure laid down in these rules for recording or settling rents shall be followed, the Manager of the estate or the tenure being regarded as the landlord.

84. When a landlord or tenant applies for the settlement of a fair rent notice in Form 18 Schedule I shall be served on every person interested in the application together with a copy of the application, or extract therefrom, or summary thereof, so far as the application concerns such person.

85. With the consent of the Revenue-officer, any number of tenants occupying land under the same landlord whose interest is recorded in the same khewat entry in the same village may make a joint application for the settlement of rents, or may be joined as defendants in the same proceeding on a similar application by the landlord.

Provided that if at any time it appears to the Revenue-officer that the question between any two of the parties of whom one is so joined with others cannot conveniently be so jointly tried, he may order a separate trial to be held of that question, or he may pass such order, in accordance with the Code of Civil Procedure, for the joint or separate disposal of the application as he may think fit.

86. (a) On the date fixed for the settlement of fair rents, or any subsequent date to which the proceedings may be adjourned, the Revenue-officer shall read aloud, or cause to be read aloud in his presence, the name of each tenant whose rent has to be settled, the area of his tenancy, and the existing rent, and shall then proceed to settle a fair rent under the provisions of section 105.

(b) Where a landlord or tenant does not attend, after due service of notice has been proved, the procedure may be ex parte.

(c) Where a landlord or tenant appears and the fair rent is not settled under sub-section (5) or sub-section (6) of section 105, that is, by the acceptance by the parties of a rent proposed by the Revenue-officer, or compromise, the Revenue-officer shall record evidence in the manner prescribed in clause (f) of section 148 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, for the trial of rent-suits, and shall settle a fair and equitable rent according to law :

Provided that in important cases the Revenue-officer may, in his discretion, record evidence at length.

(d) When a fair rent has been settled under these rules, it shall be entered in the khatian as the rent payable in respect of the holding from the date prescribed by section 110.

87. It shall not be necessary for a Revenue-officer to draw up a separate decree with regard to the fair rent settled ; but the entry made in his decision or schedule attached thereto with regard to the fair rent settled shall be held to be a decree.

88. Proceedings under sections 105A and 106 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, as amended by Bengal Act I of 1907, shall be dealt with in all respects as suits between the parties.

*K.—Correction of bonâ-fide omissions or mistakes in the record—
"of-rights."*

89. Applications for the correction of bonâ-fide omissions or mistakes in the record of-rights after its final publication under Rule 79, where such applications bear on the body of them the admission of the party or parties affected, shall be received and dealt with in accordance with the provisions of section 108A. If the Revenue-officer receiving the application has not been specially empowered under that section, he shall forward the application, for disposal, with his report thereon, to the Revenue-officer so empowered. The Court-fee payable on such applications shall be eight annas.

Final Reports.

90. The Local Government may, if it thinks fit, direct that a final report be written, in English, for each village and each local area under survey.

The report for the village shall show :—

- (a) the number of tenants of each class, with the area held and rental paid by them ;
- (b) the area and classification of the village lands ;
- (c) the rental before settlement, and according to settlement, and the number of fair rents settled, with explanation of increase or decrease ;
- (d) when settlement of land-revenue is being made, the amount of Government revenue before and after re-settlement, grounds of assessment and comparison of gross assets with new assessment ;
- (e) the rates of rent prevailing before settlement, and the rates settled if any ;
- (f) proximity to markets, and facilities for irrigation ;
- (g) village customs, including customs as to payment of village officials ;
- (h) arrangements made for maintenance of records ; and
- (i) other matters deserving of notice which have been excluded from the record-of-rights.

The report for the whole area under survey shall contain the following particulars :—

- (i).—General description of the tract.
- (ii).—Its fiscal history.
- (iii).—Statistical results.
- (iv).—Comparison of condition of the tract as regards rentals before and after survey.
- (v).—Financial results, including approximate division of expenses under the heads—
 - (a) survey,
 - (b) record-of-rights, and
 - (c) preparation and distribution of records.

Applications under section 103 for Survey and Record-of-Rights.

91. These applications shall be made to the Collector of the district.

92. The application shall specify—

(a) the status of the applicant, viz., whether he is a proprietor or a tenure-holder ;

(b) the particulars specified in section 102, of the Bengal Tenancy Act, in respect of which the application is made ; and

(c) the number of tenants occupying the estate or tenure or part thereof in respect of which the application is made, the total rent payable by them at the time, and the estimated area covered by the application (so far as the applicant is able to give these particulars).

93. (a) If the application is made by a proprietor, it shall not be admitted unless the name of the applicant and the extent of his interest are registered under Bengal Act VII of 1876.

(b) If the application is made by a tenure-holder, it shall not be admitted unless the right of the tenure-holder and the extent of his interest is admitted by the superior landlord or is proved to the satisfaction of the Collector.

94. On receipt of the application, the Collector shall forward it to the Commissioner with any remarks which he may think necessary.

95. The Commissioner may call for further information or may require the application to be amended.

96. If the Commissioner considers that the application cannot be granted with advantage to the interests of all persons concerned, he may reject it. If he approves it, he shall forward the application with an expression of his opinion for the orders of the Board of Revenue.

97. A Commissioner rejecting an application shall record his reason for doing so, and the applicant, if dissatisfied with the order, may appeal within one month to the Board of Revenue.

98. When an application is referred to the Board under rule 96, or an appeal is preferred under rule 97, the Board may call for further information, if necessary, and shall pass such orders as it may think fit for allowing or rejecting the application.

99. As soon as an application is allowed, the Collector shall call upon the applicant to deposit eight annas per acre of the estimated extent of the estate or tenure or part thereof in respect of which the application has been allowed. If the Collector is unable to estimate the area, he shall require a deposit at the rate of Rs. 2 for each tenant. If the amount does not exceed Rs. 500, the applicant must deposit the whole amount in advance. If it exceeds Rs. 500, the applicant shall deposit the sum of Rs. 500 and shall give such security as the Collector may require for the payment of the balance of the deposit in such instalments as the Collector may from time to time demand.

If the amount deposited as above proves more than sufficient to cover the cost of the proceedings, the unexpended balance will be refunded on their termination.

If the amount deposited proves insufficient to cover the cost, the applicant shall, when required by the Collector, deposit from time to time such further sums as the Collector may think necessary for the completion of the proceedings. If he shall fail to do so, the proceedings may be stopped and the order allowing the application cancelled.

100. In conducting the operations, the Revenue-officer shall proceed in accordance with the rules for the guidance of officers acting under orders made under section 101.

CHAPTER VII.—GENERAL SCALE OF FEES.

101. Service of Notices.—For the service of every notice under this Act, not being a notice issued by any Revenue or Civil Court [fees for serving which are regulated by the Court Fees Act, 1870 (VII of 1870)], and not being provided for by any other rule made under this Act, a process-fee of 12 annas shall be levied, if the notice be directed to one or more persons residing in the same village.

102. Where such notices are directed to several persons resident in different villages, a fee of 12 annas shall be levied for service in each village.

103. In addition to the above fee, the actual charge which must be incurred, if it is necessary to travel by railway or boat, or cross ferries, shall be levied from and paid by the person at whose instance the process is issued before issue of the process. If a peon carries more than one process involving charges for railway-fare, boat-hire, etc., the sum leviable shall be charged, in equal shares, upon all the processes so carried. The rates at which such boat-hire is to be charged shall be the same as those fixed for criminal processes under rule VII of the rules prescribed by the High Court under clause (2) of section 20 of Act VII of 1870, and shall be sufficient only to cover, on the whole, the actual cost of hiring boats, or of such boat establishment as it may be necessary to maintain for the purpose of serving processes of these classes.

104. If a peon is detained at the place of service for more than 24 hours at the request of the person at whose instance the process was issued, or of his agent, such person or agent shall then and there pay demurrage at the rate of 5 annas a day and obtain a receipt from the peon. Unless this demurrage is paid, the peon shall decline to wait.

No demurrage shall be charged if the delay was not due to the person requiring the process or to his agent.

105. Deposits of Rent.—For deposits of rent under section 61 (2), fees shall be levied according to the following scale :—

			Rs.	A.
On any sum not exceeding	5	1
On any sum exceeding	5	2
but not exceeding	10
On any sum exceeding	10	4
but not exceeding	25
On any sum exceeding	25	4

for each complete sum of Rs. 25, and 4 annas for the remainder, provided that, if the remainder does not exceed Rs. 10, the charge for it shall be only 2 annas :

Provided also that in no case shall the fee exceed the sum of Rs. 5.

106. Distrain of Crops.—The following scale of charges is prescribed, on account of processes for distraint and sale under Section 134.

(a) in respect of the warrant of distraint—8 annas ;

(b) in respect of each man necessary to effect the distraint and also to ensure safe custody, where such man is to be left in actual possession—4 annas a day ; and

(c) in respect of action taken under clause (2), section 126, for the reaping, storing or preservation of the crop distrained—4 annas a day for every person employed, and in addition actual hire of threshing floor or store-house, if necessary.

In addition to the charges under clauses (a), (b) and (c) above, railway-fare, boat-hire, and ferry charges may be levied, when necessary, as under rule 103.

HIGH COURT RULES.

Rules under section 100.

1. Every manager, appointed under Chapter IX of the Bengal Tenancy Act, shall in all matters act in accordance with such orders as may, from time to time, be issued by the District Judge.

2. The manager shall pay the Government revenue, rent and other demands of the like nature, as also all just liabilities upon the estate, in due and proper time.

3. No manager shall have power to sell or mortgage any property, nor shall he grant or renew a lease for any period exceeding three years, without the express sanction of the District Judge. Provided that this rule shall not render valid any lease for a shorter time than three years, if the District Judge directs by a written order that his sanction is to be obtained as regards all leases granted by the manager.

4. The manager shall apply for the sanction of the District Judge to any act which may involve extraordinary expense.

5. No manager shall have power to compromise any suit or relinquish any claim without the express sanction of the District Judge.

Rules under Chapter XII.

6. All applications to distrain shall be presented and heard in open Court. The examination mentioned in section 123, sub-section (2), shall be on oath or affirmation.

7. All such applications and all notices of distraint under section 141 shall be entered in a register to be called the "Distraint Register," which shall be kept in the form annexed. A copy of every such application, to be furnished by the applicant, shall be given to the officer appointed to make the distraint, and a copy of the notice under section 141, to be similarly furnished by the applicant, shall be given to the officer placed in charge of the distrained property.

Note. In the column for remarks shall also be entered the date of each remand granted. (Inserted by C. O. No. 6 of 1924, Feb'y. 1899).

8. The officer deputed to make a distrainment under section 124, or to take charge of produce distrained under section 141, must in all cases be able to read and write the language of the district.

9. The written demand under section 125, shall be framed in accordance with entries contained in the application or notice referred to in Rule 2.

10. The notification of distrainment directed in section 124, Act VIII, 1885, shall be published by fixing up in a conspicuous part of the holding or other place, in which the produce is, a notice that such produce has been distrained, and by proclaiming at the same time the contents of the notice by beat of drum.

11. The notice shall specify the name of the person at whose instance the distrainment is made, the name of the defaulter, the name of the person in whose charge the produce has been placed, and the amount of the arrear due, and it shall direct any person intending to reap, gather, or store the crop or produce, if unreaped or ungathered, or intending to do any other act necessary for its preservation to give due notice of his intention to the person who has been placed in charge.

12. The notice shall be fixed up in the presence of not less than two persons, in addition to the agent of the distrainer, who points out the crop or produce.

13. In the event of it being necessary for the distraining officer, or the officer placed in charge of distrained property, to reap, gather, or store any crop or produce, or to do any other acts for the due preservation of the same, as provided by section 126, the person at whose instance the distrainment was made shall advance the funds necessary to this end.

14. The officer holding a sale under section 131 shall record a description of the property offered for sale, the names of all persons bidding for the same, and the amount bid by each ; and, if the sale is postponed, he shall record an order to this effect, and shall then and there notify the place where, and the time when, the sale will be held.

15. When the sale is concluded and the sale proceeds are realised, the officer who held the sale shall, after paying the costs of the distrainment and sale, as directed in section 134, forthwith pay the balance into Court.

16. The officer holding the sale shall take separate receipts for all sums paid by him as costs of the distrainment and sale under section 134, subsection (1), and if the person giving the receipt is unable to write, the receipt shall be attested by some person able to do so.

17. When a distrainment is withdrawn under section 136, the notification of distrainment, published under section 124, shall be taken down.

18. All officers deputed to distrain property under this Chapter shall, if there is a post office in the vicinity, report to the Court by letter immediately the distraint is made, or, if there is no such post office, shall immediately on his return, report in writing the nature and extent of the crop or produce distrained, the day on which the distraint was made, the name of the person (if any) placed in charge of the crop, and the day fixed for the sale, or if the sale has taken place, the day on which it took place. He shall also, immediately on his return file an account of all money received and disbursed by him, together with the receipts for the same and the record of the biddings at the sale, if a sale has taken place.

19. Every person, distraining produce by virtue of the authority conferred on him under section 141 of Act VIII, 1885, shall give notice of such distraint to the Civil Court having jurisdiction to entertain an application for the distraint of such produce, in a tabular form which shall contain the following particulars :—

- (a) The name and address of the person at whose instance the distraint was made and a description of his interest in the property, whether as proprietor, tenure-holder, or raiyat.
- (b) The name of the defaulter, and of the place in which he resides, or was known to be last residing.
- (c) The amount of the arrear with interest, if any, and the period in respect of which it is claimed.
- (d) The holding in respect of which the arrear is claimed, the boundaries thereof or such other particulars as may suffice for its identification.
- (e) The description and approximate value of the produce distrained and if the same has been reaped or gathered, the place in which it is stored.
- (f) The name of the person by whom the distraint was actually made, and the name and address of the person in whose charge the produce has been placed.
- (g) The date on which the distraint was made.
- (h) If the crop or produce is standing or ungathered, the time at which it is likely to be cut or gathered.

APPENDIX IV.

REVISED RULES⁽¹⁾ FOR THE REGISTRATION OF DOCUMENTS UNDER THE BENGAL TENANCY ACT, (VIII OF 1885)⁽²⁾ AS AMENDED BY ACT I (B. C.) OF 1907.

1. The sections of the Tenancy Act, which refer to the registration of documents, are sections 12, 18, 85, 175 and 176.

Section 12 has been amended by Act VIII of 1886, and has reference only to the transfer of a permanent tenure by gift, voluntary sale, or usufructuary mortgage, i. e., where the mortgagor delivers possession and authorises the mortgagee to retain the rents and profits accruing from the property mortgaged [section 58 (d) of the Transfer of Property Act, IV of 1882].

Section 12, as further amended by section 5 of Act I (B. C.) of 1907, lays down that the landlord's fee is to be transmitted to the landlord by the Collector and the costs necessary for the transmission should be paid.

Section 18 enacts that a raiyati holding at a fixed rent or fixed rate of rent is subject to the same provisions with respect to its transfer by gift, sale or mortgage, as a permanent tenure.

The period allowed by section 175 for the registration of a certain class of documents expired on the 31st October, 1886, and after that date their registration was barred.

Section 176 relates to the notification of incumbrances to the landlord. For definition of the term "incumbrance," see section 161.

2. A document presented for registration under sections 12, 18 and 175, shall be first examined with reference to Registration the deed. Rule 41, and next with reference to the particular section of the Tenancy Act under which it is presented. Care should be taken not to carry out the procedure under sections 12 and 18, unless it appears on the face of the deed itself that the tenure transferred is a permanent tenure, or that the holding transferred is a holding at a rent or rate of rent, fixed in perpetuity.⁽³⁾

(1) The rules of the Registration Department for the registration of documents under the Bengal Tenancy Act had not been published in the Gazette, when this work had to be sent to press. These are draft-revised rules received from the Inspector General of Registration. It is understood some changes may be made in them.

(2) See Govt. Notification No. 949 P., dated 21st. March, 1898, published in the Calcutta Gazette of March 23rd, 1898, Part 1, 325.

(3) Rule 3, relating to the registrations of deeds of transfer of fractional shares of tenures or holdings, was withdrawn by Govt. Not., No. 1881 P., dated 19th Sept., 1899, published in the Calcutta Gazette, of Sept. 20th, Part I, p. 1233.

3. When a sub-lease executed by a raiyat purporting to create a term exceeding nine years is presented for registration, it shall be returned at once with a notice to the following effect recorded on its back, viz., "Not admissible under sub-section 2, section 85 of the Bengal Tenancy Act." The note shall be signed, sealed, and dated by the registering officer. The order of refusal will be entered in Book II.

4. In certifying the admissibility to registration of a document presented for registration under these Rules, the registering officer shall quote registration Rule 41 as well as the particular section of the Tenancy Act under which it is admitted. Thus : Admissible under Rule 41, also under section of the Bengal Tenancy Act. Correctly stamped under the Indian Stamp Act Schedule , No .

The fees levied shall be noted below the certificate of admissibility in the following manner, viz :—

Sub-Registrar.

5. The amount of landlord's fee, process-fee, application fee, peon's charges and money-order fee, shall be entered in the printed receipt for the document granted under section 52 of the Registration Act. In calculating the amount of landlord's fee, pie should be omitted.

6. The document shall be entered in the registration fee-book in order of presentation in the same manner as any other document presented under the Indian Registration Act. The registration fee shall be credited in column 7 with the necessary details, and included in the total of other registration fees for credit to Government. The serial number of the document in the Tenancy Act fee-book shall be noted in the column of remarks of the registration fee book with letters T. A. for reference.

7. Application for the issue of processes under sections 12 and 18, Processes and application fees. should bear a Court-Fee Stamp of Eight annas under art. i (b) Schedule II of the Court Fees Act, VII of 1870. Fees for processes including peon's boat hire shall be paid in Court-fee stamps. The Court-fee stamps shall be affixed to the applications for issue of processes, an endorsement being made on the processes issued, certifying that the fees have been paid, and the applications being retained in the offices of the registering officers. The stamps shall be cancelled by the registering officers in the manner prescribed in section 30 of the Court-fees' Act, i. e., by punching out the figure-head so as to leave the amount designated on the stamps untouched. The pieces punched out shall be immediately destroyed.

8. Money-order fee at the usual postal rates should be realized at the time of registration to enable the Collector to remit the Peon's charges and money-order fees, landlord's fee to the landlord under paragraphs (4) and (5) of Appendix B. Process fees shall be levied according to the instructions in paragraphs (1) and (2) of Appendix A. Charges on account of peons' railway-fare, boat-hire or ferry-charges shall be levied according to the Rule quoted in paragraph (3) of Appendix A, subject to the instructions of the Collector of the District.

9. Landlords' fees, process-fees, application-fees, money-order fees and charges, on account of peons' railway-fare, boat-hire, or ferry charges, shall not be shown in the Tenancy Act Fee-book. Registration Fee-book, but shall be shown separately in a fee-book called the Tenancy Act Fee-book.

shall be levied from, and paid by, the person at whose instance the process is issued, before issue of the process. If a peon carries more than one process, involving charges for railway-fare, boat-hire, &c., the sum leviable shall be charged in equal shares, upon all the processes so carried. The rates at which such boat-hire is to be charged shall be the same as those fixed for criminal processes under Rule VII of the rules prescribed by the High Court under clause (2) section 20, Act VII of 1870, and shall be sufficient only to cover, on the whole, the actual cost of hiring boats, or of such boat establishment as it may be necessary to maintain for the purpose of serving processes of these classes.

APPENDIX B.

Service of Notices under sections 12 and 18 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, VIII of 1885, see Chapter V of the Government Rules, framed under the Bengal Tenancy Act.

24. Sections 12, 13, 15 and 18.—Notices under sections 12, 13, 15 and 18 shall contain, so far as may be possible, the particulars given in forms contained in Schedule 1 (Forms 2 to 7). Each notice forwarded to the Collector by a registering officer or a Civil Court shall be supported by a chalan showing the payment into the treasury of the landlord's fee, money-order commission and any other fees or charges realised in cash.

25. (a) Where there is a sole landlord, or where two or more persons are joint-landlords, and have a common agent such as is referred to in section 188, or a common manager appointed under section 95, the notices shall be served on such sole landlord or his agent, or on such common agent or manager, as the case may be.

(b) Where there is more than one landlord, and no common agent or manager has been appointed, a notice shall be served on each joint-landlord.

26. In each case under the preceding rule the notice shall be forwarded by post, in a letter registered under Chapter VI of the Indian Post Office Act, 1898 (VI of 1898), and an acknowledgment obtained.

27. In the cases mentioned in rule 2 (a), the landlord's fee shall be transmitted by money order to the sole landlord or his agent, or to the common agent or manager, as the case may be, at the time when the notice is issued. The coupon attached to the money-order shall contain, so far as may be possible, the particulars given in the forms contained in Schedule I.

28. If, in cases where the amount of landlord's fee is transmitted by money-order, the sole landlord or his agent or the common agent or manager refuses to accept payment thereof, and in all other cases where no application is made for payment of the landlord's fee, the amount shall be kept in deposit in the Collector's office for three years from the date of the service of the notice, and on the expiry of that time it shall be forfeited to the Government.

29. The Collector or any other officer who signs the order for the notice to be served shall satisfy himself, by reference to the chalan accompanying it, in accordance with the provisions of rule 1, that the landlord's fee and other fees and charges realised in cash have been paid into the treasury.

APPENDIX V.

The Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, as extended to the Chota Nagpur Division, except the district of Manbhum.

By Bengal Government Notification, No. 721, L. R., dated the 9th February 1903, (See Calcutta Gazette, 1903, Part I, p. 172) the following provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885 (VIII of 1885), as amended by the Bengal Tenancy Amendment Act, 1898 (Bengal Act III of 1898), have, under sections 5 and 5A of the Scheduled Districts Act, 1874 (XIV of 1874) been extended, in the modified form set forth below* to the whole of the Chota Nagpur Division, except the district of Manbhum :—

Short title. 1. This Act may be called the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885.

Definitions. 3. In this Act, unless there is something repugnant in the subject or context :—

(1). 'estate' means land included under one entry in any of the general registers of revenue-paying lands and revenue-free lands prepared and maintained under the law for the time being in force by the Deputy Commissioner of a district, and includes Government khas mahals and revenue-free lands not entered in any register :

(2). 'proprietor' means a person owning whether in trust or for his own benefit, an estate or part of an estate ;

(3). 'tenant' means a person who holds land under another person, and is, or but for a special contract would be, liable to pay rent for that land to that person ;

(4). 'landlord' means a person immediately under whom a tenant holds, and includes the Government ;

(7). 'tenure' means the interest of a tenant in land, and includes an under-tenure ;

(15). 'prescribed' means prescribed from time to time by the Local Government by notification in the official Gazette ;

(17). 'Revenue officer' in any provision of this Act, includes any officer whom the Local Government may appoint by name or by virtue of his office, to discharge any of the functions of a Revenue officer under that provision.

* The modifications made will be found indicated by means of italics, and the omissions by means of spaces and points.

(5) (1). 'Tenure-holder' means primarily a person who has acquired from a proprietor or from another tenure-holder a right to hold land for the purpose of collecting rents or bringing it under cultivation by establishing tenants on it, and includes also the successors in interest of persons who have acquired such a right.

101 (1). The Local Government may.....make an order directing that a survey be made and a record-of-rights be prepared by a Revenue officer in respect of the lands in any local area, estate or tenure or part thereof.

Power to order survey and preparation of record-of-rights.

(3). A notification in the official Gazette of an order under this section shall be conclusive evidence that the order has been duly made.

(4). The survey shall be made and the record-of-rights prepared in accordance with rules made in this behalf by the Local Government.

Particulars to be recorded. "102. Where an order is made under section 101, the particulars to be recorded shall be specified in the order.....

103A. When a draft record-of-rights has been prepared, the Revenue Officer shall publish the draft in the prescribed manner and for the prescribed period, and shall receive and consider any objections which may be made to any entry therein, or to any omission therefrom, during the period of publication.

Preliminary publication, amendment and final publication of record-of-rights.

(2). When such objections have been considered and disposed of according to such rules as the Local Government may prescribe*.....the Revenue Officer shall finally frame the record, and shall cause it to be published in the prescribed manner; and the publication shall be conclusive evidence that the record has been duly made under this Chapter.

(3). Separate draft or final records may be published under sub-section (1) or sub-section (2) for different local areas, estates, tenures or parts thereof.

103B. A certificate signed by the Revenue officer, stating that a record-of-rights has been finally published under this Chapter, shall be conclusive evidence of such publication, and every entry in a record-of-rights so published shall be presumed to be correct until the contrary is proved.

Presumption as to correctness of record-of-rights.

* For the rules specially made with reference to this provision for Chota Nagpur, see Bengal Government Notification No. 2362 L. R., dated the 20th November, 1903—Calcutta Gazette 1903, Part I p. 1500. The rules are also printed at the end of this Appendix.

104G. (2) The Board of Revenue may, in any case under this Chapter, on application or of its own motion direct the revision of any record-of-rights or any portion of a record-of-rights, at any time within two years from the date of the certificate of final publication..... :-

Provided that so such direction shall be made until reasonable notice has been given to the parties concerned to appear and be heard in the matter.

111. When an order has been made under section 101 directing the preparation of a record-of-rights, then.....a Civil Court shall not,

Stay of proceedings in Civil Courts during preparation of record-of-rights.

(a) Where a settlement of land revenue is being or is about to be made until after the final publication of the record-of-rights, and

(b) Where a settlement of land revenue is not being made, or is not about to be made until three months after the final publication of the record-of-rights, entertain any suit or application for the alteration of the rent or the determination of this status of any tenant in the area to which the record-of-rights applies.

Limitation of jurisdiction of Civil Courts in matters other than rent, relating to record-of-rights.

111A. No suit shall be brought in any Civil Court in respect of any order directing the preparation of a record-of-rights under the Chapter, or in respect of the framing, publication, signing or attestation of such a record or of any part of it.

Provided that any person who is dissatisfied with any entry in, or omission from, a record-of-rights.....which concerns a right of which he is in possession, may institute a suit for declaration of his right under Chapter VI of the Specific Relief Act, 1877.

114 (1) When the preparation of a record-of-rights has been directed or undertaken under this Chapter,.....the expenses incurred by the Government in carrying out the provisions of this Chapter in any local area, estate, tenure or part thereof (including expenses that may be incurred from time to time in the maintenance of boundary marks and other survey marks erected for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of this Chapter), or such part of those expenses as the Local Government may direct, shall be defrayed by the landlords, tenants and occupants of land in that local area, estate, tenure or part, in such proportions as the Local Government, having regard to all the circumstances, may determine.

(2) The portion of the aforesaid expenses which any person is liable to pay shall be recoverable by the Government as if it were an arrear or land-revenue due in respect of the said local area, estate, tenure or part.

Procedure in rent suits. 148. The following rules shall apply to suits for the recovery of rent :—

- (b) the plaint shall contain, in addition to the particulars specified in sections 46 and 47 of the Chota Nagpur Landlord and Tenant Procedure Act, a statement of the situation, designation, extent and boundaries of the land held by the tenant, or, where the plaintiff is unable to give the extent or boundaries, in lieu thereof a description sufficient for identification.

189. The Local Government may, from time to time, by notification in the Official Gazette, make rules consistent with this Act—

(1) to regulate the procedure to be followed by Revenue Officers in the discharge of any duty imposed upon them by or under this Act, and may by such rules confer upon any such officer—

- (a) any power exercised by a Civil Court in the trial of suits ;
- (b) power to enter upon any land, and to survey, demarcate and make a map of the same, and any power exercisable by an officer under the Bengal Survey Act, 1875, and
- (c) power to cut and thresh the crops on any land and weigh the produce, with a view to estimating the capabilities of the soil, and,

(2) to prescribe the mode of service of notices under this Act where no mode is prescribed by this or any other Act.*

Procedure for making, publication, and confirmation of rules. 190. (1) Every authority having power to make rules under any section of this Act shall, before making the rules publish a draft of the proposed rules for the information of persons likely to be affected thereby.

(1) The publication shall be made in the case of rules made by the Local Government.....in such manner as may in its opinion be sufficient for giving information to persons interested.....

Provided that every such draft shall be published in the Official Gazette.

(3) There shall be published with the draft a notice specifying a date not earlier than the expiration of one month after the date of publication, at or after which the draft will be taken into consideration

* For the rules made under this section for Chota Nagpur, see Bengal Government Notification No. 3362 L. R., dated the 20th November 1903—Calcutta Gazette 1903 Part I p. 1500 ; also No. 8792 L. R., dated the 29th August, 1904, and No. 2040 T. R., dated the 27th October 1904, ibid 1904 Part I p. 1610 ; also No. 2981 T. R., dated the 31st October 1904 ibid p. 1652.

(4) The authority shall receive and consider any objection or suggestion which may be made by any person with respect to the draft before the date so specified. The publication in the Official Gazette of a rule purporting to be made under this Act shall be conclusive evidence that it has been duly made.

(5) All rules made under this Act may, from time to time, subject to the sanction (if any) required for making them, be amended, added to or cancelled by the authority having power to make the same.

195. Nothing in this Act shall affect—

Savings for special enactments.

(a) the powers and duties of settlement officers as defined by any law not expressly repealed by this Act ;

(f) any other special or local law not repealed either expressly or by necessary implication by this Act.

NOTIFICATION.

No. 3395.—The 24th November, 1903.—Whereas by Government Notification No 721 L.R., dated the 9th February, 1903, published at page 172, Part I of the Calcutta Gazette of the 11th February, 1903, certain sections of the Bengal Tenancy Act, VIII of 1885, as amended by Act III (B.C.) of 1898, subject to certain restrictions and modifications were extended to the Chota Nagpur Division, except the district of Manbhum, and whereas it is necessary that the existing rules under the Act, relating to the sections so extended, should be modified before they are introduced in the districts of the Chota Nagpur Division, except Manbhum, in exercise of the powers conferred by section 189 and sub-section (6) of section 190 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, the Lieutenant-Governor is pleased to make the following rules under the said Act, for the Chota Nagpur Division, except the district of Manbhum.

A. EARLE,

Offg. Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

Rules under the Bengal Tenancy Act, VIII of 1885, as amended up to date, for the Chota Nagpur Division (except the district of Manbhum).

CHAPTER I—GENERAL.

*Section 189.

1. In carrying out the following rules, Revenue Officers shall have regard to the instructions of the Board of Revenue for the guidance of

*These references are, in all cases, to the sections of the Bengal Tenancy Act, VIII of 1885, as amended by Act III (B. C. of 1898).

Revenue Officers, so far as such instructions are consistent with the rules herein prescribed under Act VIII of 1885.

2. Except where otherwise provided for by law or by these rules, all proceedings and orders of Revenue Officers, passed in the discharge of any duty imposed upon them by or under this Act, shall be subject to the supervision and control of the Board of Revenue ; and the orders of each Revenue Officer under this Act shall be subject to the supervision and control of the Revenue Officers to whom he may be declared by the Board of Revenue to be, for the purposes of the Act, subordinate.

The Deputy Commissioner, and the Commissioner in whose jurisdiction operations under these rules are in progress, shall be entitled to inform themselves of the nature and progress of such operations.

3. Where no other mode of service of notice is prescribed by the Chota Nagpur Landlord and Tenant Procedure Act, or by these rules, service shall be effected in the manner prescribed for the service of summons on a defendant under the Code of Civil Procedure, if the notice is addressed to only one person ; and if it is addressed to a number of persons occupying or owning land in the same village, the notice shall be served in the manner prescribed for the service of summons on a defendant under the Code of Civil Procedure, or by proclamation and beat of drum, and by posting it, in the presence of not less than two persons, in some conspicuous place in the village, and also by fixing it up in the village, village office, if any, where the rent is usually paid.

CHAPTER II.

Rules under section 189 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, VIII of 1885, as amended by Act III (B. C.) of 1898, as to the procedure to be followed by Revenue Officers in regard to the Record-of-rights.

1. (a) Every Revenue Officer appointed by the Local Government under the designation of "Settlement Officer" or "Assistant Settlement Officer" for the purpose of making surveys and record-of-rights, under the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, is hereby vested with

- (i) all the powers exercisable by a Civil Court in the trial of suits;
- (ii) powers to enter upon any land and to survey, demarcate and make a map of the same ;
- (iii) all the powers of an Assistant Superintendent of Survey and a Deputy Collector under the Bengal Survey Act, 1875 ;
- (iv) power to cut and thresh the crops on any land and weigh the produce with a view to estimating the capabilities of the soil. (1)

(b) A Revenue Officer who, under the designation of "Settlement Officer," has been appointed by the Local Government for the purpose of making a survey and record-of-rights under Chapter X of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, shall have power to make over to any officer subordinate to him (who has been duly empowered, under the designation of Assistant Settlement Officer, to act as a Revenue Officer under the provisions of the same Chapter of the same Act),

(i) objections preferred under section 103A, and

(ii) suits instituted for the trial of disputes under section 160, Act I (B. C.) of 1879 as amended by the Chota Nagpur Tenancy (Amendment) Act of 1903 and under section 9A (8) of the Chota Nagpur Commutation Act IV (B. C.) of 1897 as amended by the same Act of 1903.

(c) A Revenue Officer so appointed under the designation of Settlement officer shall on the application of any person interested and after given notice to other persons interested, and hearing any objections preferred, or of his own motion without given such notice, have power to withdraw, from the file of any Assistant Settlement Officer subordinate to him, any of the matters specified in Rule 1 (b) above, and to dispose of them himself, or to transfer them for disposal to any other Assistant Settlement Officer subordinate to him who has been duly empowered to act as a Revenue Officer.

(d) In the case of an uninhabited village, any general notice to be served or publication to be made under the rules in this Chapter may be served or made in any inhabited village contiguous to that village, or if there be no inhabited village contiguous to that village, in the inhabited village nearest to that village or in the village in which the tenants and occupants of the lands of the uninhabited village are believed by the Revenue Officer to reside.

2. Deputy Superintendents of Survey and Assistant Superintendents of Survey employed in operations under those rules are hereby declared to be Revenue Officers for the purpose of performing any duty imposed upon them by these rules, or by the instructions consistent with these rules issued by the Board of Revenue. They are hereby vested with the powers specified in section 189 (1) (b), provided that an Assistant Superintendent shall not exercise the powers vested in a Superintendent under the Bengal Survey Act.*

Procedure for Cadastral Survey and Record-of-rights.

3. The processes will be—

I.—Demarcation of boundaries.

II.—Measurement,

III.—Khanapuri, i.e., preliminary preparation of the record.

IV.—Attestation of the record.

V.—Publication of the draft record.

VI.—Disposal of objections under section 103A.

VII.—Final publication of the record-of-rights.

VIII.—The trial of suits under section 160, Act I (B. C.) of 1879, as amended by the Chota Nagpur Tenancy (Amendment) Act of 1903, and under section 9A (8) of the Chota Nagpur Commutation Act of 1897, as amended by the same Act of 1903.

I.—Demarcation of Boundaries.

4. (a) In the demarcation of village boundaries, the area contained within the exterior boundaries of the village maps of the revenue survey shall be preserved, as far as possible, as the unit of survey and record.

(b) Where there is no dispute, the boundary of the village according to possession shall be followed, and, where that boundary does not differ substantially from the boundary of the revenue survey, the latter will not be separately shown in the map

(c) Where there is considerable difference between the boundary according to the revenue survey map and the existing boundary of the village as ascertained by the Revenue Officer, the latter shall be followed for the purposes of map and record ; but the boundary of the revenue survey map shall also be marked on the new village map.

(d) Where there is dispute as to village boundaries, the Revenue Officer shall decide the dispute under the Bengal Survey Act, V (B. C.) of 1875.

(e) Where no revenue survey maps have been prepared, the Revenue Officer appointed under the designation of Settlement Officer is empowered to determine, after such local enquiry as he may consider necessary, and issue of notice of the enquiry to all parties concerned in the manner prescribed, the area to be included in the village, and such area shall be adopted as the unit of survey and record-of-rights.

(f) The notice under rule 4 (e) of the enquiry to be held shall be given by proclamation and beat of drum, and by posting it in the presence of not less than two persons in some convenient place or places in the lands to which it refers.

5. Boundary pillars of a permanent nature shall be erected at every point where the boundaries of three or more villages meet, and may be erected wherever the Revenue Officer considers it necessary to define by pillars the boundaries of estates or tenures, or of lands which have been the subject of dispute.

II.—Measurement.

6. A field map of every village shall be prepared. It shall show the boundaries of every field separately held, or of such plot of land as the instructions of the Board of Revenue for giving effect to these rules may lay down.

III.—Khanapuri, i. e., Preliminary preparation of the Record.

7. The following are the principal documents to be prepared in the course of a survey and the preparation of a record-of-rights under Chapter X of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885 :—

Village map.	Khewat.
Khasra.	Khatian.
Parcha.	Terij.

These and any papers prescribed by the Board of Revenue shall be prepared in such manner as the Board may prescribe.

8. The record-of rights, which shall be published under section 103A of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, shall be contained in the khewat and the khatian.

9. (a) The proprietary khewat shall show the character and extent of proprietary interests. It shall be first drawn up with reference to the registers maintained by the Deputy Commissioner under the provisions of the Land Registration Act, VII (B. C.) of 1876. As the record-writing proceeds, the proprietary khewat shall be altered in accordance with the facts of possession. The Settlement Officer shall, from time to time, under such instructions as the Board of Revenue may prescribe in this behalf, give information to the Deputy Commissioner of all alterations made in the khewat, and the Deputy Commissioner shall thereupon take action to make such corrections as may be necessary in his registers prepared under the Land Registration Act. If the Deputy Commissioner, after enquiry under the Land Registration Act, finds that any entry in the khewat is incorrect, a note shall be made in the khewat of his finding.

(b) A khewat may also, when the Revenue Officer thinks fit, be prepared to show the character, and extent of the interests of tenure-holders.

10. (a) The khatian shall show in detail for all the lands of the village, estate by estate, landlord by landlord, tenant by tenant, and occupant by occupant, the lands included in each estate owned by each landlord and occupied by each tenant or occupant, with particulars of rent and area and of the incidents of each tenancy. The commuted value of the predial conditions or services to which the tenant has been found liable, and if any tenant by ancient custom is liable to any predial conditions or services other than those to which the general body of tenants are liable, or is not liable to all the predial conditions or services to which the general body are liable, the predial conditions or services to which such tenant is liable shall be separately recorded in the khatian.

(b) Lands cultivated or otherwise held direct by a proprietor and tenure-holder shall be shown in detail in the khatian.

IV.—Attestation of the Record.

11. (a) When the map, khasra, khewat, and khatian for a village have been prepared in the manner prescribed by these rules and by instructions of the Board of Revenue consistent with them, the Revenue Officer shall issue a notification, in such form as may be approved by the Board, fixing a day which shall be not less than a week from the date of publication of the notification, on which he will be present at some place to be specified at or near the village, for the purpose of attesting and completing the record-of-rights; and with this notice the Revenue Officer shall issue a notice under section 4, Act IV (B. C.) of 1897, that he will on the same day commute predial conditions and services.

(b) The notification shall further state that on the day so fixed, or on any other day to which the proceedings may be adjourned, the Revenue Officer will record rents and status and commute and include in the cash rent of the holding the value of predial conditions and services in accordance with the rules prescribed by the Local Government, and deal with objections relating to entries in the record or omissions therefrom; and it shall require all parties interested in the subject-matter of the enquiry to attend at the time and place specified, with their purchas, and with such evidence as they have to offer in connection with the proceedings.

(c) Such notification shall be published by proclamation and beat of drum, and fixed up in the presence of not less than two persons in some conspicuous place in the village to which it refers.

12. The Revenue Officer may also, if he deem fit, take such additional measures under the powers conferred on him by rule 1 of this Chapter, as he may deem desirable to procure the attendance at the place specified in the notification issued under the last preceding rule, of the occupants, under-riyats, riyats, tenure-holders, landlords, and proprietors, or their authorised agents.

13. On the date specified in the notification issued under rule 11, or on any other date to which the proceedings may be adjourned, the entries which have been made in the khewat and in each khatian shall be read out in the presence of such of the interested parties as are in attendance. If the correctness of any entry is questioned, the Revenue Officer shall dispose of the objection after local enquiry or otherwise: provided that if the correctness of the measurement be objected to, and a fresh measurement be demanded, the Revenue Officer may require the cost of the re-measurement to be deposited. If the measurement shows the original measurement to have been inaccurate, the amount deposited or any portion of it, may, if the Revenue Officer thinks fit, be refunded to the objector.

14. The Revenue Officer shall ascertain what raiyats claim the right to hold at fixed rates or fixed rents. If the right claimed is disputed by the landlord, the Revenue Officer shall call on the claimants for proofs of such right. He shall also see that for the record-of-rights in regard to Mundari Khunt-khattidari tenancies referred to in section 2 (2) (g) and (h) of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy (Amendment) Act of 1903, the special procedure prescribed by the new sections added to Act I (B. C.) of 1879 by section 47 of the amending Act of 1903 is observed.

15. The Revenue Officer shall ascertain what lands are held with a right of occupancy and what lands are held without such right, and shall record the lands severally as such. In doing so he shall have regard to section 6 of Act I (B. C.) of 1879, as amended by section 3 (2) of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy (Amendment) Act of 1903, and to section 36A (1) (c) of the Act of 1879 inserted by section 20 of the said amending Act. To this end he shall be entitled to call upon the landlord or his agent to produce a statement showing the lands in respect of which he denies the occupancy right and the names of the cultivators thereof. On the production of such statement he shall explain to the cultivators the provisions of section 6, Act I (B. C.) of 1879. If after such explanation a cultivator admits that he is a non-occupancy raiyat in respect of any of those lands, he shall be recorded as such in respect of the lands regarding which he makes such admission. If he does not admit himself to be a non-occupancy-raiyat, the Revenue Officer shall call on the landlord to prove the allegations made by him in regard to such cultivator.

16. The Revenue Officer shall ascertain and record what lands are korkar, baiballa, khundwat, sajhwat, jalsasan, and wiat referred to in section 20, Act I (B. C.) of 1879. He shall also ascertain and record what lands are bhuinhari or khunkatti referred to in section 19 of that Act.

17. The Revenue Officer shall summarily ascertain the tenant's present rent, and record it in the appropriate column of the khatians as the rent payable in respect of the land held by the tenant.

18. (a) Demands other than rent, known as rakumat or begari, predial condition or services, should be recorded separately from the rent in the khatian, and should be commuted according to the Chota Nagpur Commutation Act, IV (B. C.) of 1897, as amended by the Chota Nagpur

Tenancy (Amendment) Act, V (B. C.) of 1903, and such rules as the Local Government may prescribe on that account. The cash value, commuted according to the proviso to sub-section (3) of section 4 of the Chota Nagpur Commutation Act, 1897, as amended by section 49 of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy (Amendment) Act, 1903, should be included in the total rent payable for the holding. }

(b) Road and Public Works cess will also be recorded in the khatian.

(c) No demand of any other kind will be recorded in the khatian.

19. When the record-of-rights and of existing rents has been prepared and attested in the manner prescribed in Rules 11 to 18, and when the record shall have been arranged and corrected in accordance with the orders which the Revenue Officer may have passed, he shall record a proceeding in which he shall state that attestation of the records of the village has been completed, and shall then cause the draft record-of-rights to be published in the village in the manner provided in rule 20.

V.—Publication of the Draft Record.

20 (a) As soon as the record-of-rights has been prepared and attested, a notice shall be posted up at the landlord's office in the village, or in the presence of not less than two persons, in some conspicuous place in the village, stating that the draft of the record will be published in the village on a day to be specified, not less than a week from the date of the posting of such notice, and calling on all persons interested to attend on the date so specified: provided that the draft of the record shall not be published until the proceeding under rule 19 has been recorded. A similar notice of draft publication will simultaneously be issued under section 9A (5) of the Chota Nagpur Commutation Act, IV (B.C.) of 1897, as amended by the Chota Nagpur Tenancy (Amendment) Act, 1903.

(b) On the date fixed for the publication of the draft records, the Revenue Officer shall either proceed to the village himself and read the contents of the records in the presence of the parties who attend, or he shall depute an officer, not below the rank of kanungo, who shall read out the contents of the records in the presence of as many of the parties as attend, and the Revenue Officer or officer deputed by him, as the case may be, shall at the same time inform the parties who attend that the draft records will be open for inspection for not less than one month in the office of the Revenue Officer, or in such other convenient place as the Revenue Officer may determine. The Revenue Officer shall receive and consider any objection which may be made to any entry during the period named.

VI—Disposal of Objections under section 103A.

21. When an objection is made within and before the expiry of the period of publication of the draft records prescribed under rule 20 (b) regarding the correctness of any entry or as to the propriety of any omission, notice of the objection shall be served on all persons whose interests may, in the opinion of the Revenue Officer, be affected thereby, and they shall be called upon to attend at such time and place as the Revenue Officer may fix for the disposal of the objection. If no person attends to contest the objection, the objection may be allowed and the records amended accordingly, or the person who made the objection may, if the Revenue Officer thinks fit, be called upon to produce evidence in support of his objection.

All such objections shall be dealt with summarily under such instructions as the Board of Revenue may prescribe.

VII—Final Publication of the Record-of-rights.

22. When all objections under section 103A of the Bengal Tenancy Act, and section 9A (6) of the Commutation Act, have been disposed of, as provided for in rule 21 above, and the Revenue Officer has corrected the draft records in accordance with the orders passed by him on such objections, he shall finally frame the records and cause them to be published by notifying that their contents will be read out in the village on a date to be specified, not less than a week from the date of the publication of such notice, and by reading them out himself or causing them to be read in the village on the date so specified, in the manner prescribed in rule 20, in the presence of the parties or of as many of them as attend.

Supply of copies of the Record-of-rights to Parties interested.

23. (a) The Revenue Officer having completed the record shall cause copies of it to be made, one of which, or extracts from which, will be made over to the landlord concerned, or, where there are more landlords than one, to their common manager, as the case may be, or, if there be no common agent or common manager, to such person among the landlords as the Revenue Officer may think fit, and one to the Deputy Commissioner of the district.

(b) An extract from the khatian relating to his tenancy shall be given to every tenant under the seal of the Revenue Officer and under the signature of an officer duly authorised by the Revenue Officer to give copies.

(c) Copies of records, or of extracts from them, supplied to landlords and tenants under this rule shall be given free or on payment according as in the case of each Local area the Local Government may direct. When payment is required, the sums so recovered shall be adjusted against the expenses incurred on account of survey and settlement.

Final Reports.

24. The Local Government may, if it thinks fit, direct that a final report be written in English for each village and each local area under survey. The report for the village will show—

(a) The number of tenants of each class, with the area held and rental paid by them.

(b) The area and classification of the village lands.

(c) Proximity to markets, and facilities for irrigation.

(d) Village customs, including customs as to payment of village officials.

(e) Arrangements made for maintenance of records.

(f) Other matters deserving of notice which have been excluded from the record-of-rights.

The report for the whole area under survey will contain the following particulars :—

I.—General description of the tract.

II.—Its fiscal history.

III.—Statistical results.

IV.—An account of the commutation of predial conditions and services.

V.—Financial results, including approximate division of expenses under the heads—

(a) Survey,

(b) Record-of-rights,

(c) Preparation and distribution of records.

CHAPTER III.—GENERAL SCALE OF FEES.

Section 189 (1)—For service of Notices.—For the service of every notice under this Act not being a notice issued by any Revenue or Civil Court (fees for serving which are regulated by the Court Fees Act,) and not being provided for by any other rule made under this Act, a process-fee of 8 annas shall be levied, if the notice be directed to one or more persons residing in the same village.

2. Where such notices are directed to several persons resident in different villages, a fee of 8 annas shall be levied for service in each village.

3. In addition to the above fee, the actual charge which must be incurred, if it is necessary to travel by railway or boat, or cross ferries, will be levied from and paid by the person at whose instance the process is issued before issue of the process. If a peon carries more than one process involving charges for railway-fare boat hire, &c., the sum leviable will be charged, in equal shares, upon all the processes so carried.

4. If a peon is detained at the place of service for more than 24 hours at the request of the person at whose instance the process was issued, or of his agent, such person or agent must then and there pay demurrage at the rate of 3 annas a day. Unless this demurrage is paid, the peon must decline to wait. No demurrage is to be charged if the delay was not due to the person requiring the process or to his agent.

NOTIFICATION.

No. 3396.—The 24th November, 1903.—Under sub-section (5), section 14, of the Chota Nagpur Commutation Act, IV (B.C.) of 1897, as amended by the Chota Nagpur Tenancy (Amendment) Act, V (B.C.) of 1903, the following rules are published for general information.

These rules supersede the rules published under Government Notification No. 9649 L.R., dated the 9th August, 1898.

A. EARLE,

Offg. Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

Rules under section 13 of the Chota Nagpur Commutation Act, IV (B.C.) of 1897, as amended by the Chota Nagpur Tenancy (Amendment) Act V (B.C.) of 1903.

POWERS OF OFFICERS.

1. In carrying out their duties under this Act, Revenue Officers shall have regard to the instructions of the Board of Revenue for the guidance of Revenue Officers so far as such instructions are consistent with the rules hereby prescribed.

2. In the performance of their duties under this Act, Revenue Officers shall except where otherwise provided for by law, or by these rules, be subject to the general direction and control of the Commissioner of the Division and of the Board of Revenue, and Revenue Officers other than District Officers shall, except when it is otherwise ordered by the Board of Revenue, be subject to the general direction and control of the District officers, provided that, in settlements under the control of the Director of the Department of Land Records and Agriculture, Revenue Officers gazetted as Settlement Officers and Assistant Settlement Officers are subject to the general direction and control of the Director of the Department of Land Records and Agriculture, Bengal, unless otherwise directed by the Board of Revenue.

3. Every Revenue Officer appointed under this Act is vested with —
 - (a) All the powers of a Civil Court in the trial of suits so far as they are required for the purpose of making enquiries under the Act and with all the powers of a Revenue Officer conferred upon him by the Chota Nagpur Commutation Act, IV (B.C.) of 1897, as amended by the Chota Nagpur Tenancy (Amendment) Act of 1903.
 - (b) Any power exercisable by any officer under the Bengal Survey Act, V of 1875.

PROCEDURE FOR COMMUTATION OF PREDIAL SERVICES, &C., AT THE INSTANCE OF PARTIES.

4. Service of notice under section 4—Service of notices under section 4 of the Act shall ordinarily be effected in the manner prescribed for the service of a summons on defendant by Act I (B. C.) of 1879 or other law locally in force.

5. Rules for the preparation and publication of records.—The following processes will ordinarily be comprised in preparing a record of predial conditions or services attaching to lands, and in making a commutation of such conditions or services :—

- (1) Identification of lands.
- (2) Preparation of preliminary record.
- (3) Attestation of the preliminary record and ascertainment of existing rents.
- (4) Commutation of predial services or conditions.
- (5) Preparation and publication of the draft record.
- (6) Disposal of objections.
- (7) Final publication of the record.

6. If the local area of an estate for which the notification is issued under section 5 of the Act exceeds the area of a village according to the revenue survey, the record shall be prepared for each such village. If it does not exceed such an area, the record shall be prepared for such local area or estate as is included in the notification.

7. When the landlord and tenant are agreed as to the lands which are subject to predial conditions or services, the lands shall be entered in the record according to such agreement.

8. If there is a dispute as to such lands, the Revenue Officer shall, after due enquiries, determine what lands shall be entered as subject to predial conditions or services.

9. If it be necessary for the purpose of identifying such lands, a map of the village, local area or estate may be prepared. It shall show the boundaries of all lands subject to predial services or conditions, and such other particulars as the Board may prescribe.

10. There shall be no measurement of lands or preparation of a map except under the orders of the Deputy Commissioner.

11. The record to be prepared under section 6 of the Act shall show for each village, local area or estate the following particulars :—

(a) The pargana and thana

(b) The name and residence of each landlord.

(c) The name, parentage, caste, and residence of each tenant.

(d) The rent payable for the lands held by him at the time the record is being prepared.

(e) The lands, if any, subject to such predial conditions of services.

(f) A short description of such conditions or services.

(g) Commuted rent, if any, fixed for such conditions and services.

(h) Total money-rent fixed for each tenant.

12. When the records referred to in rules 7 to 9 have been prepared, the Revenue Officer shall issue a notification fixing a day and place on and at which he will be present to attest and complete the record : provided that no such date shall be less than one week from the date of the issue of the notification in any such village, nor shall any such place be more than three miles distant from any such village. The notification shall require all parties concerned to attend at the time and place specified, with statements of their respective claims and such evidence as they may have to offer in connection with the proceedings.

13. Such notification shall be published by proclamation and beat of drum, and by posting it in the presence of not less than two respectable inhabitants in some conspicuous place in each village to which it relates.

14. The Revenue Officer may also, at this or any other stage of the proceedings, take such additional measures, under the powers conferred on him by rule 3 above, as may seem to him necessary, to procure the attendance, at any time and place fixed for the enquiry, of any witness or the production of any evidence that may appear to him desirable.

15. On the date specified in the notification to be issued under rule 13, or on any other date to which the proceedings have been adjourned, the entries which have been recorded for each tenant shall be read out in the presence of such of the interested parties as are in attendance. The particulars as to the predial conditions and services to which any lands are subject and the existing rent of the tenant's holding shall be summarily ascertained and entered. If the correctness of any entry or the omission of any entry is disputed, the Revenue Officer shall enquire into and summarily dispose of any matter in dispute, after recording, if necessary, the evidence tendered on either side and making such further local or other enquiry as he may deem desirable to enable him to come to a correct finding. He shall record a separate proceeding in each case of dispute.

16. The Revenue Officer shall then, if required, proceed to fix the rent which shall be deemed payable in respect of such predial conditions and services, and shall enter it and the total rent of the holding so ascertained on the preliminary record.

17. When the entries have been made and attested in accordance with the preceding rules, the Revenue Officer shall record a proceeding in which he shall state that the attestation of the preliminary record is complete, and shall prepare the draft of the record required by section 6 of the Act in the sub-joined form.

FORM OF RECORD.

Village , estate , pargana , thana , district
Name of landlord

Serial No.	Name, parentage, caste, and residence of each tenant.	Existing rent.	Description of lands subject to predial conditions and services.	Short description of predial conditions or services under which lands in column 4 are held. If rent is payable in addition to such conditions, &c., amount of rent.	Commuted rent fixed by Revenue Officer for lands shown in column 4.	Total rent payable by tenant.	REMARKS.
1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8

18. On completion of the draft record in the manner directed above, the Revenue Officer shall cause a notice to be published in the village by beat of drum, and to be posted in the landlord's village office, or in the presence of not less than two persons in some conspicuous place in the village, stating that the draft of the record will be published on a day to be specified not less than a week from the date of such notice, and calling on all persons interested to attend on the date so specified.

19. On the date fixed for draft publication, the Revenue Officer shall either proceed to the village himself, and read out the contents of the record in the presence of the parties who attend, or he shall depute an officer not below the rank of kanungo, who shall read out the contents of the record in the presence of so many of the parties as attend, and the Revenue Officer or Officer deputed by him, as the case may be, shall at the same time inform the parties who attend that the draft record will be open for inspection for not less than one month in the office of the Revenue Officer, or in such other convenient place as the Revenue Officer may determine. The Revenue Officer shall receive and consider any objection which may be made to any entry in the record or to the omission of any entry therefrom during the period named.

20. When an objection is made before the expiry of the period of publication of the draft record prescribed under Rule 19 above, regarding the correctness of any entry in the record or the propriety of any omission therefrom, notice of the objection shall be served on all persons whose interests may, in the opinion of the Revenue Officer, be affected thereby, and they shall be called upon to attend at such time and place as the Revenue Officer may fix for the disposal of the objection. If the objection is contested, the Revenue Officer shall enquire into the case, and after taking evidence, if necessary, or making such enquiry as he thinks necessary, shall dispose of it as provided in Rule 15. If no person attends to contest the objection, the record may be amended accordingly, or the person who made the objection may, if the Revenue Officer thinks fit, be called upon to produce evidence in support of his objection.

21. When all objections have been disposed of by the Revenue Officer, he shall record such corrections and additions, if any, as are required to carry out the orders passed in regard to these objections. He shall then finally frame the record, and cause it to be published by notifying that its contents will be read out in the village on a date to be specified not less than a week from the date of such notice, and by reading it out himself or causing it to be read in the village on the date so specified, in the manner prescribed in rule 19 in the presence of the parties or of so many of them as attend.

22. (a) The Revenue Officer having completed the record shall cause copies of it to be made, one of which, or extracts from which, will be made over to the landlord concerned or, where there are more landlords than one, to their common agent or common manager, as the case may be, and one to the Deputy Commissioner of the district.

(b) An extract from the record relating to his tenancy shall be given to every tenant under the seal of the Revenue Officer, and under the signature of an officer duly authorised by the Revenue Officer to give copies.

(4) Copies of the record or of extracts from the record supplied to landlords and tenants under this rule shall be given free or on payment according as, in the case of each local area, the Local Government may direct. When payment is required, the sums so recovered shall be adjusted against the expenses incurred on account of preparing the record.

23. The Local Government may, if it thinks fit, direct that a final report be written in English for each local area, estate or village for which a record has been prepared. The report will show—

- (a) The number of tenants in such area and the total area of lands held by them distinguishing those subject to predial conditions and services and those not subject.
- (b) A description of the predial conditions and services and of the method in which their value has been commuted if commutation has been ordered.
- (c) The rents payable by the tenants before and after commutation.
- (d) Any other facts deserving of notice affecting the area for which a record has been prepared.
- (e) The cost of preparing the record in accordance with these rules.

If the area for which the record has been prepared exceeds the area of a village, a general report may be prepared as above for the whole area.

PROCEDURE FOR COMPULSORY COMMUTATION OF PREDIAL SERVICES, &C., CONCURRENTLY WITH THE PREPARATION OF A RECORD-OF-RIGHTS ORDERED UNDER SECTION 101 OF THE BENGAL TENANCY ACT, 1885.

24. The procedure for enquiry into, record, attestation, and commutation of predial conditions or services shall be carried out in accordance with the rules in Chapter II of the rules passed by Government under section 189, Bengal Tenancy Act, for the Chota Nagpur Division (except the district of Manbhum) as follows :—

Service of notices under section 4 of the Act shall be made in accordance with the procedure for service of notices under rule 11 (a) of Chapter II of the rules passed by Government under section 189, Bengal Tenancy Act, for the Chota Nagpur Division (except the district of Manbhum) and the record, attestation, and commutation of predial conditions, &c., according to rules 10 (a), 11 (b), and 18 of the above Chapter.

25. The following procedure shall be adopted :—

- (a) (i) The Revenue Officer on the day fixed for the beginning of attestation record the depositions of the landlord or his authorised agent and at least one of the tenants. He shall also take further evidence, oral and documentary, and make such further enquiries as may be necessary in the particular case.

- (ii) He shall then record a finding showing what rakumats and services (if any) are, by ancient custom, renderable by the general body of tenants divided into the following classes :—
- (1) renderable by the tenants jointly,
 - (2) renderable by a tenant proportionate to the nominal area of his holding, and
 - (3) renderable by a tenant irrespective of the extent of his holding.
- (iii) (1) If general rakumats and services are found not to exist, he shall record a finding to that effect.
- (iv)—He shall ascertain and record the cash value of all the predial conditions ascertained under rule (ii), and shall prepare a statement in the sub-joined form of the predial conditions, &c.
